As Churches of Christ we have hardly touched the fringe of this great work. That we are coming to an appreciation of the opportunity, there can be no doubt. The work commenced is but a small sample of what can be done. During the past year five missions were supported by the American Christian Missionary Society, including a Russian mission in the heart of the Russian colony on the east side, Manhattan, and the beginning of institutional work at the Humboldt Church, Brooklyn. This limited work cannot be our complete answer. The 1,665,000 Roman Catholics needs the open Bible, and the pure "faith once all delivered to the Saints." The 1,265,000 Jews needs the truth concerning the Messiah. The hope of this great people with their rich religious life and experience is found in Jesus Christ. Here is a field of Christian service that should command the attention of every Christian. When we think of the long line of Christian Jews, who have brought to the rich and unspeakable blessing of the Christian faith; common gratitude should us to return the favor and give to—God's chosen ones—the truth we need. Truly the rich blessings of our Father will rest on that people who improve their love for the Jew by bringing to him the message of life and salvation through Jesus Christ. As a religious body we are especially fitted to undertake such a task. Our doctrinal position, Church organization and standard of church life and service, enables us to present a reasonable, intelligent claim of Jesus as the Messiah, to the Jewish people.

Another splendid opportunity for service is offered us in the 478,200 Russians in this city. Many of them are acquainted with Christians in Russia and are familiar with their simple New Testament program. This brings them into an intimate relationship with the Disciples of Christ, and offers to us a special obligation from which we cannot escape. Russian Christians are working at the same problem in Russia as we are in America. It would seem that we should extend to them at least the hand of fellowship and unite with them in giving the Gospel to the Russian people. To establish a work among those, coming to this country, will form a bond of unity and tie that will help to unite these two religious bodies who are now working independently for the same great end.

Space will not permit me to even mention the other nationalities claiming our attention. They are here, and merit our serious consideration. The work thus far, one, limited though it is, we trust, is an earnest of the greater work the Churches of Christ will make possible. In faith, larger work is being planned, firmly believing that the churches, when led to see the importance of this work, will "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

The American Christian THE A. C. M. S. Missionary Society has set as its one task, the winning of America for Christ. This is a great enterprise for it means not only evangelizing the native American, but the great alien races, now flocking to our shores from every quarter of the globe. American Missions is now, beyond question, the most stupendous enterprise challenging the Christian people of this country.

What shall be our answer? Can a people rich and strong satisfy their conscience and do their duty by giving $100,000? Shall we not rise to the splendid opportunity and give both men and money for the redemption of our land?

This is the task of the A MAN'S JOB strongest among us. It is a man's job, to be done in a man's way. What greater and more heroic task could challenge the men of our churches than to take as their special task the evangelizing of the 13,343,583 aliens in this land? In such a work the foundation for a world's redemption would be laid, and this fair land saved from destruction and defeat.

May 5th should be a red letter day, a patriotic day, a time of heart searching and honestly facing the duty and responsibility resting upon us. That day you will demonstrate your interest in saving America and making possible a world's redemption.

“Unification Defined and Practiced”

BY G. B. VAN ARSDALL, DENVER, COLO.

Prior to two years ago Central Church in Denver used the customary plan of observing days in the matter of offerings to missions and benevolences. A survey of the record of gifts to our different mission causes in those years shows a large disparity in the contributions to any single cause in different years. One year the church gave a large offering to one cause and little to another. Perhaps another year this was reversed. There was nothing approximating regularity of gifts to any mission and consequently no sustained interest in that particular work. These varying gifts were not the fault of the minister or the congregation: they were due to the system. Under such a system the contributions to any cause are affected by too many temporary conditions to guarantee sustained interest and reasonably uniform offerings. They are dependent upon the weather, financial conditions in the church, and special reasons given for generosity. Such reasons are not always present nor should they be necessary; but they are necessary where the offering is dependent upon a day. Then the contributions vary because the plea for a particular cause appeals to different people with unequal force. Whereas, if all the facts were known and all interests considered the verdict would be different and more equitable. Two years ago Central Church appointed a missionary committee to decide what we should try to do for each of our organized missions. This committee took all the facts into consideration and made the appeal upon that basis. One offering was to be received on Easter Sunday for all our missions, and distributed as the committee decided. Result—the congregation gave more than double as much on that one day as they had given before on all the special days. Where before Central Church had supported their own work and given indifferent amounts to our missions, they now support their own work, support a missionary in the foreign field, give enough to support a home missionary and one of the Old Guard besides regular and liberal gifts to all other organized missions and benevolences. In addition they take enough of each year's offering to educate the congregation in missions by sending a

THE OLD SYSTEM

THE NEW PLAN

PRINTER'S INK

Christian Evangelist free to every family of the church. The change has been wrought by simplifying and unifying gifts to missions. It is the established policy of the church to sustain all its interests. Nobody asks any question about it, everybody believes in the wisdom of the plan and the number of contributors has increased with the offerings. This year we have introduced a duplex envelope system—a still further improvement—and the offerings for next year will be completed on Easter Sunday.

UNIFICATION PRACTICED

Second—the one system. Prior to last year the Colorado Christian Missionary Society and the American Christian Missionary Society worked independently, both in the matter of collection and distribution of funds in Colorado. Each made their own appeal and each supported their own mission points in the state. The local pastor who could distinguish between the two causes had the traditional Philadelphia lawyer beat a mile. To the C. C. M. S. said to the A. C. M. S. “Let us become your agent in Colorado.”

to collect the funds for your work, let missionaries in Colorado be our missionaries under our supervision and let our state superintendent of missions be our field agent." The arrangement was consummated. Result—Colorado contributed as much as formerly for state missions and three times as much for A. M. S. as before. We have gone a step further for 1912 in that there will be but one offering in the state for A. C. M. S. and Colorado missions. I am convinced that all our mission interests would experience a like increase if we would adopt some such "get together policy." It works in the local church and in the state and nation as far as it has been tried.

Are You A Doubler?

In another part of this paper we have put up to our readers the proposition of doubling the subscription to Christian Men within the next thirty or sixty days. It can be done if YOU will do your part. Suggest to one of your acquaintances that you go together and call on the men of your church, members of your Bible Class, League or Club. Show them your own copy of the magazine, and they are almost sure to subscribe.

Rates

Single subscriptions per year	50 cents
Clubs of twenty or more, each, per year	25 cents

Bible Classes may order in quantities, payable quarterly, all to one address, for local distribution.

Wireless Whispers

Appreciation of Christian Men

I have a moment between conferences and I want to write you a line of appreciation of the last CHRISTIAN MEN. You always have a good magazine, but this is par excellence! It is classy, convincing, manly—high grade in every respect. I have read it, pondered it, and feasted my eyes on it. It will do the March offering a world of good.—STEPHEN J. COREY, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The current issue of CHRISTIAN MEN is far away in advance of any issue of the magazine. I have read every issue with some care and interest, but believe you have in this issue found your gait.—J. N. CRUTCHER, Neosho, Mo.

The February issue of CHRISTIAN MEN is par excellence. Please send me some additional copies that I may distribute them among my friends.—A. C. GRAY, Department of Social Sciences, Eureka College.

I have had an admiration for CHRISTIAN MEN for a long time and I am glad to have this opportunity to say so. I think I have a copy of every month's issue since the beginning and I have enjoyed every one of them and am sure none of them has excelled the February number.—J. W. MITCHELL, Long Beach, Cal.

Congratulations upon your splendid February number. It is by all odds the best yet.—E. W. ALLEN, Cincinnati, Ohio.

I want to thank you for the very splendid way you got up that article of mine on "Financing a World-Wide Institution." You have done a good job, very good. And also let me thank you for the splendid tribute to President McLean. He is worthy of every word of it and much more. And the article from Dr. Paul Wakefield will do good. The illustrations are all right.—F. M. RAINS, Foreign Christian Missionary Society, Cincinnati, Ohio.

You will have a hard time making an improvement on your last issue of CHRISTIAN MEN.—E. S. BAKER, Jackson, Tenn.

CHRISTIAN MEN is a hummer. It is throbbing with vigorous life and must do a great good to all men in the church.—W. H. JAY, Bellevue, Pa.

CHRISTIAN MEN is getting better with every issue. Every Christian man should be a regular reader and it would also do the other fellow a lot of good, too.—J. J. GROVE, Ames, Ia.

That last book of yours is a gem. Congratulations.—GRANT K. LEWIS.

The March number of CHRISTIAN MEN is a corker. I'm afraid the April number will be as good, or better, and I don't want to miss it, so here's my subscription for a year.—OSCAR GRIMES, Des Moines, Ia.

* * *

Proposed Increase in Postage

The President and Postmaster General is asking Congress to double the rate of postage on second class mail matter. This will vitally affect CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine and hundreds of similar publications throughout the country. The daily press reports a surplus in the operation of the Postoffice Department. Whether or not this report is correct, we do not pretend to know, but we do know that if the increase in postage goes into effect the price of CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine will necessarily have to be increased. We should deplore this very much. The paper is already being published at a decided loss.

If you have any interest in Washington, please write to your Representative and ask him to vote against this increase. It has no merit and we think that all of our representatives should be dead against it and bitterly oppose any effort to that end.

* * *

China's Appeal to America

Conditions in China are such as to appeal to every heart. The long-continued floods in the Yangtze Valley, followed by failure of crops in several provinces, brought thousands to the point of starvation. War added has precipitated a state of things almost unparalleled in the history of any country. Three millions of people in central China are on the verge of starvation. Many have already died of hunger and unless prompt relief is given, multitudes of men, women and children will perish.

During the past few weeks the political and military news from China has absorbed the attention and interest of the world, to the exclusion of the needs of the hungry millions. No harvest can be expected until May, and until then the famine will be growing day by day more acute. The people to be relieved are chiefly hard-working and honest farmers.

This is one of the greatest famines of modern times. Six hundred thousand families without food or means of support. Fifteen years will save a whole family from starvation. Fifteen hundred dollars will save one hundred families. Fifteen thousand dollars will provide for one thousand families. Hundreds of thousands of lives can thus be saved by sufficiently prompt and generous contributions are made.

Let the Bible school and classes take action on this matter and take collections for China's dreadful need. Remember that all gifts received will be forwarded by cable, without any deduction for expense, to the Chinese Relief Committee in China. Individuals and churches are responding liberally. Bible schools must have a part in this relief.

In this time of national crisis and reconstruction in China, and in her hour of dire physical distress and suffering, may America prove a friend indeed, because a friend in time of need.

Send all contributions to the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, Box 884, Cincinnati, O.

* * *

As a Humorist Sees Us

George Fitch (Copyright)

Churches are buildings in which people gather for the purpose of being good. Most of them are open one day a week.

Churches are not built by stock companies, but by voluntary contributions helped out by concerts, lawn parties, suppers, cantatas, fairs, bazaar, rummage sales, steamboat excursions, ice cream fetes, watermelon gorges, oyster parties, and chicken pie soirees. Most of these events are pulled off by the Ladies' Aid Society, which usually takes up the burden after the men have given it up, and pays off the church debt. By working eighteen hours a day for a week, fifty women can easily clear $145 at a church supper and by giving one hour a week, they can pay for a medium sized church by the time it needs repainting, re-carpeting and recarpeting. Most of our churches run on the backs of tired women.

Some people use a church as a club house. Some use it as an advertisement, and others use it as a means of rising to power and glory, by becoming the head of the vestry. But if used in the proper way and in moderation, the church is very beneficial and will eventually enlarge a man's soul until he will be able to look over his pocketbook without using a step-ladder.

* * *

Book Review

Gospel Bells is the title of a handsome volume of gospel songs, hymns, choruses, solos, duets and quartettes from the press of the Hackelman Music Company, Indianapolis, Indiana. In artistic design, this is one of the most attractive books that has found its way into our editorial sanctum in some time. A sprinkling of the old time songs that we all love, and cannot live without, makes a fine complement for the large number of brand new pieces that are crowded between the pretty covers of this book. It will make an added contribution to the musical library of any home, and for Sunday-School, Endeavor Societies and Evangelistic Meetings in the church, we do not know of a book of superior merit. A sample copy will be furnished for 35c either by the Hackelman Music Company, Indianapolis, Indiana, the Christian Board of Publication, St. Louis, Missouri, or the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, Kansas City, Missouri. Special prices in quantities upon application.

* * *

Transient Bereans

Over at Nelsonville, Ohio, where there probably is the very largest Men's Bible class in the Christian Church, they have a group of eleven men forming a team of organizers, going about the country. These men get together every Sunday, wherever they are, for a study of the lesson, in the hotel, in a Christian Church, on the train, or wherever they happen to be. This is a most commendable idea, and one that is thoroughly unique. We do not know of another class of traveling men so situated, and all of them members of a Bible class. In fact, it is the exception rather than the rule to find traveling men who read the Bible at all, let alone studying it. The editor of this paper was a traveling man for upwards of a score of years, and until the Gideons began putting Bibles in the hotel rooms, thousands of traveling men seldom saw even the outside of the Book.

* * *

Professor Kinney in Politics

Word sifts into us by way of Iowa that Professor C. N. Kinney, of Drake University, State President of the Iowa Brotherhood and President of the University Place Local Chapter, has consented to become a candidate for member of the School Board of the City of Des Moines. The entrance of this good man into the ultra political family is a long step in the right direction. The difficulty with politics, as a usual thing, is that good men do not take the time and effort necessary to purge it of graft and unscrupulous practices. Des Moines works under the Commission form of Government so far as the city proper is concerned. We understand that at least a majority of the Commissioners are Christian men. We know Professor Kinney will make a valuable member of the Board of Education and hope that the forces of Des Moines will agree with us and elect him to that high office.

* * *

Brotherhood Insurance Again

F. M. Morgan, Ashland, Ill.

I believe that we have, in the organization of the B. D. C., one of the greatest opportunities to do good that has come before us as men. Most of our men are carrying life insurance. Now my proposition is this: Why not organize an insurance company in connection with our Brotherhood that takes no one but men who are total abstainers? We would be paying what actual insurance would cost. Why are we paying such high rates when poor men need insurance that they can carry, brethren? Let us hear what the Brotherhood thinks. I move that we have the voice of our men on this proposition, for we can give the very best insurance in the world for the least money.

* * *

Brotherhood Activities in Carthage, Mo.

George F. Blue, Secretary

At our banquet and the annual election 68 men sat down and enjoyed the spread and program. The program, as given in CHRISTIAN MEN, was carried out.

Rev. Harvey Jones, pastor of the First M. E. Church, of Joplin, spoke on "The Church the Teacher of Righteousness." C. E. Wagner, pastor of the Christian Church of Webb City, addressed us on "The Church a Prophet of Truth." Dr. J. D. McCaughty, of the First Presbyterian Church, Carthage, on "The Church a Savior of Society." J. N. Crutcher, pastor of the Christian Church of Neosho, came in unexpectedly but was welcomed just the same and made a short talk along Brotherhood lines.

The Brotherhood had a short business meeting at 7:15 p. m., deciding to pay into the general work $1.00 per year per member, sending same in quarterly, entitling them to CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine.

The Brotherhood has voted to get behind the Bible School, increasing its attendance and building it up in a general way. We have a 20th Century's Men's Class and a Baraca Class, and the Brotherhood is going to see that the full enrollment attends and new members added. Slogan for 1912—"The Brotherhood pushing the Bible School to the front."

C. E. Wagner, of Webb City, brought 10 men, members of his congregation, and in all probability a Brotherhood will be started at Webb City. Wagner and Crutcher both said that it was one of the best meetings they ever attended.

* * *

Pastor Does Brotherhood Work Enroute to New Charge

J. E. Davis recently moved from Beatrice, Nebraska, to Spokane, Washington. He wrote to the National Brotherhood office offering his services for Field Secretary work. We sent organization material and other printed matter to the several points, and as Brother Davis passed through enroute to Spokane he stopped off and held meetings with the men. The men of Sheridan, Wyoming, have already affiliated and we are looking forward to affiliation with other groups.

The Deed Is Done

This space was reserved for Bro. Davis' picture. It is probably delayed by Western storms and will appear later.

The announcement in regard to J. E. Davis was prepared for the March number of CHRISTIAN MEN, but was crowded out. Sheridan, Wyoming, has 35 charter members, and following officers: President, E. R. Cadle; Vice-President, Fred S. Eckwall; Secretary, T. J. Settle; Treasurer, Francis Eggert; Chaplain J. W. Caywood. There were 160 men present. Floyd A. Bash, a graduate of Cotner, is the pastor. Bash is a hustler and live wire. He will keep them moving while they are learning to walk and has his church organized and well in hand. Citizens of Sheridan tell us that our church is doing the best work in Sheridan—a town of 12,000 people. Bash is deservedly the most popular minister in the city. This only shows what a minister can do if he has it in him.

* * *

Nelsonville Uses Christian Men Program

R. A. Doan, Nelsonville, Ohio

R. A. DOAN

Our program went off fine. So far as results were concerned, I think it was one of the best we ever attempted. Four or five of the fellows had never attempted anything of the kind before. They did fine and the moral influence was great. We had a big crowd of men—and a stormy night.

Nebraska at Work

H. E. SACKETT

in the various States Brotherhood Committees have been appointed by the State Conventions. Over in Nebraska H. E. Sackett, an attorney of Beatrice, is the State Brotherhood President. Sackett is a live wire and an enthusiastic worker for the common good. He has been an active worker in the First Church at Beatrice for many years and he is still working. In January he organized a Brotherhood at Virginia, a neighboring city, and helped them elect officers and get started on their way rejoicing. Every man subscribed to CHRISTIAN MEN. A night or two later he took three automobile loads of men from Beatrice to Chester, another neighboring city, and did the thing again. This man has caught the vision of Brotherhood work to a larger degree than most of our laymen and is imparting it to his fellows wherever he goes. The Brotherhood Movement needs more men like H. E. Sackett and the indications are that they are to be had if we go on a still hunt for them.

* * *

Lloyd Is Busy—Keokuk President Organizes Illinois Chapter

J. P. Peterson, of our Brotherhood, accompanied me to La Harpe, Ill., and on Sunday organized what gives promise of being a very enthusiastic Brotherhood. The new organization elected the following officers: Rev. J. A. Jordan, President; George H. Butler, Vice-President; Kent Campbell, Secretary; Ed Willyear, Treasurer. They have elected the right man for President, as Brother Jordan is a very enthusiastic worker.

We also urged each member to become a subscriber to CHRISTIAN MEN and they at once secured over twenty subscribers. I think they expected to increase this number before sending the list to you.

* * *

A Traveling Bible Class

From The Berean Bulletin, Nelsonville, Ohio. Last week we received greetings from Dover Falls, Pa., from a new organization formed there last Sunday morning, under the leadership of L. A. Collamore. His men, together with two other traveling men who had responded to their invitation to meet with them, met in a room in the hotel and organized a traveling Sunday-School class which will be known as the Transient Bereans. Brother Collamore was elected teacher and read the lesson for the day as well as those for the two previous Sundays.

It is the purpose of the class to meet every Sunday for the study of God's word wherever they may be. They will invite all other traveling men who may be stopping at their hotel. We hope to have a report from them each week. The general Brotherhood will be intensely interested in the progress of this new class. Their motto is "Manly Men," and their object is to make manly men. One of the visiting men last Sunday said he saw great possibilities in this movement so modestly begun and promised to try to get the traveling men wherever he should stop today to meet with him for Bible study. Who knows just how much good may grow out of this beginning?

* * *

The Program of English Brotherhoods

It is a matter for great surprise to American citizens, who have prided themselves upon the success of their political experiments, to have the conservative English people outrun them in the distinctly definite program for the economic and social relief of the nation. What Lloyd-George and the English Parliament have lately voted to do is heralded properly as the most daring social venture in the history of all governments. In line with this better governmental policy, it is interesting to know that the English Brotherhoods, according to Mr. Mee, formerly of the Daily Mail, have adopted as their program objectives in which our American men are deeply sympathetic. They are as follows:

1. Destruction of the prevailing war spirit.
2. Abolishment of gambling.
3. Annihilation of the curse of drink.
4. Prevention, if not cure, of tuberculosis.
5. Salvation of the nation's childhood.
6. Prevention of the waste of life, and of accidents, due to dangerous machinery and occupational diseases.
7. Establishment of the Christ-spirit in the individual and nation.

* * *

Education for Social Service

Prof. Francis G. Peabody

The question of an adequate training for social work in the churches cannot, I think, be answered without determining what kind of work it shall be. If it is meant that the layman should serve on entertainment committees, teach boys' clubs, organize boy scouts, or collect subscriptions, no serious training would seem to be essential beyond an education in kindness, common sense and sympathy. But if, on the other hand, it is asked what the churches most need at the present time in their programs of social work then I must answer that they need a new re-enforcement of wisdom, foresight and restraint, which must be the result of special training and experience. It is quite true that theoretical studies may leave one without practical efficiency, that learning may be too remote from the real world to be of use, but the opposite peril just now seriously threatens the churches; the peril of zeal without knowledge, of sentiment without science, of a burning sense of wrong without a working scheme of righteousness. Many Christian workers, it is true, have after serious study committed themselves to social radicalism; but many more have been swept into participation with destructive and impracticable plans of social change, simply because they do not know enough about the subject, and do not realize the delicate adjustments of the social world. "Theoria," in its Greek sense, means seeing, and a theorist is he who sees things as they are, or, as Mathew Arnold said of Sophocles, "Sees things steadily and sees them whole." In this sense the churches need, above all things, theorists, men with an all-round view, persons who are trained in the complex problems of the economic and social world. Unless such social wisdom is developed within the churches, then the organization of religion is likely to lose its authority over modern minds, and to be abandoned by an increasing number of persons as a refuge for the sentimentalists, the ecclesiastics, and the reactionaries.

* * *

Regarding Contests

Some folks don't believe in a contest in Bible Schools. What? New Philadelphia Brotherhood class found thirteen men on one street who were not attending any school. Phila landed them all in the class. Did it pay? Would it have been better to have left those out of Bible School even if they never attended but one Sunday? Say, the devil is opposed to Bible Schools having Bible School contests. Be careful, "Evil associations corrupt good manners."—Urichsville (Ohio) Christian.

* * *

Men! Men!! Men!!!

What is the matter with the men? They're all right. Who's all right? The men. Who say so? Everybody. Who's everybody? The men! Can they beat the three women's classes next Sunday? Well, I guess yes. Look sharp, men. Come and bring a man and let's make those women's classes look like thirty cents. We ought to have seventy-five men in the Brotherhood class next Sunday.—Findlay (Ohio) Messenger.

* * *

Belmar Brotherhood Boys' Work

Clifford Pheasant, Secretary

Belmar Brotherhood No. 335, with Percy B. Walls, President; F. A. Kilian, Vice-President; James R. Womersly, Treasurer; Clifford Pheasant, Secretary, has taken hold of Boys' Work with a band of one hundred boys in the church every Friday evening known as the Boys' Brigade, none of them members of the church or Bible School. This Brotherhood has a membership of one hundred and is adding new members at each meeting.

* * *

Schull Keeps Busy

When the local Brotherhood Chapter was organized in the Compton Heights Church in St. Louis, C. W. Schull was elected Secretary. Schull is what we term a "live wire," ran a restaurant in St. Louis to pay expenses worked in City missions, and was a power in the local church. The Christian Board of Publication picked him up and sent him out on the road to represent the publishing house. Everywhere Schull goes he talks Brotherhood and several local chapters have been organized under his stimulation. A recent issue of the Martinsville (Indiana) News announces him to speak at the Christian Church on the subject, "The New Man on the Old Job."

* * *

New Albany Central Brotherhood

By Harry Peake, President

The Brotherhood of Central Christian Church of New Albany, Indiana, has just held its annual banquet and election of officers, and is in such a condition of prosperity that it is considerably puffed up.

ROBERT SIMPSON

Its list of members now numbers 155 men and it has been most active during the past year in looking after the welfare, not only of the organization, but of its individual members.

The report of the Brotherhood for the year is as follows:

Meetings during the year.....	11
Average attendance.	60
Members lost by death.....	4
Members lost by removal.....	8
Disbursements by Brotherhood and Men's Bible class (aside from running expenses):
Flowers for sick and floral designs for dead.....	$10.00
Foreign Missions.	12.00
Home Missions.	10.00
Special charity work.....	65.00

This condition of prosperity is largely due to the splendid work of the ex-president, John O. Conklin, the minister, Robert Simpson, and their excellent corps of assistants.

The new officers are Harvey Peake, President; Chester Staton, Vice-President; Norman Gordon, Secretary; John Mitchell, Corresponding Secretary, and Charles Roushenger, Treasurer.

JOHN O. CONKLIN, Member State Committee

At the February meeting (at which time the annual banquet was served) the speaker was Dr. John Voris, of the Second Presbyterian Church. Subject, "Some of the Elements of Brotherhood."

* * *

Brotherhood Field Secretary for Indiana

GARRY L. COOK

Arrangements have been made with the Indiana Christian Missionary Association for their State Superintendent, Garry L. Cook, 60 East Washington Street, to represent the Brotherhood Movement in the Hoosier State for the months of March, April and May. Mr. Cook is available for addresses, conferences, and general Field work in the interests of Men's Work. In his regular itineraries about the state he will present the work of the Brotherhood, and be of assistance in starting local chapters in churches. In this work he will be ably assisted by the State Brotherhood Committee, of which Robert Simpson, pastor at New Albany, is Chairman. Arrangements for dates may be made direct with Mr. Cook. This is the first direct move looking toward concerted Field work in single states. The C. W. B. M. early saw the necessity for this plan and have Field Secretaries now in a number of states. At this writing plans are being laid for representatives in other states, announcement of which will be duly made.

Cato Still Busy

B. F. CATO

When CHRISTIAN MEN was young, and the Brotherhood was young, and the Secretaries were young, and all of us were young in Brotherhood work—a good deal younger than now—B. F. Cato was pastor at New Albany, Indiana. He won a silver medal in the subscription contest for CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine. After that he was at Beaumont, Texas, and after that at Lawrenceville, Illinois. Now he is at Bowling Green, Kentucky, and organizing his men for effective Christian work. Wherever he has been he is enthusiastic over the Brotherhood idea and we look forward to a fine working group at Bowling Green, affiliated with the general movement.

* * *

Itinerary of W. C. Payne and E. E. Elliott

W. C. PAYNE

Sunday, April 14th, Indianapolis.
Monday, April 15th, Cincinnati.
Tuesday, April 16th, Washington, D. C.
Wednesday, April 17th, Hagerstown, Md.
Thursday, April 18th, Baltimore, Md.
Friday, April 19th, to Wednesday, April 24th, Hotel York, New York City.
Friday, April 26th, Norfolk, Va.
Sunday, April 28th (Conservation Day), Pittsburg, Pa.
Monday, April 29th, Washington, Pa.
Tuesday, April 30th, Bethany, W. Va.
In all the above cities except New York City and Pittsburgh we will hold afternoon meetings for women, in the interests of the C. W. B. M., and supper meetings for men, in the interests of the Brotherhood Movement.

The Religious Possibilities of the Motion Picture

Herbert A. Jump, minister of the South Congregation Church, New Britain, Conn., is the author of a brief pamphlet of thirty-two pages filled to the brim with information of value to the churches, Brotherhoods, Men's Clubs, Civic organizations and officials of municipalities. Chapters are devoted to:

Prejudice against motion pictures,
How to make sermons interesting,
The vogue of the motion picture,
Motion picture statistics,
The main trouble not the pictures,
The moving picture as an invention,
What Mr. Edison says,
Mechanics of the photoplay,
The range of subjects,
Globe trotting for a dime,
The silent drama,
National censorship,
Broadening the photoplay,
Photoplay as religious tool,
Graphic missionary education,
Motion picture sermons,
Service of worship and photoplays,
Cost of equipment.

The handling of the subject indicates familiarity with the theme, and a wide reading among ministers, religious workers, and those interested in social improvement is commended. Copies of the pamphlet may be secured for five cents to cover cost of mailing. Address the author.

* * *

Send It In

A "Suggestion" to correspondents:

If you have a bit of news, send it in;
Or a joke that will amuse, send it in.
A story that is true,
An incident that's new,
We want to hear from you! Send it in.

Of some patient labor done—send it in;
Of a fallen brother won, send it in.
Of a master who can teach Truth beyond the average reach
Of a noble, glowing speech, send it in.

Will your story make us laugh? Send it in.
Send along a photograph. Send it in.
When out fishing, send a note
Of the things you catch afloat Or the good times on the boat. Send it in.
—National Magazine.

* * *

What Raum Says

"Ten thousand dollars a year for five years spent in each of the Northwestern States will make this country ours and no one will ever be able to take it away from us." See article, "Taking of the Northwest," elsewhere in this issue.

W. C. Pearce on Bible Classes

W. C. PEARCE

Adult Superintendent International Sunday-School Association

The day is fast coming when the men Bible classes in the church will have miniature Y. M. C. A's. Every class ought to have its own room and the members should arrange to suit themselves.

To give the "lonely fellows," the men who have leisure hours, a wholesome place to spend their time, the room could be "fixed up" so they could spend their evenings there. There should be checker tables, chess table, rocking chairs, magazines and books for the members.

I advise four subjects for the teachers to master. (1) Familiarity with the Bible as a whole. (2) Teachers ought to know the Sunday-school. (3) They should know the pupils. (4) They should know how to teach. The men should be encouraged to buy their own Bibles and take them to the Sunday-school meetings.

The teacher ought to show the men how to "mark" important passages and words found in the Bible, and they should be made familiar with the books of the two testaments, so they could find them easily. Also emphasize the value of story telling and the teachers should cultivate story telling because often the lesson may be emphasized with greater force by a simple, pointed narrative.

* * *

Scoville to Australia

Charles Reign Scoville, one of the sustaining members of the National Brotherhood Movement, one of our great evangelists, will sail with his company from San Francisco on April 3d for Australia, to hold meetings in the three greatest cities of the island continent, namely Melbourne, Sydney and Adelaide. At this writing the Scoville Company is just finishing a meeting at Muskogee, Oklahoma, where on March 13th they had had 1,021 additions.

A Brotherhood House Built in a Day

BY T. C. DAVIS, VICE-PRESIDENT, URICHSVILLE, OHIO.

Photo taken 3:30 P. M.

"More room, please give us more room," was the plea of the Allison Bible class of the Church of Christ at Urichsville, Ohio.

The gratifying situation was that the Sunday-school had spread to every corner of the spacious church building till no more room was available.

"What shall we do?" was the question asked and unanswered until the resourceful pastor, J. A. Canby, shouted, "A tabernacle in a day."

The idea caught, took root and spread like a fire.

Available ground space was provided on the church lot and Saturday, March 16th, was selected as the day to build a room 32 by 5 which was deemed large enough to accommodate the growing and enthusiastic Men's Bible class.

The men volunteered—125 of them from all walks of life—to donate their services for the day and rush it through.

The women were equally loyal and volunteered to turn the "men's reading room" into a dining hall for the day and feed the men who helped to build.

The enthusiasm spread beyond the local church. Men from other churches in town came and offered their services, while C. A.

McDonald, minister at New Philadelphia, came with a crew and "lent a hand."

At sundown March 16th a few finishing touches only were needed to make the room ready for use Sunday morning, the building having been roofed, plastered and painted.

A few boys gathered in about ten years ago by J. P. Allison, pastor at the time (now at Connellsville, Pa.), were the beginning of the present class with an enrollment of over 300 members.

The class was reorganized last July with L. L. Nelson, President, with a keen insight into the future, and a vision of what a Men's Bible class ought to be. Under his able leadership and without a pastor for five months the class grew steadily and increased its average attendance.

J. A. Canby took charge as pastor October 1st. His specialty is winning men. The specialty of the men of the A. B. C. is to follow Canby. His sincere, manly, earnest way of proclaiming "The Word," and his zeal and energy has won the hearts and admiration of all within reach.

The officers, President L. L. Nelson, Vice-President T. C. Davis, Secretary John Burton and Treasurer Emmet Henry, are planning with the assistance of a loyal executive staff, to advance from an attendance of 209 March 10th to 450 Easter Sunday.

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR APRIL.

No. 2.

TOPIC—Our Immigrants.

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Fair Freedom's Land,"
Brotherhood Hymns, No. 33.
(See back cover of April CHRISTIAN MEN.)
2. Prayer: from the millions that are coming to our shores; for the Church that she may rise to her opportunity of planting in their hearts the spirit of Christian brotherhood.
3. Scripture reading, John 13:34-35;
Matt. 12:50; Matt. 10:42; Matt.
11:5 and 29.
4. Hymn.

II.—Cultural.—Two fifteen minutes ad- dresses.

1. "Their Number."
2. "Their Quality."
3. Discussion, "The immigrant to our community, and our Brotherhood's future relation to him."
(Study Gospel of the Kingdom, June, 1911.)

III.—Business.

- Roll-call. Send two members after each absentee.
- Minutes of last meeting.
- Reports of officers and committees.
- Unfinished Business.
- New Business.
- Election of new members.

IV.—Social.

- Reception for new members and visitors.
- Offering for local support.

V.—Closing.

- Hymn, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," Brotherhood Hymns No. 38.
- Benediction.

VI.—Suggestions.

This program will require preparation. If those to whom addresses have been assigned will follow the suggestions below they will find their work intensely interesting and profitable, both to themselves and to the men. Our enthusiasm is dependent upon our information. Information is abundant and accessible. Get it.

For the first address:

Five thousand Hindoos came to California in 1910. Buddhist temples have been erected in our land. One in San Francisco and one in New York City.

During the decade ending in 1910, 8,795,386 came to the United States, as follows:

Slavic.	3,178,490
Iberic.	2,138,527
Teutonic.	1,831,332
Celtic.	977,407
Mongolian.	166,528
Others.	503,102

Total arrivals in 1910 numbered 1,190,377.

Number likely to become public charges. 4.4

Number afflicted with contagious diseases. 2.3

Number contract laborers. 1.1

Number others, including criminals, prostitutes, insane, feeble-minded, etc. 2.3

Number debarred. 10.4

Throughout the United States these immigrants were distributed as follows:

North Atlantic division. 69%

North Central division. 22%

South Atlantic division. 2%

South Central division. 1.5

Western division. 5.5

From the above it is easy to determine where missionary work among our immigrants is most needed.

“(Note—The above figures are from Prof. J. P. Lichtenberger, University of Pennsylvania, as given in American Year Book for 1910. See Bibliography below for other facts.)

For the second address:

The average amount of money brought by these immigrants with which to begin life in America was $22 per capita. The Spanish-Americans brought the most, $104; the Koreans brought the least, $7.

About 75% of those coming in 1909 and 1910 claimed to have paid their own passage, the remainder admitted to having the passage paid.

About 75% were males, and 25% females. Of Japanese, more females than males came.

In 1899 only 19.7% were illiterate; in 1909 and 1910 illiteracy had increased to 29.2%.

(See American Year Bk., pp. 397, 398.)

Bibliography.

1. Free—"Annual Report of Commission General of Immigration." Address Immigration Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Consult your public libraries for the following books:

"On Trail of the Immigrant," by Edward A. Steiner.

"Immigration and Its Effects Upon the United States," by Prescott F. Hall.

"The Alien Immigrant," by Gordon W. Evans.

Races and Immigrants in America," John R. Commons. Report of Industrial Commission," Vol. 15, pp. 1-840, 1901; Vol. 19, pp. 957-10, 1902. The Immigrant Tide, Its Ebb and Flow." Published by Revell, 1909. A letter addressed to the Immigration Bureau at Washington, D. C., will bring you the latest information. For the discussion: Turn your attention to the alien at your door. What will you do—not with but for him. Uncared for he is liable to become a menace, but brothered he becomes a respected citizen of your community. The writer found a Greek boot black who was a graduate of "Athens University." He was well educated. A little attention brought him to the church and later to the Bible class.

(Write the American Christian Missionary Society, Carew Building, Cincinnati, for material on our relation to the Immigrant.)

PROGRAM FOR MAY.

No. 1.

III.—Social Service.

Devotional.

1 Hymn, "Oh, Do Some Good Deed Every Day," Brotherhood Hymns No. 54.

Prayer.

2 Scripture reading, Matt. 5:7-45.

3 Hymn, "My Jesus, I Love Thee," Brotherhood Hymns No. 120.

Cultural. Two fifteen-minute addresses.

1 Address: (Suggested topics.)

- (a) Municipal Conditions.
- (b) Parks and Highways.
- (c) Juvenile Courts.
- (d) Supervision of Children's Recreation.
- (e) Causes of Juvenile Crime.

2 Address: (Suggested topics.)

- (a) Pictures Shows and Theaters.
- (b) Police Regulations.
- (c) Commercialized Recreations.
- (d) The Social Evil.

3 Discussion: That the men of this church ought to join with the men of other churches in organized activities toward cleaner and better life in our community.

4 Clincher: That a social service commission be appointed this night.

II.—Business.

Roll-call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

Election of new members.

IV.—Social.

Refreshments.

Silver Offering.

Reception to new members and visitors.

V.—Closing.

Form circle with clasped hands and sing "Blest be the tie that binds."

All join in Lord's Prayer.

VI.—This Topic Concerns Local Conditions.

If you have been fortunate enough to have attended a Men and Religion Forward Movement Convention you doubtless have copy of Social Survey, revealing some startling situation on the above topics. If your community has made no such survey your Chapter could do no better work than to start a movement to make a survey of your locality. It is absolutely necessary that you diagnose a situation before suggesting a remedy.

For this program it will be necessary to study your community. Do this in preparation for this program. The Brotherhood's chief business is to develop the initiative of local men. It is our purpose to help all we can, but here it is necessary that our men trust to their own ability and resources for facts.

Determine to be a factor in your community's welfare. Give the spirit of Jesus Christ a free hand in your civic and social affairs and something will happen.

A New Page Next Month

"About the Board" is the significant title of a brand new department of Christian Men to appear in May. It will be just as inviting as its name indicates, full of up-to-the-minute wit and humor, and the very choicest puns imaginable. If you have a good joke or pun and can tell it in a few words, send it in for the "About the Board" readers. The best there is in this line will be yours in May.

Keep Your Eyes Open

BROTHERHOOD BOYS

CHAS. B. HAHN, Editor

Some Rules of the Game

¶ Do not break a boy's will, but control it.

¶ Patience is what makes a boy's teacher successful.

¶ Boys do not judge so much by what you say as by what you are.

¶ Boys are a bundle of emotions before they are fifteen years of age.

¶ Let the boys see the vision of a Christian life—and that means service.

¶ Try to drive a boy and you fail; lead him and you will have success.

¶ There is nothing so good for a boy as to have a pure, good girl friend.

¶ Win the boy's confidence once and you can control with a nod or a look.

¶ The new way of dealing with the boy is to use the magnet of love and draw.

¶ Let us think more of the boys than of old buildings that last for time only.

¶ A boy can see under the sham and into your heart which you think is hidden.

¶ There is too much warning and nagging by parents; you should trust the boy much.

¶ Remember that a boy is quick to understand your game—boys are not easily deceived.

¶ A boy with every wish gratified will never reach the highest round in the ladder of life.

¶ Be careful not to discourage a boy. He will talk and act as if he can conquer the world.

¶ Give the boy a fair shake, put him on his honor, trust him, and he will not go wrong in the end.

¶ Sitting alone with your conscience will be judgment enough if you go and the lad be not with you.

¶ Some people have an idea that their town would be a pleasant place to live if there were no boys in it.

¶ You can usually rule a boy by impressing upon him the sense of his own responsibility and his sacred honor.

¶ Never prophesy as to what a boy will become, when a man. He may hurt your reputation as a prophet.

¶ Do you know that there is small chance of reforming a boy who is a cigarette fiend unless the habit can be broken?

How Men Can Help the First Sunday in May

BY ROBERT HOPKINS,

NATIONAL BIBLE SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT.

ROBERT HOPKINS

There are many agencies at work in the world today to enlist men in Christian service. These find their coöperative culmination in the Men and Religion Forward Movement. Its message is to enlist men in work for Christ in Bible Study, in Evangelism, in Community Extension, in Social Service and in Missions. Its appeal is to the Christian men to put good plans to work in these directions in their churches. The church is the agency in which in the last analysis must bring the message of Jesus Christ to the hearts of men.

Among the Disciples of Christ, the first Lord's Day in May has long been set apart as the day when the churches make their offerings for the planting and strengthening of churches throughout the United States and Canada. The American Christian Missionary Society is the oldest of the general missionary organizations. Since 1849 its plea has been "to extend the Church of Christ throughout America." During these years a splendid record has been made, and the Society's efficiency has been clearly demonstrated. Over one-half of the churches we have have been reached possible through the instrumentality of the American Christian Missionary Society and its auxiliary State Societies.

America is not yet completely won for Christ. About two out of three people in the United States and Canada are outside the membership of all Christian churches. Foreign immigration, the negroes of the Southland, the mountaineers of the Appalachian region, the Orientals of the Pacific Coast, the Mexicans of the Southwest, the American Indians all present problems as complex and important as may be found in any land without the gospel. The slums of the great cities, the dying rural churches, the enticements of sin in every place when coupled with a disinterestedness and inactivity on the part of such a larger proportion of actual church members greatly aggravate the situation. It is a time for heroic, manly action.

In spite of these appalling needs, about two out of three of the church members of North America are contributing nothing toward aggressive missionary work. Last year of the 6,004 churches that made some missionary or benevolent offering, only 2,072 made an offering for American Missions. Manifestly, our first business is the enlistment of these "missionary" members and churches.

It is earnestly hoped that the first Sunday in May will find every man in every church doing his very best to plant new churches and strengthen old ones all over this country, that America may become indeed a Christian Nation, and that the manifold message of the church may be heard and heeded by all. To this end we make the following special recommendations:

PERTINENT RECOMMENDATIONS

1. That there be organized in every church a Missionary Committee to work with the pastor in the enlistment of every member.
2. That there be set aside a special period of from two weeks to a month for missionary education. This may be in connection with Brotherhoods, Men's Bible Classes or in special groups.
3. That special emphasis be placed upon the missionary interpretation of the regular Bible School lessons during the Sundays preceding the offering.
4. That every church that made an offering last year make an increased offering this year, and further through pastor and missionary committee, by letter, conference, personal visitation or in other ways, enlist a neighboring church that made no offering last year. (To find these churches consult the Year Book.)
5. That every man resolve that by prayer, study and sacrifice he will do his utmost to see that the church does extend her power and influence, not only in the special ways mentioned above, but in every way and in every land.

Bible School Suggestions

BY L. C. OBERLIES, STATE SUP'T., LINCOLN, NEB.

L. C. OBERLIES

What's the poor Bible School going to do with the ten-forty-fivers? In Nebraska most of our schools assemble at 10 a. m.—“Church” follows at 11,—just as if the Bible School isn't “Church,” too! But let that go now, that's a different lecture. The ten-forty-fivers are not so bad as the eleven-fifteeners,—we call the latter class in this crude land of the horn, hoof and hide “the communion-spoilers.” But just a word about that others class, the ten-forty-fivers. They are the bane of every superintendent, they are the worry of many an earnest teacher trying to finish an application of his lesson by clinching his nails on the other side. They are the aisle-blockaders for many a busy librarian and secretary, rushed so in those closing minutes. They are the burden of the prayers of the preacher, who cannot win them to the Bible School. They are the horrible “example” of the state superintendent in his circuit addresses over the state. They are the good folks, these ten-forty-fivers who look patronizingly upon the school as they come switching in for the “big church,” and say “Isn't it cute for the little ones?” They are the folks, but I'll be personal in just one minute more if I keep on. Enough.

After an address some time ago in which I urged the division of a little country church room into class rooms by means of a portable partition, a young man who came from staunch “fernist” stock declared that he would never be willing to be partitioned off in any “box stall,”—he never had been, his father never had been, and he wouldn't be now, so there!

So you see we have some of them in Nebraska too. They will leak out of Indiana and wandering forty years through the wilderness of the Ozarks reach the Caanan of Nebraska bringing their “aunts” with them. Say, Brother Garry Cook, you keep 'em. What with an occasional drouth, some grass-hoppers and our biennial presidential candidate we have trouble of our own.

But speaking of class rooms, do you lack that adequate quarters in which to teach? Double the effectiveness of any teacher will make Better out of Poor, and it will make a Finished Product out of GOOD TEACHERS. Our church architects were mostly born before the civil war, so far as I have observed, and you mustn't expect too much of them in Bible School visions. Once in a while you walk into a church where the architect has caught the Bible School view point. Say, that's something like! May his race increase! Brothers Superintendents, when they start on that church building in your town, you put your foot in the wheel, and tell the committee to revise the plans. Ten to one they will need revision for the BIBLE SCHOOL HAS BEEN FORGOTTEN! I mean in most,—no I won't take back a word of it. Have the roller partitions figured in the original contract,—you will need them afterward. Have class rooms everywhere. Big ones, and little ones, and high ones, and airy ones, and cozy ones,—date the ones for the girls' classes and regular dens for the boys,—rooms “our very own” for everybody. This building a new church the shape of a gun-barrel, with four straight walls, a square box for the preacher, and a big meadow for the congregation,—why there is nothing to it. Again I say “My Kingdom” more architects like Dick Grant, of Beatrice who plan for the teaching function of the church.

Did you notice how popular the Bible is turning to be as a text-book since the Front Range movement urged the matter a little? Nebraska schools are delighting in the new exercise “Attention! Present. Arms! Recede. Arms!” You ought to see the testaments sticking out of our Nebraska Boys' pockets. And see those same boys find the passages called for, while some of the fathers are figuring whether it is Old or New.

SPEAKING OF BIBLE SCHOOL BUILDINGS

George W. Kramer, Architect and Designer of Churches, No. 1 Madison Ave., New York City, has recently issued a neat bulletin of thirty-two pages, entitled “Twelve Steps Essential to a Twentieth Century Church, or a Department Sunday-School Building.” The suggestions are accompanied by drawings and half-tones of modern Church and Bible School Work Shops and the booklet may be had for the asking. Address the author at the above address.

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

LESSON 12—APRIL 14.

THE USE OF THE SABBATH.

Text:—Mark 2:23-28; 3:1-6. Golden Text—Mark 2:27.

And it came to pass, that he was going on the sabbath day through the grain-fields; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears. 24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful? 25 And he said unto them, Did ye never read what David did, when he had need, and was hungry, he, and they that were with him? 26 How he entered into the house of God when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the showbread, which it is not lawful to eat save for the priests, and gave also to them that were with him? 27 And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath: 28 so that the Son of man is Lord even of the sabbath.

And he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there who had his hand withered. 2 And they watched him, wondering he would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse him. 3 And he said unto the man that had his hand withered, Stand forth. 4 And he saith unto them, Is it lawful on the sabbath day to do good, or to do harm? to save a life or to kill? But they held their peace. 5 And when he had looked round about on them with anger, being grieved at the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he stretched it forth; and his hand was restored. 6 And the Pharisees went out and straightway with the Herodians took counsel against him, how they might destroy him.

This institution of our Christian civilization is more imperiled today than the Lord's day. The danger comes from both friends and foes.

There are those who insist on throwing about it all the Sabbath-day restrictions and traditions of Judaism. There are those, on the other hand, who would erase every law on our statute books safeguarding the day, and thus rob man altogether of a day of rest and worship. The former was the greater menace in Jesus' day, the latter in ours. This lesson, coupled with the great Easter day lesson of last week, ought to help every Bible class man, not only to a right attitude toward this institution, but also to line him up aggressively and uncompromisingly, against the modern tendency to secularize the first day of the week and nullify the laws which protect it. I would like us to get Jesus' viewpoint first, and then the incidents and illustrations of the lesson will naturally follow.

The Lord of the Sabbath. The whole question of Sabbath observance turns upon what Jesus did with and on the Sabbath. "The Son of Man," he declared, "is Lord even of the Sabbath." That means that He had power to change or destroy the Sabbath day observance at His pleasure. What did He do? While on earth He fulfilled it, brushing away hindering traditions that had made it a burden rather than a help to man. At His death He destroyed it as an institution entirely. "Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances that was against us, which was contrary to us," says Paul, "he took it out of the way, nailing it to his cross." In its place came a new day, commemorating the world's new birth, not the seventh day of the week, but the first; not the Sabbath, but the Lord's day; not a day of cold legal formalism, but a day of gladsome service and joyous hopes.

The Lord's Day a Necessity. Rightly understood the laws of God are not arbitrary, but grow out of human need. "The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath." Man needs one day in seven for rest. He was made that way. His body cannot stand the wear and tear of continuous toil. The Lord's day, therefore, becomes a human necessity, both physical and religious. The French Revolutionists sought to change the order, abolishing the Lord's day, and setting apart one day in ten for rest and recreation, but experience soon proved the wisdom of the old order and they returned to it. Not only does the physical man need the day, but it is a religious necessity. No man can keep his religious fervor aglow without time and opportunity for religious service. You have felt the spiritual uplift of this Bible class. But such a provision is only possible through laws and regulations that safeguard the day. The Lord's day was made for man. It is one of the greatest boons that Christianity has brought to the race.

Christ's Use of the Sabbath. Remember that Jesus was dealing with the Jewish Sabbath. But the principle used in dealing with that institution may be applied to the Lord's day. First, Christ recognized it as a day of rest and worship. He was always found in the synagogue on the Sabbath day, when His Father's Word was being read. Outside the hour spent in worship, He recognized His legitimate demands upon His time and power—works of necessity and works of mercy. It was on this ground that He justified His disciples who were plucking the heads of wheat as they passed through the fields on the Sabbath morning. Then there was the call of mercy in helping the sheep out of the gutter, in healing the withered hand and in those other recorded acts of His in relief of human suffering. I am sure, we would have little difficulty in anticipating Jesus' attitude if He were with us now. No matter how sacred the day or how hallowed the occasion, it is always lawful to do good.

How We May Imitate Him. How much or how little of our present Sunday work can be justified under the demand of necessity or mercy? Who shall determine? On the ground of necessity are we to encourage Sunday markets, Sunday newspapers, Sunday mails, Sunday theatres, Sunday base-ball and the hundred other invasions of the quiet and religious privilege of the day? I cannot put the matter better than in the following quotation: "He allowed His disciples to pluck and eat the wheat grains, but what would He say to the elaborate Sunday dinner that makes Sunday the hardest day of the week for our servants and keeps so many housewives home from Church? He took a quiet walk through the fields on the Sabbath; but what would He say to a day-long trip in an automobile, or on a bicycle, or to a Sunday excursion on a crowded steamer with the band playing?" We can safely do for ourselves Sunday anything in which we can be sure Christ would gladly join us, as He joined His disciples on that Sabbath walk. Every man must apply these principles for himself with the aid of an honest, enlightened conscience.

How to Spend Sunday. There is no question that is so persistently kept before us as the way to spend the Lord's day. It meets with the rising sun every Sunday morning. We have stepped aside from the regular routine of life. How shall we employ the hours of the day? We must first remember that for the Christian, it is the Lord's day. It commemorates His triumph over the grave. The time belongs to Him. What kind of work does He want done in the interest of the Kingdom? Let us not forget that He is interested in His servant. He is concerned for men's physical as well as their spiritual welfare. He does not forget that men are hungry and need food, weary and need rest. It is because of this that He would have the day devoted to restful labor. Hence He calls upon men to lay down their instruments of daily toil and take up His yoke of service. His program for the Lord's day is two-fold—worship and work. Worship that the spiritual nature may be kept aglow. "Forsake not the assembling of yourselves." Work that the Kingdom may be extended, to help men and bring them to God.

Enforcement of Sunday Laws. Recognizing the righteousness of our Lord's plan, every community has upon its statute books where some laws protecting the Lord's day. On the whole these are being observed by the better elements of our country. But how about the institutions that defy them? Take those that are always undermining morals—saloons, pool-rooms, etc. Loyalty to Christ and to our country as well, demands their enforcement. The Men's Bible classes of this country should do it, if they set about the task.

Arrow Points. Neither Christ nor the Gospel denies to any man the legitimate satisfaction of a legitimate desire, so long as it does not interfere with the rights of others. * * * * We are often called to distinguish between the artificial standard of the self-appointed, intolerant censor, and the liberal application of Gospel principles. * * * * When we come to recognize that not a single Biblical restriction was arbitrary, but was to conserve the well being of man, we will understand the heart of God better. * * * * A religious observance of the Lord's day is that which benefits the body, cultivates the mind, exalts and comforts the soul and fits for heaven. * * * * Whatever tends to rob man of the Heavenly born privileges of the Lord's day, is a menace to our civilization, and calls for the vigorous resistance of every loyal servant of Christ.

LESSON 3—APRIL 21.

THE APPOINTMENT OF THE TWELVE.

Text—Mark 3:7-19; Matthew 5:13-16. Golden Text—John 15:16.

and Jesus with his disciples withdrew to the sea: and a great multitude from Galilee followed; and from Judæa, 8 and from Jerusalem, and from Idumæa, and beyond the Jordan, about Tyre and Sidon, a great multitude, hearing what great things he did, came unto him. 9 And he spake to his disciples, that a little boat should wait on him because of the multitude, lest they should throng him: 10 for he had healed many; insomuch that as many as laid their hands upon him that they might be healed, he healed them. 11 And the unclean spirits, when they beheld him, fell down before him and cried, saying, Thou art the Son of God. 12 And he charged them much that they should not make him known.

And he goeth up into the mountain, and he sitteth upon him whom he himself would; and the multitude went unto him. 14 And he appointed twelve, that they might be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach, 15 and he gave them authority to cast out demons: 16 and he surnamed Peter; 17 and James the son of Zebedee, and John the brother of James; and he surnamed them Boanerges, which is, the sons of thunder: 18 and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James, the son of Alphæus, and Thaddæus, and Simon the Cananæan, 19 and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

And he cometh into a house. 13 Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be seasoned? it is thenceforth good for nothing, but to be cast out and trodden under foot of men. 14 Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid. 15 Neither can ye light a lamp, and put it under the bushel, but on the stand; and it shineth unto you that are in the house. 16 Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven.

The pathway of Jesus was now thronged. He was the ever present Pharisee hounding the scribes and plotting His destruction. There was the multitude "as sheep without a shepherd," appealing to His compassion. Wherever He went it was the same. If He withdrew with His disciples, the place of their abode was soon discovered, and the weary work of teaching and healing went on. His fame had now spread beyond the boundaries of his own country and the scattered Israelites from many lands to see and hear this man whose name was on every lip. How the Jews must have clamored and pushed to get to His presence, the curious that they might see Him, the hungry that they might hear Him, the diseased that they might touch Him, for bodily safety He was compelled to take a boat.

Vital Harvest Fields. The throngs that were pressing upon Jesus moved Him with compassion. In their eagerness to hear His message, they suggested to Him the ripening harvest field. "The harvest truly is plenteous," He said, "but the laborers are few." Matthew 9:37. The work had now reached a stage where power and authority must be delegated to His disciples, and they be sent out into villages where He could not Himself go, to preach the Gospel of the Kingdom. So a company of men were selected and formally set apart to this work, and in the following lessons the fundamental principles of the Kingdom were announced in the Sermon on the Mount. After nearly two thousand years the fields are still white. Doorways are opening to every land and pleading calls are coming from thousands of benighted communities for some one to bring them the Gospel. It is the province of Christian men today to help answer that call.

The Twelve Helpers Chosen. "And He appointed twelve." In a way these had previously been accepted as His followers. Some had followed Him from Jordan, others from lake-side and custom house. Here we witness the more formal designation of these twelve men to the apostolic office. What a motley group they were. There was Peter, the headstrong; Andrew, the helpful; James, the ardent; John, the loving; Matthew, the reformed; James, the son of Alphæus the obscure; Thaddæus, the narrow; Philip, the slow; Bartholomew, the quick-witted; Thomas, the doubting; Simon Zelotes, the enthusiastic; Judas Iscariot, the false. Differing in disposition and talent, each had a place in the program of Christ, just as each man in this class may contribute an important element to its growth. After all, the lines of divergence were not greater then than now. In spite of modern conventionality, we radically differ and Christ has need of all of us.

In the School of Christ. Christ's purpose in having these men with Him was two-fold—to teach them and to use them in definite service. "That they might be with Him and that He might send them forth to preach." First, they must sit at His feet as disciples and then go out to proclaim the good news as apostles. He must have them with Him that they may learn. Was there ever such a university as that? There was the teacher in whom dwelt all the fulness of divine wisdom. Just to be with Him, to listen day by day as He taught, to feel the impress of His great personality, to breathe the spirit of One infinite in love—what an opportunity? Such was the school in which those chosen twelve were to pass these three busy, trying, happy years. Their privilege, after all, was not greater than ours. Though we miss the intonation of His voice, there is the same message so much better understood. Though not permitted to look into His love-lit eye, there is the demonstration of undying love, augmented by twenty Christian centuries. Yes, we may still be in the school of Christ, and, sitting at His feet, or walking in daily spiritual companionship with Him, we may learn what the proudest philosopher has been unable to discover, the real meaning of life.

The Mission of the Twelve. "That he might send them forth," says Mark. But the fuller meaning of their call we learn long afterward. By and by He was to be on trial. His claims to the throne of God and the adoration of mankind, were to be tested. The generation for which He died, and unborn ages, who were to share in the benefits of His death, would need convincing testimony before acceding to His claims. What He would need was witnesses, eye witnesses, who could speak of the things that they had seen and heard. Therefore, His parting word was "Ye shall be witnesses unto me." They were not chosen for their ability as public speakers. Peter alone excelled in the field of pulpit oratory. They were to be witnesses. Each man had a testimony. Even Judas, the betrayer, was no exception, for, depraved by greed, and debased by treachery, he still gave us his dying testimony, "I have sinned, in that I have betrayed innocent blood." Jesus needs witnesses today, men who have a testimony and are not ashamed to give it. It is needed in the prayer-meeting, and in the place of business. Such testimony, from those who speak out of the fulness of their hearts, would give us a new and effective evangelism, so much needed today.

True Religious Conservation. The word conservation has been appropriated by modern economists, in dealing with material resources, but ages ago, Jesus used its equivalent in a much larger and more vital sense. "Ye are the salt of the earth," He said, speaking to His disciples. They were to become preservers of society. They were to conserve forces which sin was dissipating. They were to prevent the terrible human waste that had been going on through the ages, and is still going on where the Gospel does not dominate the life. What they were to be to their day, every true disciple is to be today. To do its work, salt must get close to the thing it preserves. So if you want to conserve this generation, you get close to it in sympathetic touch.

The Light-Bearers. The religion that aches so that men can see it, is the only religion that counts. "Every friend," said George, "ought to light up the community for five miles around him." Jesus came as "the light of the world" and then made it the disciples' business to catch and reflect that light. In other words, they were to be light-bearers. What Christ demanded of those disciples is demanded of each of us. His only way of enlightening the world is through men who reflect His nature and purpose. There is a darkened home in your neighborhood. Its inmates are strangers to God and ignorant of His word. Your mission is to somehow let your light shine that they may see. You can do it by the consistent Christian example. You present to the neighborhood and bring untiring effort to bring them to the house of God and into personal fellowship with the true Light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

Arrow Points. The reward of successful service is the opportunity for more service. Multitudes blessed bring other multitudes to blessing. V. 7. * * * * Neither tainted hearts nor tainted money have ever been able to contribute anything to the glory of Christ or the blessing of His Kingdom. V. 11. * * * * In choosing His apostles, Jesus selected men who had already proved their loyalty by leaving all to be in His company and share His trials. V. 13. * * * * To follow with the Master, to listen to His message, to catch His ideals, this was education enough for the greatest task that ever came to a man. V. 14. * * * * Jesus chose the company of men, not because of their present worth, but because of their possibilities, of what they would become through the discipline of His ministry. V. 16. * * * * We can scarcely expect a thoroughly pure church since the very company of workers appointed by Jesus contained one unworthy traitor in it. V. 19. * * * * Take the salt of Christian influences out of any community, and how soon it becomes a mass of moral rottenness. V. 13. * * * * You may not put your candle under a bushel, but you may live in such a fog of materialism that its light is as effectively obscured. V. 15.

LESSON 4—APRIL 28.

THE BEATITUDES.

Text—Matthew 5:1-12. Golden Text—Matthew 5:8.

1 And seeing the multitudes, he went up into the mountain; and when he had sat down, his disciples came unto him; 2 and he opened his mouth and taught them, saying,

3 Blessed are the poor in spirit; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

5 Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth.

6 Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

7 Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy.

8 Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

9 Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called sons of God.

10 Blessed are they that have been persecuted for righteousness sake: for theirs shall be the kingdom of heaven.

11 Blessed are ye when men shall reproach you, and persecute you, and say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake.

Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven. for so persecuted ye the prophets that were before you.

Our last lesson Jesus used a boat for His pulpit. Today it is the mountain side. No man reared by human hands was worthy of such an occasion and such a sermon. So on the rugged, rock-ribbed hills, in a temple made with hands, whose vaulted ceiling reached the stars, He, who was the Creator of them all, sat and taught. Note the change in the objects of His address. Yesterday He spoke to the multitudes, and He will again. Today He speaks to the inner circle, "When I sat down, his disciples came unto him and he taught them." The multitudes were, to be sure, listening with open-eyed wonder, but He is addressing the jury and the spectators that crowd the court room. Not too, the change in His method. Hitherto He preached, now He taught. As a herald, He was a herald crying "The Kingdom of God is at hand; Repent ye and believe the Gospel." As a teacher He sits down with his disciples and explains and simplifies and brings into their hearts the marvelous secret of truth and love. After generations of forgetting, we are just beginning again to recognize the value of teaching in the ministry. The word and men are thronging the Bible in increasing numbers. We shall have reached the goal only when the entire membership is at the teaching service of the church.

Key to Happiness. The universal desire, even as now, was for happiness. Men sought it, through gain and pleasure and power, but sought in vain. The reign of heaven on earth was announced by Jesus and His forerunner, who was to meet this age-long craving. So He rightly begins the constitution of His Kingdom by announcing the conditions of happiness. To get His meaning we need to view the beatitudes as a whole. From them you may learn Jesus' idea of the blessed life. It is the marvelous union of the divine and human. Some of them look heavenward, others look down to earthly relationships. We have archeology and sociology combined. Taken together, each beatitude is an apparent paradox. Some of it: poverty and happiness, hunger and happiness, mourning and happiness, persecution and happiness,—were ever terms so contradictory? And yet their truth has been established both negatively and positively. Riches, as a rule, revelry, popularity, have all failed to make their possessors happy. On the other hand the terms announced by Jesus, and though misunderstood, have proved the key to happiness in every generation.

An Unsatisfied Life. "Blessed are the poor in spirit," "they that mourn," "they that hunger and thirst after righteousness." These are representative of the dissatisfaction that drives man to the great fountain source of human blessing. Jesus had no message for the self-satisfied Pharisee. And there is a type of Christianity today that leaves no room for that. It will meet man's spiritual craving and bring him happiness. Wealth has too often reared a barrier about its unhappy, perishing devotee, that shuts out the real joy of being. Volumes might be written about the unhappy rich. So the tide of popular favor has lured many a man by its false light to an unhappy grave. Said a wise man long ago: "Favor is deceitful and beauty is vain." Dissatisfaction has always driven men forward to new achievement. Dissatisfied with the old stage-coach, man found his way to the lightning express. Dissatisfaction with the tallow candle led to the electric light. Dissatisfaction with the rule of tyrants enkindled the love of freedom and led man to throw off the yoke of bondage. So the hunger and thirst of the soul, the mourning over sin, the consciousness of spiritual poverty, have driven man to God and secured for him an unfailing fountain of blessing.

The Unsullied Life. "Blessed are the pure in heart." No man can be happy with the stains of sin and the marks of shame upon him. For these becloud the windows of the soul and obscure the vision of God. A Godless life is never a happy one. Man, in his very constitution, demands God, or that which he calls God. The Psalmist struck a universal chord when he said, "As the hart panteth for the water brooks, so thirsteth my soul for thee, O God." It was to meet this yearning that Jesus came revealing the Father, and by His blood cleansing us from all unrighteousness. Through Him we are exhorted "to purify our hearts by faith." We are coming to recognize more and more the worth of a clean life and are now demanding a single standard in the matter of social purity. Happy, indeed, the man who from youth has kept his life unsullied. Happy also is the man who, by the cleansing blood of Jesus finds himself freed from thought and desire for the old paths of unholiness. "The pure heart," says Dr. Parkhurst, "is the transparent firmament of blue, up through which we get into God's great daylight." To see, to know God, this is happiness.

The Altruistic Life. "Blessed are the merciful," "the peacemakers." Someone has declared that mercy is the door to the Palace of Happiness, and peace-making the parlor. These are great fundamental truths that in their last analysis lie at the basis of enduring happiness. They are best expressed in that modern term altruism, "the other fellow," and it manifests itself in a multitude of ministries that are today blessing the world and that are in turn being blessed. The self-seeker is sure to end in disappointment somewhere. Even happiness sought as an end is disappointing. But when men live on the high plane of the Beatitudes, live to help and to bless, to show mercy, to bind up the world's wounds and to heal its strife, all forgetful of their own recompense, then will begin the reign of heaven in the heart, and man will be happy in the consciousness that he is a son of God, and that he is about his Father's business.

The Thorn Road. "Blessed are they that are persecuted." In our day of enlarged religious liberty and humanitarianism this beatitude is perhaps the most difficult to appreciate and apply. With none to molest us or make us afraid, we go our way in the service of God. And yet, in milder form the shafts of persecution are still being aimed at the man who champions an unpopular cause, or who dares to step aside from the old beaten path of custom or tradition. The instrument may only be a slighting remark or the rising inflection of the voice, but it may be intended to blast a reputation or awaken suspicion. If falsely because of one's loyalty to his sense of duty in Christ's service, he, too, may rejoice as did the prophets of old. That suffering for righteousness has a rich recompense, has been the recorded experience of an army of heroes of the faith beginning with Stephen, the first Christian martyr. As flowers blossom in the night time, so these darker experiences, to the good man, may in the end minister to joy.

"By the thorn road and none other is the mount of vision won.
Tread it without shrinking, brother, Jesus trod it, press then on."

Arrow Points. What a privilege it is that we, too, may sit at the feet of Jesus and from His gracious lips learn the new and meaning of life and duty. V. 1 * * * generation hence it is not going to matter your commercial rating in Bradstreet vs you have a clear title to a place in the dom of heaven. V. 3. * * * "A tian," says Bishop Gore, "ought to have his own burden so well in hand that he is able to leave the large spaces of his heart for other people to lay their sorrows upon." V. 4 * * * After all, the servant of Christ who meekly follows his Master receives all of that is essential to his comfort and happiness.

V. 5 * * * It is not hunger and thirst but the right kind of hunger and thirst which carries with it a blessing. V. 6 * * * As the French maiden sought from the Emperor Napoleon the pardon of an unworthy father she said, "It is not justice I ask, sire, but mercy." V. 7 * * * All who love God and express that love in uncompromising truth are sure to feel the displeasure of this hating world. V. 10. Here are eight doors to happiness. Through which can you find entrance?

LESSON 1—MAY 5.

POVERTY AND RICHES.

Text—Luke 6:20-26; 16:19-31. Golden Text—Luke 12:15.

20 And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed are ye poor: for yours is the kingdom of God. 21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh. 22 Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake. 23 Rejoice in that day, and leap for joy: for behold, your reward is great in heaven; for in the same manner did their fathers unto the prophets. 24 But woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation. 25 Woe unto you, ye that are full now! for ye shall hunger. Woe unto you, ye that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep. 26 Woe unto you, when all men shall speak well of you! for in the same manner did their fathers to the false prophets.

19 Now there was a certain rich man, and he was clothed in purple and fine linen, faring sumptuously every day: 20 and a certain beggar named Lazarus was laid at his gate full of sores, 21 and desiring to be fed with the crumbs that fell from the rich man's table; yea, even the dogs came and licked his sores. 22 And it came to pass, that the beggar died, and that he was carried away by the angels into Abraham's bosom, and the rich man also died, and was buried. 23 And in Hades he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. 24 And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am in anguish in this flame. 25 But Abraham said, Son, remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things: now here he is comforted, and thou art in anguish. 26 And besides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, that no one may pass from hence to you; neither may we be able, and that none may cross over from thence to us. 27 And he said, I pray thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldest send me to my father's house; 28 for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. 29 Abraham saith, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. 30 And he said, Nay, father Abraham: but if one go to thee from the dead, they will repent. 31 And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded if one rise from the dead.

The world in Jesus' time was full of people, such poverty as we, in Christian America, know nothing about. We must go to India and China and other non-Christian lands today, to appreciate conditions which make Jesus with compassion every day of His ministry. It was an age of startling contrasts. "The wealthy do not know how to employ their accumulating gains (Luke 12:15); the needy do not know where tomorrow's bread is coming from. The creditor arrests his debtor in the street (Matthew 5:25) and throws him into prison and there is no release for him until the last farthing is paid." The parables of Jesus reveal the impoverishment of the people, and the beatitudes urge them to turn on the bright side of their unfortunate condition and find enduring blessing in the citizenship offered them in the Kingdom of God.

the Gospel to the Poor. The book of Luke has been called the Gospel to the poor. It is from his pen that we learn of the lowly birth of the family of Jesus. He tells of the manger-cradle, of the humble offering at His presentation (Luke 2:25), and of the ministry made possible by the liberality of the rich (Luke 8:2-3). It is in his record of the sayings of Jesus that we have the parables of the foolish wealthy farmer, and of Dives and Lazarus. Throughout this gospel one feels the sympathy of the writer, as well as the Master, for earth's lowly multitudes, groaning under a grinding poverty, unknown to us, except in the slums of a few of our larger cities. Strange that a message so full of sympathy and comfort for the toiling millions has been so largely neglected by those who are suffering through adverse conditions. Strange, that the modern pulpit has so often overlooked this practical phase of religious truth in its zeal for doctrinal soundness. It is time that the unchurched poor of our day were made aware now that the gospel has a vital message for them.

Blessings That Abide. The beatitudes are not a mere sentiment, discoursing on the blessing of poverty, hunger and persecution, but they present a basis of real happiness, in the privileges that may be ours in spite of earthly misfortune. A man may be ever so poor in this world's goods and yet a citizen of the Kingdom of God, where his possessions are not measured by the coin of the realm but by the nobility of purpose, beauty of character, fidelity to principle. Hunger and want and reproach may hound his pathway, now, but there is a day coming when he will be more than compensated for every pang he has suffered, for his "reward in heaven is great." It was this that led Paul to declare, "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us." Again, as he thought of the things he had suffered in the cause of Christ, he wrote, "Our light affliction which is but for a moment worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory." To this testimony may be added those of an army of Christian heroes and martyrs, down to those who are suffering on mission fields today. "Every poor man may become a king in his poverty. Every mourner may learn to smile through her tears. Every hungry poor man may feed upon the bread of life."

Certain Rich Man. The woes against riches, revelry and public favor can hardly be understood without the concrete example given in the parable of Dives and Lazarus. The story was not told to fan the flame of hatred between classes, but to pronounce judgment upon the abuse of a great privilege. It is the predatory wealth that Jesus condemns. There are rich men whose money is held in trust, who use it as an agency for multiplying their power for good, whose integrity and sympathy and generosity have lifted them above the envious shafts of the poor. But the rich man of our lesson was of another class.

He was a mammon-worshiper. His love of money had warped his sense of honor and overruled every tender feeling of his heart for earth's unfortunate. What he ought to have done was to take Lazarus in hand, secure for him the best medical aid, and then help him on the way to self-support and self-respect. The mistake of Dives is that of men today who are heaping millions on millions, but who will sooner or later find themselves confronted by an eternity into which they cannot carry a single dollar, where the only wealth recognized is that which has been coined into loving service and helpful ministry.

The Lazaruses at Our Gate. It is an easy matter to criticise Dives for his neglect of the poor beggar that was left at his door. It is a shame that such an incident should have happened in a respectable neighborhood. But how about the Lazaruses that are laid at our door? There are the slums to be found in every considerable town and city. Their denizens are full of festering sores and subsist on the miserable crumbs that we dole out in the name of charity. What they need is the help and encouragement that will make them honest, industrious, self-supporting citizens. Are we doing anything for them that is worth while? Then there are the Lazaruses of pagan lands, something like a billion of them. They have been laid at the door of the Church of Jesus Christ, full of sores, wretched, despairing, dying, begging for the crumbs of truth that we hesitatingly dole out to them. Is it too much that our representatives on the foreign field are today asking for a million dollars from the men of the Christian Church to build hospitals where the sick and dying may be cared for, to build and equip schools where the ignorant may find enlightenment, to build churches and chapels where they may be taught the way of God and salvation? What are we men going to do about it? The attitude of Dives brought on him the direst punishment, not because he was rich, but because he was selfish and indifferent. What will be the fate of the Twentieth Century Church and the modern discipleship that revels in the luxury of fine temples and costly services, and neglects the appeal of untold millions in darkness?

The Impassable Gulf. There is no question of international boundary that is as fixed beyond possible dispute, as that between Dives and Lazarus in the future state. While they were both here, there was a possibility of change. A little help and encouragement might have put Lazarus on his feet and even made him a welcome guest in the house of Dives. A little flurry in the financial world, the reverse of a battle, or the destruction of a cargo at sea, might have placed Dives in the situation of the beggar. But now "there is a great gulf fixed." It is not necessary for us to think of the boundary lines as arbitrarily drawn. The gulf began here in the diverging character of these two men. It was the results of deliberate choice, habit of thought, fixed purpose. At death the condition is changed, not the character. The persistent elimination of God and His love from thought and life becomes the fixed barrier of eternity. "Character once set and hardened," says Dr. Maclaren, "cannot be cast into the melting-pot and remoulded there."

The Obstinacy of Unbelief. There is the unbelief of ignorance and unbelief as a result of deliberate choice. The first only needs information to change it into triumphant faith. Moses and the prophets, Christ and the gospels, the message of the Bible Class and the church service, are enough to lead the heart to the acceptance of God. But the man who, in the face of the revealed word of God, refuses to believe, would not be convinced by any demonstration that appealed merely to his senses. "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rise from the dead."

Arrow Points. Not every poor man is pronounced happy, but the poor man who "can read his title clear to mansions in the sky," V. 20 * * * * Not every rich man is condemned, but the rich man who has made his money dishonestly, hoarded it miserly and lived selfishly. V. 24. * * * * Riches may bring their possessor a man is deserving of commendation, not everyone whom men speak well of to be condemned, but the richest blessing is for those who uncomplainingly endure the stigma of reproach in their loyalty to Christ and duty. V. 22 * * * * Riches may bring their possessor sumptuous living, and buy a seat in the United States senate, but it cannot purchase a name plate in the Hall of Fame. Who is this rich man? V. 19 * * * * Selfish greed may defy the law and ignore the appeal to human sympathy, but it has never been able to lock the door against the messenger of death, nor to hide its gold in its shroud. V. 26 * * * * The best time to do effective missionary work among your friends and kindred is when you can speak heart to heart to them and not after the mound in the cemetery separates you. V. 27-28.

Are you going? Will you send your Pastor or Brotherhood or Class President?

Christian Conservation Congress

of the

Men and Religion Forward Movement New York City

APRIL NINETEENTH TO TWENTY-FOURTH

Convention Center

CARNEGIE HALL

SOME OF THE SPEAKERS

Wm. H. Taft, President of the United States; Archdeacon Thomas F. Madden, Liverpool; Hon. J. A. MacDonald, Toronto; Hon. Wm. J. Bryan; Bishop David H. Greer, New York; Bishop Wm. F. McDowell; Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D.D.; Rev. John F. Carson, D.D., Brooklyn; John Mitchell; Robert E. Speer; John R. Mott; Prof. E. A. Steiner; Booker T. Washington; Prof. George L. Robinson; Miss Jane Addams; Rev. James E. Freeman; Wm. T. Ellis; Ex-Governor Northern.

CHRISTIAN MEN

A Monthly Publication, Being the Official Organ of
THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

E. E. ELLIOTT, Editor

FRANK LAUDER, Circulation Manager

THE GENERAL BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

EXECUTIVE BOARD

OFFICERS

W. LONG, President	- - - - - Kansas City, Mo.	T. S. RIDGE, Rec. Sec'y.	- - - - - Kansas City, Mo.
W. HAYMAKER, Vice-President	- - - - - Wichita, Kan.	F. J. BANNISTER, Treas.	- - - - - Kansas City, Mo.

DIRECTORS

W. GRAFTON	- - - - - Kansas City, Mo.	R. A. DOAN	- - - - - Nelsonville, Ohio
W. G. FRANK	- - - - - Liberty, Mo.	D. P. GRIBBEN	- - - - - Kansas City, Mo.
W. NASE	- - - - - Portland, Oregon	C. M. CHILTON	- - - - - St. Joseph, Mo.
W. PALMER CLARKSON	- - - - - St. Louis, Mo.

NOTE—The Officers and Directors together constitute the Executive Board

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, Kansas City, Mo.

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1909, at the post office at Kansas City, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription—Single, 50 cents per annum, in advance; clubs of 10 or more; 35 cents per annum; 20 or more, 25 cents per annum.
Ten or more copies to one address to be paid for quarterly—in advance. Canadian postage, add 12 cents. Foreign, add 24 cents. Make remittances payable to order of Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Address 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Missouri.
Magazines will be discontinued at the time of expiration unless renewed within thirty days. Sample copies, when available, will be sent free.
Advertising rates upon application.

Volume 7. KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, MAY, 1912

Number 5

MAY DAYS

When this number of CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine enters the mail, the editor will be on the briny deep en route from New York to Norfolk, returning from the Conservation Congress announced elsewhere in this issue of our paper.

We had a good month in April up to the time these lines were penned. A number of Brotherhoods have been affiliated and hundreds of packages of Brotherhood literature and thousands of copies of Conservation literature have been sent out to our churches throughout the country in preparation for the observance of Men's and Boys' Day, April 28th. The results of this service cannot at this time be announced, but the same will appear in the June number of CHRISTIAN MEN.

The Brotherhood Movement is growing in value and increasing in popularity every day. This is evidenced by the hundreds of letters coming to us from all parts of the country from pastors and leaders of work for men and boys. Although the Movement is now in the beginning of its fourth year, it is still in its inception. Brotherhoods are being affiliated in answer to prayers offered by these leaders two years or more ago. A letter came from a pastor in Iowa a few days ago, announcing that he had organized a Brotherhood after two years of patient labor on his part. This group of men is up and doing and this is only one of hundreds of similar instances that we have to report. Our figures for March show 206 Brotherhoods affiliated, three having died during the month, leaving our net membership 203 Local Chapters and about 20,000 men identified with the Movement. While we are never quite satisfied with the results accomplished, we can sleep at night with the satisfaction of having done the best we could.

The American Mission offering comes in May and should be liberally observed. Brotherhood men can do much in this direction by suggestion and oversight. Then comes Memorial Day with its flags and flowers, parades and muffled drums. After that comes Children's Day. Read about Child Life at Home and Abroad in this number of CHRISTIAN MEN. Then cast your eye over the articles by A. McLean and S. J. Corey. These are right up to the minute, written especially for this magazine and direct themselves especially to readers of this paper. The illuminating article by R. P. Shepherd, editor of the Front Rank, and another by Mrs. A. C. Smither, wife of the managing editor of the Christian Evangelist, are worthy of your attention.

Groups of men who want to undertake that which will bring them out on the high road of usefulness in a few months should watch the programs being published each month in CHRISTIAN MEN. The topic for the second May program is Social Service, and the first June program is Christian Literature. Detailed programs will be found elsewhere in this issue.

We present the counterfeit likeness of Joseph L. Garvin and a brief article about his work without any apology. Brother Garvin has served the Brotherhood Movement commendably as Chairman of the State Committee of Washington, and we rejoice in his call to larger service.

The next issue of CHRISTIAN MEN will devote itself largely to the Boy problem. In fact it will be very largely a boy's number, and groups of men that mean business in the work of the church will do well to watch for the June number and plan to carry some of its suggestions into execution.

Many good stories in type are crowded out of this number and will appear in June. We have no hesitancy in saying that without the coöperation of hundreds of scores of contributors, the editing of CHRISTIAN MEN would indeed be a Herculean task and one to which we would also feel ourselves unequal. We are glad to continue to fill the paper with ready-made up-to-the-minute articles relating to the work of the Christian Church and how Every Man Can Help. May we have your coöperation in making this policy win.

△ △ △

Work Carried on by Older Boys

Following the Men and Religion Eight-Day Campaign in Pittsburgh, a 16-year-old boy signed a forward card stating his desire to join the church. He told his father of his decision, and the father finally consented to unite with the church also. His mother, who was also not a church member, said she would join after being asked by her husband, and the father asked a younger sister, who replied that she had been thinking about it for some time. The result has been that the entire family of four have united with the church.

In another Pittsburgh church, where no boys' work has been done, a young college man has been induced to take up the work for employed boys in connection with the Sunday-school. Twelve boys who took a forward step at the boys' mass meeting during the Eight-Day Campaign have so stirred up their own church that within a month forty-five members of their Sunday-school have taken forward steps.

The junior members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, of one of the Episcopal churches, have distributed forty pocket Testaments to other boys.

Relation of Home Life to the Religious Instruction of Children

MRS. A. C. SMITHER, ASSOCIATE EDITOR "THE FRONT RANK," ST. LOUIS, MO.

MRS. A. C. SMITHER

AGE This is the golden age for the young. More thought and energy are given to the and the development of children and young people than ever before in the history of the world. There are study circles, mothers' clubs, husbands' societies, children's home societies, scouts, George Junior Republics, the Court and numerous other organizations having for their supreme object the highest welfare of the youth of the world.

il culture is largely occupying the of the reformer, the philanthropist, the statistician and the psychologist. And deeply gratifying that the same interest which has been awakened in the mind and intellectual development of the people has also been manifested in religious advancement. In recent years the church has come into a new consciousness of Christ's own words: "Take heed that ye despise not the little ones," and is giving more attention to the spiritual needs of the church within its fold.

GREATEST
FORCE IN THE WORLD

With this growing recognition of the religious rights of the child, the Sunday-school has come to be the greatest religious educational force in the world today. It is the only agency that is systematically and comprehensively instructing our children in Bible knowledge and inculcating ethical truths. "Necessity is the mother of invention" may be a trite maxim, but no less applicable to the Sunday-school than to other affairs of life. The modern Sunday-school was born of necessity arising from two serious conditions; the banishment from the public school of all religious instruction and the decline of family worship and religious training in the home. Too much cannot be said in commendation of the power and efficiency of the Sunday-school. Many children from un-Christian homes are being led to the Savior and countless others from Christian homes whose parents are indifferent to their spiritual welfare are receiving religious culture otherwise unobtainable.

PARENTS
CO-OPERATION NECESSARY

But no Sunday-school can attain its highest results without the co-operation of the parents; its work at best must be largely supplementary to the home. How best to secure this coöperation is a very vital question. The Adult Bible Class movement is doing much toward the solution of the problem. That the young are not the only ones of the family who might profit by the study of the Scriptures is well illustrated by the inquiry of little Sammy: "Father, who was Joan of Arc?" "Well, I'm ashamed of you, my boy; go, study your Bible. Don't you know she was the wife of Noah?" There are other fathers like Sammy's in our churches. Their name is legion. It is hoped that when Sammy learned who the wife of Noah really was he took his father to the Brotherhood Class.

After more than twenty years' experience as a Sunday-school teacher, the most painful difficulty encountered that memory recalls is the irresponsibility of many parents regarding the religious education of their children. Unlimited time and means are expended upon their secular education, great care is given to social accomplishments that they may shine in society, but what meager attention is bestowed upon their spiritual attainment! Can the latent attributes of the soul blossom into the fruitage of exalted Christian character if thus neglected and dwarfed in childhood? As well expect a person to reach maturity with a finished education if no mental training had been given him when a child.

MOULDERS OF LIVES Parents are the prime moulders of the lives of their children. The child receives its first conscious impressions from the home. The Sunday-school teacher has the child for only an hour one day in the week, while the mother has it the other six days. It is not alone sufficient that the child be sent to Sunday-school promptly, regularly, instructed possibly in the lesson, more probably not, but there should be created in the home an atmosphere that nourishes the religious instinct of the child if the message brought to its heart by the teacher shall take root.

An experience of a pastor's wife further elucidates this truth. She was calling on the mother of a Sunday-school pupil. In the parlor was present the little girl nine years of age, when the visitor inquired if the elder daughter were at home. The mother expressed the regret that her daughter had gone out for the afternoon. A little later some ladies called to see this absent daughter. A crimson flush on the mother's face told the tale. She attempts an apology, but it is futile: "O, that is only one of those little 'white lies' which society condones. Do I hear some one say? Untruths, however, are never accepted if the reality is known. The perceptive faculties of children are keen. Deceit is quickly detected. So, too often, the mother is unwittingly practicing falsehood and deception in the presence of the child during the week, and the teacher on Sunday morning is striving to inculcate the lesson of truthfulness. What progress can one expect to make?"

CLEANLY LIVES AT HOME The Sunday-school sets Christian ideals before the children. There must be a living of these ideals by the parents in the home. In the first years of its life a child acquires more by example than the rest of its whole life by precept. Many Godly, meaning people by thoughtless inconsideracies are marring the future lives of their children.

Another deplorable condition of the present day Christian home is the lack of family worship. The old-fashioned family altar is almost a thing of the past. Life has grown so complex with its manifold duties that there seems to be no time for quiet meditation. Too much of the mad-rush spirit permeates our lives these days. In the morning father must go to business, the children must rush to school, and mother hastens to perform her household tasks that she may attend to her many social engagements. All day long, the things of the Kingdom which should come first are crowded out because we are too busy. Consequently there is a dwarfing of the spiritual life.

of the members of that house-

May I refer to the experience of a little five-year old boy I chanced to know? Another had severely punished him for using profane words learned from a playmate, by washing out his mouth with soap and water. The next morning at family prayers, this little boy said, "O, Lord, help me to take care of my mouth for it gets me into all my trouble." And this child now a grown man has never uttered a profane word. There is a sense of the reality of God and a consciousness of the presence of God in the family devotions that the Sunday-school can possibly supply. If the family altar be restored in Christian homes and there will be a sympathy between the home and the Sunday-school will greatly augment the spiritual life of the church.

"All the church in the Sunday-school and all the Sunday-school in the church" is a most worthy slogan. Marked progress has attended the effort to effect in part of this aim, but to my mind more stress has been placed on the church part. A proportionately small number of the children and young people attending Sunday-school are found in church service. Some statistics given by persons of authority in a recent conference reveal an alarming condition. A statement was made that less than one-fourth of the Sunday-school is being added to the church membership and the large number of losses occur among the young when they reach their 'teens.

One denomination reported that eighty per cent of its Sunday-school is being lost to the church. Another Sunday-school lost five hundred pupils of intermediate age in one year; and this naturally means a consequent loss to the church attendance and membership. THESE FACTS ARE APPALLING. What is to become of the church of the future? THERE WILL BE NO CHURCH. If a child is not brought up to attend morning worship, but permitted to go home after Sunday-school till he reaches the intermediate age, he is very likely to become as completely lost to Christianity as though he had never been in the Sunday-school. That the church and the Sunday-school are both at the same time losing their grip upon the young man arise from several causes, but it is my positive conviction that the chief cause is the failure of the parents to begin early enough to keep the child in the church service. Frequently have mothers come to me in tears, pleading that I use my influence to persuade their boys or girls, twelve years of age or more, to remain to church. Candor compelled me to say: "You began too late to interest your child in the church." The adolescent period is the time when the child awakens to a knowledge of his own personality, when he realizes a sense of freedom and power of choice, so there is a tendency to break away from religious associations unless he has been thoroughly anchored before this age.

RESPONSIBILITY OF PARENTS

Herein lies a tremendous responsibility of parents toward the church and the Sunday-school. For it must be recognized that the mission of the Sunday-school is largely to instruct, and that of the church to nurture, that the combined forces of mind and heart may crystalize into noble Christian conduct.

CHILDREN, NATION'S ASSET

A nation's chief asset is its children. The moral and religious education of the present generation is as important to the state as the church. Secular education alone cannot safeguard society. Greece and Rome both fell during the age of their highest mental culture, because of their corresponding corruption and moral degradation.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." To the Sunday-school has been committed almost entirely the religious training of the children of our country. Upon the type of young manhood and womanhood turned out depends the future of the nation! The cry for stalwart Christian citizenship was never more urgent in our land than at the present hour. All honor to the Christian parents who are nobly fulfilling their obligations! But too numerous those who should be aroused from lethargy. The reading of the Sunday newspaper, spending the day in riotous pleasures of the park, the the religious betterment of your children. Do not send, but go with them to the Bible school and the church, leading to the joy and blessedness of worship the Lord's day. Then, and not until then, shall we behold a race of citizens whom it may be said in the words of the great Disraeli: "It is a glorious thing to see a state saved by the youth."

Brotherhood Results

BY GEORGE P. RUTLEDGE, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Walter S. Hopkins is now our minister in Gloversville, N. Y. This is the brief, but interesting, story: Brother Hopkins is a bright young man, reared and educated in Boston—came to Philadelphia in October, 1910, to seek his fortune. He was not long finding it. Although he was not a member of any church and had not been in a church edifice for several years, he was drawn into our Brotherhood class soon after his arrival in the city. He had not been in the class long until he made the good confession and was baptized. He immediately began telling the Gospel story in the fire houses and police stations (where the men met and intently listened), and wherever he could find an audience. And, to conclude the story, when the Gloversville church sought a pastor, the church came to him and he gladly responded. He and his wife, who also became Christians after coming to Philadelphia, are now in their new field—hard at work and hopeful.

On the evening of March 28th more than sixty of the class men joined in a farewell banquet, at which they enthusiastically toasted his achievements and hopeful future. Also, the last day morning he was in Philadelphia, he delivered a magnificent sermon from the pulpit to a packed house of eager listeners. At the close of the sermon, he was formally ordained by the elders and pastor.

My Friend, Joseph L. Garvin

(See Cover Picture)

Who is Joseph L. Garvin? Readers of CHRISTIAN MEN know him as the pastor of the First Christian Church of Seattle, Washington. Friends with us enroute to Portland know him as a royal host, but more familiarly known to a wide circle of masculine acquaintances as "Joe Garvin," minister, editor, author, businessman, Chautauqua lecturer and man of combined—proficient in them all. Now he looms into the rays of Mission as president-elect of William Woods College. What is William Woods College? Briefly, it is a school for young men, located at Fulton, Missouri, operated under the auspices of the Christian Church, and supported by a coterie of men and women identified with our Church, chief among them Dr. W. S. Woods and wife, of Kansas City. But that is another story. Before many months you will know all about William Woods College: what it is, where it is, and who it is run by. Garvin is a great ability man. He is also a deep-sea diver for practical results, and always comes up with the goods. William Woods College needs a lot of things, and they need money for improvements. His friends by the score with money in the bagful, and with Garvin in the lead, the dining room, the furnace room, the round-about, under and on top of the building, the money will come.

He is a native Buckeye, where most of our presidents come from, if I. J. Cahill is not relied upon, and the better they are the sooner they come from Ohio, so Garvin came early. His father was a Presbyterian minister, and Joe's early religious training was received at the hand of a good father and the knee of a devoted Christian mother. Fifteen years ago he entered U. S. Grant University at Chattanooga, Tennessee, graduating when only eighteen years old. Butler University saw him one year, and then Mr. Garvin, still a boy, became pastor of a church at the age of twenty-one. Two years in the pastorate gave him money to continue his studies. He spent three years at Hiram, receiving his B. A. degree at twenty-six. While waiting an opportunity to enter Union Theological Seminary he ministered for the church at Swampscott, Massachusetts. Attendance at Union and at Columbia University kept him occupied through the week, and he preached for the church at Flatbush, Brooklyn, on Sundays for two years more. Finding it necessary to have more money to complete his studies and support his family, now having married Marie Allen Ballow, of Hiram, he engaged as pastor at Youngstown, Ohio, which church has graduated several good men besides Garvin in recent years. Garvin worked hard, and studied, wrote for a daily paper, and other publications, saved and slaved. At the end of two years he returned to Union Theological Seminary, concluding the four years' course, and received the necessary sheepskin, preaching in the meantime at the Fifty-sixth Street Church in New York, and for the Sterling Place Church in Brooklyn. For one season he served as manager of Pocono Pines Assembly in Pennsylvania, and then took the pastorate at Seattle. Checkered, do you say? Well, rather, but it is the kind of checkers that count in educational game. Garvin burned midnight oil freely when he knew not where the next cruse of oil was coming from, but he continued to burn the oil, and cram and cram, until he secured the schooling he was after. As an example of stick-to-it-iveness, Garvin has the edge on most of us. He is, very probably the youngest college president in point of age in the brotherhood. There is a whole lot more about him that we could tell, if pressed, such as the honors and responsibilities that have been his in the West. President of Western Washington Sunday-School Association, president Anti-Tuberculosis Society, president Seattle Ministers' Alliance, president of this, delegate to that, member board of theater censors of Seattle, appointed by the mayor, besides editor of "Garvin's Corner" in the Seattle Star, quoted from liberally by the united press of the nation. But this is enough. Garvin is just thirty-eight years old. Physically, he is a middleweight; mentally, a philosopher; socially, a prince; religiously, a Christian; domestically, a loving husband and father of several daughters. Isn't that enough to make you want to grasp his hand and bid him God-speed in his work? You may have the chance. Let a Brotherhood man through and through and a worker among men par excellence. He has promised to serve the Brotherhood movement whenever we call on him and we are going to call—you may wait on that. Look out for him at state and district conventions, and when you are to hear a really illuminating Brotherhood address, ask for Garvin. We will send him to you gratis. You will only have to pay the freight.

State Conventions Ahead

Arrange to go and take a Group of Your Men

Texas—Houston, First week of May

Arkansas—Texarkana, First week of May

Ohio—Canton, May 20-23

Indiana—Hammond, May 13-16

Churchmen should be in evidence at everyone of these state gatherings. Be sure to send your minister and pay his expenses to boot.

Pointed Paragraphs on American Missions

BY GRANT K. LEWIS, SECRETARY AMERICAN CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

GRANT K. LEWIS

There are 48,000,000 adults in the United States without any church affiliation whatever. There are more churchless people in America than the total population of Japan and the Philippines—more than all England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales; these must be brought again to enter the Kingdom of God. Two-thirds of the people of the United States have no personal connection with any religious organization. Only one-fifth belong to any Evangelical church, and two-thirds of that one-fifth do not contribute to the support of the church or perform any Christian service in the name of the church.

The neglected fields in America present startling conditions calling for serious consideration; there are 10,000 towns, 300 to 1,000 population each, in the west of the Missouri River and on the Pacific Coast wherein the Christian Gospel is not preached by anybody, or the Gospel is not taught.

Fifty per cent of the population of the United States has no connection with any organized body of believers, either Protestant or Catholic. Great masses of people, rich and poor, educated and illiterate, native and foreign, farmers and mechanics, negroes and whites, Indians and Orientals, Highlanders and Lowlanders, are not touched by the church or the agencies of the Gospel, and the sanctuaries of our Lord never receive them for prayer and worship. Pastors that are shepherds, Bible scholars who can teach the way of life, evangelists who can win men to God, and personal workers who can take the Gospel of salvation to men, are needed today as never before in the history of America or the world.

In New York State there are five cities of over 40,000 population, 46 cities of over 10,000, and 156 cities and towns of over 2,000 in which the Disciples of Christ have no church, and their plea for union has never been heralded. Most of these are growing cities and present wonderful opportunities for our message.

It takes, on an average, only five years to grow a church to self-support in America! This is like planting and nourishing our orange tree. It is all outlay for a while. But when the returns begin to come in, there is a continual flow of men and money for every enterprise of the Kingdom of God on earth. Plant a church in America and every year the various missionary and benevolent boards can come regularly asking for help and none are turned away empty handed.

A million immigrants come annually to America. This is the same as building and filling with foreign population ten cities of 100,000 each!

A million immigrants! A million opportunities! A million obligations!

While New York is a city in America, it is hardly an American city. In it are more Germans than in any city of Germany except Berlin; twice as many Irish as in Dublin; more Italians than in Naples; and as many Jews as in Warsaw. In thirty-three of our largest cities the foreign population is larger than the native. God is bringing the very ends of the earth to America, as pupils to a schoolmaster. What an opportunity to teach "All things He commanded" to the ends of the earth!

ORIENTAL CHRISTIANS

Among Orientals on the Pacific Coast who have been brought to Christ many have returned voluntarily and carried the Gospel back to their native province of Canton.

Buddhism has organized an invasion of Christian America, and in Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Fresno the priests are aggressively propagating this heathen religion.

VALUE OF MONEY

The facts representing how far a dollar will go in a heathen land are so many reasons requiring the devotion of the major portion of our missionary budget to the extension of the Kingdom in the home land? If it takes $50 to support an evangelist for one year in Bolenge and $1,500 to support one in Oklahoma, it is but reasonable to divide the offerings accordingly. The relative standards of society, requirements of manners and customs, cost of living and kind of people to be reached are factors to be considered in the distribution of missionary funds.

Christianity has suffered for her failure to develop and hold the fields she has begun. Jerusalem, Alexandria, Smyrna and Antioch have become entrenched cities of Christianity's mightiest foe. New England, the home of Protestantism, is fast becoming the abode of spurious faiths and unevangelized peoples, and in less than fifty years will be the religiously dark spot upon the American continent unless it is reached by new evangelization.

WHAT WE DID

Last year (1911) the American Christian Missionary Society employed 491 missionaries who organized 110 congregations and added 18247 to the churches; that in the long history of this, the missionary work of the Disciples of Christ, more than one-third of all churches have been planted by its missionaries, and that if this strong organized force at work evangelizing people could be withdrawn, there would be little left of this mightiest religious movement of the Nineteenth or Twentieth centuries.

The only Protestant congregations of Russians in America are the two missions of the American Christian Missionary Society in New York and Chicago. John Johnson, in New York; Basil Keusseff, in Chicago, assisted devoted Disciples from our churches in these cities, are doing a great work with limited means. In Russia there is a position and plea are practically identical with the Disciples of America.

The ebb and flow of the immigration tide has already carried members from one to the other. The two bodies will eventually merge, and if there is power in numbers, the world will hear and heed the plea for Christ.

TEN REASONS WHY

The Ten Great Reasons for taking the Missionary for Home Missions:

1. Four hundred and ninety-one missionaries to maintain.
2. This army must be reinforced.
3. Two-thirds of America's population Christless.

4 The neglected fields in America.
 5 Superb suburban opportunities.
 6 "The Little Brown Church in the 1" 7 Buddhism's organized invasion of nica.

8. "Immigrants, Opportunities, Obligations"—annually a million each.

9. The need for a united church in the home land.

10. The home base for world-wide missions.

The History and Growth of Children's Day

BY A. M'LEAN.

A. M'LEAN

The origin of Children's Day came through the suggestion of J. H. Garrison, St. Louis, Mo. He made a speech before the National Convention at Louisville, Ky., in 1880, urging the adoption of such a day by our Sunday-schools. Every Brother Garrison came to make a speech and start Children's Day is very interesting. It happened in this way. The work of the day was done. At the family altar, prayer was offered for the spread of the gospel into all lands and for the churches that they might offer willingly to this end. When the prayer was over, Brother Garrison's words were said, "We want to give something." They brought out their little collections and poured out their pennies and dimes, the savings of several months. They counted their treasures and found they amounted to $1.13. They said, "We want this to go to children who know nothing about Jesus." Their father took the offering with him to Louisville and told the convention of their desire. That was the beginning of our great Children's Day. At that time, in 1880, the Foreign Society had no missionaries in any of the heathen lands. What little work there was, was being done in Europe. Our children had a large part in starting the work in heathen countries. The first group of missionaries destined for work in heathen lands sailed for India in 1882.

For some years the first Sunday in May was recognized as Children's Day. Then it was changed to the first Sunday in June. In 1881 the Sunday-schools gave $750. That amount steadily increased and in 1889 they gave $19,123, and in 1899, $39,071. In 1909 the amount given was $77,196. During the twenty-eight years of the history of Children's Day up to 1910, the Sunday-schools have given $1,018,800 for Foreign Missions. God only knows what Children's Day has contributed to the evangelization of the world.

The first Sunday in June has come to be the regular Children's Missionary festival among us. There is hardly a Sunday-school that does not know something of this great day. It is of all the happy days of childhood the happiest, the brightest, the best. In after years the careworn man or woman will look back with gladness to that day on which he first recited a missionary poem, sang a missionary song, or better still, denied himself some coveted pleasure in order to give his money for heathen missions. As far as the Sunday-schools are concerned, Children's Day has become a greater day than Christmas. While Christmas is the time when the little folks receive gifts in Jesus' name, Children's Day, on the other hand, affords them an opportunity to prove their generosity by making gifts in His name. It is the great, unselfish day for the children. It is the most popular day of the whole calendar. More people attend Children's Day exercises in our Brotherhood than any other day in the year. No movement has more to do in educating our people than the young Christian started with the selfish enthusiasm of Children's Day is apt to be started right. One can get away from the influences of this festival. Nearly every missionary who on the foreign field received his first inspiration for missions through Children's Day. What argument can be put against missions in the face of the spontaneous, joyous altruism of these boys and girls?

Conservation Congress

By the time these lines are read the Christian Conservation Congress of the Men and Religion Forward Movement will be a matter of history. Carnegie Hall is the Convention center. From the stage of this spacious auditorium stirring messages were delivered by Wm. H. Taft, President of the United States; Archdeacon Thos. R. Madden, Liverpool; Hon. J. A. MacDonald, Toronto; Hon. Wm. J. Bryan; Bishop David H. Greer, New York; Bishop Wm. F. McDowell; Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D.D.; Rev. John F. Carson, D.D., Brooklyn; John Mitchell; Robt. E. Speer, and many others. Scores of our ministers and interested laymen from throughout the country are in attendance. A meeting of the Committee of 97 and the National Executive Committee of the Men and Religion Movement was held on the afternoon of April 18th in the parlors of the Hotel Martin.

The Committee was later entertained at a complimentary dinner by Mr. James Cannon, Chairman of the Committee of 97. The representatives of the church of Christ upon the Committee of 97 are: C. C. Chapman, Los Angeles, California; C. N. Kinney, Des Moines, Iowa; Wm. Long, Kansas City, Missouri; Wm. Wilson, Houston, Texas, and E. E. Ott, Kansas City, Missouri. A number of our ministers were members of the National Advisory Committee, among them Geo. H. Combs, Pastor of the Independence Boulevard Church of Kansas City; C. S. Medbury, Des Moines, Iowa; H. D. Smith, Hopkinsville, Kentucky; W. R. Warren, St. Louis. The editor of this paper was in attendance during the entire week and a full account of the Congress will appear in the June number of CHRISTIAN MEN, the May number having been on the press at the time the Congress was in session.

Child Life in India

BY MRS. M. E. HARLAN, CORRESPONDING SECRETARY C. W. B. M.

There was a time in the far distant past, when, as the even-g shadows gathered about the homes India, the fathers and mothers called their little ones about them and together they bowed and worshiped the true God.
None they neglected these hours of education and petition, and, going away for the plan of the Father, gradually forgot the Creator and learned to worship only the created. With idolatry and decadent home life. A vast stretch of time has elapsed since that day, and the lips are closed.

India's population is 350,000,000. A conservative estimate would show the average family four children under fifteen years of age. On this basis there are no fewer than 210,000,000 boys and girls in the present India. Mrs.
Maudha, of India, says, "If we could bridge the Atlantic and the Pacific and the children shoulder to shoulder, the line would encircle the globe."
What a line of influence! What a potential power! Can we measure it? Can we know? is a more practical question.

India may be called the land of little mothers. More than 360,000 baby girls, under fifteen years of age, are married. Nine million daughters less than fifteen years of age are married to men and boys of all ages, ranging from ten years to extreme old age. There are four times as many girl wives and mothers as there are wives and mothers in six of the great cities in the United States. These little mothers have borne heavy responsibilities before marriage in the care of their brothers and sisters. Perhaps this is their definite task for the care of others, even in babyhood, that partially compensates for the lack of an education and prevents complete degeneracy.

As have been the fathers and mothers in the near past, so are the fathers and mothers of the present. As the little daughters suffer, so must also the cherished sons suffer, perhaps not always immediately in the same proportion, but ultimately it will be the same, so when you pity the little daughters and the mothers of India, withhold not your compassion for the boy husbands and fathers.
These parents, both old and young, the fathers as well as the mothers, love their children. The baby girl, when it is decided she is to live, is loved very tenderly sometimes by the father, even when bitterly disappointed in sonship. It is superstition, caste rules, and slavery to religious forms that crushes heart and hope and appears to annihilate the divine motherhood and fatherhood element of life.

THEIR HOMES

The houses are mud huts,
with mud floors, no windows,
a soiled mat may possibly be provided for a bed, but ordinarily it is the bare ground, with no change of clothing for the night, if, indeed, there is any clothing at all, and no cover but the mud roof or the stars. A very large majority of the people of India cannot provide clothing for the children. A few of the high caste may possess comfortable, clean surroundings, but aside from the Parsees, the wealthy class of the Bombay District, and those in Christian families, there is universal suffering as the result of filth.

The "staff of life" is rice. Thousands cannot afford this, but subsist largely on greens. Young children are almost universally fed on opium. One of our orphanages reports a wee bit of humanity, a girl baby two years old, only sixteen inches in length, so withered and blighted by constant eating of opium that it seemed a miracle that life was sustained. When proper nourishment was given, the transformation was so rapid as to suggest the filling of a dry sponge with rich American milk.

The household god has a niche in every home. When a famine comes, although a child is the last one to survive, and he starts on a pilgrimage for food, his baggage will contain the family idol.

THEIR PLAY Marbles are favorites. Almost all play is according to idolatrous rites. The flying of kites, the walking on stilts, and other special feats, are seasons determined by announcements from the priests. The children, in their play and on the streets, are quarrelsome, but far less so than are their parents, especially their mothers. In this we see nature's desperate effort to give each new life the best possible beginning.

THEIR SCHOOLS The native Hindu schools consist of memorizing a very limited number of idolatrous sacred texts. Although the British government and various mission boards have made aggressive educational advances during the last ten years, only twenty-eight boys in a thousand, of school age, can read and write, and only seven girls in a thousand have ever attended school. Thousands of villages have no school at all. The equipment for most of the government schools and even in many of the mission schools is exceedingly meager. A slate and pencil, or a bit of painted board and chalk, and a very few inferior vernacular books is all. What a field for the kindergartener to awaken new and wonderful life.

Miss Haight, one of our teachers at Bilaspur, India, now on furlough at the Missionary Training School, told me the following: In a village near Bilaspur there was such dire need of a school that she and others went out and conducted classes between times. This school was held in a cow shed. Now, a cow shed in India is just like a cow shed in America, and a poor one at that. Some poles and poles, with loose straw over them. This school had no books, no slates, pencils and tablets, no charts or anything but India's hot, burning dust on the ground, the brown fingers of the children and girls, the teacher's memory, and the children's eagerness to learn. These children smoothed a place with their hands and wrote, not in sand but in dust—burning, stifling dust—the story of the Savior's love for children. When Miss Haight told me this I could not remain seated, so intense was my remorse that we would permit such a condition. So many of us have such luxuries. I said, "Miss Haight, we did not know you were doing this. Why did you not tell us?" She replied, "We told you many other things to which you were compelled to say 'No,' we felt it was our use to speak of this."

THE CHILDREN THEMSELVES The children themselves are naturally cheerful, but their environment, weird, fearful, and portentous, early gives them a saddened and anxious appearance. Their taking of the Oriental reserve, their not confiding to strangers. However, they are very affectionate and loved and petted. Lack of conscience found in them renders it difficult to teach truthfulness. Their cursing is sometimes terrific, consisting of calling down the wrath of the gods and voluminous outbursts in the form of abuse. Ordinarily, they are much quieter than are the children of America.

They seem to possess average ability learn until twelve or fourteen years. In very many, that seems to be the limit of mental progress. The boys are usually fair in mathematics. They do not easily grasp the science of numbers. Both girls and boys memorize easily. Mrs. Lohn, one of our teachers, is the larger boys in the school at present are now grasping the great and wonderful truths of life, of themselves, of obligation to others, of God, and the universe. They would do credit to many of our high school youths in England and the United States. Even heathen boys are asking, "What do you teach the boys in the mission school at Matang that makes them so different from the boys who come to our temple?"

A boy without a father pulls at our heart strings until they almost break. Orphanage is bad in any land, but surely it is more so in a heathen land than in a Christian community. Where Christ is not known the state makes no provision for the orphan child. There are no home-finding societies. Until the Gospel enters with the orphanage and school work and the evangelist's service there can be no Christian homes to adopt the children. We must, therefore, care for such as we can until they are educated and trained for some life work and are established in homes of their own. During the last decade the Christian Woman's Board of Missions and the Foreign Christian Missionary Society have, through the orphanage work in India, established two hundred Christian homes, the Christian Woman's Board of Missions furnishing the brides for our orphanages and the Foreign Christian Missionary Society providing the grooms—a most potent and practical form of coöperation.

Men of America, fathers and brothers of the Church of Christ, help us save India's childhood and in the next generation will rise the new India.

Child Life in Thibet

BY DR. A. L. SHELTON, BATANG, THIBET.

A. L. SHELTON

The conditions of life in Thibet are such that a weak child has no chance of surviving. It is only the huskiest, the strongest little fellows that can survive the hard struggle for existence. Many of the little fellows go practically naked during the summer. Mrs. Shelton allows the little folks to come in to play with Dorris and Dorothy in the afternoons and sometimes it is necessary to tell the parents, of course very kindly, that it is the custom in our country that when children go calling that they always wear some clothes. In the school which Mr. Ogden has in Batang of course cleanliness is one of the first things instilled into their minds. But sometimes at Sunday-school many of them haven't been taught except as we have opportunity there, but many of them learned that we were pleased when they washed their faces and they would have a try at it on Sunday morning. Of course they didn't get much off behind the ears, but you could tell very plainly where the effort had been made in front. They couldn't read, so we taught them by using cards and it was surprising the number of things they learned in this way. One of the stories they liked best in the Old Testament was of David and Goliath, because they carry slings just as David did and as they cannot buy slings they braid them of yak hair and when the story was told they would say "they wished they'd been there, they'd like to have hit him once, too."

In the New Testament the story of Peter was perhaps their favorite, because the men all carry swords and the same day in the Garden when the priests and soldiers came to take Jesus and Peter cut off one of them they think is fine. They say Peter is all right but then when he goes up to the Judgment Hall and a girl comes out and points to Peter and says that he is one of Jesus' Disciples and he begins to curse and swear and he doesn't know Jesus; doesn't know what they're talking about. They don't think much of him then. They say "if he'd taken his sword and cut his head off he'd have been all right."

Child Life in Africa

Lights and Shadows

BY MRS. ROYAL J. DYE, BOLENGE, AFRICA.

Mrs. Dye and Group of Older Girls, Bolenge, Africa

It is a merciful Providence that has granted to children a light heart and sunny disposition which help them to be happy under the most adverse circumstances. In heathen lands the picture of childhood is dark, but even there the sunlight breaks through the clouds and children are carefree and happy.

This is true of Africa. Little girls play with their mother their play babies which take the place of dolls. In Congo these are made of the heart of the plantain plant, and ilar to the banana. The features often be inconspicuous, but the tribal flags are always represented. Among the force Ngombe tribe, the heads of all babies are wrapped around and pulled to make them long. Here the babies also have their heads bound. In other tribes these dolls are made of wood, but always reproducing some peculiarity of that particular tribe. To see a child playing gleefully with these, it is hard to imagine them soon to become slaves and taken far away from home and mother.

In the children there have many interesting plays with songs and motions. These remind one of kindergarten plays, where again the native life and customs are reproduced. Happily and gaily they play a little game like "Needle's Eye," save that those caught in passing are runaway wives of a chief.

The boys delight in making models of boats from the pithy heart of the banana. These are often wonderfully like the originals and show keen observation. They also make models of houses and other things. They make and spin many kinds of tops.

Besides these they have many unique games. The boys and young men play a game using a large nut for a ball. These are not of much account, as the game is what counts. Hurling pointed sticks at a piece of plantain stalk is another favorite pastime. Great skill is shown in this. There are also many objectionable games, most of them objectionable. One of them, however, is merely passing time to the movements of their feet; it is a foot-matching game. This is a favorite on moonlight nights. It is accompanied by handclapping and singing, the players standing in two lines facing each other. Those failing to match the foot of the leader are slaves, who have to be redeemed later.

The old "Cat's Cradle" is also there in nature though not in name. Some children can make from twenty to fifty different figures with string, sometimes having to use a toe to complete them. All these have names and special significance. It is a tie linking the human race together. In this and the many other little games, they pass many a happy hour.

What they enjoy more than these are their folklore tales, richer and more varied than those told by Joel Chandler Harris. Of these they never tire, nor do they ever outgrow them. The picture is bright and we wish there were no darker shadows to obscure it. If we could but shut our ears to the cries of helpless, homeless children being drowned, or cast out to die of starvation, or at the mercy of wild beasts! If we could but forget that these happy little girls would soon be subjected to most revolting practices! But to know this and feel it until your heart and brain are on fire! The brightness is obscured by the density of the shadow.

Christ can retouch the picture, blot out the shadows and glorify the whole with light. He cannot do it alone. We, His disciples, are His messengers of light, and to us He grants this privilege and demands this duty. In the light of Easter and the memory of His resurrection, shall we not do our part in displacing the shadows with light?

Conversion or Conservation of Childhood

BY ROBERT PERRY SHEPHERD, EDITOR THE "FRONT RANK."

ROBERT PERRY SHEPHERD

May be, somewhere in His universe, God has made a more precious creature than a baby, but all the science and research of man has failed to discover it. The human infant is, from every viewpoint of human knowledge, the most wonderful of all God's handiwork.

THE CHILD From the moment of its birth all that the babe will ever be or become is already within it, latent, dormant, in germ—but all there. Nothing will be or can be added to it, no concrete element is lacking. Its body, its mind, its soul, its energies and potencies, its tendencies to good and bad, its tastes for refinement or vulgarity, its powers to construct or destroy, its capacity to think, to feel, to act, to love, to hate, to hope, to fear, to impart life, to kill, to comfort or give pain, to put courage into other hearts or to break hearts ruthlessly—what a wonderful bundle of actuality and of possibilities is the babe which man begets and woman bears!

THE FATHER The last full realization of God in revelation is of His Fatherhood. No other ministry or agency could so truly disclose the character of God as that. And what is true of God is equally true of the man made in the image of God. What a man is as a father, what is the spirit of fatherhood within him, is the largest and most revealing of the character of the man. What he is as citizen and churchman, as a factor in business or profession, as a son, a brother, a husband—all is subordinate and less significant than what he is as a father, in making himself fit for fatherhood by keeping himself fit for fatherhood by conserving and safeguarding the qualities which make him the begetter, protector, provider and friend of the household to whom, under God, he imprints life. This position needs no argument. It appeals directly to our parental consciousness. Every man of us knows it to be true—wholly and altogether true. But in the face of this universal consciousness, how are we to account for the other fact that we spend thousands of dollars and years of life's best time fitting ourselves and our sons for professional or business careers and scarcely a dime or a minute of time seriously fitting ourselves and our sons for intelligent fatherhood. We blunder in thought through ignorance or in selfish indifference and through the most important and most Godlike function we control. What is wrong? Have we no Christian conscience worthy of us and the work?

JESUS AND THE CHILD The disciples of Jesus were true to the traditions of the Jewish sex. They wanted no children around interrupting their important concerns. They, too, conceived of fatherhood in terms of paternal authority, domestic police power, of active repression and restraint of childhood and its energies. When fond mothers brought their children into the presence of Jesus the disciples haughtily rebuked them.

s indignantly rebuked the officious
ples. Where in all His teaching did s Christ so fully reveal the divine rd toward our human nature as He in His attitude and in his repeated ds concerning children? Fathers can nspeakably brutal and unconsciously il to their children. Many of them But no man can be a Christian and blindly unsympathetic with children, fully and heartlessly ignorant of child are and the inalienable right of a child be understood.

Some Sunday-school lessons were issued not long since, by the International Sunday-school Association, for teachers little ones. One of these lessons bore topic, "God the Father of All," and ferences were made to all of Jesus' ds concerning children and child-ol. Some very wise teachers revised lesson for the use of a great denomon. They cut out the words "of all"
n the topic and inserted the reference he text, "Ye are of your father the el." Perhaps these wise men are bet-eposted concerning the paternity of r children than was Jesus. At all vats, they insist that little children nt pass through a process of converic identical with that of the most hard-nl and stubbornly impenitent sinner.
The literature of religion in this country happily preserves for us the picture of a divine of wide renown laboring, hough many days, to bring his five-ve-old daughter to the conviction that sh was a vile and wretched sinner, fit or for the fires of an endless hell!
The men who contrived and perpetuated
h heathenish doctrine called "total editary depravity" were as dead to Jesus' Mind concerning childhood as they we fatally blind to the nature of the child. The devil is no creator but a de-royer. Men may turn away from their God and make of themselves children of the devil, but if they do, they do it in spite of God and His saving love in Christ. To save a child from sinning and from entering on the de-forming life of wilful waywardness is more important than to save a deformed life from the enormity of his sins.

A Picture—Twelve grown CHILD men, their hearts full of CONSERVATION envious and jealous contention as to which of them was the greatest. In the midst, a Man. In the arms of the Man a little child. Angry ambitions are struck dumb in wonderment.
The Man speaks: "Whosoever shall receive one of such little children in my name, receiveth me: and whosoever receiveth me, receiveth not me, but him that sent me."

Another picture—"And they were bringing unto him little children, that he should touch them: and the disciples rebuked them. But when Jesus saw it he was moved with indignation, and said unto them, Suffer the little children to come unto me; forbid them not: for of such is the Kingdom of God. Truly I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the Kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein.
And he took them in his arms, and blessed them.

God will not procreate CONVERSION OR our race apart from the UNFOLDMENT coöperation of man himself. He made the first man full-grown.
He makes the rest of the race out of man and by means of him. If the first man was a weakling, a flat failure, it was mostly because he had no childhood in him, no experience of youth in him, no unfoldment of himself from helpless and unconscious infancy to self-control.
This experience of infancy and childhood and youth, this slow unfoldment of consciousness to conscious self-control of all the hidden energies of body, mind and heart, this discipline God's mercy gives to every son of Adam. Does God demand too much of man to ask for man's complete coöperation in creating and rearing through this slow process of growth and development, the human units which perpetuate the race? We have all understood, more or less clearly, that the physical side of parenthood was a close coöperation, on our part, with God. We have not so generally and so clearly understood that the larger and truer part of parenthood, the rearing of the child, is an even closer coöperation with God in the right unfolding of the nature and powers of the child into self-control. We have hired teachers for the child, we have turned over the most precious and priceless part of the child's unfoldment to the most unskilled, untrained and inexpert guidance, we have been pleased, decorously and politely, when they were "converted," but even then some of us have followed them like moral wolves and criticized with cold reproof the mistakes of their spiritual inexperience and infancy. God pity us! If we were true to God, true to our parenthood, true to the unique privileges which fathers alone possess, we would find our highest joy in companying with our children intelligently, guarding their unfoldment and guiding their growth with Christly sympathy and solicitude. Did we so, conversion would be as the bud unfolding into the flower and the flower yielding place to the fruit, the fruit which is unto eternal life. Conversion under the direction of wise parenthood, is the loving acceptance of the reality of divine parenthood, accepting the sonship of Jesus Christ as the pledge and promise and fulfillment of the Fatherhood of God, the natural passing from joyous knowledge of the kinship of flesh to the grateful acknowledgment of kinship of spirit with God in Christ the Savior. But—and this is the fateful condition—such true unfoldment of childlife unto Christlife waits on the intelligent Christian parenthood of the child's father more than on any other thing. Man's coöperation with God does not stop with the quickened child nor even when the embryo becomes infant. Indeed, all the highest reaches of human parenthood come through intelligent coöperation with God in rearing the child, in keeping sympathetic steps with God in the child's unfoldment into manhood or womanhood, and in guiding the child aright in the conservation of its God-loaned energies.

It may sound odd to you CONSERVATION OF CHILDHOOD —it certainly would sound strange to some women we know—but babies really are not cheap in God's scale of prices. With us they are so cheap and worthless that we commit all sorts of crimes against ourselves and God to keep babies from being thrust upon us. Mostly, fathers are blamable before God for causing directly or indirectly, the sins of abortion and infanticide. We want to enjoy life. What do we want with children! And so it goes. A father recently confessed that he was ashamed to go out publicly with his family. He has six bright, beautiful, healthy children. Surely God must be ashamed, in the universe, to own his family! Talk about the national conservation of natural resources! Why, is that one little family may now be the mind which will harness to human task the whole wasted water power of the continent. There is in some home today—why not in that one—a Jane Addams a human angel worth more to this earth than the coal beds of Alaska even if these reach down to the center of the globe. Strange things have happened among the sons of men. There is that brood which now gives shame to sensitive father. If the human energies of that home are wisely conserved, they now are by the truly loving parents, there may come the man of fully self-control and the woman of strength and vigor and vision who shall lead a continent or the whole wide world to acclaim them in honor.

Suppose that, for example, those parents slowly but surely guide those boys and girls into true knowledge of the physical energies which God imparts to the issues and organs of their bodies. (None can give this knowledge of the physical self to the boy or girl as a father-chum.) Suppose that, like Professor Sidis, the father makes it his delight to lead his boys and girls to conscious possession and mastery of the varied powers which God implants in their minds. Suppose that, inspired by love of Christ, that father leads those boys and girls along the pathway of natural unfoldment to Christ the Son of God, and brings his offspring into that self-control which rests upon the grip of the soul on the spirit of God. Suppose that the education of those children is made a cooperation with God, from first to last, the working out of His purposes in each of those little lives. Suppose that every father was a Christian father who took his paternity as a most precious stewardship from the God of life, and that every child enjoyed the eternal right to be well-born and well-reared, and that every child meant to put them in possession and control of their own energies as fast—no faster—as their capacity and ability could develop! Then, in that case, a case neither impossible nor unnatural, there would walk this earth a new order of human beings. The kingdom of peace would be a reality. As in heaven, so on earth, would the will of God be done. The least as well as the greatest would know God and have joy in Him. The passion of Christ would have its fruitage in the compassion of men. The fatherhood of men would be as the fatherhood of God; sonship of the flesh would reflect the sonship of the Spirit; men would be brothers in the only true and real brotherhood, for every family on earth would be named for God, and the consummation of creation would be complete.

Say not within yourself this is but a dreamer's dream, an impossible Utopia. If God is God, and man is man and true to himself and God, this very thing is now in actual process of concrete establishment. It is hindered, obstructed and held back. That is all too true. But when we discover and remove the chief hindrance, obstruction and drawback, the ideal is well on its way to become the real. What is this stumbling block in chief? Perhaps we can not designate it with final accuracy, but if we turn the searchlight relentlessly into our masculine consciousness we shall see that a human fatherhood which gives the lie to the fatherhood of God, a stupid, stolid, animal fatherhood which stops sated with the physical facts of parenthood, a blind, unseeing fatherhood which never seeks to put itself in the place of the bewildered wonderment and helpless inexperience of the child, a fatherhood not yet glorified by the conscious companionship of God—this is a vast hindrance, an obstacle, a drawback surely.

Is there place or occasion here to go into the economic realm, compute the earning power of a well-reared man, capitalize that productive capacity and show in figures the importance to the world of conserving to childhood and the home, to the church and state, the energies in boys and girls now wasted and dissipated through ignorance and lack of honest guidance? The totals of figures so compiled would be so staggering as to baffle comprehension. If mothers were mothers and fathers were true, criminal courts would be needless, reformatories would be useless, the stupendous cost of reclaiming the lost, reforming the deformed, protecting society and delinquents from each other. All this would be saved for constructive purposes. At the same time the loss from profligacy and vice would be turned into private gain and public profit.

In very truth, no one task more gigantic and urgent can anywhere be found than that of conserving to intelligent self-control the physical, mental, moral and spiritual powers which God gives to each child begotten and born. Women can not do this work. They can do what that women can do but God has fitted in his creation some tasks which can be done only by women and men. Brother, lover, husband, father—these words express experiences a woman cannot know. The consecration of manhood to the manful tasks of fatherhood—fatherhood—in the conservation of a childhood, is one of the manifestations of the sons of God for which the world yet waits in travail and great pain. SHOW US THE MAN!

Delegate Brotherhood Convention

The next annual meeting of the National Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ will be held at Louisville, Kentucky, Tuesday, October 15, 1912, beginning at 2 o'clock p. m. This will be a delegate representative convention. According to the National Constitution each Local Chapter is entitled to one representative for each 100 or major fraction of local members—such Chapter having made a contribution toward the expenses of the National Office for the current year, in order to be considered in good standing.

Seats will be reserved for delegates on the floor of the Convention Hall. The attendance, however, will not be limited to delegates from Local Brotherhoods. Friends and sympathizers of the Movement will be admitted, but not entitled to vote.

Individual members of the National Brotherhood, comprising more than two thousand persons, who have contributed individually toward the support of the National Brotherhood for the year 1911 will also be considered as delegates to the Convention and entitled to vote in the election of officers and directors, but not entitled to vote upon matters of Constitution, By-Laws and other matters which strictly concern Local Chapters.

At this writing arrangements are being made to make this gathering a more delegate convention. Each society will be asked to present a report of work accomplished since the Portland Convention, or in the case of Chapters organizing or affiliating since July, 1911, reports will cover activities since affiliation. The energy of the National Office during the year 1912 will be aimed very largely toward making Local Chapters efficient in the work of the church and the report at the Louisville Convention will demonstrate the feasibility of the methods used.

A committee will be appointed by the chair to bring in nominations for National Directors for the ensuing year.

How Men Can Help Children's Day

BY S. J. COREY, SECRETARY FOREIGN CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

S. J. COREY

Were you ever in the Alps? Well, don't feel embarrassed, because the writer has never been there either. But they say that the high, rarefied atmosphere of those peaks the jar and echo of a man's voice will shake loose a pendant rock and this bounding down the mountain starts a great avalanche which tumbles into the valley below.

The Sunday-school provides the rarefied atmosphere of church activity. Here is where impressions are easily made, where staid routine is jarred loose and branches of enthusiasm for good are started. A man's voice and influence will do the business as nothing else. Boys and girls wait for the leadership and call of men. If the men of a Sunday-school are lined up for Children's Day, nothing can prevent a great day. No school will fail to accept the challenge and leadership of men. Children's Day is so big and good a cause that it can be something of a success in spite of the men, but get the manhood of the church back of it and full success is assured.

There is contagion about the leadership of men. The Foreign Society has the finest Children's Day money collector that has ever been devised. We have been working on it for years. The Missionary Boxes formerly used were all right for the children but men could not use them. The new pocket folding coin booklet is just as convenient for a man as for a child. It slips into the pocket. It is attractive and as handy as a mitten. If the men will take these and use them and let the whole school know that they are using them, everybody else will do the same. We believe these coin booklets will add $10,000 new money to the offering at least.

Some people get the idea that Children's Day is just for the smaller pupils of the Sunday-school. Nothing could be farther from the facts. The name was given when the schools were composed almost entirely of children. It seems too bad to give up the name because of its history and appeal and the joy it gives the boys and girls. However, the whole school is committed to the missionary enterprise, and the adult department is responsible for a larger share in the giving than are the smaller ones. The men can do more than anyone else to dignify and make worthy the Children's Day effort. Help line up the adult department. These good men and women can be deeply interested in the day. Talk the Day, advertise the Day. Make missions as a man's job stand out in all the Children's Day preparation and then help to put on the capstone by making the offering of such a nature that no man will be ashamed of it.

A DEFINITE TASK

Link up the Brotherhoods and Men's Bible Classes to some definite thing. Money will go a long way in the foreign field. The Foreign Society is asking the adult classes to make their special aim for Children's Day the support for a year of the Missionary Hospitals in Foreign lands.

What more inspiring thing could the Men's Bible Classes and Brotherhoods do than to aid in treating 200,000 patients attending these distant hospitals. Each patient has the Gospel preached to him, receives Christian instruction, and leaves with a copy of the Gospels and Christian literature in his hand. The tender ministry of the medical missionary opens his eyes and warms his heart to the Gospel. Many are led to Christ in this way. In heathen lands where there is no medical science, and disease prevails, the medical missionary and his hospital is a veritable gateway to heaven.

Interest your Brotherhoods and Men's classes to support hospital beds, native evangelists, dispensaries, and shares in hospitals.

Here are the special objects for support:

Nankin, China, Hospital, 75 hospital beds at $25 a year; Luchowfu, China, Hospital, 75 hospital beds at $25 a year; Bolenge, Africa, Hospital, 25 hospital beds at $25 a year; Harda, India, Hospital, 25 hospital beds at $25 a year; Mungeli, India, Hospital, 25 hospital beds at $25 a year; Laoag, P. I., Hospital, 25 hospital beds at $25 a year; 25 hospital native evangelists, at $50 each a year; 10 village dispensaries at $10 each a year; 1,000 shares in hospitals (including gospels, medicines and bandages), at $10 each a year.

Let the men of our churches and Sunday-schools have a part in this great work of healing the sick and saving the lost.

Boy Number Next

Summer Camp Plans, Programs, Pictures, Community Centers in Churches

The Boy Scout Movement

A Story by CHAS. B. HAHN, Boy Specialist

The Working Boy—A Live Topic Playgrounds—Recreation Spots

Not an Idle Minute in June

Watch for the Boy's Number of "Christian Men"

Wireless Whispers

*Quarterly Ohio Letter

AKRON, O., March 18, 1912.

DEAR BROTHER: March is another fifth Sunday month, and it will be the last one before the Canton Convention. We hope you are trying to make it count for something in brotherhood work. Your State Committee suggests the following:

First. Our aim has been 100 affiliated Brotherhoods and 50 young men studying for the ministry. Thus far about 30 Brotherhoods have affiliated with the National organization, and reports have come in indicating over 25 young men studying for the ministry. Emphasize both of these in your men's meeting next Sunday of this month. If your men are not organized, consider the matter with them, and if they are organized, either as a Brotherhood or a Men's Class and have not fulfilled, take up that phase of the question. They then bear hard on the proposition of young men studying for the ministry. Upon the ministers will always rest the large part of the burden of interesting young men in this important work. Those who are now engaged in teaching the gospel must show that they believe it is the best calling on earth, so that every young man who has the qualifications for a preacher should see from the attitude of those already in the service, that they are not dissatisfied with their lot, but on the contrary that they fully believe and teach that it is worth while for any young man to devote his life to the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

If you have any young men whom you think should study for the ministry, or who may be thinking along that line, will you not send us their names and addresses? Your State Committee believes that a letter from the committee to these young men, setting forth the desirability and need for the ministry work, might be of some influence in helping such young men to decide aright.

Second. The Canton Convention. Emphasize this in your meeting. Don't you think we should have 1,000 men present on Brotherhood Day? There should be at least one man from every church, and from those churches within easy distance of Canton large delegations should come. Your committee will appreciate a postal card stating how many you think you could bring from your church. We expect to be able to announce the program in a short time, but meanwhile get your men interested in attending.

*Received too late for publication in April
CHRISTIAN MEN.

There is a widespread interest among the men in all the churches concerning the work which men can and ought to do. They want to be putting their hands to the plow. See to it that they have the opportunity.

Fraternally,

OHIO STATE COMMITTEE ON BROTHERHOOD,
William Spanton, Sec'y.

P. S.—Have you taken your offering for Foreign Missions yet? That is part of the Men's work. An offering for the State Brotherhood work taken on the night of March 31st and sent to the treasurer, Brother Graybill, would be acceptable.

* * *

Big Gains Made

Disciples of Christ—Better Known as Christians—Jump from Eighth to Sixth Place

World Convention Scheduled in Louisville, October 15th to 22d

The current issue of the official Year Book of the Disciples of Christ contains some very interesting information relative to the growth and activities of this particular religious denomination.

Official figures from all sources show that on December 31, 1911, this body had 11,280 active churches, with an aggregate membership of 1,375,000, making it rank fourth among the Protestant bodies of the Anglo-Saxon race in America and sixth among all the Christian bodies.

In comparing the growth of the Disciples with that of the ten other leading religious bodies, the compilers of the Year Book have graded the list according to the numerical strength and gain of each denomination: Roman Catholic, Methodist Episcopal, Regular Baptist South, Regular Baptist Colored, Methodist Episcopal South, Disciples of Christ, Presbyterian North, Regular Baptist North, Protestant Episcopal, Lutheran Synodical Conference, Congregationalist.

It also shows that in moving up from the eighth to the sixth place they passed the Presbyterians and Regular Baptists, the largest gain for the year being 110,000, made by the Catholic bodies, the Methodists coming next.

But, if taken in single religious bodies, they would stand in gains in the following order: Roman Catholic, 110,000; Disciples of Christ, 89,759; Regular Baptist South, 49,749; African Methodist Episcopal, 47,874; Cumberland Presbyterian, 40,000; Lutheran Synodical Conference, 39,755; Regular Baptist Colored, 34,589; Methodist Episcopal South, 32,000; Greek Orthodox Church, 30,000; Methodist Episcopal Church, 26,949.

Within the official year, closing September 30, 1911, the Christian Missionary Society alone assisted in the support of 491 missionaries, organized 110 new Churches and added 18,247 to the membership of the denomination.

With the increased forces placed in the field since that time, the Disciples hope to show in all departments at their International Convention in Louisville, October 15-22, the greatest gain made by them or any other denomination in a single year.

The Louisville Armory, with seating capacity of 20,000, has been engaged for the event and urgent requests sent to every Church and mission point to prepare at once for sending delegates, which, with the "home-coming" sentiment directed to former Kentuckians of the faith, will probably swell the attendance to something like 25,000 to 30,000.

* * *

Hoquiam Notes

BY A. STRITMATTER, HOQUIAM, WASH.

You may think that Local No. 381 has died out, but such is not the case. We are still on the map and expect to be there as long as any of them.

At our regular meeting in February, the 14th, we had a big banquet. There were 75 men present. W. A. Moore, pastor of the First Christian Church at Tacoma, gave the address, his subject being "A Man's Job." Brother Moore is one of the best speakers on the coast. He appeals to men in a man's way.

The following officers have been elected for the coming year: President, A. R. Shepherd; First Vice-President, W. I. Haley; Second Vice-President, Charles Morrow; Corresponding Secretary, A. Stritmatter; Recording Secretary, W. Stritmatter; Treasurer, James Holton.

We have increased our membership to over 75, and are still looking for more. The Brotherhood is trying to work up a campaign on the saloon question for this fall. We are meeting with good success so far. If we can get the saloons voted out of Hoquiam it will be one thing accomplished worth while.

The influence is being felt on more than one question in Hoquiam already and we have not yet made a good start. We may have some hard fighting to do, but I think the men are equipped well enough to do it.

The first and second Sunday nights in April the Brotherhood is going to take charge of the song service. We are trying to get the men interested in all the different lines of Church work. When we get them interested good work, things will start to move in the right way and at the right speed.

* * *

Sunday-School, Church and Synagogue Canvass

For the first time in the history of Kansas City, Missouri, the Catholics, Jews and Protestants joined with the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., City Club, Board of Public Welfare and other similar organizations in a scheme of home visitation, which was successfully carried out Tuesday afternoon, March 26th, in order to do a big job in the remarkable time of two hours, seven thousand men and women volunteered and spent the time walking through the slush and mud following a terrific storm. The Churches, Sunday-schools and Synagogues are looking forward to a large increase in attendance and membership as a result of this visitation, which located thousands of men, women and children not identified with any Church or Synagogue.

* * *

An Omission

In a recent issue of the Front Rank was published the list of Brotherhoods affiliated during January. The same failed to include the Wabash Avenue Brotherhood, Akron, Ohio, which affiliated on October 5, 1911. The following are the officers: President, A. J. Saccool; Vice-President, Grant McCort; Secretary, Frank W. Pomeroy, and Treasurer, Fred Gudikunst.

* * *

Regarding Bible School Notes

BY A. R. SPICER.

"I thought I detected too much M. E. experience sentiment in the lessons. I like the buy eye aim method. I want to see the fire flash and the bell ring every time a fellow shoots. CHRISTIAN MEN is a jewel and its issues are read and greatly appreciated by our men."

The editors of this paper have been accused of many faults, failures, sins and shortcomings, but our friend Spicer is the first to accuse us of preaching Methodist doctrine. Brother Spicer is chairman of the Oklahoma State Brotherhood and one of our most worthy ministers. What he says will be seriously considered by the editors of our Bible School notes. If running comment is the thing our readers want, that is what they ought to have. Such comments can be prepared in less time and with less difficulty than the preparation as now made. We think our lessons are striking and twelve. We realize that we cannot please all of our readers all of the time, although we are probably pleasing some of them all the time. Such frank criticisms as Brother Spicer gives will be our index for moulding our comments on the Bible Lesson. Brethren, we will be the next?

Advertising Religion by Signs

New York is talking about the radical way in which the Men and Religion Forward Movement is bringing the claims of the Churches to the attention of the people. In addition to an advertising campaign in all the daily newspapers of the city, extending over six weeks, they have placed electric-lighted signs at strategic points along Broadway. Overlooking Madison Square, at Fifth Avenue and Broadway, from the top of a building on Twenty-first Street, is a huge sign, thirteen and a half sixty-two feet, which proclaims in immense letters, "Welcome for Everybody in the Churches of New York." At either end of the sign is a great cross, one marked, "Men for Religion," and the other, "Religion for Men." At the bottom, in small letters, is "Men and Religion Forward Movement."

Along the region of upper Broadway, commonly called "The Great White Way," are two other signs meant to arouse the attention of the pleasure-seeking throngs. One proclaims, "I Am My Brother's Keeper," and the other reminds the reader that "The Church Wants Men in Her Work for Man."

These signs and other advertisements are part of the work of the Publicity Commission of the Men and Religion Congress, which met April 19-24 in New York City. This Commission is investigating the relations of the Church to the press, and it is thus putting to the test some of its convictions.

* * *

Christianity in Strange Places

The (London) Nation (Radical-Liberal), February 3.—Bishop Gore's address last Thursday to the Christian Social Union on "The Social Obligation of a Christian" took the form of a vigorous and outspoken indictment of the traditional attitude of churchmen "in regard to what were vaguely called social questions." People who wanted to get a social reform carried out had to "go to every kind of atheist and nonconformist and other kind of person," while the mass of church people showed "a blank, stupid refusal to recognize their social duty." He dared any one to say that "what Christ preached was not a revolutionary doctrine, which we have got over again to digest and make our own." He concluded with an appeal to church men and women not to be content with mere salvage work, but "by determined and continuous effort to change the social system which crushed out the hope, the strength and the purity of the people."

* * *

Facts You Should Know

The apostolic program was to first win the city for Christ. The Disciples of Christ must bring their message to the centers of population if they would influence the nation.

The 4,766,883 souls in New York City, gathered from every quarter of the globe, offer a field of heroic service that challenges the faith and loyalty of the church.

Over fifty per cent of the population of New York State live in this city.

There are more people in New York City than are found in any other state in the union, except Ohio, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

New York City equals the combined population of Wyoming, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North and South Dakota and Oregon, with people enough left to make a city nearly the size of St. Louis, Mo.

The church has failed to give the gospel to "all the nations." God is now sending these people to us; 6,868,312 have come since 1905.

There are in this city 478,200 from Russia, 340,400 from Italy, 265,500 from Austria-Hungary and 279,200 from Germany. Let us win these people for Christ and send them back to their country as heralds of the Cross.

The world evangelization waits on Christian America, and this nation will be saved only when the cities are redeemed.

There are 12,468 saloons in New York City, whose chief business it is to degrade our fellowmen and prepare the way for crime and vice that holds captive tens of thousands of poor victims that need your help.

The only power that can save the city is the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

From 1900 to 1910 the city as a whole increased 38.2 per cent, while the foreign born increased 52.9 per cent.

From 14th street south to Catharine street and from the Bowery to the East river 157,746 of Russian birth are segregated. Our Russian Mission is located in the center of this section.

Upon the Disciples of Christ, in this city, rests the responsibility of leading in this work. The Churches of Christ throughout this country are looking to us to make possible an adequate city mission work. Shall we prove worthy of the trust committed to us?

* * *

Appreciation of Christian Men

I wish to say I regard CHRISTIAN MEN very highly and deem I have done a man a favor in taking his subscription.—B. A. WILLIAMSON, Los Angeles, Cal.

* * *

Men's Bible Classes and the Brotherhood Movement

BY W. J. CLARK, ADULT SUPT., KENTUCKY CHRISTIAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

It is my conviction that the Brotherhood Movement should start from the Men's Bible Class wherever we have such class, and in such cases incorporate the whole Brotherhood program, affiliating the whole of the adult men's department of the Bible School with the National Brotherhood. Where we have no organized Bible Class of men, organize one, affiliating it at once with the National Brotherhood. Where there is no organized Bible Class of men and a Brotherhood is first organized, encourage this Brotherhood to become the organized Men's Class of the Bible School. I am thoroughly in favor of a Secretary spending several days with one congregation, working over the entire church program and thus Brotherhood work may be properly considered and in some cases given an entire evening on the program. In addition to field work, correspondence with churches, sending Men's Work literature is abundantly worth while. Thus in a general way the entire field will be reached in behalf of Brotherhood work. These plans, I believe, will be far more effective than any spectacular methods used for exploiting either the Brotherhood Movement or the Bible School.

W. J. CLARK

In dealing with Men's Work along state lines it is a splendid idea to have the counsel of a Committee of men looking to the solving of our state problems.

It is my conviction that the purpose of the Brotherhood Movement will be most quickly and permanently realized if it could be possible for the Brotherhood to make the organized Men's Classes of the Christian Church the beginning and have the Brotherhood Movement root itself solidly in the affiliated Men's Bible Classes. I can see no objection to this program but on the other hand I see in it a tremendous advantage. In the first place we would have at hand a thousand organizations already built upon a platform that embodies the Brotherhood Movement, for we must realize that the modern Bible Class Movement carries in its program not only Bible Study but expressional activity in every field of Christian service. With each Bible Class a chapter the National Office need then only direct the energies of the different committees that superintend the class activities in study and service.

A second advantage would be that through the Brotherhood influence the entire body of men in each church could be drawn yet more rapidly into this single men's organization. It would result, for example, in properly lining up the men now in mixed classes with the men's division of the school and church. Again

I believe that to put the emphasis on Bible Study as the radiating point for Christian activity would do incalculable good to our whole Brotherhood of men.

For these and other reasons I am hoping and praying for the day when the Adult Men's Department of the School and Church and Brotherhood work shall be properly joined and made properly complementary.

* * *

Young Foreign Convert Heads Committee for Disciples Big International Convention

Louisville, October 15th-22d

LINLEY GORDON

Young Native Minister of South Australia, President of Convention Club of One Hundred Preparing for Disciples International Convention in Louisville, October 15th-22d.

The Louisville Convention Club of one hundred, in charge of the preparations for the big International Convention to be held in the city October 15th-22d, sent out word that the entertainment for the event will be distinctly Kentuckian even though young Linley Gordon, a product of the foreign field, heads the local committee.

Young Gordon not only is a product of the foreign field—South Australia—but of Kentucky University, having graduated therefrom in 1908.

After laboring in his native city for two years after his graduation he was called to the pastorate of the Clifton Christian Church in Louisville, and a few weeks previous to his election to the Presidency of the Convention Club he was elevated to the Presidency of the Christian Church Ministerial Association of the same city.

The Effect of a Sermon

from the New York Evening Post.

Two men were taking their lunch at a popular restaurant in town and a woman was sitting at a table nearby and she tells us this: The men were talking about the legislative cases, when one of them said:

"I know all about it; I was a member of the legislature once, and I know the drawing of an offer of $500 or $1,000 for a vote. I saw the mighty near tumbling once, when there was a tender of $1,500 for my vote on a certain proposition. It was awfully fascinating. I needed the money. Why not take it? No, I would never know it.

"I had a terrific struggle over that offer. I decided to take it and then changed my mind and changed back again, and I did that over and over again, all the time while thus mused. It was on a Sunday when the fever was at its height and passing the Congregational Church I noticed that Doctor Gladden was preaching; so I went in there to hear him, principally to get away from myself. It happened that the doctor preached that night on 'The Honest Man.' Well, that settled the bribe lost its grip on me, and every near motive as well. The influence of that sermon must have made me appear bribed for ever since then has anybody ever approached me, either directly or indirectly, with a bribe."

* * *

Nation-Wide Campaign for One-Day-in-Seven

The nation-wide campaign to obtain one-day-in-seven for industrial workers has been inaugurated by the Commission on the Church and Social Service of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. It has received the unanimous endorsement of the Executive Committee of the Federal Council. Bills for the various legislatures are being prepared by a committee of the American Association for Labor Legislation of which the chairman is Mr. John A. Fitch, who has been one of the initial movers in the whole project. Working in association with Secretary of Labor S. Macfarland of the Federal Council, the committee have decided to introduce bills immediately in the legislature of New York and New Jersey. In New York, the committee is headed by Canon William Sheafe Chase. In New Jersey, it will be in charge of the State Federation of Churches.

The proposed to unite in coöperation the State Federations of the Churches, the labor organizations, rest day associations and all other appropriate bodies.

The text of the bill, as proposed for New York State, is as follows:

Section 1. Chapter thirty-six of the Laws of Nineteen hundred and nine, entitled "An Act relating to labor, constituting chapter thirty-one of the consolidated laws," is hereby amended by adding thereto after section eight, two new sections, to be sections 8-a and 8-b, respectively, and to read as follows:

Where Sunday labor required, equivalent rest day necessary. No person, partnership, firm, corporation, municipality, nor any of their agents, directors or officers, may require or permit any employee to work on Sunday in his or its employ, except at farm labor or household service, unless within the next succeeding six days during a period of twenty-four consecutive hours he or it shall neither require nor permit such employee to work in his or its employ. Nothing in this section 8-a shall be construed as authorizing any work or employment of labor on Sunday not now authorized by law.

8-b. Inspectors for enforcement of preceding section. The commissioner of labor may appoint from time to time not more than ten inspectors at a salary not to exceed fifteen hundred dollars for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the foregoing section of this act.

Section 2. This act shall take effect October 1st, Nineteen hundred and twelve.

* * *

Southern Sociological Congress

The Southern Sociological Congress will be held in Nashville, Tennessee, May 7th to 10th. Mr. J. E. McColloch, the Secretary, in writing of the matter says:

"All thinking, patriotic men and women in the South are vitally interested in this Convention because of the vital subjects to be discussed therein."

Department Conferences will consider Child Welfare, Charity Organization, Public Health and Housing, Tuberculosis, Recreation and Medical Inspection, Adult Dependents and Delinquents, Mental Defectives, Negro Problems, and The Church and Social Service. In connection with the Congress there will be the greatest Sociological Exhibit ever set up in America on Public Health, Housing, Labor Conditions, Infant Mortality, and Studies in other Southern Social Conditions and Civic Problems.

Topics on the Program are as follows:

Conservation of the Nation's Best Asset—Her Children.

Causes and Conditions of Dependent Children.

What is best for the Child—the Orphanage or an Adopted Home?

The National Curse of Propagating a Race of Imbeciles and Criminals.

The care of Neglected Children.

The care of Feeble-Minded Children.

Aid the Mothers to Keep Her Child.

The Need of the Mountain Children.

The extent of Illiteracy of the South.

Recreation and Medical Inspection of Schools.

Child Labor and Compulsory Education.

Organization for Team Work in Social Service.

Organized Charity—What It Is, and Why?
The Purposes of Imprisonment.

How Prisoners Live in the South.

Why Is the Indeterminate Sentence Desirable?

The Profits of Adult Probation.

Welfare Work for Prisoners.

How to Destroy Money Sharks.

Trained Leadership the Supreme Need in Social Service.

Relation of Educational and Social Work.

The Church and Social Service.

Coördination and Coöperation.

Social Settlements and Recreation.

The Care and Treatment of the Insane.

Needs of the Negro that the South Must Meet.

The Negro and Crime.

The Negro and Public Health.

The Contagion That Knows No Color Line.

The Care and Control of the Degenerate.

The Scourge of the White Plague.

The County Unit in the Development of Public Health.

Public Health and Housing.

National Deterioration by Neglect of Public Health.

Housing Conditions in Mill Communities.

The Potential Resources of the South for Leadership in Social Service.

The Call of the Social Worker.

The Qualifications of the Social Worker.

* * *

Appreciation of Christian Men

Enclosed please find $1.00 for the support of the Brotherhood Movement. The current number of CHRISTIAN MEN is worth all of it.—R. G. MOODY, Topeka, Kan.

* * *

Medical Missionary Wanted

We need a medical man for Africa. We really need two, but we need one very much indeed. None but an efficient Christian and a proficient physician need apply.

For particulars, address A. McLean, President Foreign Christian Missionary Society, Box 884, Cincinnati, Ohio.

* * *

Regarding Prof. Payne

BY H. R. MURPHY, VALLEY FALLS, KANSAS.

We had Brother W. C. Payne with us last Wednesday, and while the roads were almost impassible, and the attendance was not large, he sowed the good seed, and yesterday we had fine attendance at the services, and after the morning worship we organized a "Brotherhood" of twenty of our best men, and you will hear from our Secretary, Brother Hiram Herries, of this city, soon.

Our officers elected are as follows: President, Clarence Huff; Vice-President, J. A.

Zimmerman; Secretary, Hiram Herries; Treasurer, E. Marsh.

Brother Payne is a strong educator and a full fledged MAN, and no church will make a mistake in having him visit them.

* * *

Third Annual Summer School of Methods for Sunday-School and Missionary Workers

Bethany Park, Indiana, August 6-16, 1912

Under the Direction of the State Sunday-School and C. W. Work of the Christian Church.

Faculty

Garry L. Cook, Indianapolis, State Sunday School Superintendent, Dean and Instructor in Religious Pedagogy.

Dr. Robert Perry Shepherd, St. Louis, Mo., with Christian Board of Publication, Instructor in Bible Work.

Prof. Elmer Ellsworth Snoddy, Hiram, Ohio, College, Head of Department of Philosophy, Instructor in Sunday-School Psychology.

Miss Florence Miller, Louisville, Ky., Missionary Specialist with C. W. B. M., Instructor in Missions.

John E. Pounds, Hiram, Ohio, Minister, Adult Class Specialist, Instructor in Work of Adult Department.

Dr. Isaac Taylor, Headland, China, Missionary Specialist, Instructor in Missions.

A Specialist in Elementary Sunday-School Work will be announced later.

Eighty-seven Graduates 1911—Special rate, Park $11 for 11 days—Tuition $1.

For further information, address Garry L. Cook, Dean, 6060 East Washington St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

NOTE—Two full days of Men's Work will follow this School of Methods, August 17th. Speakers to be announced.

* * *

What a Preacher Says About Conservation Day, April 28th

We are going to observe Conservation Day April 28th. My Men's Class took hold of the suggestion with enthusiasm. We have set a mark for every man in the church present on that date. The men will have entire charge of the services.—C. M. FORD, Nashville, Tenn.

* * *

Bucking a Blizzard

BY E. L. DAY, INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA.

All arrangements were made last week for a banquet. The invitations were out, the spread prepared and everything in readiness to feed at least fifty men and entertain them with a splendid program. However, on the afternoon and evening set, a heavy storm of sleet swept over our city, tying up traffic of broken and fallen trolleys, etc., so only seventeen men got to the meeting. It was a "dandy." The eats were sure sufficient for the crowd and the toast program a hummer. We closed by clasping hands in a circle and solemnly committed our movement in prayer to God. Hackleman was present and said it was the best meeting of the he was ever in. You know that was something. But it was all due to the "kick" I have around me here. They are as fellows as we have anywhere and they mean business. Our numbers will come. We have had about 130 accessions to North Park since I came here eleven months ago. Among these are my best Brotherhood "Posters."

Since the movement started we have financed of A. W. Conner's Boy campaigns. This was launched and completed before the completion of our organization. 114 boys were reached in the campaign and several of them have since united with the church. You can see for us that Conner is all right. It will pay any church, big, to put the Boys' campaign on. It has roused our people and the work for boys is not finished here. I note what you say about our being the Indianapolis local. We shall certainly try to merit your expectations. You will hear from us.

* * *

What Thomas Thinks

B. Thomas, minister, Mattoon, Illinois, says:

We think a great deal of your Men's and Boys' Day, April 28th, and I think it will be a great day for the masculine element in our church.

We have decided to push the day for all it is worth, and endeavor to make it one of the greatest days in the calendar of the year. You must send sufficient literature to accommodate two hundred men at the meeting. We have one hundred forty already enrolled in our Brotherhood. We are having splendid attendance in our Brotherhood Bible Class. There were sixty-five present last Sunday and we hope to have at least one hundred in attendance on Easter morning. Our Church membership is nine hundred and the men are getting behind the work as never before which gives the church a better outlook than in all its past history."

* * *

Visalia, Cal., Looks After Boys

A recent issue of The Visalia Times announces a fine work for boys carried on in the Christian Church, which will make for a better city. A gymnasium has been fitted up in the basement of the church, where boys and young men can play indoor games and have athletic contests under the supervision of the men of the church. Plans are under way for a new and modern church building that will embody necessary institutional features.

Brotherhood Does Missionary Work

Local Brotherhood No. 373, of Vinton, Iowa, plans to organize a Chapter at Mt. Auburn, Iowa, soon, and has one other place in view where a Brotherhood Chapter will be organized.

* * *

Comments on Volunteer Day

One young man has gone from this church to study for the ministry. In this campaign for more ministers, why not start an agitation to tell the churches how to use their ministers. This is one reason why more young men are not entering the work. They see how other ministers have been used.—ONE OF OUR MINISTERS.

* * *

Lectures to Brotherhood

Chas. C. Wilson, minister of the First Christian Church of Milwaukee, announces his availability for Brotherhood lectures in connection with lyceum bureau work during the coming summer. His printed announcement contains a number of recommendations from prominent sources and a list of the topics covered. His main subject, "The Battle for Brotherhood," is worthy of very wide consideration. We doubt not that he will be kept busy advocating this modern idea.

* * *

Regarding Volunteers

You have recently inaugurated a great campaign for recruits for the Christian Ministry. Do you know that there is any pressing demand for ministers in our church? There is a young man in my church here, a man 26 years of age, a graduate of Ohio Northern University, a man who took work at Bethany—and he has been for several months seeking a place to preach. He is a man of two years experience, one who is fully desirous of serving his Master. He is prepared for the service by several years active service in the Y. M. C. A. and by preaching. He is a man of excellent character and of ability. I have written to at least a half dozen of our Ohio churches, which have no ministers. One had a man under consideration; the others did not know whether they wanted a minister or not.

Now if the demand for ministers is so pressing that the ministers the country over are asked to preach on the need, it seems to me that a man as well prepared and as capable as is this young man, should have no trouble finding a place to serve.

Can you assist me in finding a place where this young brother may serve?

Yours very sincerely,

MARION J. BRADSHAW,
Ada, Ohio.

Another Brotherhood Director Does Field Work

THOMAS W. GRAFTON

Thomas W. Grafton, National Director, of Kansas City, one of the earliest and most persistent advocates of the Brotherhood idea, has a nation-wide reputation as a "Big Brother," having done commendable work in handling the Boy Problem wherever he has been. Dr. Grafton, as he is familiarly called in Kansas City, will represent the Brotherhood at several District Conventions in Missouri and also at the Missouri State Convention this year. In addition to his serving as National Director of this Movement, he is Chairman of the Advisory Committee. Among our fourteen Officers and Directors probably no one is better able to represent the Movement on the Convention platform than T. W. Grafton, and he will be heard with interest wherever he goes.

* * *

Chariton Men Busy

C. C. DAVIS

I want to report our first program yesterday afternoon. Had more than double attendance of former meetings, and good live spirit present, four or five good talks on "What is the purpose of our Brotherhood?" We will hold next meeting on Easter, and at that time take a special offering for National Support. I don't want you to expect too much of us, for my men are all in very ordinary circumstances financially, but we will grow.

Received eight new members yesterday, and my membership committee secured more at the meeting.

The thing that pleases me most is that we are enlisting some men that we had never touched before outside of Church circles; instance, Editor of one of our newspapers, not a member of any church, but a royal low, and bright, too.

I presented "Conservation Day" plans for April 28th, and they voted unanimously to observe it. I feel confident that the men will do good work. They own a wheel chair which is loaned to needy people free of cost. We have three Committees—Program, Social, Fraternal Aid, and Membership. We don't want a top-heavy machine, consequently start low.

* * *

Bethany Park Assembly

C. C. WILSON

Elsewhere in this issue announcement is made of the Summer School of Methods, at Bethany Park, Indiana. Immediately succeeding the School of Methods will be two great days for men. The chief speaker upon the Men's Days will be C. C. Wilson, of Milwaukee, Apostle of Brotherhood. Brother Wilson is one of the most brilliant of our younger ministers. He has served the church at Bellefontaine, Ohio, and later the First Church at Milwaukee. As a Chautauqua Lecturer, Brother Wilson is probably at his best. He is quoted as "A Fighting Idealist;" "Untrammelled by Tradition;" "Fearless as a Lion." He is an unyielding foe of all sham, jingoism, injustice, Laissez-faire, and everything that stands in the way of Brotherhood. By many he is said to be The Man of the Hour. His main theme at Bethany will be "The Battle for Brotherhood."

* * *

Book Review

We have read with exceptional interest "The Life and Work of Jacob Kenoly," a two hundred page book by C. C. Smith. It throbs with life, though the subject is dead. Every Disciple of Christ interested in our missionary paganda would do well to send fifty cents (c) to the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, Missionary Training School, Indianapolis, Indiana, and secure a copy of this book. Topographically it compares favorably with books selling for twice that price. It is bound in durable cloth and suitably labelled. It will be a valuable addition to anyone's library.

* * *

What Do You Think?

In the face of the unprecedented bad weather CHRISTIAN MEN subscription list is gradually increasing. We received lists of subscribers as follows (20 and over) during March, 1912:

F. C. Burgenheim, New Albany, Ind.....	20
F. C. Nickle, Davenport, Ia.....	30
F. M. Wright, Rock Island, Ill.....	50
J. O. Mabie, Rockford, Ill.....	21
V. H. Jennett, Kalispell, Mont.....	20
C. A. Barker, Redlands, Cal.....	40
V. G. Avery, Washington, D. C.....	25
E. C. Channing, Niagara Falls, N. Y.....	20
I. Hale, Joplin, Mo.....	20
I. C. Baxter, Pittsburg, Kan.....	23
V. J. Harris, Bellaire, Ohio.....	24
V. K. Ash, Columbus, Ohio.....	26
Edward Allyn, Clinton, Ill.....	27
M. R. Gerhart, Mansfield, Ohio.....	25
J. B. Crutcher, Beatrice, Neb.....	23
I. C. White, Sacramento, Cal.....	48
G. F. Blue, Carthage, Mo.....	44
W. Milligan, Bellefontaine, Ohio.....	20
E. F. Cato, Bowling Green, Ky.....	21

* * *

A Letter from Fred B. Smith

DEAR BROTHER: I am calling on the splendid company of "Count on Me" men for three days of service, looking toward Christian Observation Congress of the Men and Religious Forward Movement, New York City, April 1st, to 24th:

The first is the service of prayer. With our planning and machinery, and the participation of powerful personalities, we do not forget that it is "NOT by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts." We should like to feel that the Congress is being remembered daily in the prayers of many men.

I. We want to suggest the possibility of bringing men to New York at the time of the Congress, who, though they may not be able to secure places as delegates, will yet be able to attend the auxiliary meetings, and if possible to bring with them one or two older boys. This should be a critical experience in the life of many boys. Certainly it is a great opportunity for them to see this massing of the strong manhood of America at the continent's metropolis. The trip should be worth a year in school to any boy.

III. In the third place, we want to start in definitely to secure, in every paper in the land, some special regular treatment of religion. Will you take up the subject locally, with a view to having a religious department established in your local papers? Call a conference of interested men upon this; prompt the ministers' meeting to take it up; invite the editors to this meeting; get your local religious organizations, like the Sunday-school Association, Christian Endeavor Union, Brotherhoods, also to write to the editors asking for a fuller treatment of religious interests. We should like to leave as an abiding memorial of the Men and Religion Movement a worthy religious department in every newspaper in North America.

Yours in the fellowship of service,
FRED B. SMITH,
Campaign Leader.

* * *

Blue Is Not Blue

GEORGE F. BLUE

"Enclosed find money order for $11.00 for which send CHRISTIAN MEN magazine to the names and addresses enclosed." So wrote George F. Blue, of Carthage, Missouri. Brother Blue is Secretary of local Brotherhood—worshiping in the Carthage church. They have a great group of men, presided over by the pastoral genius, D. W. Moore. Brother Blue says further: "We will send an offering equal to $1.00 per member, deducting the price of 25c per member for the magazine. We have appointed committees for the year, and a membership committee is busy working for new ones."

BROTHERHOOD BOYS

CHAS. B. HAHN, Editor

Some Rules of the Game

¶ You can make a boy good by suggestion.

—O—

¶ Froebel well said, "Come, let us live with our children."

—O—

¶ Solomon said, "A child left to himself bringeth shame to his mother."

—O—

¶ You will find that most of the boy pranks are not wrong, annoying to big folks, however.

—O—

¶ Where ever there are restraints, no matter how gilded, some boy is trying to get through them.

—O—

¶ We like a boy who can win love from all but enemies and nothing but respect and fear from them.

—O—

¶ A boy can do most anything he pleases if he only makes up his mind and works hard and never gives up.

—O—

¶ Do not forget that the boy drinks in the tales you tell him and that they are the stuff of which he builds his air castles

—O—

¶ We talk of happy boyhood—well it ought to be but the troubles of a boy are just as real and just as many tears are shed than as in after years.

—O—

¶ "The criminal of today is the hero of our old legends. We put in prison today the man who would have been the dreaded and respected chief of a clan or tribe."

—O—

¶ Isn't it strange that parents are so anxious about their boys when it comes to physical dangers but forget to think of them when moral dangers surround them?

—O—

¶ Society can better afford to make place for an occasional boy with a broken limb than she can to support scores of boys with cracked and demoralizing brains.

—O—

¶ Do you know that in the lower school grades in most of our cities ninety per cent of the boys finish their schooling which the law requires without having had a single male teacher.

—O—

¶ We must not forget that the so called "Irreverence" in boys must be taken for what it is worth. To them religion is sincere but expressed in boy fashion. It is an honest faith set forth in slang.

—O—

¶ Learn to know that boy of yours, that little laughing, noisy and good natured rascal. He sits with you at the table, goes with you on walks, listens to your stories, gives you a sheepish grin when he meets you on the street with his play fellows—yet you do not really know him.

—O—

¶ The boy who stays on the corner late at night is sure to be out for mischief. There he meets boys whose heads are stuffed full of poisonous narratives of the worst sort. Careers of scoundrels like the James and Biddle Brothers and the outlaw Tracy whose exploits the boys admire but lack the nerve to emulate. Keep the boys from thinking and talking about such men.

Say you saw it in "Christian Men"

Conundrum

Why is it a man will pay a lawyer $1,000 to get him out of jail, and balk at paying a doctor to keep him out of purgatory?

A Lucky Man

Regardless of whether Rip Van Winkle was stolen by Erasmus by Washington Irving, the fact remains that old Rip was a Lucky Man.

Ye Olden Days

In "ye olden days" all one had to do was to go into the garden and dig up a meal ticket. Nowadays the best of us have to dig elsewhere for our tickets.

High Cost of Living

In most large cities it costs from $5 to $500 to expectorate on a sidewalk, street car or ferry boat. "Back home" you can usually expectorate everywhere for nothing.

A Time-Saver

An Irishman was asked why he preferred smoking a day pipe. "Begorra," replied Pat, "it saves time. When ye happen to drop it ye niver have to stop and pick it up, begob."

Incompetence Defined

A Chicago judge rules that a husband is not competent to help select his wife's gowns. A man who is more than incompetent—he is irrelevant, immaterial, and a molly-coddle.

A Place to Begin

A belated Speaker: "I hardly know where to begin or quit."
Voice in the rear: "Better begin pretty soon or we'll show you where to quit."

Knew From Experience

A magnate (given to advice): "My boy, it is the little things that tell."
Young Business Man (savagely): "I know it! I've got a little brother."—From Judge.

I'll See You Later

A man about to be hanged was bidding good-bye to the sheriff and those about him, but failed to bid adieu to the minister who had been his constant spiritual adviser. Pointing a thumb over his shoulder in the direction of the minister, the prisoner remarked, "I'll see you later," and stepped on the gallows.

A Cure for Truth

As an illustration of great devotion to truth, an elderly M. P. told his auditors that he "underwent a severe threshing when a boy for telling the truth." Imagine the sickly feeling which came over him when a gruff voice called out from the center of the audience: "I guess it's cured you, guv-nor!"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Impersonating a Policeman

Judge Lindsey, of Denver, has the record of a boy who was sent to the penitentiary for stealing a hand full of peanuts and a banana from a fruit vender. He was charged with impersonating a policeman.

Bad Things Count

Get in jail for one day and your name goes into the newspaper. Stay out of jail all your life and the papers will never mention it. There are not enough papers published to print one-tenth of the good things continually happening.

Not on Speaking Terms

The minister, walking home from Sunday morning services, remarked to his wife that the choir were very parsimonious that morning.

"Hum," she answered, "there are none of them on speaking terms with each other."

Extra Policeman

James Small, of Evangelistic fame, reports baptizing a big fellow down in Missouri and as they came out of the water the candidate turned to Small and said: "If you ever need any officers in the church remember I have served extra on the police force."

A Large Price

A Jew bought a cemetery lot at auction for $250. The lot was well located on the brow of a hill.

"That is quite a large price," said his wife.

"Yes," he replied, "I could have bought one much cheaper on the other side of the hill, but I was afraid of malaria."

Take No Harm of Yourself

A southern negro was called upon to nurse a soldier of the Union army, wounded in an engagement. In reply to an inquiry for his opinion of the Yankee Colonel, the negro replied:

"Well, de Colonel certainly don't take no harm o' hisself."

So Did Mine

1st Farmer: "Say, Cy, what'd ye give your horse when he was sick?"

Cy: "Kerosene."

1st Farmer (a week later): "Say, Cy, I gave my horse kerosene and he died."

Cy: "So did mine."

Drinking Cup and Cuspidor

In some of the Western States travelers are compelled to carry their own drinking cups on railway trains, the law prohibiting railway companies furnishing same. A sign also announces "$50 fine for spitting." A Kansas humorist has suggested a pocket "cuspidor" for the convenience of passengers.

A colored physician who called to treat a sick negro did not assist the patient and a white physician was called in.

"Did the colored doctor take your pulse and temperature?" asked the white doctor.

"I do not know," replied the sick man. "The only thing I have missed is my watch."

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR MAY No. 2.

TOPIC—Social Service (Evangelistic)

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Hear Your Country's Call,"
Brotherhood Hymns No. 44.
2. Scripture Reading, Isaiah 1:1-31.
3. Prayer for consecration of the individual.
3. Hymn or solo, "Somebody Knows,"
Brotherhood Hymns No. 9.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Individual Personal Evangelism.

- a. The Apostolic method was personal.
- b. What an organized band of personal workers can do in local evangelization.
- c. "A Revival Meeting Every Lord's Day."

Address: Local Church Evangelism.

- a. "Decision Seasons" vs. "Big Meetings."
- b. The Bible School as an Evangelistic force.
- c. An organized, perpetual, unceasing campaign for men.

Address: Inter-Church Evangelism.

- a. A more sympathetic inter-church relationship.
- b. Union evangelistic meetings.
- c. Can we have comity on the local as well as on the foreign?

Discussion: Resolved—That organized personal evangelism under the direction of the Evangelistic Committee and the Pastor is more apostolic than the popular "Revival Meeting."

Clincher: That our men's organization apart an evangelistic committee whose work shall be to lead the whole of the men in personal evangelism in a sane continuous effort.

IV.—Business.

- Roll-call.
- Minutes of last meeting.
- Reports.
- Unfinished Business.
- New Business.
- New members received.

V.—Social and Closing.

- Introduction of new members.
- Silver offering, Hymn, Benediction.

PROGRAM FOR JUNE

No. 1.

TOPIC—Christian Literature (The Bible).

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Day is dying in the West," No. 45.
2. Scripture Reading, I Tim. 6:3-5; II Tim. 3:16.
3. Prayer that we may know more of the Book.
4. Music—Quartette—"Cling to the Bible."

II.—Cultural.

Address: The Bible in the individual's life.

- a. Bible stories in the child's life—their influence.
- b. The Bible as a factor in character building in the adolescent period.
- c. The Bible's influence in old age and in times of adversity.
- d. The Bible an incomparable work.

Address: The Bible the religious interpretation of human experience, for instance—

- a. The religious interpretation of Abram's going west for the sake of his faith.
- b. The religious interpretation of a nation's leaving Egypt, a Land of plenty, for the sake of a faith.
- c. The religious interpretation of "The Temptation."

- d. The religious interpretation of "The Last Supper."

Address: The Bible In the Church.

- a. The Bible's place in the pulpit.
- b. Bible ideals for a church.
- c. The History of the Bible in the church.
- d. Present day Respect vs. Worship of the Bible.

Address: The Bible in Civilization.

- a. The Bible and the Roman Empire.
- b. The Bible and the Anglo-Saxtons.
- c. The Bible in the Sixteenth Century Reformation.
- d. The Bible on the Mission Fields today.

III.—Business.

- Roll-call.
- Minutes.
- Reports.
- Unfinished Business.
- New Business.
- New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

- Introduction of new members and visitors.
- Silver offering.
- Hymn, "Blest be the tie that binds."
- Benediction.

The Children's Congregation

A New Place for Men to Help in the Church

BY MRS. J. E. M'DANIELS, SECRETARY KANSAS
CHRISTIAN WOMAN'S BOARD OF MISSIONS.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following plan has been adopted by the Kansas State Board, and is in operation in a number of churches in the lower State. The Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ National Officers are striking hands in promoting this most feasible plan of saving the child and it is a pleasure to put before the readers of CHRISTIAN MEN this graphic account of the Children's congregation from the pen of the originator.

THE EDITOR.

On every hand is heard the query: "How can we win the people to church attendance?" The half-filled church has come to be the prevailing condition. We need not look far to find the cause.

At the close of the Bible School hour there is a general exodus from the House of God. The regular habits of the children, in leaving the church service, are developing a personal responsibility in the membership of the church of tomorrow. Adults of today are often unable to overcome this disregard to the church, engendered by the habits of their childhood, and we are already facing empty benches.

There is a marked and increasing absence of children from the regular church services. We have no longer hope that the American parent will compel the child to attend church service, and few children will do so from choice. It is a psychological impossibility to edify the philosopher and man of affairs, and, in the same sermon, to interest and instruct the child. We are reaping failure at both ends of the line when we attempt it.

Would it be well, even if it were possible, to have all the children remain in the church for the morning worship? With great numbers of children present would there not be an atmosphere of noisy restlessness, preventing the quiet reverence, the holy hush of communion and worship, so essential in the stress of the day?

The children must be taught to be still before God; they must be trained into devotion, but this can only be done successfully where the children are alone together and can be instructed in the way that child nature demands. There should be a church service for the children immediately following Bible School. Nearly all the children can be held in this service. They will stay from choice if the service is made interesting for them, and this is possible where there is a service for children only.

BIBLE SCHOOL NOT ENOUGH

The Bible School plans of the day are most excellent, and effective work is being done. But the Bible School cannot supply all the instruction that is needed, neither does it attempt to train the child in Christian activities. The Bible School is a Bible school. If it successfully accomplishes this important function it cannot give all the instruction in missionary work, and the training for Christian service that the child needs. We send our children to day-school five days each week, for six hours each day, through nine months in the year to fit them, in a secular way, for life, while one hour each week is all that 80 per cent of the children of the church now receive of instruction and training for a life of Christian service. It is not strange, with this neglect, and the disproportionate emphasis placed on secular education, that the age places small emphasis on the work of the church.

Can an hour be found when most of the children can be reached? Certainly it cannot be found on a week day. Obvious difficulties make this impossible. Neither can it be done on Sunday afternoon, for this is the only time in the whole of the week when the family can be together, and when there can be a short period of relaxation and rest. This afternoon hour has been tried for twenty-five years, and we have reached approximately but ten children in each two hundred enrolled in our Bible Schools. There are other causes for this limit in numbers, but the hour has been the major difficulty, in reaching the children and in securing superintendents and teachers.

The following plan has received the endorsement of both the Kansas Christian Missionary Society and the Kansas C. W. B. M. It is now being successfully used in a number of Kansas churches. A careful consideration of the plan is requested:

THE PURPOSE

1. To provide for the children a service of devotion and worship in which the latent capacities of the child-soul may be developed.

2. To provide for a fuller missionary instruction than is possible under any present plan.

3. To train the children into the habit of regular attendance at church services, into a just appreciation of the Lord's Supper, and into a sense of personal responsibility TO THE CHURCH.

4. To train the children to give regularly and systematically, to all the activities of the church, local, philanthropic and missionary. Their offerings to be equitably divided among the several Boards.

5. To train the children in leadership and church activity, providing opportunity for the leading of meetings, preparing of programs, and taking part in services; for committee work, and reports of various kinds; in local benevolences and Christian work; in the use of elementary parliamentary practice in connection with church work; in short, to train them for active work in the Endeavor Society, and all other departments of the church.

6. To provide all this at an hour when it will be possible to secure an adequate force of superintendents and helpers, and when the largest possible number of children can be brought together.

At last we have reached the day when we will no longer attempt to teach the boy of twelve and thirteen years of age with little girls of five and six years, nor eighth grade pupils, and those in their first year of high school, in the same class with their little brothers and sisters of primary grades. This is a psychological absurdity, and, with child nature what it is, a practical impossibility.

Children from six to nine years should constitute the "Primary Grade," from nine to twelve years the "Junior Grade," and those from twelve to fifteen years the "Intermediate Grade." In the Junior and Intermediate grades there must be the separation of boys' and girls' classes to secure the best results. The boys' classes should be in the hands of men who can understand the boy spirit and plan special features for both the regular class work and for week-day class meetings, or "club" meetings that have such a dominating power over the boy. Here the Bible School boys' class work and that of the Junior Congregation should be correlated for club work, "boy city" work, and other plans that will enable us to hold and direct, along right lines, the latent energies and capacities of the boys. Doubtless the "Boys' Committees" provided for under the Men and Religion Forward Movement will be able to render valuable assistance in developing this phase of the work.

The plan also contemplates a nursery provision for the children too small to be gathered in the regular classes. This will make it possible for all the mothers in the church to bring all their children, and to know that they will be carefully provided for while the mother can enjoy the church service. Thus, the "little tots" will not be disturbing the speaker and the audience.

Features of the Children's Service

A PERIOD OF WORSHIP

Here the ageless hymns of the church will be used, and the children taught to love and worship through them. The children of all the grades will be assembled together for this part of the service, their teachers being seated among them. Everything done should tend to create a quiet, devotional atmosphere. The Lord's Supper will be served to those who are members of the church. An elder and a deacon from the adult congregation will come into the children's service for this. These men of the church, entering with holy reverence and dignity to administer the communion, will, of itself, be a silent though potent lesson and influence on the boys and will tend to produce the quiet reverent atmosphere of which the children of today have far too little. Many children rarely ever see the Lord's Supper, and many who are members of the church rarely partake of it. A vital training is here being neglected. The serving of this sacred feast to those who are Christians will strongly suggest to the others the time when they, too, will partake of it.

A five-minute object lesson, or illustrated sermon, will be given, preferably by the pastor, who will in this way, meet with his children. He will doubtless be able to leave preliminary service of the adult congregation long enough for these few moments with the children, or, short talks may be given on the Communion, and other topics pertaining to the New Testament Church, by anyone competent to do so.

A Scripture lesson well selected, will be read responsively by the children, from their Bible, which the Bible School now requires them to bring. One of the older children should lead in this exercise.

The children must also be taught to pray. Among other methods of conducting the prayer service will be the concert prayers which will be committed to memory. These will be prayers of the Bible, compiled and taught to the children. To have such, as treasures stored up in the soul, is one of the richest legacies that can come to any man. Short, heart-felt, sentence prayers can also be won from the children under the proper atmosphere, but great care should be used in asking children to pray in public. "said" prayer is no prayer, and may tend toward hypocrisy.

For this second division of the service the classes should be separated, and each given a carefully prepared lesson adapted to the comprehension of each grade. A course of instruction is being prepared covering all the fields in which the several Missionary Boards of the church are working. The outline will also include some work on the history of missions and general missionary instruction. The thought is to educate the child for all the work of the church—local, benevolent, home and foreign.

To enrich the instruction, the several Missionary Boards will be asked to supply aids and helps on the work of their respective fields through pictures, maps, charts and traveling cases of curios and costumes. Stories and incidents will be freely used and biographical studies introduced in the proper grades.

ENDEAVOR
EOD.]

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor is the recruiting station for the church, and such the child's service should be for the C. E. organiza-

the training function is as important as teaching."

There can be no real impression without expression."

the child learns to do by doing."

struction is but half of education; to do is as important as to come to mv." The child must be trained for an e, Christian service. In this third period of the children's service the regular Endeavor that has not already been provided for the period of worship will be taken up. A resident, chosen from the intermediate e, will have charge. Committee reports will be given and unfinished or new business added to. (See Paragraph 5 under THE PLAN—What it Proposes.) at the close of the Endeavor period, if the congregation has not yet reached ad- vancement, one of the older children, previ- ously appointed, will review some missionary to, tell a story of his own selection from the Bible or the mission field, or conduct a Bible drill. This exercise can be discontinued at moment's notice, that the children may be adjourned with the adult congregation.

at the moving of classes, it is recommended wherever it can be done without disturb- ing the adult congregation, the children be led to march to music. There are many Sunday-school songs of excellent time and spirit that can be used in this way, and the children should often be allowed to sing as they march. This will bring them much pleas-

PROMOTIONS

Only three general grades are contemplated. In large or- ganizations it may soon be- come necessary to have a grade for each year. Where children in a given grade vary by two or three years in age, only the oldest and best developed will be prepared each year to advance to the next grade.

at all the grades the children will have the idea of promotion to the next grade kept con- stantly before them, with promotion into the senior congregation as the goal of all the years, when the church will with joy and ceremony welcome the boys and girls who, once each year, will be promoted to the regular church service. These young people will have the habit of regular attendance on the morning service, and they will already be trained along in of church activity and giving.

OFFERINGS

Children must be trained into generous ideals and habits of life. An object must be placed before the child that commends itself to the child's intelligence as worthy and right. The intellect reached, the sensibilities awakened by the altruistic spirit, the will is moved to action. It is a spiritual murder for the soul to be thrown upon itself when it should go forth in expression of Christian love. The gift is the expression of this love.

Plans whereby the child can earn his own gift, and places for legitimate sacrifice should be suggested, and the child led to know the joy of giving, ere years of selfishness and greed make this forever impossible.

The plan of the Junior Congregation pro- vides that while certain fields and lines of work are being studied, the children shall regu- larly bring their offerings for those fields. This will educate for intelligent giving, and the children so trained will not use missionary money to pay coal bills when they come to "run" the business of the church.

A Testimonial

BY C. A. FINCH, MINISTER, FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, TOPEKA, KANSAS.

On no account would we return to the old plan of conducting the children's meeting in the afternoon.

It was most difficult to secure workers under the old plan, but under the new we have ex- perience no difficulty in securing superintend- ents and teachers.

A big meeting for us under the old plan was twenty-five or thirty in attendance. Un- der the new plan our attendance is about sixty, often reaching eighty.

We sing when the church opening exercises are being conducted and there is no confusion. Communion and offerings are taken as at the adult church service, using the duplex system.

The teaching concerns all our missionary work, both home and foreign. We intend soon to have men competent to do so give the chil- dren five-minute addresses upon the local work, the New Testament Church and kindred lines, so that at the age of twelve to fifteen the chil- dren will come into the adult congregation, trained for service, and in no way conscious that church attendance is a thing foreign to the habits of childhood, which now obtains too frequently in our congregations, where after Bible School a general exodus from the House of God takes place.

I believe there are the greatest possibilities for the church in this new plan, and that in using it the church will grip the child as never before, approximating the influence that the Roman church has upon her youth, which among Protestants has been too long a matter of little moment. To my mind the plan of the Junior Congregation, coördinating with the senior, with all its helps, grades and instruc- tion, will prove the counter reformation of the Protestant Church saving the child from the inroads of a proselyting worldiness.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This church has a group of men meeting regularly, becoming efficient workers to help lead in moulding the child life to the congregation. These men are a part of the National Brotherhood Movement.

Conservation Day

CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine will be in the mails on Conservation Day, April 28th. Hundreds of our churches will observe the day. Thousands of interested men and boys will be gathered together for observance of a program—either the suggested program printed in the April number of Christian Men or some other that fits local conditions. We do not know of any day that should be written higher in the calendar of the Churches of Christ than Conservation Day. It is full of promise. It contains hope for the Churches of Christ, for without the co-operative interest of our men the church will not succeed. Some of our very best churches promise to observe the day. Others did not respond. We are grateful to those who joined with us in this our first Annual Conservation Day for Men and Boys. In the June number of Christian Men we hope to report results of the day.

If your church did not observe Sunday, April 28th, won't you kindly take the matter up with your minister and see if you cannot arrange for a Men and Boys' Day soon? Let us assure you in advance that you will find a pleasure in this observance altogether absent in other services of the church.

Plans and printed matter will be mailed free, upon application. Address the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Mo.

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

LESSON 2—MAY 12.

THE LAW OF LOVE.

TEXT—Luke 6:27-38.

But I say unto you that hear, Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, 28 and to them that curse you, pray for them that spitefully use you. 29 To him that smiteth thee on the one cheek offer also the other; and to him that taketh away thy cloak withhold not thy coat also. 30 Give to every one that asketh thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods ask them not again. 31 And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise. 32 And if ye love them that love you, what thank have ye? for even sinners love those that love them. 33 And if ye do good to them that do good to you, what thank have ye? for even sinners do the same. 34 And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? even sinners lend to sinners, to receive again as much. 35 But love your enemies and do them good, and ye shall never despairing; and your reward shall be great, and ye shall be sons of the Most High: for he is kind toward the unthankful and evil. 36 Be ye merciful, even as your Father is merciful. 37 And judge not, and ye shall not be judged: and condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: release, and ye shall be released: 38 give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, shall they give into your bosom. For with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

Romans 13:8-10.

8 We owe no man anything save to love one another: for he that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law. 9 For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet and if there be any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. 10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: love therefore is the fulfillment of the law.

GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 13:9.

9 For this Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet, and if there be any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

Having described in the two previous lessons the character and condition of the citizens of the Kingdom, Jesus proceeds to announce the great law that is to govern that Kingdom. It was a marvelous step in advance of anything known in the world. The law of Moses encouraged the practice of vengeance. "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life." It was the law of the feudist in the mountains of Kentucky and Tennessee. Heathen nations knew no higher law. Paul fitly describes their attitude in these words, "Living in malice and envy, hateful and hating one another." To this world of bitterness and strife, with its law of personal vengeance and individual redress, Jesus came declaring "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another even as I have loved you." In it He would quell all human passion and put the seal of His displeasure upon human revenge.

The Live Coal Treatment. Having refused to recognize in His Kingdom the old law of personal retaliation, He would not leave his followers defenseless. He simply puts into their hands a new and more effective instrument: "Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, bless them that curse you and pray for them that despitefully use you." Paul, in commenting on this principle as an effective way of handling an enemy, says in the Roman letter, "In so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head." Have you ever tried this "live-coal treatment?" If not, try it on the next man that threatens to wipe up the earth with you. It works. If only Christ's professed followers were to practice it, our congested law courts would take a vacation. That the most hardened men may be touched by kindness, is being demonstrated in our reformed penitentiaries. When Jean Valjean, in "Les Miserables," was caught for stealing the silverware from Bishop Bienvenu, and brought back, the good Bishop said: "But I gave you my silver candlesticks, also; why did you not take them along with your plates?" He forced them upon him, thus freeing the thief from the police, and bringing about Jean Valjean's conversion to the life of an honest man.

Is the Golden Rule Practicable? Someone asked a few years ago in a magazine article, "Is Christianity a failure?" To which came the prompt reply, "No, for it has never been tried yet." The answer was certainly applicable to that part of Christianity embodied in the Golden Rule. It so seldom finds a place in the practical affairs of life that when one attempts to fashion his life or to run his business along that line, he becomes famous. When a young manufacturer in Toledo posted the Golden Rule throughout his plant and announced that all business in that institution would be conducted on its basis, his name was changed by the vote of the American people from that of S. M. Jones to "Golden Rule" Jones. When a young preacher in Topeka built imaginary churches and industries and relationship on the practice of the Golden Rule, "In His Steps" found more readers than any book ever written except the Bible. The seething ferment of our industrial world today awaits the practical application of the Golden Rule in a large way. Written over every factory, every bank, every institution, every home, and in the practical purpose of every business man and every toiler, every husband and every wife, it would mark the end of injustice and strife. "Only the Golden Rule," wrote Frances E. Willard, "will bring in the Age of Gold."

The Reward of Kindness. You are perhaps thinking about the base ingratitude of the last man you befriended, and are ready to ask whether it pays to be kind. No, not if you have been dispensing your kindness on a commercial basis, so much kindness bestowed, so much kindness to be paid back with liberal interest. Any shrewd, calculating sinner is ready to conduct operations on that basis. The kindest man in my ward the past winter was a saloon-keeper, who saw that many needy families were cared for, but he is already the nominee for alderman and knows where the votes are coming from to put him in a position to protect his interests and that of his fellow publicans. Jesus would put kindness upon a higher plane and link it with the love that led to His sacrifice for a world. Then "Your reward shall be great: ye shall be sons of the Most High." To the answer of a good conscience and the assurance of the Father's approval, that is reward enough. It is "Good measure, pressed down, shaken together and running over." It is to be kind, merciful and charitable.

A Debt We Always Owe. Paul was an honest man, working with his hands to pay his daily expenses, and to clear his mind from the imputation of false motives. But there was one debt he was never able to get himself of. Whichever way he turned, he felt it like a stinging lash driving him to greater activity. "I am in debt to the Greeks, I am in debt to the Barbarians, I am in debt to the wise, I am in debt to the foolish." Paul's life was a treasure entrusted to him for the benefit of the world, and until the last man received his share the debt remained. It was this debt he had in mind, our debt as well as his, when he said, "Owe no man anything, save to one another." The debt is still unpaid. Are we doing our best to meet the payment when they fall due? Have we met our annual obligation to those in pagan lands who are waiting their share of the Father's blessing? Are we meeting the daily payments of love to our families and neighbors? Are we paying adequate installments on the debt we owe our country to save it from the inroads of sin? So long as we are doing our best in loving service to save the world the spirit of the law of obligation is fulfilled.

The Greatest Thing in the World. A quarter of a century ago Henry Drummond thrilled the world with his beautiful treatise on love, under the title "The Greatest Thing in the World." Paul here sums it up as the embodiment of the whole moral code. "It is love," he said, "summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." When real Christian love enters a man's heart it frees him from all other law restraints. He does not kill, not because the law or statute books forbids, but because the law of love forbids. He does not steal, not because of statutory enactments forbidding theft, but because he cannot love his neighbor as himself and wrong him. As eternal as the rock upon which the hills rest is the principle, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." The great vital principle, therefore, that runs through this lesson, gospel and epistle, is that which we reflect in our lives and conduct that which is the essence of duty—that which found its finest expression in the ministry of our Lord Jesus love. The millennial dawn of peace and happiness awaits its expression.

Arrow Points. It is one thing to endorse a great truth like Christ's law of love, but it is quite another thing to put it into practice.

ing with real Twentieth Century people.
 7. * * * The man who is always guard-his own rights is pretty sure to have oc-on to defend them in person. The man is looking after the rights of others will defenders in abundance. V. 29. * * *
 the Golden Rule with your help, your neighbor, your grocer, your tenant, your employer, your brother in the church—everywhere.
 never fails to work. V. 31. * * * Any skinflint would lend to his needy neighbors

if he was sure that in the end he would get the best of the bargain. V. 34. * * * The nearest approach to divinity this generation will ever see is the big-hearted man or woman whose human love makes them sensitive to every human need and who are always on the spot when first aid is to be rendered. V. 35.
 * * * Harsh, un-Christian judgment of church members has put more barriers in the way of the progress of the church than all the outside enemies combined. V. 37.

LESSON 3—MAY 19.

THE OLD LAW AND THE NEW LIFE.

TEXT—Matthew 5:17-26.

Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfill. 18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law nor the prophets. All things shall be accomplished. 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. 20
 For I say unto you, that except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven. 21 Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment:
 but I say unto you, that every one who is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council: and whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of the hell of fire. 23 If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath something against thee, 24 leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift. 25 Agree with thine adversary quickly, while thou art with him in the way; lest the adversary deliver thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and thou be cast into prison. 26 Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou have paid the last farthing.

fulfilled. Jesus in no part of the Sermon on the Mount, condemns the law. It is the violation of its spirit, and the addition of unauthorized traditions that He censures. As a preacher He deals reverently but fearlessly with the matter. He brushes aside the encumbering traditions with an authority that filled His hearers with astonishment and revealed to them the heart and purpose of God as expressed in His Word.

The Fulfillment of the Law. Jesus was no iconoclast, pulling down old institutions and leaving mankind to find its own way of escape from the crumbling debris. "I came not to destroy, but to fulfill." His was to be a constructive ministry. His mission was to round out and complete the old dispensation that it might give place to the new. He fulfilled the moral law in His own spotless character.
 He fulfilled the ceremonial law by His death on the cross. He fulfilled the prophets by doing all that they had foretold the Messiah would do. He fulfilled the law as the noonday fulfills the dawn, as summer fulfills spring, as manhood fulfills childhood, as the butterfly fulfills the caterpillar. When His ministry was ended and He had drunk the cup of bitterness to its dregs, He could say, "It is finished." Hence Paul was able to declare, "Ye are not under the law but under grace."

The Right Kind of Righteousness. In no realm is spurious coin more plentiful than in religion. Instead of disproving the genuine, these counterfeits show that the genuine is very valuable or it would not be worth counterfeiting. There was a type of religiousness in Jesus' time that always filled Him with righteous indignation. It has survived His severest condemnation under the title of phar-isaism. "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees." Who were these people against whom Jesus raised His warning voice? They were the very cream of society, the models of respectability, the pillars of the church, the lights of the synagogue. What was the ground of their offending? Their righteousness was mere conformity to custom, the strict observance of the minutest detail of good religious

GOLDEN TEXT—Romans 13:8.

Owe no man anything, save to love one another: for he that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law.

Jesus was a law-abiding citizen. Even when He felt that the application of the law was unjust as in the demand for tribute (Mat. 17: 24-27) He counseled submission. He evidently did not have the difficulty with the Pentateuch that modern critics have. The Law and the prophets were always, to Him, the words of His Father, and as such not to be destroyed, but every precept and every promise had been form, an outward show of piety that had no counterpart in purpose or conduct. The kind of righteousness that Jesus commends is that which springs from a heart of faith and loyalty and love. How about ourselves? Is our church-going, and praying and Bible-reading the spontaneous expression of a heart in love with God and humanity; or is it a mere trick by which we try to deceive our neighbors into thinking we are good? Lord, help us to live the right kind of righteousness.

Murder in the First Degree. In our criminal courts this phrase is used to express the final act of a wilful crime. Jesus would use it to express the inception of that crime in the human heart. "I say unto you whosoever is angry with his brother." The first degree is the murderous purpose in the human heart born of anger. The act itself is the last degree. Many a man is behind prison bars today or sleeping in a dishonored grave, because of an ungovernable temper. Jesus would not only condemn the act, but the hate that led to the act. The hate that leads to murder is essentially murder. Back of all forms of crime is unbrotherliness. By His higher code unbrotherliness is a crime. Evil speaking is murder. Unjust thoughts underlie the principles of manslaughter. The real question is about the inner life. You do not kill, but do you harbor murderous thoughts? You do not violate the open law of human rights, but do you whisper unkind words that murder the reputation and wound the heart? To escape the burning judgment of these stern words of Jesus, we must carefully guard the fountain and keep it sweet.

Friendship Before Worship. "First be reconciled to thy brother and then come and offer thy gift." That would be a good motto to hang over some communion tables. The remembrance of the sufferings of our Lord occupies about the same place of importance in our service today that the sacrifice and the altar did in the Jewish worship then. If in the latter it was impossible to offer acceptable worship with the consciousness of an unforgiven wrong in the heart, how about unbrotherliness at the Lord's table now? Here comes a man who has wronged his brother in a sharp trade during the week, or a woman whose un-Christian gossip has left a bitter sting in some heart. Together the wronged and wrongdoers sit at the family feast of God. What is Jesus' message for them that day? "If thou rememberest that thy brother or sister has aught against thee, go over to the wronged members of the family of God, acknowledge the un-Christian act or word and when the old friendship is restored then together sit at My table as happy worshippers." If this application were to be made there would in some of our churches be such shuffling about as the loaf was being broken and there would, as a result, be revivals the work of grace in many barren fields.

The Danger of Putting Off. There is a trait that is more characteristically human than that of procrastination. We put off payment of the gas bill till the last day of grace. We delay visiting the dentist till an unpleasant reminder impels us. We neglect fixing a lock on the barn until the horse is stolen. We put off the preparation of the lesson until the first bell has rung calling us to Bible school. And we even neglect so important a matter as soul-preparation for eternity. To the world of procrastinators Jesus utters a warning: "Agree with thine adversary quickly while thou art with him in the way." It is always better to settle promptly and escape court proceedings and conviction, and ultimate payment, in the matter of personal debts. Why not apply the same rule to the debt we owe God? With few exceptions intelligent men recognize their accountability to God and express their intention of some time enlisting in his service, but not yet. Paul's message is such is, "Behold now is the acceptable time; behold, now is the day of salvation." Jesus urged immediate preparation, "For," said he, "we know neither the day nor the hour when the son of man cometh." George MacDonald's motto was, "Do at once what you must do one day."

Arrow Points. Since Jesus put the stamp of his approval upon the law and the prophets and went at the task of fulfilling them, we need not be disturbed at the attitude of modern critics. V. 17. * * * In the light of Jesus' word, it is a terrible responsibility a man takes who would undermine our faith in any part of the old Book. V. 19. * * * It is always right to do right, but there is also a right way of doing it and that is to make the life harmonize with the profession and both agree with the word of God. V. 20. * * * There are more ways of killing a man than by a shot from a thirty-two caliber shooter. Many a man has been murdered, a soul if not in body, by the hateful epithets of an unbrotherly church man. V. 22. * * * The real question involved in this lesson is, "Is your religion alive?" Is it a vital thing dominating your life, regulating your conduct, mastering your passions and holding you close to God?

LESSON 4—MAY 26.

TRUTHFULNESS.

TEXT—Matt. 5:33-37.

33 Again, ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths: 34 but I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by the heaven, for it is the throne of God; 35 nor by the earth, for it is the footstool of his feet; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. 36 Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, for thou canst not make one hair white or black. 37 But let your yea be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay; and whatsoever is more than these is of the evil one.

Jas. 3:1-12.

Be not many of you teachers, my brethren, knowing that we shall receive heavier judgment. 2 For in many things we all stumble. If any stumbleth not in word, the same is a perfect man, able to bridle the whole body also. 3 Now if we put the horses' bridles in their mouths that they may obey us, we shall curb about their whole body also. 4 Behold, ships also, though they are so great and are driven by rough winds, are yet turned about by a very small rudder, whither the impulse of the steersman willeth. 5 So the tongue also is a little member, and boasteth of great things. Behold, how much wood is kindled by how small a fire! 6 And the tongue is a fire: the world of iniquity among our members is the tongue which defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the wheel of life, and is set on fire by hell. 7 For every kind of beasts and birds, of creeping things and things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed by mankind: 8 but the tongue can no man tame; it is a restless evil, it is full of deadly poison. 9 Therewith bless we the Lord our Father; and therewith curse we men, who are made after the likeness of God: 10 out of the same mouth cometh forth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be. 11 Doth the fountain send forth from the same opening sweet water and bitter? 12 Can a fig tree, my brethren, yield olives, or a vine figs? neither can salt water yield sweet.

Jas. 5:12.

But above all things, my brethren, swear neither by the heaven, nor by the earth, nor by any other oath: but let your yea be yea, and your nay, nay; that ye fall not under judgment.

GOLDEN TEXT—Eph. 4:25.

Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak truth each one with his neighbor: for we are members one of another.

How simple and practical are the words which Jesus spoke. The commentaries of ten years ago are out of date, but the words of Jesus, spoken two thousand years ago, are fragrant with the breath of a spring morning. They breathe the atmosphere of today. They speak the language of the now. They emphasize the duty of the hour. Purity, sincerity, truthfulness, honesty, simplicity—these are the elemental qualities out of which the Christ-like character is formed. What more practical in this age of profanity, perjury, deceit, trickery and hypocrisy than these simple words from the lips of Jesus, applied and illustrated by one of His most loyal disciples, James? Out of the study of this lesson we shall have been helped to purer speech, and greater reverence for the truth, the hour will have been well spent.

The Great American Sin. So common is profanity on our streets that it has been called the great American sin. Looked at from any point of view it is the most inexcusable sin. Sins of appetite and passion hold out, as inducements, physical gratification. But the devil has nothing in the way of recompense to offer to the man who swears. In extenuation of this vice it is urged that it is merely a habit, that the user of profane language means nothing by it. The very admission brands the swearer as utterly lacking in character and reverence. But Jesus' rule, "Swear not at all," has a broader application than the sin of taking the name of God in vain. It applies as well to those meaningless epithets with which we burden our speech. That we may not mistake His meaning, He has given four examples. The common phrase, "by heaven," was condemned because it was treating with contempt the throne of God. The custom of swearing "By the earth," or "By Jerusalem," or even by one's own head was condemned on the same ground that it brought into contempt the most marvelous works of God's creation. Modern inventive genius has added to the above scores of slangy phrases that to say the least mar the beauty of our good old English, detract from the effectiveness of utterance, and lower the standing of the user in the estimation of really refined Christian people.

Simplicity of Speech. While the great American sin may be profanity, akin to it and quite as distinctively American, is extravagance of speech. We talk in the superlative. The weather was not bad, but perfectly terrible. The day was not good, but perfectly splendid. We exhaust the use of adjectives in expressing our likes and dislikes. Everything is the best or the worst. The disposition creeps into our church reports, and our Bible school reports and into our estimation of sermons and movements. It would be well if we would more nearly heed the admonition of Jesus. "Let your speech be, Yea, yea; nay, nay; and whatsoever is more than these is of the evil one." If we were to eliminate the bragging and the bombast there would not be much left in some people's vocabularies. But there would be a degree of reliance in the utterance and of self-respect in the speakers that would be refreshing. As Philips Brooks puts it: "If we seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, we shall get rid of the exaggeration and false conventionalities and trivialities of life, while at the same time our souls will be filled with a great peace and power."

The Measure of a Perfect Man. James was the practical apostle. He keeps his feet upon the ground and deals with the everyday weaknesses of men about him. He measures them by the difficulty of the task performed. It is doubtless on this basis that he declares, "If any stumbleth not in word the same is a perfect man." It is not because he ignores the importance of deeds that he makes the control of the tongue the measure of human perfection, but because the man who has enough self-control to regulate his speech is "able also to bridle his whole body." No imperfection of Christian men and women works greater harm than the misuse of the tongue. It will catch up an unfounded rumor and circulate and magnify it until a reputation is blasted and the growth of the church interrupted. It will give utterance to some biting criticism that wounds a fellow member and shipwrecks a faith. The type of perfection most needed for the peace and prosperity of Zion is that which will safeguard the church against the un-Christian use of the tongue.

The Unruly Member. "But the tongue can no man tame." How can the tongue be brought under control? The difficulty of the task is strikingly set forth by James. The mastery of the human mind is recognized. In the animal creation its dominion is supreme. The most ferocious beasts have been made to do man's bidding. Shall we understand from James that there is no power that can bring the tongue into subjection? Nothing is further from the teaching of this epistle as a whole. Faith and prayer are suggested as the unfailing remedy for human imperfections. What man cannot do by himself, with the help of God he can do. Since "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh," the control of the tongue must be by the way of a regenerated life. With the love of Christ in the heart, the tongue ceases to be "a fire, the world of iniquity," and becomes an instrument blessed of God in sounding His praise throughout the world, a fountain of "sweet water" bringing refreshing to earth's weary, discouraged multitudes. Thank God for tongues that, by His grace, have been tamed and that are today bearing the message of His love everywhere.

Speaking the Truth. The question is often propounded, "Is a lie ever justifiable?" From the Scriptural viewpoint the Golden Rule should settle the question. In it Paul says "Putting away falsehood, speak ye the truth each one with his neighbor." There are exceptions mentioned. While the Bible represents Abraham as lying, David as practicing deceit, and others as untruthful, it now justifies their conduct. The rule stated by Jesus, repeated by James, and emphasized by Paul is "Let your yea be yea, and your nay be nay." Stick to the truth. There is no person whose company we shun like the habitual liar. There is no virtue that you need implant in the heart of your boy more gently than truthfulness. With a life that is sincere and open and honest, there will be little temptation to speak falsely.

Arrow Points. A man whose word is as good as his oath is a man whose oath will sit lightly on his conscience. V. 33. * * * The cheapest slave that follows in Satan's train is the man who uses profane language. V. 34. * * * The habit of substitutionary swearing, the use of polite swear-words that do not involve the name of Deity, to say the least corrupts good language and cultivates a spirit of irreverence that is reprehensible. V. 36. * * * After all, the strongest way of putting any cause is in the language of plain, unvarnished truth. V. 37. * * * Oh, that somebody had the power to control the wagging tongues in our congregations that are enkindling and fanning the flames of strife and suspicion. V. 6. * * * The tongue that sings with fervor on Sunday, prays with unction at the mid-week service and swears at the hired man the rest of the week has never contributed anything to the work of human uplift. V. 9. * * * The man who has established a reputation for truthfulness in the community has an asset that is invaluable.

LESSON 1—JUNE 2.

HYPOCRISY AND SINCERITY.

TEXT—Matt. 6:1-18.

1 Take heed that ye do not your righteousness before men, to be seen of them: else ye have no reward with your Father who is in heaven.

2 When therefore thou doest alms, sound not a trumpet before thee, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, that they may have glory of men. Verily I say unto you. They have received their reward. 3 But when thou doest alms, let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth: 4 that thine alms may be in secret: and thy Father who seeth in secret shall recompense thee.

5 And when ye pray, ye shall not be as the hypocrites: for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have received their reward. 6 But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thine inner chamber, and having shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret and thy Father who seeth in secret shall recompense thee. 7 And in praying use not vain repetitions, as the Gentiles do: for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking. 8 Be not therefore like unto them: for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask him. 9 After this manner therefore pray ye: Our Father who art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. 10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven so on earth. 11 Give us this day our daily bread. 12 And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. 13 And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one. 14 For if ye forgive men their trespasses your heavenly Father will also forgive you. 15 But if ye forgive not men their trespasses neither will your Father forgive your sins. Moreover when ye fast, be not, as the hypocrites, of a sad countenance: for they disfigure their faces, that they may be seen of men fasting. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward. 17 But thou, when thou fastest, anoint thy head, and wash thy face, that thou be not seen of men to fast, but thy Father who is in secret: and thy Father who seeth in secret, shall recompense thee.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 6:1.

Take heed that ye do not your righteousness before men, to be seen of them: else ye shall have no reward with your Father who is in heaven.

in the text of this lesson, deals with the phases of religious expression held in esteem in His day—alms-giving, prayer, fasting. Each of these, though worthy in itself, was capable of abuse. Indeed, the pharisaic spirit which dominated Jewish worship, they were abused. In expressions of deep religious devotion were made devices by ambitious devotees securing popular applause. Each was permeated with a view to winning "the praise of men." It was to correct this evil, and point to the shallow pretense of these self-constituted religious leaders, that Jesus, in this discourse seeks to separate the act from the motive, holding the latter up to the scorn of right-thinking people.

That Bless the Giver. The religion Jesus was to be a religion of giving. He, and following His example we are to give time, talent, money, anything we have to help and bless our fellow men. But there is a right and a wrong way of giving. He said, "that ye do not your righteousness before men to be seen of them." Such men had their reward in the praise of men, but failed to bring the richer blessing of the approval. Are we not in danger today of violating the spirit of Jesus' teaching in the matter of giving? Modern money-raising, sometimes, border very near the line that Jesus here condemns. The blustering banter with which money is wrung from unwilling givers may help pay the debt, but hardly claim the reward of the Father in heaven. The "I-will-give-fifty-dollars-if-you-will-give-fifty-dollars" proposition may bring a hundred dollars to a much needed cause, but it will hardly lift one above the class which Paul speaks, when he says, "Though I should give all my goods to feed the poor, and though I should give my body to be burned, and have glory, it profiteth me nothing." On the other hand, Jesus' admonition, "Let not thy right hand know what thy right hand doeth," is not made a mere cloak to cover a world of selfishness. What does Jesus mean? He would have us give, give liberally, but do it secretly, unostentatiously, because we love the church, and our fellow men, and desire to do all in our power to aid in establishing the rule of His Kingdom. Such giving is sure to bless the giver.

Prayers That Miss the Throne. The principle which Jesus applies to giving is also applicable to prayer. There is a right and a wrong way to pray. Many prayers are mere parrot talk; "empty repetition." To this class belong the prayer-wheel of the Tibetan, the bead-counting of the Catholic, and the mere perfunctory prayer-saying often heard in Protestant worship. A prayer made to be heard of men reaches its intended goal, but misses the throne of God. I do not understand this to forbid public prayers, or long prayers, or even the repetition of a request. Jesus prayed in the synagogue as well as in the solitary place. He spent all night in prayer. He asked again and again that the bitter cup be removed. What Jesus condemned was the ostentatious who prayed that they might be seen of men, the superstitious, who through the meaningless routine of "vain repetition" sought to charm away evil and woo favor. Prayer, to be acceptable, must be the sincere expression of the desire of a believing heart. Of such prayer it may still be said, "More things are wrought by prayer than man e'er dreamed of."

Comrades of the Quiet Hour. Today hundreds of thousands of young people, unknown to each other, far separated over God's world, are, nevertheless, bound together in their common devotion as comrades of the quiet hour. They are trying to carry out in spirit the Master's injunction, "Having shut the door pray to thy Father which is in secret." After all our nearest approach to God is when we are alone. Embarrassment, or distracting environment, may hinder us from participating in public prayer. But in the quiet of "the inner chamber" the heart may pour out its real desire to God. Why not a Brotherhood Bible class quiet hour? If each were praying for the other in the early morning watch, what an impetus to consecrated service it would give.

The Universal Prayer. We have not yet fathomed the depth of that beautiful prayer the Lord taught His disciples. It is so lofty and so inclusive, so personal and so social, so present and so eternal, so aggressive and so submissive, that it will always express the height and depth and length and breadth of human desire. We are just coming to realize the social purport of that prayer, and through it to learn the social ideals of Jesus' ministry. Have you noticed that all the pronouns are in the plural? It is not my Father, but our Father, my brother's as well as mine. It is not daily bread for me alone that I am to pray, but for us. My brother man as well as myself. It is not personal forgiveness I am to ask, but the forgiveness of others, even those who have trespassed against me. It is not that my own pathway may be guarded from temptation, but that occasion of stumbling be removed from the way others are to tread.

No man can pray that prayer and be anti-missionary or even omissionary. No one can pray it and leave the hungry unprovided for. No one can really pray as Jesus taught His disciples and cherish an unforgiving spirit. Until the kingdom comes in universal sway, until the will of God is recognized by all and the rule of heaven has supremacy on earth, we may continue daily to pray that prayer, provided we pray it and not merely say it.

The Religion of Good Cheer. The religion of Jesus was to be always and everywhere the religion of sunshine. "Sad countenances and disfigured faces" could not be made to fit into His heart-cheering hope-inspiring, joy-awakening evangel. His was never intended to be a long-faced religion. Even when sorrow for sin, or some personal or national calamity would make fasting the natural expression of one's feeling, the Christian's unshaken confidence in God's promises would shine forth in a radiant face. Fasting may sometimes serve a purpose in self-discipline, but the sincere disciple will not parade it as a sign of religious superiority. Whether give or pray or fast, the same law of unostentatious service holds.

Arrow Points. A religion, in whatever it expresses itself, that only does parade can never wrest this world or any part from Satan's dominion. V. 1. * * * men are so conscientious in their effort keeping their left hand from knowing what their right hand does that they do not. V. 3. * * * Many years ago a noted man was reported to have made the most eloquent prayer ever delivered to a Boston audience received his reward in newspaper notice. V. 5. * * * The man who lives the words of the Lord's prayer in his daily life will find his path radiant with the atmosphere of heaven. V. 10. * * * The man who says "forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," and then goes on hating his neighbor has done his best to close and lock the door of divine pardon. V. 12. * * * No man can pray the Lord's prayer and not expect help God remove the stumbling block that may lead to another's downfall.

CHILDREN'S DAY

For Foreign Missions

FIRST SUNDAY IN JUNE

Supplies on Request

Brotherhoods and Men's Classes can help plan, and make the day the BEST EVER.

Read A. McLean's article in this number of Christian Men, then write

F. M. RAINS

Box 884

CINCINNATI, OHIO

CHRISTIAN MEN

A Monthly Publication, Being the Official Organ of
THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

E. E. ELLIOTT, Editor

FRANK LAUDER, Circulation Manager

THE GENERAL BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

EXECUTIVE BOARD

OFFICERS

A. LONG, President	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.	T. S. RIDGE, Rec. Sec'y.	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
A. AYMAKER, Vice-President	-	Wichita, Kan.	F. J. BANNISTER, Treas.	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.

DIRECTORS

W. CRAFTON	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.	R. A. DOAN	- - - - -	Nelsonville, Ohio
B. G. FRANK	- - - - -	Liberty, Mo.	D. P. GRIBBEN	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
M. NASE	- - - - -	Portland, Oregon	C. M. CHILTON	- - - - -	St. Joseph, Mo.
W. PALMER CLARKSON	- - - - -	St. Louis, Mo.

NOTE—The Officers and Directors together constitute the Executive Board

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, Kansas City, Mo.

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1909, at the post office at Kansas City, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879.
Description—Single, 50 cents per annum, in advance; clubs of 10 or more, 35 cents per annum; 20 or more, 25 cents per annum.
e. Ten or more copies to one address to be paid for quarterly—in advance. Canadian postage, add 12 cents. Foreign, add n. Make remittances payable to order of Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Address 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, ou gazines will be discontinued at the time of expiration unless renewed within thirty days. Sample copies, when available, will nt e. lvertising rates upon application.

ur 7.

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, JUNE, 1912

Number 6

A PERSONAL WORD

Do you ever an editor? Of course very likely you would not be in CHRISTIAN MEN so carefully.
editor can look at the opening lines, bit in the middle and glance hurlyt the closing page and toss a mag-e into the discard with a feeling in hort that he has read it. But that what I started to write about. Your ors in a serious predicament, a sit-or that confronts him every month at this time is here again. It is in ic to the matter offered for this e of CHRISTIAN MEN. When we tl desk for a month's campaign in Est, we had one issue of the paper h press and another issue ready for typesetter. That is what has caused hi flurry in the editorial office. Duron absence, our brethren about the at have been busy—very busy. We found, upon our return, so many photographs of Men's Classes and Brotherhood groups and stirring accounts of achievement that we have had to recast our entire paper for June, and the whittling of the copy to fit our space has been anything but a "rosy" task. We have done our best. We have selected this article for its peculiar merit, and abandoned that one as untimely, only again to come back to the original article and place it in line for publication. Much has been crowded out. We have many fine articles in type that ought to see the light. We have thought you will be expecting us to tell about our Eastern journey, hence we have not disappointed you in that. Of course, you will be expecting a "captain of industry" article, and F. M. Rains has sent us a most illuminating appreciation of J. H. Fillmore that you will want to read. The Christian Congress held in New York is a current event that you will be tremendously interested in. So also you will want to know what was done on Conservation Day, April 28th, promoted by this movement. Then you want something about Boys, as we advised you a month ago we would devote this number largely to the matter of boy camps and outdoor life. Brethren, here it is. It is not the best magazine in the world—far from it—it never quite comes up to our own expectations, but we hope you will like what it contains even though you yourself are disappointed that your own favorite class or group is not told about. There is much that we might say to you as one of our readers that would be interesting and profitable, such as the results of pledges to the R. A. Long tour, our summer plans, the Louisville convention, etc., etc., ad finem, but we will have to reserve that and more for our next and succeeding issues. We are still doing business at the old stand, if anything, a little more so. We expect to be seen, if not heard, at some of our state conventions this summer, if not all of them, and when we go in our special train to Louisville we want you to be one of our passengers, and you may be sure of a good time. If you don't go with us, you will go with some other "special," and we will see you there.

Changing the subject, I want you to read a letter that lay on my desk when it returned last week.

A Letter From a Friend

DAYTON, OHIO, April 19, 1911

MR. E. E. ELLIOTT,
Kansas City, Missouri.

DEAR BROTHER ELLIOTT: Your letter a month ago was pigeon-holed during our meetings and has just been brought to me. I feel that the efforts put forth from the Kansas City office in the shape of secret literature, magazines, as well as by personal letters, has had a far-reaching effect on the development of the male life of our churches.

It does not seem to show to advantage the Brotherhood organization, but you know with your large expenditure of money and still larger expenditure of vitality, the results wrought mightily in the life of the churches is, indeed, very patent to me. The reason there are not more affiliated Brotherhoods is likewise easy for me to understand; the churches have many leaders among men. The few leaders they have are occupied in the affairs of the official board and the Bible school.

I feel that you are on the right basis and if you can arrange to support the Brotherhood and other necessary expenses, I feel that the future holds large things for you in the development in the life and activity of the churches of our churches.

Our own organization is doing fairly well. It was with some effort that I brought about affiliation with the Brotherhood movement. Some years past they have had a Men's League here, and this has aided in building up church work and for the social pastime of men. It has been hard to make them understand their obligation in affiliating and paying support of the general work. Nevertheless we have tried to impress this on their minds and you shall hear from us along that line occasionally.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN P. SAUNDERS
Miner

The Christian Conservation Congress

A Notable Gathering of Big Men

BY WILLIAM T. ELLIS, CHAIRMAN OF PRESS COMMITTEE.

CONSCIOUSNESS
PED
If anything was needed to impart a deep note of seriousness to the Christian Conservation Congress, which met in Carnegie Hall, New York, April 19th—the Titanic disaster would have supplied it. The solemnity which all the world because of this tragedy was intensifying for the delegates to the congress by their consciousness that in their representative capacity they were concerned with the affairs of two worlds: the social life that now is, and the life beyond, which stalks so close to the life that now is. In this spirit it was inevitable that the great issues of humanity and eternity would be faced.

There was an oft-expressed and all-pervading sense that the present is a time of crisis in this Western world, and indeed throughout the whole earth. The industrial and commercial, and social and political and religious problems that teem about our day were driven home one after another to the delegates, but always with the assurance that the last word for our civilization remains with the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

THE GATHERING OF
THE MEN
The congress was a gathering of statesmen.

The quality was higher than the enthusiastic friends of the congress had expected. Most of the men were laymen, and it would be no mistake to apply the adjective “leading” to them. An extraordinary proportion of the religious leadership of America could be found in the congress sessions at Carnegie Hall.

Attendance was less than had been anticipated, the enrollment being 1,338, representing every state except eleven.

Ten Canadian communities were registered, as well as eight foreign countries.

BADGES?
NO!

The common concomitants of conventions, such as badges and buttons and noisy effervescing enthusiasm, were totally lacking. This gathering was on a different plane. The men revealed by their very attitude toward the platform an unwonted seriousness and determination. They were ready for the strongest utterances of the strongest men. The most unexpected deliverances did not faze them. That it is the business of the church to face fearlessly all the new problems of our complex day, and to grapple with them to a solution was a note that sounded throughout. Withal, the delegates were splendidly loyal to the old church. They spoke as churchmen, and they postulated the church as the agency and the force that is to do the work which the Twentieth century demands.

M. & R. F. M.
NO MORE

In somewhat spectacular evidence of the faith of Men and Religion in the church and her sufficiency, the committee of ninety-seven of the Men and Religion Forward Movement formally ended its own existence at this congress. There is today no such thing as the Men and Religion Forward Movement, spelled in capital letters. The organization has bequeathed a program of definite work to the denominational Brotherhoods, which these are taking up. It has done the same for the local congregation. There was a manifest stirring to self-examination of existing organizations, and a questioning as to their real efficiency. To have imposed the sense of emergency upon the general agencies of all the churches was itself a considerable achievement. An agreement has been made for an annual conference of the officials of the Brotherhoods, of the International Sunday-School Association, of the Laymen's Movement, of the International Young Men's Christian Association, etc. The word went out from these bodies that, so far as in them lies, they will carry into practice the lessons of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

TANGIBLE RESULTS

Of the tangible results of the congress, perhaps the creation of a body of literature upon the relation of church and press was the most important. An entire session was devoted to Christian publicity, and out of this has come to the determination of these representatives of the church to prosecute steadfastly this new form of service. We may look forward to hearing in all our ministers' meetings and denominational gatherings and men's conventions the discussion of the subject of how the church may utilize the press in serving the world. A national press bureau, representing all the churches, to deal with the daily newspapers as a whole, was suggested by the commission on publicity, and its realization will probably be only matter of months. Dr. Talcott Williams and Bishop E. E. Hoss were the formally announced speakers for this session, but there were numerous participants and keen interest.

THE RELIGIOUS PRESS

The place of the religious press in the economy of the churches was stated in unmistakable terms. Instead of turning attention away from the church papers, in favor of the daily press, this commission has made it appear as a clear duty of the laymen and of the denominations to take hold of the problem of the religious press, bringing home to every Christian family its real need of a church paper. The recommendations are embodied in the report which was in the hands of the delegates, and which, with six other volumes, is to be issued by the Association Press in the near future. An organization of the editors of the religious press was formed, with Nolan Rice Best, of The Continent, chairman.

These commission reports, which convey the themes of Social Service, Evangelism, Christian Unity, Publicity, Missions, Boys' Work, Bible Study and Rural Church, afford a new body of expert literature for pastors and laymen in their work. The report on Christian Unity was called the most advanced document on this theme that has as yet been issued by any responsible body.

THE SPEAKERS To name the speakers of the Congress would be impracticable in this space. The profoundest impression was made by Jane Addams, of Chicago, in her statement of the social evil as a task for the church.

J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe, was the foremost man among the speakers, his address with Mr. Bryan on the opening night, "Christianity and Governments," even surpassing the rhetorical power of that distinguished publicist. On the occasion of the memorial meeting to William T. Stead, at the time when the great Britisher was to have addressed the Congress, Mr. MacDonald made another address which his friends counted the greatest of his life. His plea for peace was put more forcibly than his Canadian friend that Stead himself could have put it. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis reached a very high level in interpreting Mr. Stead's character and work.

Ex-Governor Northern, of Atlanta, made a very notable contribution to the race question in the afternoon when he spoke with Booker T. Washington and Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson. The last named speaking on temperance, were John Mitchell and E. A. Steiner, an Madden, Gipsy Smith, Robert E. ; Wilfred T. Grenfell, Ira Land- Samuel B. Capen, Nehemiah Boyn- Bishop Hendrix, Fred E. Tasker and James E. Freeman also made really le addresses, if a selection from the ultude may be permitted.

WETT'S
RON
The closing sermon by Rev. J. H. Jowett, D.D., was the real climax of the press. His text was, "Thy Kingdom or." He seemed to gather up the ured message of the entire Congress a Congress which has been notable for ification of the many-sided call of times and message of the Master. owett bade his hearers to pray as er who saw the kingdom for which ey prayed; as crusaders who fought for e ngdom's coming; and as watchmen, ndailed its appearing.

The figures of the Men and Religion aigns presented at the Congress, ited that nearly ten thousand ad- es had been delivered by the workers to about a million and a half men in more than seven thousand meetings. Aside from the central campaign cities, numbering seventy, there were more than one thousand auxiliary cities. More than seven thousand men and boys had accepted Christ as Savior.

The team experts conducted institutes in connection with the Congress and there were two exhibit halls, showing some of their findings. The note which they have sounded throughout the campaign, that the church should do service as well as hold services, was not lacking at the Congress. Unless all signs fail, this national meeting will be remembered as marking the entrance of American churches into a new era of comprehensive Christian service.

Editor's Note.—The directors of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ considered this exhibit so important from the standpoint of Christian publicity that a complete set of forty-seven charts were purchased at large cost for display purposes at our conventions. They will be on hand at many of our State Conventions during the summer and at the National Convention in Louisville in October.

A Specific Task

I believe the Brotherhood and "Christian Men" should take as their special work at this time the pushing of the propaganda to increase the ministerial supply. Let a Brotherhood agree to get thirty subscriptions of five dollars each, running five years, for the support of a man, and that they agree to become responsible for finding and financing their representative in this way. Thus the "Comrades of Paul" could make the Church a "Sustaining Church" or "Brotherhood." To give money without being definitely responsible for the man, and for his entire support, is not sufficient, in my judgment. Then each Brotherhood should agree to pray for, seek out, and help sustain one young man in preparation for the ministry each year for a term of five years.

R. H. CROSSFIELD,

President Transylvania University, Lexington, Kentucky.

My Friend, J. H. Fillmore

BY F. M. RAINS.

J. H. Fillmore is a quiet business man, a very busy man, at his desk early and remains till late: He is a Christian. The one does not hinder the other. On the contrary, he does business that he may be more efficiently Christian. With him, religion is first, all the time. He is not an up and down Christian, a hot and cold member, but a steady puller. Every day with him is a great day in Christian experience. Literally and actually, his meat and drink is doing the Father's will. To him the Christian life is a constant joy.

Every service of the church finds him present—Sunday-school, Prayer-meeting, Officers' meetings, Social functions, and all. Going to the house of the Lord cures his headaches, rests his tired nerves and helps to solve business problems. And he is a real factor in the service. He knows God and God knows him. The meeting is always helped by his presence. When the minister preaches, he gives close attention—not a cold, critical, dissecting kind of attention, but sympathetic, cordial, helpful; and he always has a word of appreciation and encouragement. He helps to bring out the best that is in the preacher, a valuable contribution to a service. The sermon is to him food, and an intellectual and a spiritual feast. He carries the message away with him and is nourished by it.

The great songs which he has written finds a keen appreciation in the purest souls. They meet the deep needs of hungry hearts. They are sung around the world. So long and so well has he wrought in this field that the Fillmore name at once suggests inspiring music and lofty spiritual sentiments. Tens of thousands turn to him for their ideals in sacred hymnology.

This busy man is one of the best leaders among business men known to us. He reads the best things, the Bible, the magazines, the latest and best religious books. It is not too much to say that he is one of the most intelligent and well-minded business men in all our time.

It is worth a visit to the prayer-meeting to hear J. H. Fillmore pray. He talks with God in an easy way as a man talks to a parent. He and God are on perfectly easy terms; they are friends.

And what a hilarious giver he is! It does one good to see him cast into the treasury of the Lord. He gives, with a willingness it were more. His hand is wide open when any call comes; and he ever anticipates a call and reaches out a helping hand before the appeal is made. And prayer follows the gift as the shadow follows the substance.

Two over-mastering characteristics stand out in his exceptional life:

1. Faithfulness in everything. His engagement is too insignificant for him to neglect. When he says he will be there, he may be counted upon. He will not come with a shoulder load of trivial, thread-bare excuses. Faithful in business, faithful in the church, faithful in the home duties and obligations, faithful in all the varied and complicated relations of life. When God takes him home he will be met with a hearty welcome as a good and faithful servant. Our Lord is not calling so much for successful men as he is for faithful souls.

2. J. H. Fillmore is a prophet of robust, world-embracing optimism. He sees good everywhere. Light is breaking forth on all hands. God is not only in his heaven and all is well, but God is in his world and all is well. With him is moving out of darkness into God is in his church more and the Holy Spirit is filling and cong men as at no time in the past.

his faith, and this is the source ch of his joy.

What a glorious temperance advocate

Votes the prohibition ticket in residential election and works with encourages the anti-saloon movement between. He hits the viper of intemperance wherever and whenever it sticks its head out. Mr. Fillmore never has a hobby, but travels on a first-class all of the time. Small matters do consume his time, only the great quesoccupy his thoughts.

J. I. Fillmore is as genuine as gold.
moving toward God with the accuracy and certainty that the sun moves in its orbit. For a decade he has been my neighbor. I am not in his home often, nor is he in mine, but the knowledge that he is near is a constant strength and benediction to my life. I should feel bereft if he should move away. On many things we differ, but to me he is one of the most companionable of men. If all men were like him, the lawyer would have no clients and the jailer no occupation. The church would be filled to overflowing, the sale of good books would increase a thousand fold, the number of our missionaries, foreign and home, would increase likewise, every child would be well fed and well clothed, and all men would have a fair and equal chance.

When God gave J. H. Fillmore to the world, He made a great contribution; when He takes him away, we will all be so much the poorer.

Cincinnati, O.

Has the Men and Religion Movement Made Good?

An Answer by Bert Wilson, Executive Secretary, Lincoln, Neb.

No one knew they were present and they did the work entirely under our direction, so we know the figures are accurate.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE—LINCOLN, NEBRASKA.

February 4, 1912

Sixty-six Churches.

Attendance:	A. M.			P. M.
	Men	Women	Total	Men	Women	Total
Lincoln	2753	3387	6140	2090	3301	5391
Suburbs	1026	1026	2052	644	683	1327
Suburbs	427	380	807	242	233	475
Maximum Att.:
Lincoln	192	190	382	296	146	442
Suburbs	427	380	807	242	233	275
Minimum Att.:
Lincoln	6	3	9	6	3	9
Suburbs	25	25	50	..	..	..
Average Att.:
Lincoln	50	61	111	44	47	91
Suburbs	102	106	208	71	76	147
Per cent population in church:
Per cent of population in church:
Lincoln			13.9			9.5
Suburbs			34.8			22.1

On Saturday, March 9th, we had 50 young men located in rooms and office buildings across the street from every saloon of the city and they kept tab on the men entering saloons from 7 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night,

BERT WILSON

Has the Men and Religion Movement made good? So far as Lincoln, Nebraska, and vicinity is concerned, I can say YES in large letters. The following report of church attendance is based on an actual count, not by the pastors, but 70 young men who were sent by the committee upon a certain Sunday.

which is the closing hour. The report by hours for 23 saloons in Lincoln is as follows:

SALOON PATRONAGE—LINCOLN, NEBRASKA,
MARCH 9, 1912.
23 Saloons.

Hours.
7-8	631
8-9	649
9-10.	745
10-11.	1,117
11-12.	1,307
12-1	1,516
1-2	1,374
2-3	1,557
3-4	1,758
4-5.	2,156
5-6	2,199
6-7	1,777
7-8	2,099
Total.	18,885

During the preliminary campaign we had 10 teams speaking in various parts of the city on several nights. We covered 14 auxiliary cities and have added to that list every day since. Our committee of 100 leading business men met each week and are still meeting with 75 to 95 men present. Just before the campaign we took a complete religious census of Lincoln in a terrific snow storm, completing the count in exactly 4½ hours. We now have a religious machine able to carry a personal message to every man in the city within an hour. Five hundred and one men took the census.

Nearly every church in the city has a group of men meeting together regularly for the consideration of the vital subjects relating to their immediate community. We have an inter-church federation, composed of all the men of the churches, that is looking after the interest of the whole city and the surrounding territory. Work for boys in churches has been quickened. The of community centers has been brought home vividly to the men. Weekly semi-weekly religious meetings in shops and factories are to be carried by this inter-church committee. The social problems of the city are studied and a general clean-up is being effected. The men of our churches are working for Bible Study as never before. The missionary spirit of our churches is being emphasized and in our auxiliary towns' work "lay speakers" of ability are being brought up and it is wonderful the way these men are taking hold of the work.

If Lincoln is a fair criterion, and I believe it is, because our city is neither much better, nor very much worse than the typical Western city, I should say that the Men and Religion Movement has made tremendously good. There is no indefinite line in the entire program. The churches that obtain the largest portion of good from the Men and Religion Movement are the churches that put the largest number of men into the campaign meetings, that had men on the committees, that otherwise contributed to the welfare of the Movement. The men have grown in stature and knowledge by making personal sacrifices and contributions of talent and money toward the success of the Movement. The cities that obtain the largest good are proud that they entered into the campaigns with the same spirit. One town sent forty delegates to the Campaign, five from each church. If a city wants a new railroad, a boat-lift, a Y. M. C. A. Building, a Commercial Union, bad enough to enlist its whole masculine citizenship, the enterprise will be successful. On the other hand, if a city wants to be morally clean, the same aggressive spirit must prevail.

Social Service and Religion

Country Wide Survey

BY CHARLES STELZLE.

CHARLES STELZLE

SEVENTY-FIVE North American cities, with a combined population of 20,000,000, have been "surveyed" during the past winter by the Men and Religion Forward Movement. About 1,000 questions were addressed to the local committees having charge of the surveys in each of the cities, covering—among other things—the following subjects; the population, municipal administration, social influence, industrial life, the saloon, dance halls, crime and arrests, housing, health, politics, material service agencies, public schools, libraries, recreational life, juvenile delinquency, and the general conditions among the churches in these cities. Of the churches in these cities, seventy-five and seven-tenths per cent are Protestants, eleven and three-tenths per cent are Catholics, four per cent are Jewish, and seven per cent consist of other denominations.

The Methodist Episcopal Church leads in point of membership. Then come the following churches in order: Presbyterian, Baptist, Episcopal, Congregational, Lutheran, Christian and others. The membership in all Protestant Churches consists thirty and seven-tenths per cent of men, fifty-four per cent of women, six and two-tenths per cent of boys between the ages of 12 and 18, and nine and one-tenth per cent of girls between the ages of 12 and 18. It is a striking fact that only five and one-tenth per cent of the boys in the Sunday-schools in these cities are members of the church, although, during the past ten years, the number of men and boys uniting with the Protestant Churches has increased two and one-half per cent, there being a steady gain in this respect from year to year.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE

Sixty-five per cent of those who attended the Sunday morning services in the Protestant churches are women and the morning attendance at all the churches is sixty-five per cent of the total attendance of the day. More people united with the church at the age of 14 than at any other time, and there is a sharp decline in church accession after 21. Forty-one per cent of the churches have organized movements to greet strangers. Forty-eight per cent have missionary committees and forty-two per cent have Mission Study classes. In fully one-third of the churches practically every member contributed regularly to missions, and forty-two per cent of all the churches have weekly offerings for missionary purposes. However, seventy-

CHURCH CONTRIBUTIONS

three per cent of all the contributions of the Protestant churches in these 65 cities for the last fiscal year was used for congregational expenses. Seven and four-tenths per cent of the total was used for denominational Home Mission purposes, and seven and seven-tenths per cent for denominational Foreign Missions. Of the total contributions of the churches for all purposes, fifty-two and five-tenths per cent were given by the congregations themselves; nine and nine-tenths per cent by the Sunday-schools; eighteen and two-tenths per cent by women's organizations; one and four-tenths per cent by men's organizations; three per cent by the young peoples' societies; and fifteen per cent by individuals, presumably in large personal gifts. During the past 10 years, five-tenths of one per cent of the men in the churches actually went out from the churches as missionaries, either in the United States or foreign countries, and two-tenths of one per cent of the men in the churches today intend to become missionaries.

MASCULINE MISSIONARIES

Of the enrollment in the Sunday-schools fifty-seven and two-tenths per cent are women and girls and forty-two and eight-tenths per cent men and boys; and the enrollment in the

SUNDAY-SCHOOL STATISTICS

Bible classes sixty-two per cent are boys between the ages of 12 and 18, while thirty-eight per cent are men. Of the teachers of Men's Bible Classes in the Sunday-schools twenty-three and seven-tenths per cent are clergymen; thirty-six and five-tenths are business men; eleven and four-tenths per cent are women; seventeen and three-tenths per cent are professional men; whereas the teachers of the boys' classes in the Sunday-schools are five and three-tenths per cent clergymen; seven and nine-tenths per cent professional men; eight and eight-tenths per cent male school teachers; nineteen and four-tenths per cent business men; nineteen and five-tenths per cent men of other classes; seven and five-tenths per cent women under 20 and thirty-one and six-tenths per cent women over 20 years of age.

SALOONS VS. CHURCHES

There are more than three times as many saloons as there are churches in the cities, but as the survey includes many Southern cities which are under prohibition rule, the actual proportion of saloons in most of the cities is very much greater. Of the nearly 25,000 saloons in these cities forty and six-tenths per cent serve free lunches, thirty-two and nine-tenths per cent have games and cards; while one and three tenths per cent have bowling alleys in connection; eleven and six-tenths per cent have cafes, restaurants and five-tenths per cent have hotels, first-class and six-tenths per cent have club rooms, and one and nine-tenths per cent of the saloons have dance halls in connection.

Fifteen per cent of the labor unions in these cities meet in halls connected with saloons and nine and eight-tenths per cent of the unions regularly hold their meetings on Sunday. In not a single instance do the labor unions hold their meetings in the public schools, and in only one case does a labor union meet in a church.

PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Among the millions of subscribers to the Public Library twenty-seven and five-tenths per cent are men; thirty-two and six-tenths per cent are women; nineteen and six-tenths per cent are boys and seventeen and three-tenths per cent are girls. The truancy of boys in the Public Schools is reported at two and fifty-hundredths per cent. Socialism has increased nearly five-fold during the past ten years in these cities. Of the amusement centers, twelve and one-tenth per cent are theaters; twenty-three and two-tenths per cent are motion picture shows; four-tenths of one per cent are Peppercorn Arcades and sixty-two and two-tenths per cent are pool rooms.

RES-RESTS

The Crimes and Arrests indicate that of those arrested eighty-three and nine-tenths per cent were men; nine and one-tenth per cent women; six per cent and one per cent girls. Forty and eight-tenths per cent of the arrests were due to drunkenness; fifteen and nine-tenths per cent to disorderly conduct; eight and two-tenths per cent to disturbing of the peace; seven and eight-tenths per cent to vagrancy; six and one-tenth per cent to assault; four and eight-tenths per cent to larceny; three and five-tenths per cent to gambling; five and one-tenth per cent to social evils. The Juvenile Court records show that twenty-five and one-tenth per cent of the boys committed were guilty of larceny; twenty-six and one-tenth per cent incorrigibility; eight and two-tenths per cent truancy; six and one-tenth per cent disorderly conduct; five and two-tenths per cent assault; and twenty-one and eight-tenths per cent other causes. The parents of these boys were fifty-two and three-tenths per cent American-born; seven and six-tenths per cent

German; five and eight-tenths per cent Irish; five and one-tenth per cent Italian; two and two-tenths per cent Russian and twenty-seven per cent were of other nationalities.

RACE
SUICIDE

The birth-rate in these cities during the past year was 20.92 per thousand of the population; while the death-rate during 1910 was 15.63 per thousand, there being a steady decrease in the death-rate from 17.19 per thousand in 1901. Tuberculosis was responsible for eleven and four-tenths per cent of the deaths during the past ten years; pneumonia was chargeable with nine and seven-tenths per cent; heart disease eight and two-tenths per cent; accidents five and eight-tenths per cent; cancer four and one-tenths per cent; typhoid fever two and two-tenths per cent and fifty-eight and six-tenths per cent were due to other causes.

Editor's Note: Charts containing most of the above startling figures are now in possession of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ and will be exhibited at many of our coming conventions.

What Are Your Own Men Doing?

Social service tasks make good citizens out of good Christians.

You can begin in a small way right in your own community.

The Organization Packet tells how. Send a postal today.

It's free. Address, The Brotherhood Movement,

419-420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

The Editor Afield

HOOSIERDOM

Indianapolis is a great city, its wide streets spreading like the strands of a giant spider-web. One of the sights shown visitors is the Union Railway Station used exclusively by the Electric lines. But we did not arrive via "The Electric Way," Professor Payne and I, but rather stepped out of a dingy train, pulled by a coal-consuming locomotive, fourteen hours out of Kansas City. We enjoyed a three hours' conference with the officers of the C. W. B. M. at the Missionary Training School, and a brief visit with relatives and friends, before entraining for Cincinnati.

THE TITANIC DISASTER

We arrived in Cincinnati a few hours after the dreadful sea disaster of the Titanic, and the announcement heralded by the corner newsboys has furnished topic for current conversation from that hour until this. Cincinnati is a great town, and we are some people in Ohio's river metropolis. Here are the general offices of our Foreign Christian Missionary Society, presided over by that man of genius and power, Archibald McLean. Those who know not A. McLean should turn back to the February, 1912, issue of CHRISTIAN MEN magazine and read about him from the pens of several who know him well. While we engaged him in conversation we worked the bulb of our faithful camera, and the accompanying likeness is the result. That Brother McLean is a busy man will be surmised by the mass of matter on his desk.

Over at the office of the American Society we found our erstwhile traveling companion on the Team Work Campaign, Grant K. Lewis, grinding out Home Missionary literature and information and sending it forth by the train load in preparation for the first Sunday in May which is Home Missionary Day in our churches throughout the land. It was good to see Lewis again, and hear the melody of his voice, and to see the ga-

A. McLean at His Desk

ering wrinkles in that great dome of his appear and disappear as he explained how the work of the Society would have to be curtailed unless our churches made a most liberal offering for the work of the Society in May. That recital made us want to set down and write each Local Brotherhood to get busy on the May offering. We grasped the hands of I. N. McCash, who divides the burden and shares the responsibility with Lewis. Brother McCash was hurrying to get out of town by grinding out the grist of a large mail, reminding us of the day we closed our desk in Kansas City and took to the rails.

CINCINNATI PREACHERS

This was the day of the Ministers' meeting for Cincinnati district. Men were there from the surrounding towns

Ohio and Kentucky, and it was good to learn from the reports that our cause was prospering in that region. We were permitted to speak briefly to these sterling brethren upon the theme of our own work and our belief that the church will prosper in a much larger degree when men busy about its affairs than would be the case without the men being active. A half day is too short a time to even make a survey of our own work in Cincinnati. Twelve o'clock saw us crossing the broad Ohio River into the Licking Country of Kentucky.

WASHINGTON Washington City, the Nation's capital, lies over the Cumberland, and beyond the Blue Ridge through West Virginia and Virginia. Fifty years ago it took a day to make this journey. We made the trip on the F. F. V. Limited in eighteen hours and awakened beneath the train at the magnificent and commodious Union Station in Washington. Washington City is big. That was our impression from the time we arrived until we could get out for Hagerstown the next morning. Even the distances in Washington are something to be conjured with. Washington has no overhead trolleys—they are underground. The D. A. R. (Daughters of American Revolution) were holding their annual convention and monopolized the hotels. Ladies to the right of us, ladies to the left of us, ladies in front of us, beribboned and esungled. "Charge to the right," whispered Professor Payne and both of us ran right up right into the very jaws of the hotel clerk, who squeaked, "I'm sorry, gentlemen, but we have no rooms."

THE SOUTHERN PROFESSOR "Now, look here, young man," spoke the professor, sternly (just like a school teacher), "we are weary travelers from the prairies of Kansas, the country of the corn, hide and hoof, where they raise the stuff that feeds you people here in the East, and we want a room, and want it badly." The professor angled his eyebrows, and dropped the corners of his mouth dejectedly. The clerk looked at us, then at his chart, and wilted. We sent our baggage to the room, caught a "sight-seeing car" and took a front seat. There are more monuments, statues, public squares, rich widows and negroes in Washington than any city in the states, and we saw them all—all but the widows—and we saw their homes. We also saw homes of congressmen, senators, club people and various foreign embassies, the things every tourist expects to see in Washington.

CHAMP CLARK

We visited the Speaker of the House, in his private office, sat in his great leather chairs and consumed thirty minutes of his valuable time discussing, not politics, but crops, climate and the church. Then we were escorted to the Hall of Congress and sat in the Speaker's reserved chairs while the opening exercises of Congress were conducted. Every American citizen will want to see Congress in session before he dies. They don't begin things early in Washington like we do in Missouri; instead Congress convenes at 12 o'clock, noon. We entered the Speaker's box at five minutes before noon. There were a few common looking individuals in the pit below, whom we afterward learned were congressmen who had made a mistake and were on time. The Sergeant-at-Arms entered from his private entry at three minutes before twelve, carrying the great mace of office, with the silver ball and eagle upon it, like a drum-major's baton. The Blind Chaplain came in leaning on the arm of an attendant, pages were running here and there, and even the Speaker, who stepped within the room thirty seconds before the hour, stood talking with others about the group of desks, before mounting the steps to his seat of authority and honor. The great mace was deposited in its marble shaft, and the Speaker's gavel fell thrice upon the lumber of his desk. The husky voice of the presiding officer announced "The House will be in order—the Chaplain will offer prayer."

CHAMP CLARK

The whole company stood and were silent, while the aged minister prayed. He prayed for more stringent laws governing the transportation of passengers by land and by sea, for laws protecting workers in mills and factories and for other needed legislation in the interests of those who labor. Immediately after prayer confusion was in order. Everybody talked, except Uncle Joe Cannon, who was too busy puffing at a big black cigar. Several "gentlemen" arose and sought recognition. The Speaker pounded on his lumber pile and announced hoarsely, "The House will be in order—the gentleman from Georgia has the floor," whereupon the gentleman mentioned proceeded to talk to the stenographers who hastened to him. At the conclusion of the dictation the Speaker announced "the gentleman asks the privilege of doing so and so," and "hearing no objection, it is so ordered and referred to a committee composed of the following." About that time pandemonium reigned again and the mallet once more smote the loose board of the desk sharply and once more the Speaker announced with unction, "The House will be in order," whereupon the members continued to talk as if the Speaker had not given voice to a mighty command. At this juncture a "gentleman" from somewhere asked permission to address the House for one hour about something or other, and "hearing no objections," it was granted. Many of the members adjourned to the lunch room, others hurried into the tonsorial parlors to get a much needed shave, while the remaining wrote letters back home or went to sleep as their desires dictated. No one seemed to pay any attention to the gentleman who had the floor, excepting, of course, the stenographers. You may have had some Congressional inspirations before visiting the National House, but we say to you that this fifteen minutes in the Chamber of the House has taken all such desire out of our hearts. The only reason we would like to go to Congress would be to reform it, and some say that would be an impossibility, so there you are.

THE SENATE Now the United States Senate is a smaller and more dignified body. The senators wear just as good clothes as congressmen and look like real gentlemen, which most of them are. They were nearly all out playing golf or checkers the day we looked upon the senate, but those little diversions do not interfere with the transaction of business. The Vice-President, Sherman, was there and the way he proceeded to railroad measures through reminded us of the old days when we railroaded some ourselves. We saw Fred Smoot, of Utah, endeavoring to bring to vote a measure of his relating to protection of employees of factories, and as there are very few factories or mills in Utah, it is appropriate that Smoot would er such a measure. We did not see own member and brother, J. R.

nton, of Louisiana, who is a mem-of that distinguished body of lawyers.

From the Senate Chamber we looked into the United States Supreme Court, checking our cam-at the door as usual. The Supreme ot room is a small affair about half eize of the court room "back home," the Justices are very formidable look-g individuals. You have seen pictures em in their black robes, and they o just like their pictures, excepting eay we were there every Justice had een shade over his eyes to protect e from the light streaming in at a r window. A lawyer (we judge it as was arguing a railroad case, which se we understand take the majority of n of the court. We didn't stay to see ase out, as we understood this same er stood there for three days before e case was finished.

The White House, where the President lives, is a very neat little building, with a cave-like entrance with palms and ar; to the right and left. There are m deep velvet rugs about the floor of e ng hallway through which you are red by guides who have nothing else
d. This hallway has numerous pretty bets containing samples of chinaware ec by the wives of past Presidents.
er also are oil paintings of the wives esidents, and busts of the Presint themselves. Little alcoves and par-rs ad off from the reception hall, and grid staircase leads up into the East oo. The floor, walls and ceiling of e ast Room are magnificent. The on are inlaid with wood of many cols and shapes. The walls and ceilings ere and-painted by noted artists, while on the ceiling hang several massive clusters of cut glass chandeliers. The furniture in the East Room does not give the impression of being able to uphold persons of prodigious weight, and our observations are President Taft never sits in those Louis XV chairs or upon the spider-legged divans. But that makes no difference to the visitors. They take advantage of the opportunity and rest upon the President's furniture just as if it was their own. A tired child lay asleep upon one of the divans, while the mother watched over it. We talked with the policeman at the door which is the closest we came to talking with the President himself.

Our Ministers at Washington, D. C.

OUR OWN MINISTERS

Our Washington ministers are just as efficient as they are handsome, a fact that will be attested by reference to the 1912 year book, showing the missionary achievements of our Washington churches. They met us by appointment in the Vermont Avenue Church, which is shepherded by Earl Wilfley since the demise of the lamented Dr. Power. All of our work in Washington is prospering, and most of the churches of the District of Columbia, of which there are upwards of a dozen, have undertaken work for men in some fashion. We had a regular round table conference on the work with the ministers and the result of that little gathering will very probably mean a quickening of that portion of the work in the months to come.

G. B. Townsend, Minister at Hagerstown

HAGERSTOWN Hagerstown is in Maryland, six miles from the battlefield of Antietam, where thousands fell during the rebellion. There is a spot in the cemetery at Hagerstown, surrounded by a circle of cedars, with the mounds of the trenches just as they were made in '61, said to cover the bones of five thousand Confederate heroes who fell defending their faith in the Southern cause. Certainly war is terrible. Over to the east of Hagerstown is the village of Frederick, where Barbara Fritche said "Shoot if you must this old gray head, but spare this honored flag, she said." In Hagerstown, like Baltimore and Philadelphia, the houses border the street with no front doorway as we have in the West. Our church was built years and years ago, but they are going to have a new one shortly, if present plans carry. George B. Townsend is the hustling minister. Townsend's men sent him to the Conservation Congress in New York and paid all his expenses. We had a great meeting at Hagerstown, with 106 men at the dinner, and fifty ladies in the afternoon. We have been talking to the ladies on this Brotherhood proposition and they are tremendously interested. They realize that with our men busy about the affairs of the congregation the women will have more time to devote to their chosen work, and this is at it should be.

OYSTER TOWN

Baltimore still raises oysters just as it has been doing for years and years and years. It is surrounded on the water side by oyster farms of thousands of acres, and they extend clear down Chesapeake Bay, and into the ocean itself. But that isn't the chief business of Baltimore now, although the oyster industry is still immense. Baltimore is a seaport to be reckoned with. All traces of the great conflagration of a few years ago have been obliterated and the city is one of exceptional beauty. W. S. Stallings is the General Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Baltimore and a member of the Harlem Avenue Church of Christ. We met with seventy-five ladies in the Christian Temple in the afternoon and gave them the message of this movement, and in the evening at the Harlem Avenue Church we ate dinner with about as royal a group of business men as we met anywhere along the way. These men at Baltimore are doing Brotherhood work in a magnificent way under the leadership of the ministers of our Baltimore churches. We have seven or eight churches in Baltimore, but not nearly that number of ministers. Dr. Ainslie and Sweeney and Scott, our ministers, train their business men to lead the churches the same as regular ministers.

rs. We met several of these non-professional ministers, and learned of their work, and our belief is strengthened that the only way we can grapple with the problem of the empty pulpit at the present time is to raise up more of these non-professional ministers and put them to work until we can bring on a supply of professional ministers to meet the demand.

KANSAS CITY
OF THE EAST

New York is a tremendous city. We sped over mile after mile of streets in electric car, motor car and horse car. We saw millions of people upon the streets. The lower East Side tenements crowded themselves upon the street on the Sunday afternoons. Bedding being dried by the shining sun was heaped in every window. Certainly one-half the world knows not how the other half live. We spent six busy days in New York attending the Christian Congress, an account of which appears elsewhere in this issue of CHRISTIAN MEN. We were permitted to attend the farewell gathering of the Men and Religion Teams, a little pool spread given by Fred B. Smith, Campaign Leader, who goes back into New York as Religious Work Director for the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. The team men have accepted new work or returned to their old ones. It was a great campaign and one that will mean much to the Church of Jesus Christ.

NORFOLK
BOAT

Norfolk is 21 hours by steamship from New York. Here our National Convention was held in 1907. We embarked upon the Old Dominion steamship "Montpelier" for the port of Norfolk. The editor has sea legs in Kansas City so took the bunk immediately after dinner, while the newlyweds and Professor Payne remained on the deck until "8 bells" or such an hour before looking to the life belts and turning out the light.

We enjoyed the entry into Norfolk through Hampton Roads immensely. Here and there anchored a tramp ship of a foreign port. A flotilla of submarines from the navy yard at Portsmouth came out to meet us with their crews of white capped "Jackies" in the little towers.

Professor Payne and the Editor Aboard Ship

WATSON'S TOWN

C. M. Watson, our minister at Norfolk, was at the dock with several of his men and a complement of porters to look after our luggage when we docked. We had a good time at Norfolk. One of our men is connected with the Naval Y. M. C. A., which, by the way, is a worthy enterprise, the equipment being given by John D. Rockefeller, the king of Standard Oil. We would like to write a lot about the enterprise of this Southern city and the country about but we have not the space. R. E. Steed is the City Clerk of Norfolk. He is also one of our men, and they tell us the city cannot run without him. If you desire inside information regarding Norfolk or vicinity, write Steed and he will tell you all about it. If he

Watson, Holloway and Payne in front of our Church in Norfolk

can't tell you nobody can. We had our meeting, slept well at a good hotel and took the morning C. & O. boat for Richmond.

Richmond, erstwhile capital of the Confederacy, is a historic city. It was raining and our time was limited, so we didn't see much of the town. We met our ministers there by appointment and talked about the work of the Brotherhood and how much the men of Richmond churches can help in the propaganda by linking up with other groups in this movement. We have some good men's work in Richmond, but no group as yet affiliated with the National Movement. We hope for a change in this relationship, and court the coöperation of those interested in seeing our work progress in the Tide Water and mountain districts of Virginia.

In Richmond we ran upon F. M. Rains and A. E. Cory, of the Foreign Society, out on a hunting expedition. Reports are they bagged some game in Richmond. If they didn't it was not because it was there. But that is another story. We had a mighty profitable hour with brethren in Richmond, and three of us saw us cutting across the country toward Pennsylvania.

JOHN R. EWERS

THE SMOKY CITY

Pittsburgh and its environs form a most important district of the Disciples of Christ. We had a great gathering in Pittsburgh as depicted by the following account taken from the Christian Evangelist:

A Brotherhood Congress

A great meeting of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ in Greater Pittsburgh was held last Sunday at the First Church, North Side. Three hundred and forty-nine men were present. The Brotherhood of the East at the First Church had ninety present, while that of the Belmar congregation numbered sixty-seven. The First Church, North Side, had seventy-nine there and sixteen congregations of the city were represented. John Ray Ewers presided. The special music was furnished by the Belmar Male Quartet and the male quartet of the First Church, North Side. Dr. George Gerwig, secretary of the Pittsburgh public schools, read the Scripture lesson, and C. Crawford, a member of Central Church, led the great assembly in prayer. E. E. Ewers spoke on the work of the National Brotherhood in a most telling manner. He spoke to business men to business men. Prof. V. Payne gave an introduction and outlined a great speech on "The Elements of Organized Work in the Church." Owing to the limited time given to Professor Payne it was impossible for him to deliver the message which he had prepared and which was so greatly needed by that large, representative body of church workers. A committee was appointed to see the effects of the meeting by bringing a large number of men's organizations represented at last Sunday's meeting into direct affiliation with the Brotherhood Movement.

WASHINGTON, Pennsylvania. Here is the oldest church of the Disciples in America, presided over by that pastoral genius, Walter Mansell, once of Columbus, Ohio. The site of the original Brush Run Church is but a few miles from Washington and Alexander Campbell himself established the Washington Church a century ago. In addition to being one of the oldest congregations in the country it is today also one of the most efficient, a regular contributor to every missionary agency among us. Their Women's Work stands in the forefront of our work in Pennsylvania. It was at a previous meeting we had with the ladies in the afternoon and when we faced the dinner tables at the evening hour we had not as pleasant a group of men as has been our privilege to address anywhere along the line. The Washington Church shelters some of the saints in Israel, among them Brother White, once pastor of the Washington Church, one of the living pioneers of our Movement. They have a fine Men's Work already established in the Washington Church which promises to become a part of the National Brotherhood Movement. We gave them a vision of a larger service that is unfolding before our men throughout the nation.

Bethany, West Virginia, is a place honored and revered by every Disciple. Here is Bethany College, established by Alexander Campbell, who was its first president. Bethany is a wee-bit of a town, and, outside of the college, with its several buildings and the modest homes of those who are in some wise connected with the institution, there is nothing else in the town. A trolley electric railway bore us the seven miles from the railway station at Wellsburg, and President Cramblett and W. H. Erskine, late of Japan, met us on arrival. There is a whole lot that we should like to write about our visit to Bethany—our audience of women of the college and community in the afternoon, the enthusiastic banquet in Cochran Hall with songs and yells and a wealth of good things to eat and good cheer thrown in for good measure in the evening, a long walk through the campus up hill and down dale, a visit to the Campbell Cemetery, containing the graves of the fathers of the Restoration Movement, a call at the experimental farm, etc., etc. And last, but not least, our privileged audience with the entire student body in the chapel. Bethany is a great school. It has always been great and is destined to be greater still. Mr. Oglesbay, an alumni, who built the gate which is pictured herewith, is erecting an addition to the main building that will compare favorably with any modern college building. We were surprised at the splendid way in which this building is being erected. The whole thing is to be a monument to modern industry, and, upon completion, Bethany will have at her disposal laboratories for the most advanced courses in science, as well as a wealth of other equipment, that will enable her to take a place in the front rank of religious schools where she properly belongs. President Cramblett and his corps of efficient and consecrated professors are doing a magnificent piece of work. We met and talked with scores of students in all departments, and also conversed freely with members of the faculty, and they all have words of highest commendation for the genius who presides over their destiny.

Oglesbay Gate at Bethany College

HOME AGAIN

After brief stops in Bloomington, Illinois, Galesburg and Peoria for meetings and conference, we crossed over the Mississippi into our home state, found the office still intact, even to the faithful cat, and enough accumulated mail to sow the floor knee deep. At this writing we have rolled our trousers and sleeves as high as modesty permits, locked the door and are wading through it. Verily, brethren, our friends have not forgotten us.

11—June Conventions—11

Idaho—at Boise

Louisiana—at Crowley

Michigan—at Kalamazoo

Minnesota—at Forest Lake

Missouri—at Brookfield

Montana—at Bozeman

New Mexico and West Texas—at Alamogordo,
New Mexico

New York—at Keuka Park

Oklahoma—at Ada

Oregon—at Turner

Washington—at Pullman

The Brotherhood movement will have representatives at most of these gatherings, armed with literature and prepared for conference on the difficult problem of the men.

Possibilities of a Summer Camp

BY CHAS. B. HAHN.

"I give and bequeath to boys, jointly and severally, all the useful idle fields and commons where ball may be played; all pleasant waters where one may swim; all snowclad hills where one may coast; all streams and ponds where one may skate; to have and to hold these for the period of their boyhood; all meadows with the clover blossoms and butterflies thereof; the woods with the appurtenances, the squirrels and all the echoes and strange places; and all distant places which may be visited, together with the adventures thereof found"—

Every boy is remembered in this will and not one is favored. The boy who takes advantage of this bequest is rich. No sooner does the first warm day come, but boys are out on some vacant lot ready for a game of ball. As summer comes, they want to go to the woods and camp. The call of the wild is in their veins.

HOUSING CAMP
The very first thing to do in starting a camp is to find a suitable site near a stream where the boys can fish, swim and loaf. This should be near wild woods, where the boys can feel the freedom of the country, where there are no signs that they don't." The camp should be far enough away so that the influence of the city would not touch the boys, away from the noise and hurrah of civilization, back into the woods where God's great "out-factors" impresses the boy, where he can breathe the pure fresh air untainted by smoke and odors.

The best summer camps are the ones naturally directed by the truest type of childhood. No camp should go into the woods without an adult leader. If you are thinking of giving the boys an outing, you see to it that the best man goes with them. If a large number of boys are in the camp you will need more than one leader. The older boys can be brought into service here. If possible, get a physician who is interested in boys to accompany you.

CAMP FOOD
One of the most important parts of the camp is the food. The best of foodstuffs should be used and they should be cooked well, too. If the food is good and cooked right, there will be little danger of sickness. It is best to get someone who will look after that department, so that the leader will be able to give all of his time to the management of the boys. Boys can be taken along to wash dishes and in this way pay for their outing. There are many boys who will want to make their way. While the discipline of the camp is more or less in the hands of the leader, yet the boys can govern themselves. If the camp is organized into a club or small city it will be easy to control the boys through the leaders of the boys.

A large camp is the best camp. A small party of boys camping on some lake or stream is usually unsatisfactory to some of its members, especially if only a few of them are good "mixers."

Just suppose that fifteen boys go camping with some good leader, and there are many such camps. After a few days, when the first excitement is over, the boys become restless and some want to be busy at something. One boy says, "Let's play ball; choose up—oh, pshaw, there is not enough for nine on a side," so they give up playing ball. Maybe one or two of the boys don't care very much about ball and can't play very well, anyhow; they would rather go fishing. Another boy is interested in his kodak and wants to go to the woods where he can take some pictures. One of the boys has gone to the station after the bread, while another is helping the cook in the mess tent. The fact is that the crowd is too small and that if they have any fun at all they must all do the same thing at the same time. If these fifteen boys go where there are a hundred other boys they will find many boys who will want to play ball, fish, swim, or read. These fifteen boys could have their own tents and, in a way, be separate, yet a part of the large group. The boys who want to play ball can join the camp ball team and play a visiting team. The boys who fish can go with a party of boys to a good fishing place and make a day of it. The boys who like to take pictures can join the camera club. These fifteen boys can have a better time in a large camp than in a small camp after the first few days.

CAMP SPORTS

In any ordinary town or city all the inhabitants are not together all the time, nor are they compelled to do the same thing whether or not they are interested in that thing. In a large camp the boys should not be bunched in great crowds all the time. They should act natural and do those things which give them the most delight. There should be a few rules, however, in regard to meals and swimming, or, where there is danger involved, there must be some understanding as to how and when a boy should go.

THE CASE OF BOY CITY

Boy City—a chautauqua and summer municipality, where boys conducted an actual city, with all the civic departments, bank, daily paper, post office, and mercantile houses during the summers of 1909 and 1910—was located in the wilds of Northern Michigan near Charlevoix. It seemed that nature had favored the boys in preparing for them such an ideal spot. There were long, graceful hills covered with grass, with oak, hickory and other trees—aye, with thousands of them. There was a great flat spot rolled out for drill ground, base-ball and athletic field. Here boys learned to play the game of football, basketball, and baseball on the square, and there came to them all the good things desired.

The city was laid out in lots or wards. Each town or camp constituting a ward.

After the grounds had been prepared for the boys, everyone was anxious to see the youthful citizens come to their camp, and so on the first day the camp became a beehive of industry. They began at once to put up tents and get everything in shape for their sojourn in the city. It required two nights for the boys to settle down as if they were at home. On the first night they were late in getting to bed, but on the third night the long hours of play drove the tired muscles to rest early and the camp silence was broken only by the croaking of the frogs along the lake front or by the hooting owls in the woods. Thus Boy City burst into existence like a mining camp in the West.

CAMP POLITICS

Scarcely had the boys come settled until politics "broke loose." Two political parties were organized. The "Water party," made up of boys who believed in water sports and the "Land party," made up of boys who believed in land sports. For two days there was a great campaign and a visitor there might think that he was in some town where the men were voting, so hot was the contest. Then an election was held, the Water party winning the principal offices. As soon as the fight was over the boys settled down, forgetting their political differences, and began to have the best time of their lives.

There were few laws, as the city was an honor city, and those who did not do the square thing could not live there. Many a man who came with a civil threw it away when he understood that no tobacco was to enter the city. After the camp was over there was not a mark on any of the buildings, which showed to what extent the game of playing square had been carried.

There was the city hall, in which was located the post office with real lock boxes, the municipal offices and the bank. The boys deposited their money in this bank when they came to the city, and, as they needed it, drew it out by writing real checks. There was the restaurant, printing office, grocery buildings. All the enterprises were run by the boys under the supervision of competent men.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

The physical director was on hand at the very start, and after one fellow had tried the physical examination and reported to the other boys that it was a delightful experience, a crowd collected in the office each morning. After the examination the boys were given training on the track, as there was to be an athletic meet. The small boys were not overlooked either, but were treated kindly. The doctor gave the boys what he termed coaching talks, and they received many helpful suggestions for winter indoor sports.

BOYS' CHURCH

One of the splendid activities of the camp was the boys' church with a boy pastor. The creed of the church was this, "I will try to play square with my parents, my teachers, my companions, myself and my God." The first board of this church consisted of boys under 16 years of age and from eight different denominations. This was, perhaps, the first church organized and conducted by boys in the religious history of the country.

CIRCUS DAY

One of the big days at this camp was circus day, with its menagerie of marvelously trained animals, its wonderful performances of real and imitation stunts. The circus was complete from parade to side-shows, with boys in full charge and as the only performers.

The Boy City waterworks pumped the water to different parts of the ground and the electric light station was another feature of this unique camp. The Boy City band played every day and was one of the very important parts in the camp.

Emblem for the Boys

15 Cents

Stamps will do. Satisfaction guaranteed or money back. Address

Boy Department B. D. C.

419-420 R. A. Long Bldg.

Kansas City, Missouri

First Row, from left to right—Restaurant, Boy City Camp; Rest House, Boy City Camp; Camp Ward, Boy City Camp.
Third Row, from left to right—Coming with Tent and Baggage; At Ho

Second Row, from left to right—Toasting Marsh Mallows; Mayor in Tent Cot; One of the Citizens; Swimming Dock.
 Dinner—Restaurant; Tug-of-War in front of City Hall.

Wireless Whispers

Carthage Brotherhood Gives Members Christian Men

D. W. Moore, Pastor at Carthage, Mo., writes:

"Our Brotherhood has voted $2.00 dues per year, as you note, one for the General Brotherhood and one for local work. I like mighty much the magazine. The last issue was par excellence."

* * *

Louisville Convention Headquarters

The general headquarters hotel of the Louisville Convention will be at the Henry Watterson Hotel, adjacent to Convention headquarters. The rates are on the European plan at $1.50 and upwards per day per person. Reservations may be made by addressing Hotel Henry Watterson, Louisville, Ky.

* * *

Observes Christian Men Program

BY R. A. SCHELL, MINISTER, HASTINGS, NEB.

At our last meeting we used the program as outlined in CHRISTIAN MEN. I never saw men enjoy anything more in my life. Those who were on the program took pride in their work and those who listened thoroughly enjoyed it.

* * *

Appreciation of Christian Men

CHRISTIAN MEN is the best magazine published. You are doing your work well supporting our missionary organizations. I have only praise for the Brotherhood Movement and CHRISTIAN MEN. May both have perpetual existence.—J. A. TATE, Sayre, Pa.

* * *

Brotherhood Hymns Makes a Hit

BY C. C. DAVIS, CHARITON, IOWA.

I just returned from the District Convention, at Albia, where we made a big "hit" with the songs from your book "Brotherhood Hymns," especially "The Church in the Wildwood." And we are already engaged to sing at our Iowa State Convention, at Oskaloosa, in September. The quartet is made up of preachers in the district, except Brother Denny, our State Secretary.

A Letter From Judge Thornton

I wish to say that I hope to be a contributing member for the support of the General Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ as long as I live, not only because of my recognition of the general good it does, but because of my special feeling for Brother R. A. Long, its President and originator. If in the multiplicity of private and public business affairs I neglected to renew my subscription, I ask to be pardoned for it. Don't hesitate to call on me every year for renewal.—J. R. THORNTON, Washington, D. C.

* * *

National Director Does Field Work

Robert Graham Frank is pastor of our church at Liberty, Missouri. He is also chairman of the Missouri State Board and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Brotherhood Movement. He was recently called to Trenton, Missouri, to address the newly organized Brotherhood in the Trenton Church, and at last account he was preparing himself for the talk by going over the printed matter and other literature issued by the National Brotherhood Movement, and before this account goes to print we hope to have advice that "He has met the enemy and they are his."

A New Departure

a meeting of the Men's and Young Bible Classes of this church on last (joint session) the plan of affiliating the National Brotherhood of the Disciples was approved. You will please send address the certificates to be filled out the Bible Classes affiliating as such with the Brotherhood." So writes G. I. Hoover, Tipton,

* * *

The Brotherhood Packet

recently sent a packet of our Brotherhood literature to Mr. E. A. Long, a Baptist, Tipton, North Dakota, from which he preaches an address which was delivered at a conference of pastors and Christian workers in that state. We have also sent printed literature to ministers and leaders in the Episcopal Church, the Friends Church, the Methodist Church, and have been called upon for plans of various denominational and interdenominational agencies. Fred B. Smith says our plans are fine—and Fred Smith ought to know. For the packet, brethren.

* * *

Will Ridiculing Editor's Signature

wish you would learn how to sign your name so I would know whether it was you or the Sultan of Turkey who is writing to me. I know what else to compare it with, as I have his signature on the gateposts, etc., and I was in his empire. While I never can have your signature, I know there is no other in the world like it and so it must be yours. So writes A. C. Smither, Managing Editor of the Christian Evangelist.

* * *

Western California State Chairman Busy

letter from Chas. G. Titus, Sacramento, California, says: "You might have heard from the Brotherhood ere this. At that meeting I discussed the matter of their coöperation with the National Brotherhood, and in so doing suggested that they make a pledge per capita for their membership this year. This they have unanimously voted to do, putting it on a basis of one dollar per member, and I believe their membership is now about thirty. They hope to increase that membership this spring. I will communicate with them and get their signed pledge.

They have been doing some good work. A case they have been handling the past few weeks was that of an older brother whose health was despaired of by two or three physicians. The Brotherhood took his case in hand and had a specialist examine him and found that a surgical operation would in all probability put him into working condition again. After discussing the case to the surgeon, he told the Brotherhood if they would provide the nurse and hospital fee that he would gladly do the operating gratis. This was done at an expense of less than $100, and the man is now rapidly recovering and is about in condition where he can again earn a livelihood.

* * *

Brotherhood Activities at Council Bluffs

BY L. L. POSTON, PRESIDENT

We are holding meetings on the third Monday of each month and are planning to hold a men's day on April 28th. We have planned for a men's program in the evening, having three or four short talks from our own men, and solos, quartets and choruses by men. The Bible School will be asked to hustle in men for that day, and we may put on something more by the men for the day, but haven't planned for it yet.

As for what the National Brotherhood might do more than it has been doing, I don't believe I have any suggestions. CHRISTIAN MEN has a great many suggestions, and if I want anything special I'll write for it. (Is that right?)

Here is one thing we did that pleased our men. One evening we had a phonograph ready and had each man present give his name and occupation into the phonograph. To many it was a new experience and made lots of fun.

* * *

Regarding the Men and Religion Forward Movement

Upon the occasion of the Christian Congress in New York City, April 19th-24th, representatives of the Disciples of Christ met at luncheon at the Hotel York. Sixty men were present, including our leaders in Education, Journalism, Bible School, Brotherhood and Christian Endeavor, both ministers and laymen from throughout the country. It was a most representative gathering, if any such may be considered representative. The following resolutions were framed by a committee consisting of General Z. T. Sweeney, Professor Bert Wilson and W. C. Pearce, and unanimously adopted by the gathering. Copies of the resolutions have been sent to all state secretaries and to the weekly papers, in accord with the wishes of the meeting:

RESOLVED, That the program of work proposed by the Men and Religion Forward Movement is the best plan yet proposed for utilizing the forces of the church in meeting the opportunities now offered it; and further, be it

RESOLVED, That the work of conservation depends upon the response of the individual church by reason of the Committee of Ninety-seven closing its work with this Congress; therefore, we recommend to the various state and national conventions of the Disciples of Christ that they devote a session, or part thereof, to the presentation of the Men and Religion message, and we request that copies of this resolution be sent to all church papers and national and state secretaries.

Lexington Brotherhood Busy

BY I. J. SPENCER.

Our Central Church Brotherhood had a splendid business meeting last night—about thirty-five present—at which it was unanimously voted to enlist a hundred men to help the church and Sunday-school in several ways, to seek to win men from the outside, to pay for the education of a ministerial student in Transylvania University, to send a medical missionary candidate through the Medical College of Drake University, and to raise $500—$100 a year for the next five years—on the Foreign Missionary Extension Fund. One member will also personally contribute $500, and our Endeavor Society, a young lady, and the Workers' Monday Bible Class will also, each one, educate a young preacher. The Brotherhood started the ball to rolling. That means the education of five young ministers for the service of Christ.

New men have been enlisted and are interested in the Brotherhood. I am confident that it has caught a glorious vision and cannot but go forward.

The Brotherhood has recently issued a neat folder announcing its plans and purposes, which reads as follows:

"The Men's Brotherhood of Central Christian Church meets in the upstairs parlor the second Friday night in every month at 7:30 o'clock and invites all men to its meetings.

"ACCOMPLISHED BY THE BROTHERHOOD DURING THE PAST TWO WEEKS.

"An excellent position was secured for a worthy young man.

"One family was financially assisted.

"Approximately 300 persons were invited to church services.

"The promise of three persons were secured to join the church.

"Eighteen new members were added to the Brotherhood.

"A perceptible increase was made in the attendance of men at the Sunday church services.

"Do you think this kind of work pays? If so, join the Brotherhood.

"OBJECTS OF THE BROTHERHOOD.

"1. To establish Social, Intimate and Fraternal relations among the men of the church.

"2. To enlist men in the Brotherhood work who are not engaged in any other church work.

"3. To bring men into the Brotherhood who are not members of any church.

"4. To train young men in practical church work.

"5. To greet strangers who come to church and to make their acquaintance and invite them to attend all of the church meetings.

"6. To coöperate with the various boards in charge of the church's finances, with view of injecting strict and modern business methods into its affairs, in an effort to put the church on a sound and self-sustaining basis.

"7. To extend hearty sympathy and cooperation to the minister in all matters pertaining to the welfare of the church.

"8. To increase the attendance at all church meetings, including Sunday-school and lay meetings.

"9. To educate a young man for the ministry.

"10. To devise, perfect and maintain a system for locating and securing employment for persons in need of same.

"11. To visit the sick and needy and to provide such assistance as shall be expedient.

"12. To assist in the cause of missions and eventually to educate a medical student, preparatory to entering the foreign field as a medical missionary.

"13. To acquire and disseminate valuable information regarding the financial, social and spiritual status of the church, in order that its members may become familiar with their condition and detailed operations of its various departments.

"14. To provide for the men of the church a variety of wholesome entertainment and recreation and to promote good will among them and to glorify God.

"At the next regular meeting of the Brotherhood reports of the various committees will be heard and suggestions for improvement of committee work will be made; some interesting facts regarding the church will be related and some features of entertainment worth while will be presented. DON'T FORGET to be present."

* * *

A Correction

In the May number of CHRISTIAN MEN, under the heading "The Children's Congregation," appeared an editorial note that was capable of misconstruction. The note read as follows: "The Christian Woman's Board of Missions and the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ national officers are striking hands in promoting this most feasible plan of saving the child."

What we intended to say was this: "It is the belief of the Brotherhood and the C. W. B. M. that giving attention to the necessary education of the children. The two Boards have not combined in this or any other propaganda, but have they considered promoting a joint campaign of education of this character. It is the firm belief of the directors of the Brotherhood Movement that the agitation of the Children's Congregation will be conducive to material spiritual growth among our local chapters. It is also our belief that a closer coöperation between men's work and women's work in the local congregations will broaden the vision of every church."

Of course the Brotherhood Movement understands that such a broad, comprehensive plan as the Children's Congregation would demand a careful and prayerful consideration on the part of any society that undertook it. Already many favorable comments have been made upon the proposed plan, and we trust the day is not far distant when it will be given a try-out in many local congregations.

What They Did April 28th

I spoke April 28th for the First Christian Church in Omaha in the interest of Men and Boys, on "Perfluence." In the evening the program made up of six speakers in the same t. The sentiment of the church was t e day was well spent.—J. A. BEATTIE, University, Lincoln, Neb.

I talked on Men's Work in the morning and used the leaflets you sent in such a way as to bring out the facts of the brotherhood work most clearly. Answers to questions were given by individuals, who either memorized the printed answers or parased them, using their own words. Men furnished music and sang in the choir. On the whole the service was effective and feeling created that the men should get in the work of the church.—WM. M. YELD, Pastor, West Side Christian Church, Kansas City, Mo.

We had a pleasant service on the evening of April 28th. We did not carry out any special program, but I preached to my men and the message was well received.—

RICHARDSON, Pastor, First Christian Church, Kansas City, Mo.

In spite of threatening weather, we had thirty-two men present at the Men and Boys' Congress at three P. M., and three good addresses by three laymen on program as outlined to you. Considerable interest was manifested.—B. H. SEALOCK, Edinburg, Ill.

We observed Conservation Day and had a splendid time. Large crowds attended.—J. J. SULLIVAN, Columbus, Ohio.

We followed the greater part of the program. Had a chorus of men together with male quartette. Also used the Questions in the place of Scripture reading. We had four speakers. All of the addresses were popular and very much enjoyed. The program did us good in the calling out of the men of our men, but possibly the greatest work was accomplished by the Questionnaire, which gave the men information concerning the brotherhood which they needed. We ended the day a successful one.—H. E. VAN DER BRUG, Des Moines, Iowa.

Account of rain our plans were carried out in part. I preached in the morning on "Fishers of Men" and at night on "Save the

In the afternoon we had our Brotherhood meeting. We used the Leaflet or Questions, both afternoon and evening. I believe that good was done for the reason that men are beginning to want to do things. —C. C. DAVIS, Chariton, Iowa.

Sunday was a day long to be remembered at the Central Church of Christ. There were 990 at the Bible school, the largest number ever gathered at the school in its history. Of course, this great number was largely the result of the contest between the young ladies' and the young men's classes. There were 305 present in the young men's class and 210 in the young ladies' class, the young men thus winning in the contest. It was an exciting time and much pleasantries were gotten out of the contest. At the church service there was the largest morning audience since the present pastor came to Wichita and there were six additions to the church, making 315 since the close of the Billy Sunday campaign. At the night service two were baptized.—Wichita (Kan.) Eagle.

Local Brotherhood No. 402 of HOOPESTON, Hoopeston, Ill., at the April meeting decided to observe Brotherhood Day on April 28th.

The meeting was a success in every way. The men took entire charge of the service. In the evening the pastor gave us a very able Brotherhood sermon, and the audience went away well pleased. In spite of the rainy weather there was good attendance. The orchestra furnished the music, and the male quartet favored us with a selection. We have forty members, and are progressing well. Hoopeston has the honor of having the only Union Brotherhood in the state. The Christian men are going into the work with all their might. During the month of May we are having Union Brotherhood lectures, which are helpful to the mind and the soul. We have a church membership of nine hundred and the men are getting back of the work as never before, which gives the church a better outlook than in all its past history.—L. W. SMITH, Hoopeston, Ill.

The evening service April 28th was taken by the Brotherhood of the church and the speeches were all of a very high order.

A large audience assembled and every part of the program was taken care of by the men. A men's chorus led the singing. There were three special selections of music—an octet, a quartet and duet. Speeches were made by Harvey Eberling, J. E. Wagner, W. F. Harris, C. W. Mears, M. D. Neff, F. C. Woodley and the pastor. L. E. Ralston read a poem about the Titanic, written by one of our men, C. W. Mears. The people were so well pleased that the men are going to occupy more evenings.—O. L. HULL, Cleveland, Ohio.

Local 456 of Central Church, Waco, Texas, observed Conservation Day by an evening program by the men. The best results were the crystallization of Brotherhood spirit. The developing of a Brotherhood consciousness, the advertising of our work before the public, aroused the other men of the church to their duty and secured several new members. We are young yet and are not trying to assume too much, but to attempt programs of this kind where our material in the way of public speakers is very slim is a great inspiration. We are rejoicing in a steady growth of the Brotherhood spirit, and we are developing some new lines of work that we will report when we make them stick.— COLBY D. HALL, Waco, Texas.

BURLINGTON, IOWA We observed Conservation Day. Program was fine. We had a paper written by George Baker, a successful business man. It is a sample of the program. We love the man for the worth of his life and thought the paper fine.—M. C. HUTCHINSON, Burlington, Iowa.

NEW MEXICO Enclosed find draft for $2.00, offering from our little church for the Brotherhood work.—D. F. SELLARDS, Lordsburg, New Mexico.

LITTLE ROCK This is to report on Men and Boys' Day. Although it was a very rainy day, it is agreed on every hand that it was the greatest day, so far as the men and boys of the church are concerned, in the history of the church. We undoubtedly got a big boost for men and boys. The spectacular feature of the day was a street parade. We met at the leading hotel, formed in line and, headed by two big policemen who had volunteered their services, marched twelve blocks to the church down the principal street. The procession was almost two blocks long. It created a great interest along the street. Although at an early hour, hundreds of people witnessed it. A number of men from the hotels and streets joined in. One man was swept into line who said he had not been to church in twenty years. It is the common opinion that no other church in the city could have put such a parade on the street. It was a good day and more than worth while.—J. N. JESSUP, Little Rock, Ark.

JAMESTOWN, INDIANA Sunday, May 5th, will be sacredly observed as "MEN'S DAY" at the Christian Church.

YOU. This is a special invitation to Won't you bring a friend? We shall suffer a deep personal disappointment if we do not see you among the others.

Great Men's Classes at 9:30. Be sure and be on time. Men's sermon at 10:30 and 7:30. Men's chorus will direct the music both morning and evening. MASCULINE CHRISTIANITY is the thought of the world today. Don't let Jamestown fall behind the great procession, MEN. We're as good as the best, if not better than the rest. Let us prove it.—L. H. GRAHAM, Jamestown, Ind.

DES MOINES CAPITOL HILL Please find enclosed check for six dollars, the amount of the offering on Brotherhood Day. It poured rain all day, and the audience was small. We thought some of changing the day to a later date, but next Lord's day is American Missionary day, and so we thought we would go ahead with the program and take the offering. We had a splendid program, worthy of a full house, which we would have had, too, had the weather been fitting. There was one accession, a strong young traveling man. We feel that the day was not lost. I preached in the morning on "A Man's Job" and attempted to show that the advancement of the Master's Kingdom was a job for men. This I argued from three considerations: First, the personnel of the church as chosen and commissioned by the second, the program of Christianity, great enough to enlist the best powers of the third, the problems of Christianity being that only the manhood of the church is capable of coping with them.

At night four men of the Brotherhood spoke. Each acquitted himself splendidly. A chorus was made up of men, and a male quartet sang. It will result in good to our Brotherhood. We are glad to send on this amount, hoping that next time we may do much better.—H. E. VAN HORN, Moines, Iowa.

WARRENSBURG, MISSOURI Our Brotherhood had a "Conservation" service last night. The program was good, but weather was bad and audience small, hence offering also small.—$5.00, check for which is enclosed.—MOORE, Warrensburg, Mo.

CHARDON, OHIO We had a Men's Meeting last night and in spite of the rain had a good meeting and enjoyed it. We had an orchestra and choir composed of men. We hope in the near future to have another meeting and are ready to do something worth while as a result. You will find enclosed $1.40, which will be a little in the good work.—H. H. ELWELL, Chardon, Ohio.

ROSALIA, WASH. We had a good day yesterday. The offering taken at the service last night was not large, but a little helps. The treasurer has forwarded the amount to you.—J. F. ROSALIA, Wash.

KENDALLVILLE, INDIANA The Kendallville Brotherhood was among the first to affiliate with the National Brotherhood. We have been pegged along and succeeded in doing good work without making much noise about it.

We observed Conservation Day in a simple style and with satisfactory results. We spent the entire day to the work. A large number of men and boys attended the Bible school session, which was a hummer—the very best of the year. The pastor preached in the morning on the subject of "Men and Missions." In the afternoon a mass meeting was held with men and boys. Most of the pastors of the city with some of their men attended the meeting. The music was furnished by a chorus under the leadership of Lester B. Man, who is a member of the Kendallville church and a first class singing evangelist. He has had considerable experience as a singing evangelist and is a dandy. He could have had for a meeting or two this summer. T. H. McCormick, of the Fort Wayne Bible school, addressed the men on the subject "Sifting Men." He is an elder in the V. M. Jefferson Street Church of Christ, and though a busy school man finds time for the Lord's work and says "it is fun." He challenges our men. We also had A. J. Nipper, superintendent of Rescue Work in Fort Wayne. Nipper was at one time a railroad engineer and was known as the "parson engineer."

l to the men square out from the shoul-
It was a good meeting.

The evening meeting was in charge of lay-
This meeting was pronounced a success.
B. HOuze, Kendallville, Ind.

At a meeting of men held here Sunday last under direction of the Busy Men's Bible Class, William Ross
leingsburg, Ky.
pastor, a collection was taken to for-your movement, $4.70.—B. S. GRANNIS, leingsburg, Ky.

We observed Conservation
Day and it was a great success.
Prominent men of the town
had charge of the program.
400 present. This has created a desire ing the men for a Brotherhood. We meet Sunday to effect such an organization.—
Loomis, Spencer, S. Dak.

Brotherhood Day was fittingly observed at Hoquiam, Wash. The program suggested in CHRISTIAN MEN was followed in Bible school, church and evening services. Our minister preached a rousing sermon in the evening—"The Advantages of Men in the Church." A special feature was the 6:45 service when thirty Brotherhood men joined with the Senior Endeavor Society and discussed the subject of "Home Missions." At 8 o'clock a chorus of twenty-two voices occupied the seats. A number of five-minute talks by laymen were right to the joint. It was a great service—closing a great day, and much good seed was sown for future gathering.
We may expect to hear more from this group on the shores of the broad Pacific.—V. D.
Phillips, Hoquiam, Wash.

The enclosed order for $1.60 may not look very big, but it was the best our two men and a few boys could do. The day was good—especially the boys.—J. ALBERT Rich, Williams, Cal.

* * *

Brotherhood Pastor Goes as Missionary to Thibet

When the Brotherhood Team Work Campaign struck Buffalo, 300 men gathered in the First Avenue Church for a rousing rally.
The pastor at that time was H. A. Baker.
Now comes announcement signed by Mr. and Mrs. Baker as follows:

TO OUR FRIENDS: In accordance with the word of our Lord that His followers 'make disciples of ALL THE NATIONS, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit,' we feel ourselves blessed in being of those who are to carry the gospel to a nation in 'the region beyond.' We are leaving an appealing need for a greater mission. We are leaving friends for those who are friendless. We are leaving the joy of service here for the greater joy that is set before us. Because others have labored we have been blessed with the comforts of life. Because others have wrought we have known the unsearchable riches of Christ. Since all has been done for us we rejoice to do for others.

'For the same Lord is Lord of all and is rich unto all that call upon Him; how then shall they call on Him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in Him whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher?' By prayer enter with us into the joy of our Lord."—
MR. AND MRS. H. A. BAKER, Batang, P. O.
Tachienlu, via Chung King, West China.

* * *

Conservation Day

We have received more than 57 varieties of announcements issued by our churches throughout the country covering Conservation Day for men and boys. The most of them observed the day on April 28th. In some sections the weather interfered and the day was postponed. We will make an exhibit of these for exhibition at our convention. They will make a very interesting exhibit, to be sure.
They come to us from the Atlantic and from the Pacific, and from every state in the Union; from large churches and small churches; cities, villages and rural churches.
Newspaper clippings by the column have come to us. We will prepare these for exhibit at the Louisville Convention.

* * *

John H. Booth, Field Secretary

JOHN H. BOOTH

When the Brotherhood Movement found itself without a Field Secretary, arrangements were made for other representation at our State Conventions and through the kindness of the Board of Church Extension we are to be represented by John H. Booth, Associate Secretary, at the following Conventions:

Montana, June 12th; North Idaho and East Washington, June 20th; Oregon, June 25th; West Washington, Northern California and Southern California in July.

John H. Booth is an orator par excellence. When he was a student in Drake University a few years ago he won every oratorical contest that he entered. Later he was pastor at Centerville, Iowa, and did a most commendable work as minister of the church. A peculiar thing happened when the Church Extension Board was looking for an assistant to relieve Geo. W. Muckley of some of his multitudinous duties. A letter was addressed to a half dozen of our leading ministers and five of them, located in widely separated sections, recommended John H. Booth as the one man above all others to become Associate Secretary of the Board of Church Extension. He was appointed May 1, 1911, and has made good magnificently. His work has been hard and the tasks irksome and at times unpleasant. He has been going about among churches delinquent on Church Extension loans. Sometimes the minister has left the congregation in bad shape; other times crop failures, strikes and calamities have depleted the congregation and Brother Booth goes into the field, calls the people together, rallies the forces, holds a meeting of a week or two weeks, establishes a minister and incidentally raises a little money to apply on the loan. In numerous instances the congregation has been jubilant, and in no case has Booth's work been unavailing. He knows the value of the individual. In speaking of his experiences, Brother Booth said: "Where I found even one man active and in earnest, my work was easy." Brother Booth will deliver a strong message and we bespeak for him a large and cordial hearing.

* * *

New Supervisor of Home Life

The Missionary Training School of the B. M. of Indianapolis has called Miss Withers, of Lexington, Kentucky, to see head of the home life of the school. Her departments will include the Culinary and Home Departments, etc. It was the expectation to be entertained in the Training School, together with Professor Payne Lawrence, en route to the Conservation Congress in New York.

* * *

New Pastor at Gary, Indiana

The men took dinner at Y. M. C. Ala Friday evening. Twenty of as fine men as ever saw were present. They voted to do the same thing each month. The men are the life of this church. Many of these men are leading business men in this town. Many are university men. We had a great day yesterday. In the morning was the largest crowd in the history of the church. They said more on Dedication Day, and a larger one last night. Two additions yesterday. A fine business man and his wife, by letter. Here is the best opportunity for one of the greatest churches in the Brotherhood. So great is the responsibility that I am entering this work on my knees.

S. W. N.

Have You Read It?

A Letter From a Friend	Page 2
Men and Religion Congress	Page 3
A Specific Task	Page 5
My Friend, J. H. Fillmore	Page 6
Lincoln Campaign	Page 7
Social Survey	Page 9
The Editor Afield	Page 12
Summer Camp for Boys	Page 21
Wireless Whispers	Page 26

Oceans of good matter crowded out again this month.

A Boys' Camp on Chesapeake Bay

BY C. M. WATSON, MINISTER, NORFOLK, VA.

CHAS. M. WATSON

acts. The men of the Freemason Church, of Norfolk, Va., were the men for a Boys' Camp during ten days of last summer. The camp was held on the Government Reservation at Willoughby on the Chesapeake.

The camp list totaled forty-two. There was a regular group of twenty-five boys of 1 to 15 years. Part of these boys came from our Bible School. Eight of them were suggested by the Secretary of the United Charities. One of our aims was to provide a worthy group of dependent boys, and the United Charities was the avenue through which they were procured. On one of the days we entertained the Boys' Home of our city, home with about thirty boys. The Boy Scout aim of the camp gave us some things definite to do, while the regulations which governed the camp were everything according to a definite routine. The camp proved the beginning of the Scout movement in Norfolk. Here the boys learned the Scout law; learned how to tie knots, and swam and ate and did those worth while things natural to a growing boy, enjoying God's out-of-doors. Mr. Williams, chairman of our committee, became scout-master No. 1 of Norfolk and afterward scout commissioner of the city.

2.—Outcome. 1. The men of the church in this way have gotten close to our own boys. We found their hearts in God's out-of-doors, where a boy's heart is usually found.

2. We helped the dependent boys of our own community, and they were a revelation to us. We discovered some newsboys worth while. We learned how easily an unruly boy responds to the Big Brother idea.

3. We made a contribution to the community. Of our over 100 registered visitors many were business men. Many of these men are interested in the Boy Scout movement, which is having a large place in the Boys' Work of our community. Our work was the first work distinctly of this character for boys and proved to be the starting for this work in our city.

4. We were liberally advertised by the newspapers. They sent their own photographer and gave us such advertising as the church has not gotten since the International Convention held here in 1907. Working through the United Charities, being the hosts of the Boys' Home, these and other matters of necessity related us in a visible and happy way to the welfare interests of the community.

OBSERVATIONS.

Among the big things which call in these days it has come to our men that here is a challenge for a new chivalry: a call on the chivalrous nature of Christian men which, asleep, needs arousing in behalf of the chivalrous age of a boy's life. All a boy asks for is a square deal: take him as he is. He is entirely deserving of sympathy: get under his rough exterior. He appeals for guidance: go with him as a friend and chum.

Child-Wife Evil

Census Bares Barbarity of Revolting Custom

A reform movement is sweeping among that unprogressive of all the great sects of the East, the Hindus of India.

The story, despite its Oriental origin, is no Arabian Nights phantasy, but merely a plain statement of a labor that is destined to work benefit to a race of people more numerous than the combined population of America and England.

The evils—even the atrocities—of the degenerate Hinduism of the present day are numerous, but the Indian Government, in pursuance of what is politically wise, but often humanly neg-lectful, policy of non-interference with native customs, has only taken measures to eradicate the most flagrant of them.

Child Marriage Greatest Evil

An evil affecting a large number of people, that of child marriage, has been left practically alone by the Indian Government. It is true that the age of consent has been raised to 12 years, with a heavy penalty attached for infraction, but so averse are the Hindus to giving testimony against one another in matters of this kind, and so reluctant is the Indian Government to allow its agents to penetrate behind the closely drawn screen of the zenana—the general term for the women's quarters—that the law is practically a dead letter.

The cold, dispassionate pages of the last Government census showed astounding figures regarding child marriage amongst the Hindus. There were 10,507 baby girls under 1 year old, 258,760 girls under 4, 2,201,404 girls from 5 to 6, and 6,016,759 girls from 10 to 14 married to men of all ages.

By law none of these child wives may take up family relations until they are 12 years old. In practice this law is disregarded at any time the husband and the parents of the child come to an agreement. Outside the unspeakable inhumanity of this custom quite as great, if not a greater, wrong is wrought in the infliction of the hideous state of Hindu widowhood upon children who may never have seen their husbands nor realized the meaning of their marriage ties.

Widows in Pitable Condition

Here again are Government census figures showing the children, who, through no act of violation of their own, are left in so pitiable condition of neglect and semi-slavery that the banned custom of attaining quick surcease at a husband's funeral pyre might be deemed merciful in comparison.

There were in India when the census was taken 859 widows 1 year old, 1,039 of 1 to 1,886 of 2 to 3, 3,732 of 3 to 4, 8,180 of 4 to 7, 78,407 of 5 to 10 and 227,367 from 10 to 15.

Child marriage, outside of its nameless inhumanities, is striking at the mental and physical vigor of the race in bringing into the world a large number of offspring of immature mothers, feeble in mind and body.

A Practical Combination

Loyal Men's Class and the Brotherhood Club, Davenport, Iowa

BY S. M. PERKINS, MINISTER.

(The man who named the Brotherhood.)

S. M. PERKINS

This class is a combination of the B. D. C. Club and Loyal Men. They both have the same officers and same committees. One is just as important as the other. They are a combination of Loyal B. D. C. Club Christian Men. They have their monthly business meetings at the same time and are doing a wonderful lot of real home missionary work.

There were 320 men present on Easter Sunday. The group is fine. We now have a tent for them to meet in; as there were so many men we crowded the women and the children so they could not do good work. We had 806 in the Bible School.

The size and growth of this group is the marvel of the city. We have more men attending our school than there are men, women and children in many of the Bible schools of the city. In fact, this group is twice as large as the attendance of our entire school was four years ago. They are the best boosters in the United States. All classes of men are represented. We are now thinking of establishing a labor bureau in connection with the class. We have the finest opportunity of any class I know of owing to the many classes of men in our group, from the busy business man to the day laborer.

Dr. L. W. Struble is the superintendent of our school, and he is a booster. C. F. Gensler is the president of the class. He is manager of a large department store and always has the class at heart. If he is in New York City, which he often is, buying goods, the Loyal Men and the B. D. C. Club hear on Sunday by night letter a cheering word. D. C. Eldridge is the secretary and L. Thulin treasurer. Last Sunday's offering was over $80; no man was allowed to give over $1, as we were dedicating our tent. They took the offering in three minutes after the pastor asked them for no over $1 each. Prof. C. H. Bright of the high school, is the teacher and the men frequently cheer him as he teaches the Word of God and talks of the Man of Galilee.

Davenport has an unsavory reputation over the state, but we have the largest men's class in the state and they are substantial. If we do not build a church by the time fall snow flies I fear bad results. Our people are working on the problem, but owing to some difficulties years ago they are a little slow. We have both insurgents and standpatters in our class of men. According to the definition I heard the other day, an insurgent is one who gets started and can't stop, and a standpatter is one who has stopped and can't start.

Editor's Note—The photograph of this class and club combined came to hand along with the above article. The picture was so large we could not run it in Christian Men, excepting in sections, and this would be unsatisfactory from every standpoint. We are retaining the photo along with photographs of a multitude of other groups which we may decide to publish in a souvenir album which we have under consideration.

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR JUNE.

No. 2.

PIC—Christian Literature (The Use of the Bible).

Devotional.

Hymn, "Day is Dying in the West," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 45.

Prayer—By Layman.

Scripture reading, II Tim. 2:1-15.

Music, quartet, "The Church in the Wilderness," No. 54.

Cultural.

Address: The Use of the Bible in the Home.

(a) Daily readings, at family altar, at the morning meal.

(b) Regular and careful preparation of the Bible School lesson.

(c) The Bible not a fetish to be worshiped, but a library to be used.

Address: The Use of the Bible in the Bible School.

(a) The place of the Bible in the Bible School.

(b) The relation of "Lesson Helps" to a well conducted Bible School.

(c) No intrinsic value in "showing your Bibles" if they are not used in the school.

(d) How our Bible should be used in our schools.

Address: The Use of the Bible in the Public Schools.

(a) A brief history of the Bible in the public schools.

(b) The influence that succeeded in driving it from the public schools. Why?

(c) The Bible should be read in the public schools because—

(1) It contains the best literature on earth.

(2) Because it has been the greatest force in civilization.

(3) No one's education is complete without it.

(4) It is the fountain head of morals.

III.—Business.

Roll-call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members and visitors.

Silver offering.

Hymn, "Blest be the Tie That Binds."

Benediction.

PROGRAM FOR JULY.

No. 1.

PIC—Religious Journalism.

Devotional.

Prayer.

Male Chorus, "Going Down the Valley," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 53.

Scripture reading, Timothy 2:1-8.

Hymn, "We're Tenting Tonight," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 49.

Cultural.

Address: A Religious Paper in Every Home.

(a) Its value; 1, to the home; 2, to the church.

(b) A religious literature committee in every men's organization.

Address: The Relation of the Religious Press to the Success of the Modern Church.

(a) Is it possible for this church to come to its best in and of itself?

(b) The daily educates the individual away from the church. Naught but the religious journal will counteract.

Address: Special Literature for Special Work.

(a) Women's Journals, Men's Journals, Y. P. S. C. E. Papers, etc.

(b) The best way to use our Bible School literature.

III.—Business.

Roll-call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

New members received.

IV.—Special and Closing.

Offering.

Every one meet every one.

Hymn, "His Truth is Marching On," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 47.

Benediction.

Say you saw it in "Christian Men"

What is News

News consists of unusual things, mostly things that should never happen, wrecks, strikes, deaths, and democratic victories.—Republican Paper.

Civilization in Minnesota

The Jersey cows of Minnesota refuse to give down their milk if the barn is not lighted with electricity, and Caruso sings to them while the maid is doing the milking.

Arithmetic or Sheep, Which?

Teacher: "Johnny, if there were ten sheep in a field and one of them jumped over the fence, how many would be left?"

Johnny: "There woudn't be any left."

Teacher: "Oh, yes, there would be nine left."

Johnny: "Well, you may know arithmetic, but you don't know sheep."

How's That For High?

Hans: "Fritz, do you see dot steeple up dare?"

Fritz: "Yah, what about id?"

Hans: "How's dot for high?"

(Three minutes later.)

Fritz: "Jake, do you see dot steeple up dare?"

Jake: "Yah, whad about id?"

Fritz: "Vell, aboud how high is dot?"

Too Much Said

A Swede story from the Sedgwick Pantagraph: "The story is told that a Swede was courting his girl one night and overcome by the tender passion asked her to marry him. She readily consented, after which both were silent for a long time. Finally the girl asked Olie why he didn't say something. He replied: "I tank der bane too much said already."

Both in the Same Boat

An Omaha Irishman met a Buffalo Irishman in Chicago, and after painting up the windy city found their way to the railway station and boarded a suburban train. Pat struck a jovial vein.

"Mike," said he, "this is the day of inventions. Here we are both on the same train, both in the same seat. You are going to Buffalo and I'm going to Omaha."

A Suitable Substitute

A member of congress was detained in Washington by an extended session of congress and unable to fill an appointment to lecture before an Ohio chautauqua, the managers of the affair engaged a flying machine to fill the congressman's place, and the attendance broke the year's record. Query: What is the difference between a member of congress and a flying machine?

The Sense of Smell

A country lad and his best girl drove into the city to see the circus. While awaiting the coming of the parade, they sat in the buggy adjacent to the popcorn wagon.

"My, but that corn smells good," the fair one remarked.

"Well, if you'd like to smell it better I'll drive a bit closer," rejoined her companion.

Marie Tempest's Nose

At a Lenten musicale at the Waldorf-Astoria a young matron related a bonmot of Marie Tempest.

"Miss Tempest's nose is frightfully pug, isn't it?" she began. "Well, I met her at a tea once and joked about her nose as if it had belonged to some one else."

"'When the Creator,' she said, 'was looking for a nose for me he took, you see, the first one that turned up.'"—Minneapolis Journal.

Fooling the Lord

"Mother," teased a little boy of five, "does God know everything I'm going to do before I do it?"

"Yes, dear, everything," she said.

"Well, does he know that I'm going upstairs a minute and put on my pajamas and say my prayers and get into bed?"

"Yes, dear, he knows everything."

"Well, tonight he's going to get fooled, for I'm not going to say my prayers."—St. Louis Republic.

Yesterday's Train

The late Samuel Spencer, President of the Southern Railway, shortly before his death journeyed to Atlanta on the crack train of that road. Arriving at the Georgian city, Mr. Spencer pulled out his watch and was delighted to find the train on time to the minute. He sought out the engineer and complimented him highly, at the same time tendering a ten-dollar bill as a reward of merit. Imagine the surprise of Mr. Spencer when the engineer, in declining the reward, said:

"Excuse me, Mr. President, but this is yesterday's train."

Spring Has Come Again Once More

How do I know that? Because the robins and blue birds are singing in the treetops, just as they did last spring, and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that.

Spring has come again once more.

How do I know that? Because my neighbor's chickens are scratching in my new garden, just as they did last spring, and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that.

Spring has come again once more.

How do I know that? Because I've got a bad cold, just as I had last spring and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that, and the spring before that.—Selected.

Why Allow Your Boy to Join a Boys' Summer Camp?

BY CHAS. B. HAHN.

When the weather is warm and the days are long then comes the time when boys want to seek the shady nooks and the dry streams. Camping out time is near, oh, how the heart of the boys thrill when someone says, "Let's go camping." Haven't you heard that call some time? Haven't you dreamed that you were a boy again?

Another Earth will not hurt the boys. A little dirt on a boy's face or clothes will not make him less a man. Let him live close to the ground and he will be a better boy. The freedom of the woods, the birds, the trees, God's big open doors, makes a boy a real man. Every boy wants and likes to play Indian. One day, sure, all that kind of dirt will wash off. A little soap makes face and hands clean again. The sad part of some kinds of dirt is that it will not wash off because it is in the heart. What if a boy does get some dirt on him when he climbs into a hay loft, or runs, or in taking long walks? What if he wants to go camping and roughs it? That kind of dirt will rub off.

At one of the camps we had a boy come to live with us who was what the boys are wont to call a "mamma's boy." He would not play with the other boys and play ball or run into any of their sports, but sat down under the trees and talked or went into the house and played on the piano. One day, however, for some unaccountable reason, he went to play ball when one of the boys asked him to take another fellow's place. It was not until he was in the game, and every day thereafter that he played with the boys. One day his mother came out to see him. When she saw him she threw up her hands in horror. His pants and waist were soiled.

"My, what have you been doing?" she asked. "Having a good time," he answered. "Mamma, I never had such a good time before."

"You had better come home with me and get some clean clothes and then you can come back."

"No," he answered; "I am to play this afternoon and I cannot leave. You bring them when you come next time."

She let him stay after I had talked to her awhile. The boys had been calling him Patsy, but when he developed into a good ball player they cut the name to Pat, and when the boy went home he was one of the most popular boys in the camp. His father said that he could not pay for what his boy had learned at the camp. "I've got a boy now," he said.

Mothers sometimes forget that a boy cannot have a good time all dressed up in his good clothes.

It does not take long to destroy a soul when a boy is allowed to run the streets at night, run to the theaters and gang with older boys. What good is it for the schools to lay down the principles of physiology and right living when at every turn the city's walls contradict such teachings in rainbow colors? What use is there to warn the boy that nicotine and alcohol are bad for him so long as the city allows the old houses and billboards to be covered with dazzling invitations to smoke and to drink? Let a boy get this dirt on him and nothing but the cleansing power of Christ can wash it off. Parents seem to use every precaution to keep their boys from being physically hurt, but never make any provision to look after the moral and spiritual welfare of the boys.

HARDSHIPS CAMP JOYS

Boys are allowed to run to moving picture shows and to run with gangs that are sending them to the devil, yet some parents are afraid to let their boys have an outing in the woods with a good leader. Let the boys get the dirt of the camp on them. Sunburn and tan, tired limbs, sometimes sleepy and having to lie on the hard ground—all this is good for the boy if he is in good health. Let him rough it—he will thank you for it some day. It is good for a boy to be homesick some time; it makes him appreciate home more. When summer comes and your boy wants to go with a party to some lake or stream, let him go and see if he doesn't come home a better, bigger and a cleaner boy.

City Number Next

While the attention of our people is being drawn to conditions in rural districts, "Christian Men" in July will direct your thoughts and attention to some of the problems of the City. There will not be an idle line in July "Christian Men."

DON'T MISS IT!

Impossible to Fool Boys

Problem One For The Parents

BY H. W. GIBSON, SECRETARY BOYS' DEPT. MASS. Y. M. C. A.

The boy has been given five million muscles and nerves to keep him busy doing something. The boy is 50 per cent noise and 50 per cent dirt, and he's being condemned for both. As a matter of fact, he is the happiest when he's romping about and yelling, and most uncomfortable when he is cleaned up.

The church is just beginning to realize that boys are more valuable than carpet. We have been condemning the boy because he didn't clean his shoes before he came in church. It is cheaper to buy carpet than to waste boys and drive them away from the Sunday-school. And this is exactly what we are doing, for seventy-four out of every one hundred boys leave the Sunday-school before they are twenty years old. Isn't there some relation between this fact and the one that 70 per cent of men in our penal institutions are under the voting age?

Boys Are Imitators

The boy problem is the problem of harnessing the energies of the youth, of training and developing his body and mind away from environment and conditions which make criminality possible. The real boy is an imitator; he is a hero worshiper, and what men do makes a greater impression upon his mind than what you tell him. If there is something in you that appeals to even one boy, you are molding his character. Some men try to fool the boy. That's impossible and it's foolish for the father to tell his son to quit smoking cigarettes when he himself has a cigar in his mouth.

The boy's problem is a parent's problem. Fathers should become confidants of their sons and teach them the things about life that they should know when they are boys. Ninety per cent of the boys receive their knowledge of the fundamental facts of life from companions in the street instead of from their fathers. With this situation, the wonder is not that so many young men go wrong but that so few go right.

I hope the time will never come when sex instruction is made a part of our public school system; when boys and girls receive this important information from a paid teacher.

The instruction of boys in the vital conditions of life is a thing for parents and the business of the church to arouse the parents to this responsibility. There should be no delegated authority. Arrangements should be made for a meeting of all the fathers in the church and some Christian physician should address them on the question and show them when and how to present the matter to their sons. Similar meetings should be held for mothers and the church should see to it that such gatherings are arranged.

Boys in the Sunday-school who are more than 12 years old should have a man teacher. That period is the pre-adolescent and the boy's nature demands men teachers in whom he can confide. Before the boy is 12 years old women teachers are the most successful, after that rule.

Give the boys something to do. Don't fill them full of preaching when they are too young to be interested. Let them take part in some Sunday-school activity, and as they grow older they will gradually become interested.

One of the curses of American athletics today is that there are too many roomers and not enough players. Why, it's a common thing to see several thousand men in a grandstand watching nine or eleven others getting exercise. In England they don't do that, but here in America we haven't got time.

The boys' department of the Sunday-school ought to harness the boys' energy, eliminate undesirable habits, develop latent ability, mold Christian character and train the boys for service.

The Gang Spirit

BY CHAS. B. HAHN.

A gang is a group of boys who play and run together, whose sympathies, likes and dislikes are very much the same. The word "gang" does not imply a group of boys who are mischievous and vicious, but applies to any group organized into a club or society. A gang can be good. The gang instinct which we find in men started when they were boys.

Men were born with a desire for association and we must not blame the boy if he acquires it early. The boy in the adolescent age soon realizes that he is weak when alone and strong when with others. He gangs up to make himself stronger and for association it is with his gang that he finds his place. The boy in the gang age never goes out alone.

of his fun is found in his chums, and he finds his place among the members of the gang so he will find his position in life.

GANG LAWS Gang laws are based upon principles of right as the boy understands the right. All laws are unwritten, but they are none less powerful. Their code of honor may be like older people would have, yet the one who disobeys is held in contempt.

One should not try to get the boy to "snitch" his gang, but tell him to get out of the gang that is bad. "De gang," as they say, can be used to serve the good as well as the bad.

The congregating of boys means more than just getting together for association. We know that just as soon as boys get together something must be doing. The first question boys usually ask when in a crowd is, "What shall we do, fellows?" The real object of the gang is to have fun, and the boys meet in vacant lots, in sheds, shanties and places to have a good time.

CORNER GANG "Mamma, please let me go over on the corner for just an hour," pleaded the boy one evening. His mother, thinking of other parents let their boys go, and not knowing that over on that corner her boy would meet the gang that during that one hour would fill her boy's mind full of all that vile and low, let him go with just one caution, "Be sure and be home in one hour." "Yes, mamma," and he was gone, never to return as pure in thought. If that mother or father could have seen their boy as he listened to the stories and could they have looked into his heart that evening when he kissed them good night, they would have been forever sorry that they let him go for that one hour.

PARLOR GANG How much better to have invited some of his friends into the parlor, and if need be play with them or entertain them with stories where men were heroes in defending truth and purity. But the boy did not tell what he heard on the corner and he is considered a good boy. As time goes on he goes to the corner frequently without asking and sometimes went home and bed without the good-night kiss, because in his heart there was an accusing conscience. Boys cannot be raised in glass houses, so the parents must keep the confidence of the boys. The corner gang is usually made up of a variety of ages of boys, from 8 to 20. The younger fellows are being trained to take the places of the older boys' places. The corner gang is a school where many an innocent youth first hears of the underworld and where many times he first enters in to doing deeds of crime.

How One Gang Was Changed

The boys met in an old barn and did there what boys usually do when left to themselves, getting into all kinds of mischief. There they met day after day and night after night or on the corner near by. Sometimes they loafed around the corner grocery. Some members of this gang were in the habit of getting the smaller boys of the neighborhood and smearing tar on them. One evening these boys broke into a store and took tobacco, candy and the change that had been left in the till. A lady who lived in the neighborhood came to see me one day shortly after the store had been robbed and said: "You are always telling folks how boys play square. I wish you would come down and see what you can do for the boys near my home."

I went down and we visited the homes of these boys. Some mothers seemed glad that someone was taking an interest in their boys, while others were indifferent, saying: "Well, if my boy wants to go to the meeting you are going to hold it's all right with me, but I can't make him go."

We met for the first time at the lady's home who had first come to me. There were fifteen boys present. I told them what I knew about them, but that I did not care to know just what boys had broken into the store. I told them that if they wanted to lie, swear and smoke cigarettes and do other things that were wrong their chance in life would be small, but if they wanted to be square and try to do the right I would help them in every way. All the boys but one said they would try to do right. I asked him why he didn't want to do what the other fellows were going to do and he answered that he smoked cigarettes and didn't think that he could stop, but that if we would give him a chance he would try. We gave him a chance. He came back the next week, saying: "I didn't think it would be so easy."

"I could have told you that last week, Carl, but I knew you would have to find it out yourself before you would believe it."

The leader of this gang was made president and today, after three years, there is not a better boy in that town.

Following is an extract from a letter written to the author by a member of this gang:

A BOY'S LETTER "I tell you we certainly all do appreciate what you have done for us. We certainly are glad that you organized our club. If you had left here before you had organized our club we would all undoubtedly be out in the dark, roaming through life trying to gain some idea of higher life and most likely doing worldly things. I tell you, the most of us have good homes, but we get out and see other fellows and learn what they do, and the first thing we know we are adrift. Oh, I tell you we certainly thank you for teaching us this great game of playing square and teaching us to get into the game right."

SUNDAY BASE-BALL Three weeks after the club was organized one of the mothers asked me to tell the boys that they could not play ball on Sunday. I told her that I would not do it. She was very much surprised and asked me if I believed in Sunday base-ball. I answered her that it did not matter so much what I believed, but more what the boys would do about it. I told her that I would bring the matter before the boys at their next meeting and see what the boys would do. At the next meeting I told the boys what the mother had told me.

One boy got up and said that he could see no harm in playing catch on Sunday. Another said he could see no harm if they played a regular game, if they did not cheat or swear or smoke. After several had expressed their opinions in favor of the game, one boy got up and said: "When we started this club we said we would play fair with parents, and it seems to me that if we play ball when our mothers don't want us to do so we are not playing square. I move, Mr. President, that we do not play base-ball on Sunday." It was seconded and passed and the boys did not play base-ball on Sunday any more.

If I had told them that they could not play they probably would have done it anyway, but because the gang said "No" they did not dare to disobey. Get the gang spirit to work for you and you can make the boys help save themselves. I believe in preaching for something rather than against a thing.

CATCHING A LEADER

One time I was on an investigating trip for the Juvenile Court in Salt Lake City when I stopped in front of a grocery store where a gang of boys had gathered. I asked the grocery man who was standing in the door if these were all the boys that were in the habit of gathering there and he answered, "Just ask that 'kid' there to whistle."

I turned to the boy who was pointed out and said, "Whistle, will you?" Putting his fingers to his mouth he gave out a sharp whistle that re-echoed from the neighboring hills, and in a few minutes some twenty boys had answered that call. I knew that he was the leader of that crowd.

"What do you do around here at night?" I asked him.

"Oh, play under the electric light on the corner. Sometimes we meet under the viaduct and tell stories and smoke."

I told them of a better way and so a few weeks the "Sixteenth Ward Boosters Club" was organized.

Some few weeks after the club was organized I went down to see the grocery man and I asked him what he thought about the boys since they had changed their way somewhat.

"Well," he said, "I'll tell you. It used to be that all the fellows talked about was what they had seen at the shows or what they could do when they got out at night, but now they are forever talking about baseball and about that club. It's a good thing, that is what I say about it."

Use the gang, use the gang leader and the gangs will disappear.

After the Gang had been Trained to Govern Themselves. A Portion of Election Day Parade

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

LESSON 2—JUNE 9.

HEARING AND DOING.

TEXT—Luke 6:39-49. GOLDEN TEXT—Jas. 1:22.

39 And he spake also a parable unto them, in the blind guide the blind? shall they not all fall into a pit? 40 The disciple is not above his teacher: but every one when he is perfected shall be as his teacher. 41 And why holdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? 42 Or how canst thou say unto thy brother, Brother, let me cast out the mote that is in thine eye, when thou thyself holdest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye, and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote that is in thy brother's eye. 43 For there is no good tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit; nor again corrupt tree that bringeth forth good fruit. For each tree is known by its own fruit. Nor of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of aamble bush gather they grapes. 45 The good man out of the good treasure of his heart bringeth forth that which is good; and the evil man out of the evil treasure bringeth forth that which is evil; for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaketh. 46 And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say? 47 Every one that cometh unto me, and heareth my words, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like: 48 he is like a man building a house, who digged and went deep, and laid a foundation upon the rock; and when a flood arose, the stream brake against that house, and could not shake it: because it had been well builded. But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that built a house upon the earth without a foundation; against which the stream brake, and straightway it fell in; and the ruin of that house was great.

The great sermon is drawing to a close. As precepts follow precepts, parables follow parables, and application is made after application, the people listen in breathless silence. It was all so startlingly new and refreshing. Its truths were so simple and vital. When the last word was spoken and the multitude began to disperse, people were saying, "Marvelous sermon," "We never heard it like this," "This differs from the parrot talk of our scribes," "He speaks as one having authority." Perhaps no part of that sermon has a more vital relation to present-day needs than these closing sentences. They urged the need of enlightened, intelligent leadership. They preach the gospel of consistency. They present the test of fruit bearing and they call upon the listening multitudes to build upon the sure foundation of obedient discipleship. Since the reading of this sermon thrills our hearts, what must have been its effect upon the multitude who felt the glow of spiritual fervor with which it was spoken?

Peril from Blind Leaders. The figure here used is drawn from a familiar oriental incident. It is no uncommon sight, even now, we are told, to see the blind groping their way along and even trying to guide each other over Eastern highways. Its application is equally familiar in modern experience. There perhaps never was a time in the history of the world when so many have aspired to leadership who are themselves blind. Prejudice, self-interest, materialism, sophistry have blinded them to the teachings of Him who was the way, the truth, and the life. Adrift from the King's Highway, they imagine they are on the road to enduring life, and are asking others to follow them to their own destruction. Scarcely a month passes but some new cult springs up born of a diseased fancy, and it never fails to secure a following from those as blind as itself. Just now a new prophet from Persia, the self-proclaimed discoverer of a universal religion, is passing through the leading cities of America and leaving groups of deluded disciples wherever he can secure a hearing. In the lesson which follows today, Jesus has given us the test by which the worthfulness of any system may be determined and that is the ripened fruit which it produces, its power to withstand the storms of time. Thus far every effort to lead men away from the plain path which Jesus trod has proven its leaders criminally blind.

The Beam in Your Own Eye. To catch the Teacher's meaning as He speaks of the "mote" and "beam" we must go back to Matthew's report of the sermon. What was he talking about when he introduced this figure? Oh, it was uncharitable judgment. "With what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged." Then follows "Why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye?" Let us see if we can discover this man's "beam." No faults of the usual kind can be found, perhaps. He is sober, chaste, punctual in church attendance, honorable in his business relations, but is utterly lacking in charity in his judgment of others. He has fallen into a miserable spirit of criticism. He is always finding fault with somebody else. It has never occurred to him that slander is a deadlier sin than the faults he condemns. His uncharitable spirit is the "beam," compared with which the fault he condemns may be a mere "mote." It is the disposition to judge others by different standards from those by which we judge ourselves. It is another form of blindness—blind to one's own faults. Jesus does not use soft terms in characterizing this fault,—“Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye.” If there were fewer beams, there would perhaps not be so many motes.

Known by Their Fruits. The test applied in this condensed parable of Jesus is, in the end, the test of systems and doctrine, as well as trees and vines. "By their fruits ye shall know them." It was by this test that Gamaliel was willing to settle the claims of the newly-founded Christian faith,—“If it is of God, ye will not be able to overthrow them.” When some one said to Wendell Phillips that Hinduism was as good as Christianity, he replied, “India is the answer.” The same test may be applied to all non-Christian faiths. Mohammedism and Confucianism as well as Hinduism have borne as their fruits the ignorance of the masses, the slavery of woman, and the degradation of society. Not only may the test be applied to religions and nations, but to methods and individuals. “The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, kindness, etc.” The value of a man's religion must be measured by its fruitage. Jesus compared a good man to a good tree and a bad man to a bad tree, and then “goes on to show that what a man is at heart, determines whether he is a good or bad man.” For what he is at heart must in the end determine the fruitage of the man's life. To get the heart right and keep it right a man “must be born again,” and have in him “the mind of Jesus Christ.”

Building On the Rock. We are all builders. Character is a structure we are rearing day by day. But its permanence will not depend on the grace of its adornment, but on the stability of its foundation. Many a life has woven into its structure the outward beauty of culture, but because it is not founded on a deep and abiding loyalty to religious truth it crumbles into ruin before the fierce storms of temptation. Jesus declared that hearing and doing these sayings of mine, a man builds upon a foundation that cannot be shaken. Jesus is the Rock of Ages. Peter's confession made him a “rock-man.” Built upon this foundation the church has survived the attacks of its enemies through nearly twenty centuries.

Faulty Foundations. In contrast are those who are building their lives upon material success, worldly ambitions, temporal pleasures and selfish ends. In our own country about 48,000,000 who have rejected the authority of Christ. Jesus says that in refusing allegiance to Him they are like “A man that built a house upon the earth without foundation. Many a man in the borrowed plumage of a Christian father or mother has seemed a tower of strength, but in an hour of stress when fierce temptations surged around him like a tempest he has fallen in dishonor. Then it was discovered that the foundation was faulty. There was no underlying moral purpose born of a faith in the sustaining power of Christ. Education, culture, refinement as good as the adornments of the temple of life adding charm and beauty, but they are no suitable material for the foundation. On what are you building, my brother? Be sure you have struck rock as you plan your building for eternity. Then be careful to make the superstructure worthy of the foundation.

Arrow Points. None are so blind as those who refuse to see, and none are so unreliable as guides as those who distort the truth to fit their prejudices. V. 39. * * * If uncharitable criticisms were to cease until the eye-beams were removed there would be a millennium in some churches. V. 42. * * * The beauty of the early spring days is the promise of fruitfulness in blossom-laden orchards, but a more satisfying picture is autumn, with boughs bending low with the weight of its ripening fruitage. V. 43. * * * It is a beautiful sight to see one stand in the congregation to confess his Lord, but it is a scene that makes angels rejoice as profession ripens into a life of willing service and Christ-like helpfulness. V. 45. * * *

the hearers were converted into doers, how speedily the Gospel of our Lord would sweep the world. V. 47. * * * It is not the sender of the superstructure, but the strength of foundation that assures the safety of the modern sky-scraper. So it is not the adornments of culture, but the rock-founded conviction that makes possible the enduring life. V. 48.

LESSON 3—JUNE 16.

CHRIST'S WITNESS TO JOHN THE BAPTIST.

TEXT—Matt. 11:2-19. GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 7:28.

Now when John heard in the prison the works of the Christ, he sent by his disciples and said unto him, Art thou he that cometh, or look we for another? 4 And Jesus answered and said unto them, Go and tell John all things which ye hear and see: 5 the blind receive their sight, and the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have good tidings preached to them. 6 And blessed is he whosoever shall find no occasion of stumbling in me.

And as these went their way, Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderness to behold? a reed shaken with the wind? 8 But what went ye out to see? a man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they that wear soft raiment are in kings' houses. 9 But wherefore went ye out? to see a prophet? Yea, I say unto ye, and much more than a prophet. 10 This is he, of whom it is written,

Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, who shall prepare thy way before thee.

11 Verily I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there hath not arisen a greater than John the Baptist: yet he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. 12 And from the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and men of violence take it by force. 13 For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John. 14 And if ye are willing to receive it, this is Elijah, that is to come. 15 He that hath ears to hear, let him hear. 16 But whereunto shall I liken this generation? It is like unto children sitting in the market-places, who call unto their fellows 17 and say, We piped unto you, and ye did not dance; we wailed, and ye did not mourn. 18 For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, He hath a demon. 19 The Son of man came eating and drinking, and they say, Behold, a gluttonous man and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners! And wisdom is justified by her works.

Generous recognition of the worth of others is the mark of a great soul. Little men may become bitter in their rivalries, but great men never. Jesus and John the Baptist were put to the test by the rivalry of their followers. It would have been so easy as the popularity of the one increased and the other waned, for the attitude of one to be marred by arrogance toward the other by jealousy. But the lesson of today shows how great lives meet perplexing situations and how easily they rise above the petty rivalries of lesser men. At the beginning John was the center of attraction and Jesus, with a few fishermen as His followers, pursued His course unnoticed. But now the multitude follow Jesus, while John, abandoned and neglected, languishes in one of Herod's prisons. Before the story ends, however, John's dungeon is luminous with a new faith, and Jesus has paid a most eloquent tribute to one who was worthy of the highest praise.

The Doubts of Believers. John Bunyan was true to human experience when he left Christian, on his pilgrimage to the heavenly city, to languish for a night in Doubting Castle. It was not that he had lost his faith, but his faith needed bracing up. So there came a great crisis in John's life. Fearlessly this fiery preacher of the wilderness had denounced sin. Loyally he had heralded the Lamb of God who was to take away the sin of the world. Courageously he had met Herod's crime with denunciation. And now for months he has languished in the dungeon of Machaerus as the prisoner of the incensed king. It is not strange that this dungeon became for a time a Doubting Castle. Enforced inactivity for one of his nature would breed doubt. Imperfect knowledge of the work being done by Jesus might lead him to question. In this he has not differed from other heroes of faith. Canon Farrar makes this striking comparison: "Savonarola, and Jerome of Prague, and Luther were men whose courage, like that of the Baptist, had enabled them to stand unquailed before any councils and threatening kings. Will any one, in forming an estimate of their goodness and greatness, add one shade of condemnation because of the wavering of the first and of the second in the prison cells of Florence and Constance, or the phantasies of incipient madness which agitated in the castle of Wartburg the ardent spirit of the third?" Whatever the cause or however serious the questioning of John, he did the wisest thing any man can do in his doubt; he went right to Jesus Himself, sending two messengers with the question "Art thou he that cometh or look we for another?" If we would carry all our doubts honestly to Jesus, we would soon be rid of them.

Christ's Cure for Doubt. Jesus never turned an honest doubter away unanswered. He invited inquiry. He presented evidence. He met the doubter on his own ground and sent him away rejoicing in a triumphant faith. His answer to the first two disciples that made inquiry concerning him was, "Come and see." His answer to doubting Thomas was, "Reach hither thy hand and thrust it into my side and be not faithless, but believing." So to John's messengers he said, "Go your way and tell John the things which ye do hear and see." Then followed a demonstration, which only the most willful disbeliever could reject. It was a demonstration that filled in the splendid outlines of Jewish prophecy with which John was familiar. There was miracle and message, the sick healed, the dead raised, the poor taught. How John's narrow prison cell must have enlarged and its darkest corner become radiant with heavenly light, and a calm unwavering trust have filled his soul as the messengers brought back the answer. What more was needed but the headman's ax that was soon to do its work to complete his glorious life? If troubled with doubt today, there is still the unfailing remedy of the victories wrought by the Gospel of Christ.

The Real John. No sooner are the messengers of John out of hearing than Jesus bore eloquent testimony to the worthfulness of this man of God. It was needed just then, lest some might go away with a feeling that John was a weak, vacillating man. "John is no reed," said Jesus, "shaken with the wind." He was not a man of fickle mind easily turned from his purpose. He was no courtier, frequenting the houses of kings. John was a prophet, a great religious teacher and leader. Indeed, in his prophetic office, as the herald of the Messiah, he surpassed all his predecessors. From the whole human race he was chosen to prepare the way for the Messiah, one of the loftiest offices ever filled by man. As declared by Jesus, "Amongst purely human beings there is none greater than John the Baptist." "No brighter star," says Meyer, "shines in the celestial firmament than that of this brief young life."

What Does Jesus Think of You? Since we know what Jesus thought of the young man who bore such an essential part in preparing for His earthly ministry, is it impertinent to ask what He thinks of us? Incidentally He has borne testimony to the real value of a life, however humble, that has attained citizenship in the Kingdom of God. The prophets were great. John was greater than the prophets. "Yet he that is but little in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than he." That is the stamp which Jesus has put upon the true citizen of His kingdom; and that and nothing less should be the goal of every sincere disciple of His word. Canon Farrar, in his sermon on Garfield, says: "The man whom God's grace has made himself true and virtuous, the man who is pure, and brave, and loyal, and watchful, and self-reliant, and diligent, and thorough, and a good soldier, and servant of Jesus Christ, that man is one whom God and man alike will, in the long run, delight to honor."

Hypocritical Faultfinders. The coming of Jesus' disciples and His testimony concerning them furnished Jesus another occasion to set up the hypocritical attitude of Pharisees and lawyers. They had rejected the baptism of repentance preached by John, on the ground that his abstemious life and denunciation of sin marked him as devil-posessed. On the other hand they blamed Jesus for eating and drinking with people and mixing with society. "Behold a gluttonous man and a winebibber, fond of publicans and sinners." In the lesson is presented the honest and dishonest doubter. The honest doubter, like John, seeks to know the truth and goes to the Great Teacher that he may learn. The dishonest doubter, like the Pharisees and lawyers, refuses to hear the truth and trumps up hypocritical excuses for abusing the messenger of God and rejecting the claims of the Gospel. For the one class Jesus always showed the greatest sympathy. For the other He pronounced His most burning sentences of condemnation.

Arrow Points. It is not the fact that we have doubts but our manner of dealing with them that determines our fitness or unfitness for discipleship. V. 3. * * * The man who takes his doubts honestly to Jesus for settlement will come away with a triumph of faith. V. 2. * * * There is still the endurance of the things we see and hear, the modern triumphs of Christianity, the world's moral regeneration going on, the uplift of the Gospel as proof of the Messiahship of Jesus. V. 4. * * * An unanswerable argument for the claims of our Christ, and that we must not lose sight of, is to see that our church does not neglect to preach the Gospel to the poor. V. 5. * * * We are still blinded by the glare and glitter into taking notoriety for greatness, and overlooking the little one who, as citizen of the Kingdom of Heaven, Jesus pronounces greatest of all. V. 11. * * * When a man has made his mind to reject the claims of truth, he easily distort piety into hypocrisy and Christian charity into insincerity, and blindly pursue his downward career. V. 19. * * *

LESSON 4—JUNE 23.

THE PENITENT WOMAN.

TEXT—Luke 7:36-50. GOLDEN TEXT—I Tim. 1:15.

36 And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with them. And he entered into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. 37 And behold, a woman who was in the city, a sinner; and when she knew that he was sitting at meat in the Pharisee's house, she brought an alabaster cruse of ointment 38 and standing behind at his feet, weeping she began to wet his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment. 39 Now when the Pharisee that

When he saw it, he spake within himself, saying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have perceived who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, that she is a sinner. 40 And Jesus answering, said unto him, Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Teacher, say on. 41 A certain lender had two debtors: the one owed him a hundred shillings, and the other fifty. When they had not wherewith to pay, he forgave them both. Which of them therefore loveth him most? 43 Simon answered and said, He, I suppose, to whom he forgave the most. And he said unto him, Thou hast rightly judged. 44 And turning to the woman, he said unto Simon, Seest thou this woman? I entered into thy house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath wetted my feet with her tears, and wiped them with her hair. 45 Thou gavest me no kiss; but she, since the time I came in, hath not ceased to kiss my feet. 46 My head with oil thou didst anoint; but she hath anointed my feet with ointment. 47 Wherefore I say unto thee, Her sins, which are many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, she loveth little. 48 And he said unto her, Thy sins are forgiven. 49 And they that sat at meat with him began to say within themselves, Who is this that even forgiveth sins? 50 And he said unto the woman, Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace.

Jesus was the universal friend. He ate with publicans and sinners. He befriended the poor. He accepted the hospitality of the rich. He was as much the Savior of the one as the other. He arose above all class and caste distinctions. All needed Him. None could get along without Him. He came to save all. It is this characteristic of Jesus that has commanded Him to men of every rank and station through all the ages. He stands at the door of every heart, ready to be admitted. He accepts all invitations. He gives every man a full chance to enjoy the salvation He offers. He goes more than half way to meet the sinner. If the church is to in any large way contribute to the triumph of the Kingdom of God today, it must follow His example.

In the Pharisee's House. For the time Jesus was the center of public interest. When He came to a village or town everybody thronged the street along which He passed, or to the home where He was entertained, to see and to hear Him. So popular and distinguished a teacher was sure to attract the attention of the influential as well as the rabble. It was this that led a rich Jew, with patronizing air, to invite Jesus to dine with him, and accept of the invitation, He entered into the Pharisee's house and sat down to meat. The social standing of his guest, a peasant teacher, led the Pharisee to overlook the customary civilities of good society. He probably reasoned that the young teacher, springing from the ranks of poverty and toil, was not accustomed to them and would not miss them. If it had been a rich brother rabbi who was to be entertained the whole tedious round of courteous ceremony would have been observed. With apparent indifference Jesus overlooks His host's neglect until the occasion presents itself that He can drive home a needed lesson.

The Unwelcome Guest. Uninvited, and at first unnoticed, a strange woman from the street found her way into the home where Jesus was being entertained. It was not a breach of oriental custom that a stranger should look on while the company ate. But it was an audacious thing for one of her reputation and character to enter a respectable home. Why did she come? She evidently had heard His wondrous words, breathing the promise of forgiveness for the penitent. Perhaps she had heard the story of the prodigal son and "she was the prodigal daughter, who longed to find her way back to the Father's house." That she knew the Teacher and His compassion for such as she, accounts for her boldness in braving criticism and rebuff and throwing herself at His feet as a suppliant for mercy. She had meant to pour her ointment on Jesus' feet, "but before she can open her casket her heart opens and tears fall so abundantly as to wet His feet, inflicting an indignity where she had meant an honor. With a touch she looses her hair, which it was a shame to let down in public, and with the ingenuity and abasement of love makes it a towel." But the scene which should have touched any sincere heart with compassion only fortified the unbelief of the self-righteous Pharisee. "This man," thought he to himself, "if He were a prophet, would have perceived who and what manner of woman this is." It is a marvelous tribute to the purity of Jesus that even this scorner did not insinuate any improper relation between them.

Love's Sacrifice. "She brought an alabaster casket of ointment." The treasure here offered is beautifully expressed by Sir Edwin Arnold in "The Light of the World:"

"The costliest thing she owned, Holding much precious spikenard, subtly pressed
From flowers and root of delicatest growth."

Transmuted into modern coin, this act of penitent devotion involved a loss of some three hundred dollars. The act reported by another devoted follower of Jesus, at a later period, called forth a protest as useless waste by one who measured worth by the cold, calculating standard of the modern commercial world. But as the expression of the sacrifice of love for One whose love was infinite, its value could no more be measured than space and eternity. Where real love reigns no token is too precious to express it. The absence of love makes the smallest demand for religion or charity burdensome. That Christ goes begging today for funds to help conquer His world is a stigma upon our profession of love.

The Self-righteous Reproved. The Pharisee reasoned that if Jesus were a prophet He would have known the character of the woman kneeling at His feet and would have reproved her. Jesus accepts the intended test of His prophetic power by perceiving and answering Simon's unspoken thoughts and rebuking him instead. Tactfully making His approach through a parable that dealt with a familiar circumstance He uncovers the Pharisee's heart, reveals him in his true character and holds him up to the withering scorn of even those who only make pretense to good form. In a few sharp contrasts He shows that she was the real hostess, while his was the part of the intruder and stranger. He had failed to pour water over the hot travel-worn feet of his guest. He had withheld the customary kiss. He had neglected the ordinary token of respect in the anointing with oil. On the contrary, this fallen woman supplied all that the host had failed to do. The conclusion, though not expressed in the words of the Master, is self-evident. A man with so little of love and charity in his heart for this lost world can have little hope of his own forgiveness and salvation.

A Saving Faith. The message of the parable was perhaps beyond the comprehension of this sin-stained, uneducated woman. But Christ will not leave the penitent in doubt. It is not enough that in the heart of the Father her sins are pardoned. She must know that forgiveness is hers; so He said unto her, "Thy sins are forgiven," and then to answer the doubt of other guests and the questioning of her own heart, He added "Thy faith hath saved thee; go in peace." And out of the dust and the mire of sin she arose through her penitence and faith by the touch of divine compassion to the glory of redeemed womanhood. A soiled one was picked up along the wayside by one who had caught the spirit of the Master, taken into the home of her sinner, won to a truth in this Friend of Sinners. As she went forth to live her reclaimed life these were her words of gratitude: "I have found mercy as I have been." If there were more like you, there would be fewer such as I have been." If there were more men with Jesus' ideals of purity and chivalry, there would be less need of Florida Crittenden homes and other remedial agencies.

Arrow Points. Jesus knocks alike at the door of prince and peasant, millionaire and toiler, sage and illiterate, and is ready to enter when invited. V. 36. * * * When Jesus enters the heart, whether it be in relation to the dear ones in our home or the dear Lord who died for us, no sacrifice is too great. V. 37. * * * Though the hating Pharisee hounded every step of Jesus' way and enemies have sought every means of bringing His mission into reproach, never has there been a word spoken that in any way reflects on the purity of His relation with the women who ministered to Him or sought His help. V. 39. * * * The modern disposition to give immunity to wrongdoers high up in influence and responsibility finds no encouragement in the example of Jesus, who was as ready to rebuke a rich Pharisee as He was to forgive a poor outcast woman. V. 44. * * * The spirit of the Pharisee, in whose house Jesus died, sometimes expresses its muttering through the modern official board when some poor outcast seeks admission to the church, or some weak disciple has stepped out of the way. V. 49. * * * Jesus would not leave a sinner in doubt regarding his acceptance by God, but through His promise, coupled with a definite act of obedience, has written forgiveness in unmistakable terms. V. 50.

LESSON 5—JUNE 30.

REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 5:17.

17 From that time began Jesus to preach, and to say, Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

For the most part we have been with Jesus on the mountain summit the past quarter. It was one of the mountain peaks of His ministry. In the sublime beauty of His teaching He never rose higher. Later He arose to greater heights in popular favor. The feeding of the multitude marks another climax in His earthly career. But wherever our journeys take us as we follow Him through the pages of these immortal biographies, we must ever return to the mountain sermon for the sublimest ideals of life, the most helpful rules of conduct, and the most satisfying revelation of human worth. It was fitting that the lessons of the quarter should have begun with the Easter lesson. For along with the revelation of His earthly compassion and splendor, we need to be reminded that He still lives, and that He is the same loving, compassionate Christ, "yesterday, today and forever."

The Growing Popularity of Christ. Wherever He goes Jesus' pathway is now beset by multitudes. The throng becomes a hindrance rather than a help to the task He has undertaken. For His real work is to train two men in the principles of the Kingdom, so that when He leaves them they will be prepared for world conquest. But the school is constantly interrupted by sick people who come for treatment, by the neglected who come for sympathy, by the ignorant who come for instruction. They crowd around the homes where He is hospitably received, they throng Him as He travels along streets, they accompany Him in His journeys. As He takes His newly commissioned apostles apart for special instruction before sending them out as His heralds, they follow Him up the mountainside and listen. He gathered His disciples about Him and taught them. In contrast are the empty churches and non-church-going masses of today. Perhaps if Jesus were permitted to give His real message to men now, if His words were taught more simply and naturally, ould be different. Is not the Bible class with growing interest and attendance realizing the y to the hearts of the masses of our time?

The Gathering Opposition. The day the se men from the East looked upon the in- it Jesus there was a sinister face looking er their shoulders, the face of Herod the ng. The spirit that found expression in rod continued to haunt the pathway of us as teacher, in the person of scribe and arisee and Herodian. At first it was mani- t in mild inquiry, then in harsh criticism l bitter opposition, and finally in carefully nned schemes to accomplish his destruction. the beginning of this quarter's lessons they nd fault with Him for petty violations of ir Sabbath traditions; by the end of this od they accused Him of being devil- ssed, and have already determined upon s death at the first opportunity. His popu- lity is both the cause of and hindrance to t accomplishment of this murderous pur- e. In liberating men from their religious anny He enkindled their hatred, but the iversal regard in which He was held by the ple prevented them from any violent attack m His person.

These Saying of Mine. Eight lessons of t quarter have brought before us some part o Jesus' Sermon on the Mount. Never have aompany of men been called to more profit- ae study. What the constitution is to our ntry, the principles enunciated by this ser- m are to the Church of Christ. They are fudamental and essential. To begin with, is t citizen of the kingdom of heaven, the buty of whose character is portrayed in the Btitudes (Matt. 5:1-12) and aggressive mis- s is presented under the figure of light and sa (Matt. 5:13-16). The real wealth and r joy under the constitution is positively pssented in a few bold paradoxes (Luke 6:20-26), and then illustrated by the parable o Dives and Lazarus. The law of the new kdom is love (Luke 6:27-38), which is to spolant the old law of revenge and retalia- ti (Matt. 5:17-26) and finds its fullest ex- pssion in the Golden Rule, "As ye would th men should do to you, do ye also to thn." A kingdom seeking the application of stn ideals must have as one of its essential coier stones truthfulness (Matt. 5:33-37), elminating every element of hypocrisy and mcerity (Matt. 6:1-18). The fitting climax to uch a sermon was the exhortation to obey "these sayings of mine," thus planting the life at its hopes upon the sure foundation and sa guarding the disciple against every earthly storm. Read the Sermon on the Mount over against as a whole. Its ideals transcend all the philosophies of all the ages.

The First Reckoning With Christ. We may well pause here and ask with John, "Art thou He that cometh or look we for another?" Later Jesus takes account of His disciples, asking "Whom do men say that I am?" And until then we must wait for the fullest declaration of His nature and mission as it is revealed by the Spirit to the heart of Peter. But here we have sufficient evidence to dispel doubt and bring the reassurance of faith as it did to the imprisoned John. "The things which you do hear and see" still presents the indestructible foundation of Christian faith and hope. The visible and tangible proofs of His claims are still about us, not just in the way John's disciples saw them, but even more convincing of His divine Sonship and mission. There is the enlightenment and progress of Christian civilization. There is its inspiration to benev- olence seen in splendid institutions that min- ister to every form of human need. There is its power to effect the moral regeneration of the most sinful and loathsome. There is its ministry to the poor and outcast of every nation. When we reflect that this is the uni- form effect of the gospel whenever faithfully preached, need we any further evidence to sus- tain our faith in Jesus as a Divine Savior?

Arrow Points. How pitiful are our specu- lations, criticisms and unbeliefs in the light of the Resurrection! Lesson 1. * * * When men are as conscientious in rendering the service due God on the Lord's day as they are in serving their employer during the rest of the week, Christ will come to His rightful throne as universal Savior. Lesson 2. * * * If every disciple were a light-bearer the dark- est corners of the earth would soon be il- lumined. Lesson 3. * * * On the night of the Titanic disaster, if on board ship after the last life-boat had put out, which would you rather have been, Astor with thirty millions and a blemished character, or the poorest dis- ciple who had the assurance of treasures in heaven? Lesson 5. * * * The danger of procrastination in dealing with soul-interests has been emphasized by a score of disasters on land and sea since the quarter's lessons began, to say nothing about the ravages of disease and plague. Lesson 7. * * * What profit has the study of the life and teachings of Jesus been if it has not found expression in conduct and character, in loyalty and service as true disciples? Lesson 10.

LESSON 1—JULY 7.

MALIGNANT UNBELIEF.

TEXT—Mark 3:20-35. GOLDEN TEXT—Jno. 3:19.

And the multitude cometh together again, so that they could not so much as eat bread. 21 And when his friends heard it, they went out to lay hold on him: for they said, He is beside himself. 22 And the scribes that came down from Jerusalem said, He hath Beelzebub, and, By the prince of the demons casteth he out the demons. 23 And he called them unto him, and said unto them in parables, How can Satan cast out Satan? 24 And if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. 25 And if a house be divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. 26 And if Satan hath risen up against himself, and is divided, he cannot stand, but hath an end. 27 But no one can enter into the house of the strong man, and spoil his goods, except he first bind the strong man; and then he will spoil his house. 28 Verily I say unto you, All their sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and their blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme: 29 but whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin: 30 because they said, He hath an unclean spirit.

31 And there come his mother and his brethren; and, standing without, they sent unto him, calling him. 32 And a multitude was sitting about him; and they say unto him, Behold, thy mother and thy brethren without seek for thee. 33 And he answereth them, and saith, Who is my mother and my brethren? 34 And looking round on them that sat round about him, he saith, Behold, my mother and my brethren! 35 For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother.

It seems strange that a life so busily spent in helping where help was most needed should have awakened antagonism. And yet every real friend of the race has shared in this experience. Washington was hated, misrepresented and maligned. Gladstone had his traducers. Religious leaders and reformers, all of them, have found their paths hounded by snapping curs, when, in some needed service for their fellow men, they have departed from the old beaten highway. A whole chapter might be written on the fate of reformers. Jesus did not escape the common lot, or might I not better say in attempting to do this work we need not expect to escape His lot.

The Penalty of Enthusiastic Service. The consuming zeal of Jesus as He sought to express His burning passion for a sinning world, alarmed even His friends. They said, "He is beside himself." In an age of fossilized indifference they could not understand His enthusiasm for service. The same charge was made against one of His most distinguished followers. "Paul, thou art beside thyself," said the callous-hearted Festus. "Much learning doth make thee mad." The man who is on fire with religious enthusiasm is still sure to be misunderstood and ridiculed. In the early days of his career in Chicago, Dwight L. Moody was known on the streets as Crazy Moody. The missionaries who come back to us, overflowing with zeal and telling marvelous stories of gospel triumphs in pagan lands are often suspicioned of having lost their mental balance. But if the gospel is true, if those who come to Christ are saved, and those who reject Him are lost, who are the crazy,—those who pour out their lives in carrying the good news to their fellow men, or those who, in their mad haste for wealth, or honor, or pleasure, neglect to make provision for the day of reckoning that is sure to come? Who is beside himself, the man who rushes down the street giving the fire alarm, or the man who is so busy gathering up his material effects that he neglects the means of escape and perishes in the burning building?

The Lesson of the Divided Kingdom. The ridicule of friends was soon drowned by the misrepresentation of enemies. Not satisfied with the mild imputation of an unbalanced mind, they shout, "He is devil-possessed, driven out by the prince of devils." The accusation was unfortunate. If true, it meant the breaking up of Satan's domain, for "if a kingdom be divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand." Satan has always been too wise to endanger his dominion by the tolerance of any such act of folly. The power of constituted evil in all ages has been in solidarity. The liquor traffic, the social vice, the gambling interests all work together in every community for mutual protection and conquest. If for a moment they would break out, the cause of righteousness and decency would triumph. On the other hand, the leaders in religious work and moral reform have missed the application of the lesson which Jesus here intended for all time. The spectacle presented by modern Christianity is that of "a house divided against itself." That it stands in the face of the combined opposition of the haters of the truth is the miracle of the age. There is enough good in any community, united in Christ, to drive out every form of evil and bring in a millenium of righteousness and purity. There is enough power in the Men's Bible Classes of your town to clean up if you would get together. There is enough money and men to establish the Kingdom of God in all the earth in a decade if the churches of Jesus Christ were a united household. The Men and Religion Forward Movement has made no greater contribution to religious progress than in calling the Christian world afresh to united service for Christ.

The Unpardonable Sin. Perhaps no question has awakened deeper concern in sensitive hearts than that the one involved in this controversy between Jesus and the Pharisees. What is the unpardonable sin? Jesus answered in one brief sentence, "Whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness." So far as the immediate controversy was concerned, Mark leaves no doubt as to the particular act involved. It was because they said "He hath an unclean spirit." It was ascribing the marvelous achievements of His ministry to demoniacal agency. In its analysis it was a refusal to accept Jesus in His Spirit-revealed character as the Son of God. This is still the sin against the Holy Spirit. It is the final irrevocable decision of the heart to reject Christ. As Charles Reigen Schuler puts it in a great sermon on the unpardonable sin: "There are some men that are so temptuously mean, so contemptibly low, and miserably selfish that they positively will give up or bow down, or become humble, submissive or obedient to anything. They s and defy God and go to condemnation. It is not because they cannot come, it is because they won't. Whosoever will may, whosoever won't is condemned. That is the point and the whole plan in a nut-shell. The Word of God has three parts: Facts to be believed, commands to be obeyed, and promises to be enjoyed, and there is many a man today that believes the fact but who simply stands up to the end positively refuses to obey the commands, and that is the man who commits sin against the Holy Spirit."

n Attractive Relationship. As the conference with the scribes went on His nearest relatives, including His mother, became alarmed. He should not be able to protect Himself against His enemies. Their effort to call Him away called forth a new revelation of His relationship to the children of earth. "Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is My brother, and My sister and mother." Upon this sentence is based the true Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ. When we come to recognize the full meaning of that relationship, there will be need of no new organization to bring men together in Christian fellowship and service. Jesus is the elder brother and all who follow Him in the path of service will be bound together by a stronger tie than earthly kinship. The present movement among the Disciples is to give vitality to this ideal, and make the nominal brotherhood of the church a real Brotherhood.

Arrow Points. When we make our ministry one of real service to the people, whether as preacher or lay-worker, leisure and comfort are going to be interfered with. V. 20. * * * The man who spends himself today in doing good to others, forgetting his own needs, is pretty sure to be looked upon by those near him as a freak. V. 21. * * * There are still men so coarse and selfish and sordid that they cannot understand a man actuated by any other motive than theirs. V. 22. * * * When shall we learn that the only plan for depleted churches and meager returns is the union of the household of Christ? V. 25. * * * The very fact that you fear you have committed the unpardonable sin is evidence that you have not, for it shows that conscience is still doing business. V. 29. * * * The man who recognizes in the fullest sense as his brother, is going to recognize every other man whom Jesus brothers as His brother. V. 35.

Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ

Object

The object shall be the enlistment of men in the service of Christ and the Church.

Special Aims

In order that a distinctive field of endeavor may be outlined for Brotherhood workers, the following special aims are hereby declared:

- Men for the Ministry;
- Money for Missions;
- Men's Bible Classes in every Bible School;
- Fellowship Banquets;
- Brotherhood Help to the Brotherhood Man in Distress;
- Culture;
- Fellowship;
- Men at work in Church and Bible School, in Endeavor Society and Prayer-Meeting, and
- Highest Standard of Efficiency Maintained Everywhere Throughout the Church.

Additional special aims may be declared at will.

Affiliation

Affiliation with the National "BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST" is by filing application with the General Brotherhood showing form of organization conforming to the Constitution and agreeing to make an annual contribution to the maintenance of the national organization work. Organizations already existing or to exist, such as Bible Classes, Christian Business Men's Associations, Leagues, etc., may affiliate with the national organization upon the above basis.

Official Organ

The periodical called CHRISTIAN MEN, published by THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, is hereby recognized as the official organ of the Brotherhood, to which every Brotherhood man is expected to be a subscriber.

For full information address E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, 420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

From "Jewels for Juniors"

No. 61.

God's Little Ones.

Maggie E. Gregory.

COPYRIGHT, 1896, BY CHAS. H. GABRIEL.
W. E. M. HACKLEMAN, OWNER.

Chas. H. Gabriel.

1. We are lit - tle work - ers, Work-ing for the Lord; By His help we're
2. We are lit - tle sing - ers, Sing-ing for our King; Loud our in - fant
3. Lit - tle lambs are we, and Christ our Shep-herd bold, He has sweet-ly striv - ing For the blest re-ward; We have heard the Master's call, voi - ces In His praise shall ring; Je - sus loves our hap - py songs, called us To His bless - ed fold; Naught of e - vil can be - fall,

He has need of one and all, So we'll glad-ly work for the Lord.
For to Him our praise be-ongs, So we sweet-ly sing for our King.
While we heed our Shepherd's call, We're the lit - tle lambs of His fold.

CHORUS.

We will work, work, work, We will sing, sing, sing, And to Him our off'rings bring;

Sweetest songs of praise We will glad-ly raise To our Sav-ior, Shepherd, King.

Send 25 Cents for sample copy of the book "Jewels for Juniors."

Anything in the Music Line, also Communion Ware, Collection Plates, etc., for sale by Hackleman Music Co., Western Branch, Room 421, 926-928 Grand Avenue, Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence solicited.

CHRISTIAN MEN

A Bi-Monthly Publication, Being the Official Organ of
THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST
E. ELLIOTT, Editor
FRANK LAUDER, Circulation Manager

THE GENERAL BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

EXECUTIVE BOARD

OFFICERS

A. LONG, President

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

T. S. RIDGE, Rec. Sec'y.

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

N. HAYMAKER, Vice-President

-

Wichita, Kan.

F. J. BANNISTER, Treas.

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

DIRECTORS

W. GRAFTON

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

R. A. DOAN

- - - - -

Nelsonville, Ohio

BERT G. FRANK

- - - - -

Liberty, Mo.

D. P. GRIBBEN

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

ANK NASE

- - - - -

Portland, Oregon

C. M. CHILTON

- - - - -

St. Joseph, Mo.

PALMER CLARKSON

- - - - -

St. Louis, Mo.

D. Y. DONALDSON

- - - - -

Kansas City, Mo.

NOTE—The Officers and Directors together constitute the Executive Board

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, Kansas City, Mo.

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1909, at the post office at Kansas City, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription—Single, 50 cents per annum, in advance; clubs of 10 or more; 35 cents per annum; 20 or more, 25 cents per annum advance. Ten or more copies to one address to be paid for quarterly—in advance. Canadian postage, add 12 cents. Foreign, add cents. Make remittances payable to order of Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Address 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Missouri.
Magazines will be discontinued at the time of expiration unless renewed within thirty days. Sample copies, when available, will be sent free.
Advertising rates upon application.

Volume 8. KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, JULY-AUGUST, 1912 Number 1-2

A NEW DEPARTURE

With this issue CHRISTIAN MEN begins to be a bi-monthly, instead of a monthly magazine as heretofore. A number of reasons may be assigned for this departure from custom maintained by the publishers for the past 42 months. First, the necessity for issuing our magazine every month does not exist today to the same extent it did at the outset of this movement. Our various weekly papers are anxious for news items and articles pertaining to the progress of Men's Work in the church, a situation that did not exist at the time the Brotherhood movement was launched among us. Second, the adoption of the Bible School lessons written especially for Men's Classes materially increased the circulation of our paper, and we were placed in direct competition with the publishers of quarterly literature on Bible Lessons, none of them as extensive or as costly to publish as our own magazine. Third, the Directors of this movement have determined to make the magazine come nearer paying for itself than heretofore, because, as a matter of fact, we have been expending more than fifty cents per year per copy, without any allowance for editorial work or cost of handling the mailing list in the office, and our receipts from subscriptions have not amounted to as much as we were putting into the paper. We therefore considered three propositions—1st: reducing the size of the paper to 32 pages; 2d: increase the size to 64 pages and publish the same bi-monthly; 3d: continue the paper in its present proportions, but with a material increase in the subscription price. This last we figured would reduce our circulation, which has hovered dangerously near the 20,000 mark these many months. Of course this would save some money, but it would likewise cut from our subscription list a large number of men who are interested in the progress of the Brotherhood Movement but who would feel that the magazine is not worth the advanced price. So, brethren, CHRISTIAN MEN for July and August is combined. You will be pleased to have within your hand during these vacation days a journal of information and inspiration that will interest you wherever you are, and at the same time know that this arrangement will mean dollars in pocket to the treasury of the movement. This is as it should be. The Brotherhood Movement believes in economy. Until now the directors of the Movement, who are busy business men, have not felt it wise to curtail the output of the General Office, either in letters, printed matter or magazines. They have also put off consideration of the subject of advancing the subscription price because of the above reasons.

WHY SO LITTLE ADVERTISING

Some of our readers may wonder that such a magazine as ours, with the splendid circulation, is not able to command a larger advertising patronage, but when we say that the tendency of the times is for advertisers to limit their advertising to daily papers in the cities and weekly and monthly magazines of enormous circulation, you will readily understand why a magazine like CHRISTIAN MEN is really but a drop in the magazine bucket. We have secured advertising from men who have been and are still interested in the progress of the Movement, and some others who find our paper able to serve them. That patronage meant money and in a way reduced the expense of circulation, but has never been sufficient to entirely offset the loss occasioned by the publication of a better paper than the receipts of subscriptions justified. We have refused advertising of patent medicines and of questionable articles, amounting to hundreds of dollars, just because we determined at the outset to never publish anything editorially that could be considered at all questionable, and this policy has governed our advertising department well.

THE FUTURE

CHRISTIAN MEN in the future, as in the past, will continue to be filled to the brim with to-the-minute articles intended to fill the heart with thrill, and enthuse its readers in a Brotherhood way. The Bible School lessons will continue in present form, with two lessons for the two months instead of one month's lessons being included heretofore. Correspondence is invited regarding the conduct of the magazine, and articles relating to Men's Work in the church are welcomed and will be given such consideration as the limitations of our space will permit.

Says I to my class, says I—

“‘Christian Men’ is the Paper to Buy”

—says I.

Should Institutional Churches be Used as Community Centers for All People, Regardless of Class or Creed?

BY H. G. HILL, DIRECTOR INDIANAPOLIS TRAINING SCHOOL FOR SOCIAL WORKERS.

H. G. HILL

Perhaps, as this is not a question of associate membership or admission of the "ous non-immersed," one would even be to discuss it. The subject is entirely removed from any theological or doctrinal relationship, and I am glad the editor of CHRISTIAN MEN has so stated it.

There is involved, however, the question of the purpose and province of the local church. Suppose we take it or granted that it is the purpose of the church to preach Christ. This cannot be done by the sermons alone. Nor by the preacher alone. Nor by a part of the people who make up the membership of the congregation. But sermons and services, and pulpit and pew should form for the community a composite of the Christ. To the man in the street Jesus Christ was a man who went about doing good. Jesus did live a very active life. The record of his deeds takes up more space in the gospel records than the record of his wonderful utterances. Any church which aims to exemplify the Christ might very justly be expected to imitate Him in service as well as in sermons.

EXAMPLE OF JESUS

Jesus never shut Himself away from the people. When He did occasionally withdraw for such needed prayer and communion with the Father, He did so at night when the world was asleep. He must needs be down among the people when they could possibly receive His good offices. How can the church fail to feel the surge and pressure of the needs of humanity as it masses about her walls? Can we shut our doors to any who in any way need our good offices? If we shut our doors or draw division lines or make class distinctions we must not fail to remember we are falling short of Christ.

SYMPATHY NEEDED

No church can succeed in representing Christ, I care not how perfect its doctrines, how apostolic its ordinances, which does not have a sympathy as broad as the interests of humanity and a spirit as wide as the needs of mankind.

What evangelism will avail in the face of a church whose reputation is that of being exclusive and bigoted?

INSTITUTIONAL CHURCHES

The modern church cannot escape being to an extent institutional. This institutional activity may vary from a church which has a Sunday-school and a Christian Endeavor Society to a great bee-hive of activity where all manner of humanitarian efforts are carried on. It is safe to say that no institutional department should be created to merely imitate another church in a different field. Various institutional departments should be inaugurated and fostered because there is a crying need for just such service. For instance, suppose there is an excellent public library adjoining or across the street from the church. It is foolish and worse than folly for the church to institute in that case a reading room and book-loaning department. On the other hand in a community without these facilities no more important duty confronts the congregation than to provide such uplifting departments.

THE GOSPEL OF OPEN DOORS

In many instances the church may be the only spacious room in which public gatherings can be held. In this case it is the writer's opinion, though many who read these lines may disagree, the church should throw open its doors for any good cause. I would personally rather have the church used for a political primary and risk the contamination(?) of its holy precincts than to have the public interests completely damned by a caucus held in a saloon of the neighborhood.

In one church which is quite near a public school, which has no auditorium, the church has been freely granted for commencement exercises and debates, and the assembly room has even been used by the school for concerts and amateur entertainments.

SPIRIT OF HOSPITALITY

All this hospitality on the church's part was extended without the least hint of profit in any way to itself. In fact, we believe the spirit was not that of helping the church, but a desire to make the church helpful to the community. In like spirit it was accepted. Jews, unbelievers, members of various other church, young and old, entered into the use of the building and without aiming at such an end, there resulted a better feeling between church and people.

THE CHURCH A PRODUCER

After all is it not true that what we are accustomed to consider "church services" are really not ends in themselves? Singing, preaching, praying, giving, ordinances and exercises are the machines which are to produce something. The exercises or services are not the product but the producers. But how many churches absolutely fail to produce! What a waste of time, energy, expense and power! Suppose we were to accept the invitation of some capitalist to visit his factories. He would show us the advantages of his location, his shipping facilities, his splendid buildings fully equipped, the great boilers and engine shafts, belts, pulleys, machines, warehouses full of raw material, a man at every machine. Suppose he should say, "Now, we will start it all and you can see it running." The fireman stokes the coal, the steam mounts high, the engineer opens the throttle, the flywheel turns, the belts begin to travel from line to counter shaft and the machines begin to run. Everything is a maze of motion, noise and activity until the whistle blows and the workmen disperse. But through all this there is no product. There is nothing finished, nothing packed and shipped. You, of course, ask immediately why is all this if nothing is accomplished.

May it not be so with some churches of tremendous activity, great organization, wheels within wheels? They produce nothing.

Men and women, boys and girls are our raw material. We must work them over by many processes into finished products.

Without the grist the mill is useless without the flour the work is wasted.

Every church should go into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in. This compulsion should be by the persuasion of personal profit. Give the people something worth while, something they need, show them their need of it if necessary, and you will find your problem is to provide room for them. People go where they think they get value received. "They want their money's worth." If we refer to the factory again we all know that "raw material" really passes through various processes before it reaches the final process. Men and women are in all stages of development. In many instances they are required to pass through many "processes" before they are even ready for the "gospel message." Has it ever struck you that there are thousands who are near the church but miles removed from the sympathy with the church's message? Such never come near a service. They are required to be drawn by other means.

Men who will not consent to hear a sermon will participate in an athletic contest, use a shower bath, read a book or attend a bean supper. That is one "process;" they are now much nearer the final goal. The finished product is not simply "a member of the church." The finished product is a "Christian." That can mean nothing less than a full orb'd being physically, mentally, morally, clean, wholesome, strong. Then why not use rational means for all these ends?

But let us turn to another phase of this subject. Many object to institutional churches because of the expense involved. This argument is based upon a misconception of what constitutes institutional effort. It is safe to say that many of the most necessary and fundamental institutional features involve insignificant outlay of money. Given the room for meeting and proper direction and many of these features will be worked out and supported by the people themselves. Traveling libraries may be given a place in the church. The lyceum lecture and musical evening may find the church ready to coöperate. Socials and various kinds of club meetings may be conducted.

Boys' clubs, men's clubs and Brotherhoods will grow by a little fostering care. Athletics can be encouraged. In the writer's own church there are and have been for two or three years several athletic teams without a church gymnasium. Our basket-ball team and bowling team, base-ball and track teams play in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium or out of doors in public parks and play-grounds. These teams have won many trophies and have won high, sometimes highest, place in league contests, yet it is safe to say that in all these years they have not altogether cost us a sum to exceed two hundred dollars. On the contrary they have directly and indirectly helped us more than many times that amount.

What churches need most, in order to carry out the plans to be a community center, is a building capable of being put to many meetings of various kinds. After that an open-hearted and frank desire to minister and serve the people will, if followed out, find an ever-increasing avenue for service.

A "meetin'-house" of one large room with pews and a pulpit is not modern. We have already quite generally added a "Sunday-school" room. Now many are adding parlors, dining rooms and kitchens. A still larger and later demand is for a few other adjuncts to the facilities to be added. Then let there be wide doors, that are more frequently open than shut, and a warm-hearted welcome for all who will enter, and the Master's work will be done for the Master's spirit is therein.

Jesus comprehended "all men," "who-soever," "everywhere," in "all the earth," and to such He promises His presence in "all time." The biggest little word He used was "all." Let us in "all ways" be like Him.

Non-Professional Evangelism

The immediate field of the local church is the community in which it exists. If the local church does not work—till, cultivate, its immediate field for what, then, is it in existence?

THE OLD WAY The old way was for the church to "hire" a preacher and expect him to visit all the sick, originate the financial plans, run the prayer-meeting, nurse the official board, doctor a teachers' meeting and immortalize himself twice a week in sermons, while the "members" tended to business, teas, lodges and clubs. Is it any wonder the "church" didn't make good?

THE NEW WAY The present conception is a radical reformation. The church is "the community at work." Working out its own redemption. The minister is a seer of causes and results, a pioneer in unexplored holy ground. He is the focal point of the moral consciousness of the community. He is a director of the moral forces of a community. He is a finder of means of expression for the spiritual life of the community.

Non-professional Evangelism may mean preaching and it may not. We are constrained to say that the most effective Evangelism has little preaching in it. It consists more of a brotherly acquaintance among neighbors and fellow workmen.

When a man becomes as interested in his fellow men and religion, as he is in his business, he does not need much outside influence to enable him to bring himself into a religious relationship with his fellow men. We talk about, and work out the things in which we are most vitally interested.

WHAT TO DO There are Brotherhoods that are asking "What can we do?" Answer: Express the Christ life in your community. Don't preach—a

Many fine woven, well articulated schemes and methods of Evangelism have been put upon the market. The only trouble is, we are not working the plans. The New Testament idea of Evangelism is carrying good news. Our modern conception is the antithesis—bringing men in to help bear the expense of the institution, or corralling them to see how many we can catch. But we are finding ourselves. A few churches are organizing for the purpose of expressing in the community the Christ life the church is inspiring within them. In general terms this is the way they do it.

HOW TO DO IT A few men are found who will give themselves to the special line of work. The few men agree to become responsible for the leadership of the larger body that can be enlisted in evangelism. Your own parish is the community to be evangelized. District that community and find at least two men and two women, husbands and wives if possible for each district, who will assume an actual pastoral care over that district. Get personally acquainted with every man, woman and child in that district. Let your first contact with these people say little or nothing about the church. The prime purpose is to get acquainted with the people—to know them as real men and women driven by the same necessities, burdened with the same cares, and hungering for the same things as ourselves. Soon the cast lines begin to crumble and friendship begins to grow.

rest is easy. The Christ in men comes out. If He be lifted up He will draw all men to Him.

If you love the men in your block they will eventually join you in Bible study at the church and finally join you in the work of the Kingdom.

When non-professional ministers become acquainted with conditions interest themselves in the social life of the community. You will carry away more than you give. Thus "social service" is done unconsciously—and this is the only way to do it effectively.

Children are induced to go to Bible School. The men and women will come, too. Later on they begin to openly acknowledge their allegiance to Jesus Christ and finally offer themselves to the direction of the minister to do for others what was done for them.

This is New Testament Evangelism.

What is a Brotherhood Chapter?

Answer—A Brotherhood Chapter is a group of men organized to go to work to make the church what it ought to be to the people of the local community and the world at large. A Brotherhood is more than a Bible school class. It should have a class and make it the strongest force in the school, but it should also have a Bible school, and a Sunday morning service, and a Sunday evening service, and a prayer-meeting, and a civic welfare program. A Brotherhood is an organization of men ready to go to work to make the church actually what it is now theoretically.—C. M. Chilton.

If your men are not organized for work along some lines that border on the above, they should be started to thinking and talking about it. If organized and not identified as a chapter of the National Brotherhood, they are missing an opportunity to engage in a Nation Wide co-operation that means much to the success of the Kingdom, and to the Churches of Christ in particular.

Send a postal card bearing the name of your class or group or organization, the names of the officers and say the number of members you have, and the undersigned will send you a beautiful engraved certificate of membership, and membership cards for your members, and your class or group will be enrolled as a Chapter in the National Brotherhood Movement.

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary,

R. A. Long Building

Kansas City, Missouri

The Church and the Problem of Child Labor

An Address by Owen S. Lovejoy Before the National Congregational Brotherhood Convention, Chicago, November, 1911

We call this a Brotherhood. I assure you that by Brotherhood we have in mind the American, not the European, definition; a modern, not a medieval. In other words, we seek to build up a fraternity of Christian people equal not in ability or position, but in opportunity. We have in mind the development of society to the extent that the present wide disparity in conditions shall disappear.

OUR ANCESTRY

With our English ancestors a man's possessions descended on his eldest son. Such an arrangement had its advantages. It built up powerful estates. It gave opportunity for a few to become leaders in politics, business science and religion. The religious ideas of Europe developed along the same lines. A few leaders, saints and prophets; a few endowed with rich heavenly estates. But our American civilization is not congenial with this. We deny the right of primogeniture. We repudiate the doctrine that a man may justly confer all his goods on his first born, for we cannot blink the fact that such a system means privation and obscurity for the rest of the family and their offspring. In the matter of inheritance we have taken this fact of Brotherhood seriously, and have written in our law the principle that no man shall make of one son the specialist in all opportunity at the cost of the rest of the family, casting them aside. We are seeking to carry this idea into our religious activities. We form Brotherhoods of Christian men, breaking down the bars that divided priest and layman. We contend that all have equality of opportunity in the Democracy of Jesus Christ. But we have not yet reasoned this out in its application to our daily life. Many attest this, but I shall present one:

THE REAL PROBLEM Child Labor in its dominant force is antipathetic to the principle of Christian Brotherhood. Child Labor means the right of Social Education and economic primogeniture. It means the concentration of opportunity upon the few, and the distribution of ignorance, poverty and disaster to the many.

The educational spirit of our age competes with the tendency in industrial evolution to intensify this injustice. This is an age of specialization; but specialized work in two directions. The lawyer, doctor, preacher, artist, business manager or architect requires a larger preparation today than heretofore. He enters his profession later in life. He knows more than his father knew.

AGE OF SPECIALIZATION

It is also an age of specialization in industry and how does it work there? Our machines are more powerful than formerly. Our processes developed to those nice refinements which make them almost automatic. The result is that in the rank and file of our industrial workers we tend to require less preparation, less training, less ability than formerly, and demand the limited, circumscribed but very expert specialist. The skill of the professional specialist is superimposed on his general training. The skill of the mechanic is made a substitute for general training.

The little slate picker in the Pennsylvania coal breaker is the brother of the man who owns the mine.

The little ten-year-old girls who sit at her spindle in the great Southern cotton mill is the sister of the man who

the mill. But what is her share in the inheritance of our social wealth? Twelve hours a day for forty cents; endless labor at an almost automatic machine; nothing in the work to inspire, develop, or gratify. It means dwarfing of physical development, as proven by modern industrial civilization. It means trapping the mind within the narrow limits of purely mechanical tasks; the closing out of those broad horizons of heavenly visions upon which the soul must feed and grow.

The six-year-old girl who works at night in a stuffy New York tenement sewing the buttons on your coat or mine, mending our baby's bootees, or sorting the coffee we have for breakfast, is our sister, but if God had predetermined her to be an outcast from the Kingdom of Opportunity He could not have accomplished His design more perfectly than we are doing.

These examples need not be multiplied. A million children in a hundred industries are living this principle of disinheritance worked out upon them today as a result of our rapidly developing wealth and intelligence on the one hand and our high specialization on the other. Unless we meet this tendency, it is destined to widen the gulf between those who have opportunity and those who have not. But our resistance must be something more definite and concrete than preaching and protesting. We must adopt specific measures. This extreme specialization may be necessary, perhaps. A multitude of men and women must spend their lives in monotonous and meaningless toil which is without beauty, without joy, but we can at least save a part of their life by giving it freedom of childhood for growth and development. We must enact child labor laws which will put the attention of the state around the child.

Thus far practically all citizens are agreed. You will rarely find a man today who does not believe in the idea of protecting children from unjust burdens. But we must be more specific than this. There is no longer any speculation as to what is needed. Now we must go after it.

CHURCH SHOULD CO-OPERATE

It is probably unfair to demand that the Christian Church, as an organization, shall make an intensive study of the details of factory legislation, but it is not unfair to demand that the Christian Church shall avail herself of those agencies which specialize in that branch of social activity, and are able to propose a positive and constructive program.

The National Child Labor Committee offers itself to the Church and to the Brotherhoods as their agent and representative. We may claim to have made some progress in righting the wrongs against which complaint has been made. Within seven years we have witnessed improvements in the child labor laws of nearly every state. Since January 1, 1911, the child labor laws of thirty states have been improved. But we are still far from the ideal protection for the working children of the country. To make the progress the situation demands we must have the backing of an intelligent and sympathetic public. It is the duty of the Church, through specific application of its ideals, to create this intelligent, sympathetic public.

INFLUENTIAL MEN NEEDED

Today in practically every legislative campaign we meet influential prominent men who thoroughly agree with us in the "idea" of a child labor law, but who fight us when it comes to the particular measure advanced, no matter what that measure may be. We get plenty of coöperation so long as we remain in the field of abstractions, but when something specific is urged our constituency falls away because its interest is on the other side.

DEFINITE THINGS Among the fundamental forms of protection we are demanding and to which we ask the Brotherhood Movement to rally are:

1. The exclusion of all children under fourteen years of age from the field of wage-earning industries.
2. The protection of all minors between fourteen and twenty-one by laws adjusted to meet the specific needs of the child or of the industry.
3. We demand for all children under sixteen years of age the eight-hour day, the forty-eight hour week, the six-day week.
4. We demand also their exclusion from work at night or from any occupation dangerous to life or health.
5. We demand that those who are illiterate shall be first given an opportunity to lay the foundation of an American education before being harnessed for life to a meaningless and poorly paid job.

6. From industries which offer a special menace to education or morals for example employment in the messenger service, we demand the exclusion of all minors to twenty-one years of age. (This demand has already been met in five states within the past eight months.)

7. We also urge such a revision of the curriculum of our educational institutions as shall furnish to the American child the kind of training he needs to fit him for self-supporting industrial efficiency.

I would make these demands not in the interest of the child alone, but chiefly in the interest of society. We can hope to develop or maintain a true democracy with our population half free and half slave. The very genius of our American institutions as well as the confessed spirit of our religion demand that we shall secure for every child under the American flag an opportunity to lay the foundations of useful citizenship in virtue, intelligence and industrial efficiency.

Good Books on Childhood

Beckoning by Little Hands.....	DuBois
Point of Contact.....
The Natural Way.....
The Culture of Justice.....
The Evolution of Dodd.....	Smith
A Study of Child Nature.....	Elizabeth Harrison
Dawn of Character.....	Mumford
Fundamentals of Child Study.....	Kirkpatrick

The Problem of the City—Vice and Religion Debated

A Job Big Enough for Brotherhoods, Men's Bible Classes, Leagues, Clubs, Civic and Charitable Organizations and Good Citizens in General

The following article published editorially in a metropolitan newspaper created a decided sensation. The ministers of the city determined definitely, in the face of strong opposition, to have the city authorities appoint a commission to investigate various kinds of vice, said to exist there, and to offer some plan for effectively dealing with it. The article is so appropriate, that we are reprinting it for the information and enlightenment of our readers.

EDITOR.

“The minute any one comes along and preaches something besides a milk-and-water religion, a religion that begins with the contribution box and ends with a missionary tea for the benefit of some benighted, but happy, heathen, the minute there is an uproar among those who wear purple and fine linen. The standpatter is not a political animal. He is to be found in his most savage form within the church, where he opposes all effort to make Christianity practical and applicable to present day conditions, and insists that anything which tends to disturb his conscience or his profits is ‘sensational.’

Christ was the most sensational man who ever walked the earth. That's why he was crucified. Had he conformed to the spirit of the times, hobnobbed with the Pharisees, and been a theoretical, statistical Christ, seeking to establish a creed and not a living, social virile religion, He would have—not been Christ. The best evidence that our country has a dire and immediate need of religion is the fact that no sooner is it proposed that the faith of Christ be made to mean something, than the proposition meets with violent opposition. If the churches confine their denunciations to the vice that prevailed in decaying Rome, the profligacy of the French courts during the reign of Louises, the throwing of little children into the Ganges to feed the crocodiles and the opium habits of the Chinese, the church would be pronounced a great success by those who hate to have their peace of soul harrowed. It is not inconvenient to contemplate the sins of other generations and other peoples. It is a mild stimulant to dwell upon sin in the abstract.

RATTLING
SKELETONS

“But as soon as the thing called Christianity is brought to our own doors, and the skeletons in our closets begin to rattle—that is ‘sensational’ and the prayer goes up from the smug that the crusade against evil be conducted ‘with due wisdom and discretion and without spectacular accompaniments.’

“Now, there is no record of what was said at the time, but we have an idea that when Christ permitted Mary, the scarlet woman, to wipe His feet with the hair of her head He was accused of a very great lack of discretion, possibly of something far worse, and we do not doubt for an instant that His driving the high financiers from the temple with a whip of scourges was classified among the high brows and their fawning followers as being spectacular to the point of anarchy.

“The final report of a committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement contains the following assertions and suggestions:

Social vice, liquor saloons and debauched politics practically dominate, laying their enslaving yoke on the neck of every citizen, however much he may detest them and revolt at them. This yoke Christians and freemen should break straightway.

The social vice is fostered and connived at by city administrations in defiance of the state laws, divine commandments, public morals and common decency. Widespread debauchery, ruined youth, horrible diseases, a degraded race are its visible fruits. We recommend for its extinction the appointment of a vice commission in every city, who shall study the facts, make public their observations and report their conclusions. We are sure that, if well constituted, its recommendations will favore the elimination of all prostitution. We should spread valuable state documents and other literature, teach the young, warn the unruly, rescue the penitent, punish the wicked, protect the home and save the cities.

The saloon is indissolubly allied to all social vice and crime, disobeying law, engendering lawlessness, destroying virtue, degrading citizenship. Licensed saloons, together with saloons unlicensed and the illegal sale of liquor in every bawdy house, rule many cities. Laws seem to be framed so as to threaten whoever complains of the illegality of these. Unrelenting warfare against them should be waged.

These vicious laws are made by politicians whose power is rooted in the saloons and dives, utterly contrary to public welfare. We recommend to the best and ablest citizens to organize clean and honest political machines which shall destroy the rotten machines now running the cities to their dishonor and shame.

Playgrounds with supervision, the public schoolyards and other wider tracts should provide clean recreation for the youth of the city. Streets lined with saloons and traversed by drunkards and harlots are not fit play places for boys and girls.

We favor industrial education, vocational schools, the use of school buildings as social centers, and the opening of schoolhouses for workingmen's associations.

Household sanitation laws are moral as well as physical and should be religiously aimed and enforced for public health and welfare.

Industrial conditions, including the cost of living, wages and especially minimum wages below living standards, should be the subject of dispassionate and full investigation and publicity, followed by laws justly enforced.

There should be a social service group in every church, frequent discussions of social problems by ministers, open forums under the auspices of the Federation of Churches for the freely debate public conditions and free conferences of all interested in social welfare.

Bibliography

Sex in Relation to Society.....Ellis
 The Social Evil.....Seligman
 Report Chicago Vice Commission..Committee
 A New Conscience and an Ancient Evil....
Addams
 Education with Reference to Sex..Henderson Sin and Society.....Ross
 Women in Industry.....Abbott
 A Living Wage.....Ryan
 Christianity and the Social Crisis.....
Rauschenbusch
 Misery and Its Causes.....Devine
 The Beast.....Lindsey
 My Story.....Johnson
 The City the Hope of Democracy.....Home
 The Spirit of American Government....Smith
 The City for the People.....Parsons
 Social Problems*George*
 The Initiative, Referendum and Recall.....
Munro

Wage Earning Women.....Mac
 The American City.....W
 The New Democracy.....W
 Wider Use of the School Plant.....F
 Applied Socialism*Sp*
 The Call of the Carpenter.....W
 The Wisconsin Idea.....McCa
 Civics and Health.....A Social Aspects of Education.....A Play and Playgrounds.....A
 Principles of Relief.....De
 Social Solutions in the Light of Christian Ethics*A*
 American Socialism of the Present Day..
Hug
 The Labor Question.....Glau
 Child Labor and its Evils.....A Solution of the Child Labor Problem..Nea

Conservation Work Under Way

Practical Results in Many Cities of Men and Religion Work

Pittsburgh—More than 25,000 men attended various meetings during Pittsburgh's Eight-Day Campaign, and as a result of the interest aroused in matters of practical religion, steps have been taken to carry on the work indefinitely, nearly all the churches formally agreeing to stand together in a serious effort for a Better Pittsburgh.

Des Moines—Five months after the Eight-Day Campaign here finds Des Moines more deeply interested than before in the Men and Religion Forward Movement. The municipal lodging house, the Sunday-school Teachers' Training Institute, the joint registration bureau for charitable bodies, and the newly organized inter-church council stand as practical evidences of the good results thus far accomplished. Interest in evangelism has perceptibly increased; noon-hour shop meetings held in Des Moines and in Valley Junction nearby have increased in numbers and true devotional spirit, while evangelistic teams have been selected in three of the local colleges for carrying the Gospel message to other towns and villages. There has been great progress in boys' work, the older boys have organized under a general Committee of Seventy-nine, and are holding meetings of inspiration and instruction at stated times.

South Bend, Ind.—Following the constantly increasing influence started by the Men and Religion Campaign here early last October, thousands of Christian men in South Bend have decided after careful deliberation that they will insist that the city authorities clean up the worst pest holes of vice and take measures to retreat it and stamp it out. More than twenty churches, with thousands of men, recently united in a protest against vice conditions in this city, and one church voted for the impeachment of the mayor of South Bend. Political interests supposed to have clear knowledge of the situation are alarmed at the outburst. At first they believed the protest to be merely a passing affair, but it is now realized that the churchmen of the city are in earnest. No greater sensation has stirred the city for a generation.

Boston—Ninety churches in twenty-two towns have held meetings of their men since the close of the Boston Eight-Day Campaign, at which nearly 2,000 men were in attendance. Twenty churches will push more aggressively missionary activities. Twenty-three report plans for larger social service. Twenty-nine will endeavor to make personal and public evangelism more effective. Thirty-two will seek to increase the number of men and boys in Bible study, and to improve the quality of the teaching. Thirty-seven report definite plans for work among boys. In eight churches Men's Clubs or Brotherhoods have been established. Community extension meetings in shops and factories are going on at fifteen points, with 1,500 men attending per week. Three of these meetings are held at midnight, and twelve at noonday. The interest and attendance, instead of decreasing are increasing.

Providence, R. I.—Plans made at close of Eight-Day Campaign now being tried out. Main efforts thus far along social service lines. Bureaus of Research already established and under way, and making an exhaustive examination of social conditions in city, including housing conditions, matter of wages, sewerage, ventilation, lighting and heating of tenements, etc., with definite view of having untoward conditions remedied by the city government.

Dallas, Tex.—Special attention being paid to boys' work. Group of carefully selected laymen, numbering fifteen of the ablest citizens, making a serious study of boys' needs, and methods of influencing boys, under competent instruction, and using most approved text-books on the subject. Athletic teams organized in many Sunday-schools, with idea of linking Sunday-school work to all the boys' activities, and boys organized by districts to receive religious instruction, and to help each other in higher and nobler aims.

Topeka—A federation of all the Social Service Workers of the churches has been formed to put into practical effect the message of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

Rochester, N. Y.—Following the Eight-Day Campaign here, fifty-four social service committees were thoroughly organized in as many churches, and fifty-four chairmen are working as a unit. One of the first steps taken was to decide to apply for membership in the American Society of Sanitary and Moral Prophylaxis, with headquarters in New York. Strong subcommittees were appointed to look after the housing problem, instruction in sex hygiene, a remedial loan association, public institutions and visitation thereof, and law enforcement and needed legislation. The committee reported favorably, commending the present chief of police for his success in reducing resort of vice, and stated that since the Men and Religion workers had shown modern methods in work with prisoners, persons held in jail charged with crime for the first time are now separated from old offenders and professional criminals. This forward step was taken principally through the efforts of the district attorney and the sheriff, both of whom come in for hearty commendation.

What is the Advantage of National Affiliation?

Answer: The National Brotherhood maintains a general office, secretaries, clerks, stenographers and equipment necessary to propagate the movement.

The National Brotherhood is a modern specialist in men's work, furnishing expert guidance to Local Chapters, based on years of experience and investigation.

Stirs up men to activity in all departments of our churches.

Promotes general church interest.

Develops large classes of men for Bible study.

"Team work campaigns."

Men for the ministry.

Student aid fund.

Participates in great interdenominational movements for "Men and Religion."

Publishes a strong masculine religious journal of information and inspiration.

By affiliating we have a part in what the National Brotherhood does.

Through the National Brotherhood we are lent a helping hand in time of need and when strong we return the loan by assisting others who are struggling with the Man Problem. To be without the National Brotherhood means a severe handicap.

We should co-operate for the opportunity for good to be done, the benefits of the larger fellowship afforded by the National life, the greater self-respect when living not for self but for others.

The Greatest Problem Before the Church Today

Paper No. 1—Conditions

BY E. V. ZOLLARS, PRESIDENT OKLAHOMA CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY.

E. V. ZOLLARS

Every organized movement has, or ought to have, a specific work, otherwise organization is useless and wrong. It is folly to create a machine, if there is no specific work for the machine to do that is not being done or cannot be done by machines already in existence. The church the Lord Jesus Christ is no exception to this common sense rule. It was created to do a work that no other organization then in existence was doing, or could do. In fact, it was created for the performing of a task that no human organization could accomplish. This task may be summarized in these words: "The salvation of the world through the preaching of the gospel to the ends of the earth." Can anyone imagine any other work that the church was created to do? Can anyone conceive of a work that the individual Christian man has to do other than to carry out the Commission of our Lord? Whatever the church does immediately for education, for benevolence, for social betterment, or for political reform has for its ultimate purpose the carrying out of the great commission.

Whatever the individual Christian does in the varied activities of life is wrought indirectly at least for the same end. This work should be constantly in individual thought and effort and in all the plans and purposes of the church. When we forget this we forget the fundamental work laid upon us by the head of the church. In short, the church covers the whole ground of human activities with the one great purpose in view of conquering of the world for Christ. For this, the farmer ploughs, the mechanic plies his trade, the artisan works and the professional man practices his calling. Would to God that all Christian men recognized this fact, because this would sanctify and glorify every legitimate activity of life.

THE QUESTION OF EMPHASIS

In order to the accomplishment of the fundamental work Christians individually and collectively find it necessary at different times to emphasize different things. To preach the gospel successfully demands certain conditions, and when any one of the necessary conditions is wanting emphasis must be placed upon the wanting condition until it has been recognized and supplied. For instance, when the Bible as a book had been taken from the people and locked up in the cloister somebody was needed to emphasize the truth that the Bible is the people's book and belongs to every man, and that it may be read and interpreted by every individual, and that each is responsible before God for the manner in which he deals with it. Consequently, the great rallying cry of the Protestants has been the Bible, the whole Bible and nothing but the Bible as the religion of Protestants, as Chillingworth put it.

BIBLE PEOPLE'S BOOK

THE CASE OF LUTHER

When salvation was made to depend on works of merit and acts of penance somebody was needed to lay emphasis on the fact that salvation is by faith, and Luther was God's man for the occasion.

THE CASE OF CALVIN

When the powers and prerogatives of God were being assumed by a fallible man who sat in the temple of God, showing himself to be God, some one was needed to emphasize the doctrine of the sovereignty of God and Calvin appeared as the needed man.

THE CASE OF ARMINIUS

When the doctrine of divine sovereignty had been so construed as to destroy the doctrine of human freedom someone was needed to emphasize the freedom of the human will in the divine plan of redemption and Arminius was God's man for the occasion.

THE CASE OF WESLEY

When worship was divested of its inner significance and was made to consist of mere outward forms and ceremonies, someone was needed to emphasize a doctrine of spiritual Christianity, and Wesley was the man of the hour.

THE CASE OF THE CAMPBELLS

When the progress of the gospel had been practically arrested by the sinful divisions of the people of God somebody was needed to emphasize the necessity of union in order to the conquest of the world for Christ, and Thomas and Alexander Campbell were God's men for the emergency.

In this brief summary I have merely touched the mountain tops of truth. It would be easy to show that many subordinate points of great importance have been emphasized at different times by different men in order for the success of the church in its conquest of the world for Christ.

A NEEDED LESSON

As a people, the general lesson brought out in the above discussion should be studied with great diligence if we would accomplish the specific work that God has laid upon us. When we were an unorganized heterogeneous mass of baptised believers, without coöperation and consequently without ability to concentrate our efforts

ORGANIZED WE SUCCEED

upon the great work of world-wide evangelization we had men who were wise enough to lay the emphasis on organization; men who understood that in union there is strength; men who had heard the prayer of Christ and caught its spirit and knew that the world could not be evangelized by a divided and unorganized people. We have applied this doctrine of organization to the problem of benevolence, to the problem of Church Extension, as well as to the missionary problem, district, state and national. But does anyone imagine that we have come to the end and that henceforth it will never be necessary to place a new emphasis anywhere? Have all conditions now been fully supplied that are needed for the execution in its fullest sense of our Lord's commission?

WHAT MUCKLEY SAYS

Let me recite a few statistics. Unfortunately there is not entire agreement as to the exact figures, but sufficient for my purpose. George Muckley, the Secretary of our Church Extension Board, says that we have 11,800 churches. He ought to know. It is his business to know, and he is a man who usually attends well to his business. He also tells us we have approximately 2,600 preachers giving their whole time to the work. This is talking in much smaller figures than has been our habit.

HAT
SHEPHERD
AYS

R. P. Shepherd says that we have 3,200 preachers. Some giving an estimate based on the names in the Year Book, and making certain allowances for losses of various kinds, place the figure at 4,000 or more. It is my conviction that 3,000 is near the mark. In other words, we have four churches for every preacher every day. There are many churches that occupy the time of one preacher, which means that we have no preachers for a multitude of churches. R. P. Shepherd says we have 3,240 churches absolutely without preaching at all. Is it not evident that it is high time to place a new emphasis and that upon ministerial supply? How can we have remained so long to this crying need? What is the use of talking about world-wide evangelization if we forget this important matter? The estimates as to our numbers were practically the same ten years ago as they are today. We have been talking about a million and a quarter, or a million and a half of people for many years, and yet we have been adding seventy-five thousand to one hundred and fifty thousand people to the churches every year. Why do we not gain more rapidly in numbers as the years advance? The answer is plain—we are not taking care of our accessions. While we are gaining in front we are losing in the rear. We are allowing as many people who have once been Christians to perish as we are gathering from the world. What has become of our business acumen? What has become of our hard common sense? What has become of our devotion to the commission of our Lord? Does not the admonition of the apostle ring in our ears, "Awake thou that sleepest and arise from the dead?" Here is a problem that we must face and meet, if we would stand acquitted at the judgment bar of God.

EDITOR'S NOTE:—The second installment upon the above topic will appear in the next issue of CHRISTIAN MEN.

The Brotherhood Movement—What is it?

The Brotherhood objectives of service are:

1. To win men and boys to Jesus Christ and the Church.
2. To promote the spirit of brotherliness.
3. To magnify the Church and to enlist men in the work and worship of the local church.
4. To coöperate with other boards in making real their ideals for the establishment of the kingdom of God in the earth.
5. To enlist men in all worthy movements for social, civic and industrial betterment.

6. To promote and extend the Brotherhood work in the Christian Church by giving an annual offering to the General Brotherhood.

It is the hope and aim of the Board of Directors to have a men's organization, a Men's Bible Class or a federation of two or more Bible Classes in every Church, enlisted in work along the lines of these objectives.

An organization without an adequate objective in worthy service is not only useless but burdensome. But an organization of men whose hearts burn with a sense of responsibility and opportunity for great service, resulting from a clear vision of duty will transform the life of any church. Such an organization will throb with vital power and things will be doing for God and folks wherever its life touches.

The organization packet will help start off. Send for it. Address E. E. Elliott, National Secretary, 420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Application Blank

Believing in the ideals of Brotherhood, and desiring to coöperate with other groups of Christian Churchmen, the.....

(Give Name of Organization)
of the.....

(Give Name of Congregation) Christian Church of.....

(Postoffice and State)
hereby applies for membership in the General Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. The present membership of our organization is.....members, for whom membership cards are requested. We agree to support the General Brotherhood morally, by our sympathy and coöperation, and financially, by making an annual contribution toward the expenses of the General Offices. We will strive to introduce the Brotherhood magazine, CHRISTIAN MEN, recognized as the official organ of Men's Work, to all men of our chapter.

The following are officers of our organization:

-Preside
-Vice-Preside
-Secreta
-Treasur

and the following are our committee

We hereto attach list of the names of officers and the Chairmen of Committees.

Yours in His name,

Secretary or other officer
I hereby approve the above application.

Minister
Please enclose 25 cents to cover cost of certificate.

Have You Read

	Page		Page
A New Departure	1	Conservation Work Under Way .	13
Harry Hill Story	3	Pres. Zollars on Ministerial Supply	15
Non-Professional Evangelism . .	6	Growth of Play Grounds . . .	19
What is a Brotherhood Chapter .	7	Wireless Whispers	22
Child Labor Story	8	A Good Men's Movement . . .	30
Vice and Religion Debated . .	11	About the Board	31
Our Men's Bible Class	36

Growth of the Playground Idea

Over in Brookline, Massachusetts, there was recently held a Recreation Institute for the New England States. The purpose of this Institute was to make possible an exchange of ideas and a full discussion of the problems of recreation. The city of Brookline is one of the few cities of America which constantly employs a supervisor of recreation. In his opening address Mr. Joseph Lee, President of the Playgrounds and Recreation Association of America, made the following statement:

“Play has been unfortunately largely banished from the home for lack of room. Even domestic training now has to be supplied by the schools because mother cooks on a gas burner and has not room to show her daughter how. The problem is to find a place where boys and girls can meet under rational conditions. The school buildings seem to have the space, especially in the school halls; and I believe that a great development in the future is going to be the opening of all school buildings for this and other social purposes. People do not go wrong because they want to, but because circumstances are against them; and circumstances in the modern city, which has squeezed its children out onto the street and into dance hall and left them to get home any way they can in the small hours of the morning, are against our young people at the present time.”

RECREATION
FUNDAMENTALS

All over New England the playground idea is showing a very marked growth. The cities of New England are the most compact in the nation and therefore the recreation problem has to do with a fundamental part of the life of the entire community and is not one which concerns itself with the children alone. In a large number of cities playground commissions are coming into existence, dealing with the recreation problem comprehensively, first by learning facts, and second, facing them. Some cities are following the Brookline plan of employing a supervisor of recreation who gives his whole time, thought and energy to work out a recreation program for the entire community. A competent Board of Directors oversee the work of the supervisor of recreation and this Board rightfully claims a place alongside of commissioners of parks, schools and libraries. Even the smaller cities and many rural communities are going at the recreation problem vigorously.

SELF-GOVERNMENT

Some of the best playgrounds in New England are largely governed by children themselves, with the best possible results. This self-government idea is not a theory but a practical demonstration wherever it is handled with any degree of knowledge and forethought. This idea does not involve doing away with a regular supervisor. Mr. Ernest Hermann, Director of Physical Education, in the schools of Cambridge, Mass., in discussing this phase, says: “I do not say that you can take boys off the street; I do not say that you can develop self-management without instructing as to what it means and its value. If I start a team lesson I have to teach the children beforehand the value of coöperation. The supervisor should in a way see everything and know everything that is going on.” The average boy learns most of his meanness—and his goodness, too—from the boy a year or two his senior and hence the problem of supervision is greatly simplified by instilling into the older boys and girls the proper spirit and then calling on them to become leaders in play of younger children.

MORAL VALUE The moral value of physical education cannot be over-emphasized. We are living in a new environment in which the home plays but a feeble part. The children must find their recreation outside the home, either at public or private recreation centers. If our moral standards are to be what they ought to be in business and in life in general the standards of morality in the playground must necessarily be of the highest order; such standards will remain with the individual throughout life. Athletics may be used as means of character-building but the sport must always be above the winning of games. Physical activity should never be the end but rather should be the means toward which things will contribute toward higher and better lives. Thus young people will soon begin to give expression to their cultural qualities through evenings spent at the community center in public schools or church. Evenings of story telling, folk lore, miniature dramas and inexpensive pageants are means by which settlement houses can give annual or semi-annual expression of their cultural qualities. Where such things have been tried they become milestones in the life of the community.

MUSIC Music plays an important part in community life. In New York City, through the efforts of the Recreation Association, music for the people is dispensed in the parks and on recreation piers, where the best music is presented and received with enthusiasm by thousands of people from every walk of life. First-class music makes a distinct appeal to the finer instincts of the crowd.

THE IDEA GROWING

To give an idea of the extent to which the playground idea has gone with in a comparatively short time, please note the following: A number of cities in California have municipally-owned club houses with extensive recreation grounds many of these buildings and tracts being donated by philanthropic citizens. Without exception these centers are largely patronized for educational and social purposes and numerous associations which avail themselves of the facilities offered pay a small amount toward the running expenses of the center. These grounds are open every day, including Sunday with social and literary gatherings and Sunday-school services. Mass meetings of citizens are held immediately preceding public holidays. Saturday evening lectures and entertainment courses are provided, besides the usual gymnastics, games, social times, baths, libraries, bowling alley, cooking and sewing classes, kindergarten, etc. In the main these recreation centers are called club houses. Some of them have evening classes for both men and women. In some of the cities where municipal recreation centers are not provided, high school and other school buildings are being opened as neighborhood centers. If sufficient ground is available a public playground with instructors is established. Provision for playgrounds is being embodied in the budget of the cities whose charter will permit and if charter amendment is necessary, as in Sacramento, the necessary amendment is made. In San Diego, California, the Playground Association has plans for a $5,000 field house and a 50-acre playground.

The above reference to California, widely separated from New England, is given as an example only. The same be reported of Waterbury, Connecticut; Washington, D. C.; Denver; Cairo; Chicago; Decatur and Peoria, Illinois; Gary, Indiana; Burlington, Iowa; Louisville, Kentucky; Bangor and Portland, Maine; Baltimore; Boston and other cities in Massachusetts; Detroit; Minneapolis; Kansas City; Albany and Buffalo, and even Fargo; besides the three Cs of Ohio—Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati; Philadelphia and Pittsburg; Seattle, Washington; San Antonio, Texas, and 26 cities and towns in Wisconsin. The playground idea has come to stay. If you are interested in the progress of the movement in your community address a letter to H. S. Braucher, Secretary, Playground and Recreation Association of America, who will place you in touch with a representative of the Association in your vicinity. The Association publishes a monthly magazine, called Playground, filled to the brim with expert testimony on the above subject.

Evolution of the Playground

One of the greatest needs of the present day is adequate facility for recreation. Nowhere is it more apparent than in our cities of ten thousand inhabitants and upwards. A great mistake is being made by many churches throughout the country in establishing playgrounds both indoor and outdoor without making any provision for supervision. The present trend in the playground movement is for the general, continuous and expert supervision, not merely for the sake of advancing the idea but in order to prevent objection. Experts in the playground movement advise that unsupervised playgrounds are, as a rule, not making good. Even such playgrounds are not monopolized by rowdies they are largely used by boys who are experts in leading games and who could be counted upon to find a chance to play under almost any circumstances. The unsupervised playground is used far less than it would be under proper supervision. If a church can afford a playground either indoors or outdoors it can afford to have it supervised.

The form of supervision is a difficult question. It will pay any church to employ for a portion of his time a properly trained supervisor, preferably one who is engaged as physical director or playground superintendent. Such a man will immediately prove himself to be an indispensable adjunct to the very life of your church. For the women and girls the same kind of a feminine supervisor should be obtained. If you are doing anything along the line of children this work should be supervised by women during the summer months and by men during the school term. Such persons may be found among the teachers of public schools who would be willing to give their time outside of school hours to work in your recreation center.

See article by H. G. Hill elsewhere in this issue, commenting further upon the above subject and bringing it closer home to our churches.

Wireless Whispers

Facts About the Brotherhood Class at Wichita, Kansas

BY C. A. MUSSELEMAN.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Judge J. N. Haymaker, Vice-President of the National Brotherhood, is teacher of this class.

The chief cause of the success of the class both in the contest and in individual class growth and interest is the initiative shown by almost every individual in the class. I never saw the spirit in this respect equalled. Every man did some thinking of his own and then acted without waiting to be urged on by some one else; and yet through it all there was a united effort; there was organization and men worked according to a certain system but the secret was that every man got into the game and went even farther than his assignment.

This spirit is still the characteristic of the class, and as long as it prevails there is no danger of failure. They are all busy; constantly at it.

The class was first organized two years ago with six members. We grew steadily. During the first winter we reached an enrollment of about twenty-five and on one occasion had seventy-five present.

But things started with a new spirit this fall and especially after the Billy Sunday meeting. We laid many plans and tried out all sorts of enlistment and follow-up schemes. They all helped, but success does not consist in any one scheme; after all, it depends on the personality of the individuals. That is what did the work and it will always so be.

We have an employment department. A fine social atmosphere always prevails. We used big bulletin boards on the street corner. We put the names of our members on chairs with an empty chair by its side to be filled by the one next to him. The town was districted and several persons assigned to each district to wake up and get out those living in that neighborhood. We are still using this plan with large success.

We are now dividing up into athletic and chorus groups, etc. This is keeping up interest in fine shape.

Members of the class are uniting with the church from time to time. Many are in the class that have not been in Bible school for five and six years. We had our members on the street on Saturday nights inviting the class on Sunday and some said it was their first invitation in six years residence in Wichita.

It is by far the largest class of restricted ages in the city and I doubt if there is a better in the state, 18 to 30 years. We are now holding our attendance at 150 and are not be satisfied with less.

Mr. C. A. McCorkle is president of the class. He is a young attorney graduated from Cornell. W. F. Hockaday, secretary, an accessory business. To him was due a large part of the success in building up the class. W. F. Pieper is treasurer.

So the work goes on and every thing is flourishing.

* * *

Bible Class Statistics

The International Sunday-School Association have issued a report showing the condition of their affairs at close of business March 25, 1912. The Christian Church stands at the head of the list with 6,904 organized classes, with a membership of 155,783 and 261 classes reported for the first quarter of 1912. However, the Methodist Episcopal Church shows a greater growth for the quarter than we do. Report shows 6,185 classes, making a total for Methodists of 156,691 pupils, this is less than 1,000 pupils more than is reported by the Christian Church.

We doubt not that there are classes of men, readers of CHRISTIAN MEN magazine, that do not hold the International Certificate. That would bring our enrollment very much higher than it is. Enrollment in the International Sunday-School Association costs 25 cents and we strongly recommend that Brotherhood classes and other Men's classes hold this International certificate. It will be a splendid compliment to the Brotherhood certificate and any other certificate of affiliation that you now have. If all of our Men's classes not already holding International certificates will make application through the State Bible School Superintendent, or directly to the International Sunday-School Association, 1415 Mallery Building, Chicago, Illinois, we can head the list without a particle of doubt.

Regarding the Louisville Convention

helping to work up carloads of Disciples nearly every state, personally answering hundreds of letters every day, assigning headquarters for various delegations and answering "a thousand and one" questions about the coming International Convention in Louisville. October 15th-22d, George A. Jones thinks he is the busiest man in Louisville.

Although hailing from the Badger State (Wis.) there is no running backward with him. He is always pushing to the front and when the Louisville committee wanted a man with iron nerve, grit, go-ahead-it-ive-ness and stick-to-it-ive-ness, it went to Bro. E. L. Powell, whose associate he is at the great First Church, to tell him that they had picked Brother Jones.

Bro. Jones fairly bubbles over with enthusiasm when you talk to him about the Convention. He says he has sufficient information to warrant his saying that the Louisville Convention will be the greatest and most largely attended in the history of the Brotherhood and he therefore urges everybody who contemplates meeting their friends in the Old Kentucky Home, to write to him at once for their reservations, registration certificates or any other information they may wish regarding the Convention.

The Brotherhood National Officers are holding a movement to carry a full "Special Train" from Kansas City and Saint Louis to Louisville. This will be another treat such as we had in our journey to Portland last summer, and those who went with us on that "ride" branded it as the "best yet." If you want your name on our diagram, drop us a line. It will only cost a cent.

* * *

Grafton Leaves Kansas City

T. W. GRAFTON

Kansas City is losing a mighty good preacher, and a good citizen, and the men of Jackson Avenue Church are giving up an elder brother of the proper sort. The Brotherhood movement is losing the chairman of its advisory committee, though he will remain a member of the Executive Board. This man is Thomas William Grafton, whose counterfeit likeness is presented herewith. Brother Grafton goes to the Third Church at Indianapolis, the home church of the editor of this paper. He has been in Kansas City two years and two months, but those have been busy times. He has shown Kansas City and Missouri and Kansas a few things that they will remember after he is gone away. Before coming to Kansas City Mr. Grafton was pastor at Anderson, Indiana, and before that at Rock Island, Illinois, for ten years, and before that he was at Ann Arbor, Michigan, where we have a Bible chair at the State University. Before that he was a student at Oskaloosa College in Iowa, and there he met his wife, daughter of the late B. W. Johnson. Before that he was the son of a farmer in Iowa, and drove eight miles to church every Sunday. He is the father of one daughter and one son and the husband of one wife who is almost if not quite as great a preacher and worker as her husband. Organization is the forte of the family. Mr. Grafton organizes the men and boys and puts them to work. Mrs. Grafton organizes the women and establishes Young Ladies' Mission Circles and helps on in the Aid Society, and the Mothers' Clubs, and Cradle Roll. They begin at Indianapolis on July 1st, and things will be stirring there shortly thereafter.

* * *

A New Director

D. Y. DONALDSON

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Brotherhood of Disciples held at Kansas City, May 24th, an invitation was extended to Rev. David Yandell Donaldson, associate pastor of the Independence Boulevard Christian Church, of Kansas City, Missouri, to become a member of the Executive Board of the Brotherhood, and this invitation was later accepted by Mr. Donaldson. On July 1st he will assume the duties of chairman of the Advisory Committee of three members, in place of T. W. Grafton, whose removal from Kansas City to Indianapolis occurs July 1st. Mr. Donaldson was State Secretary of the Missouri Christian Missionary Society before he began to share the burdens and responsibilities with George Hamilton Combs. Before that he was pastor of the Wabash Avenue Church in Kansas City. Before that he was pastor in Kansas and before that a Kentuckian, which he claims to be still.

Kentucky Bible School Institute

The Kentucky Christian Sunday-School Associations announces its first annual summer school for Sunday-School and Missionary Workers to be held at Morehead, Kentucky, June 17-23, 1912. Morehead is a magic place among the Disciples of Christ, due to the location there of the C. W. B. M. School with its beautiful campus and school building, dormitory, etc. Morehead is situated in the heart of the mountain district of Kentucky and the mountains are at their best during the month of June. The faculty includes Walter E. Frazee, State Superintendent; Robt. M. Simpson, Indiana State Brotherhood Chairman; W. J. Clarke, Myron C. Settle, Marion Stevenson and Robt. M. Hopkins.

Those interested in this institute should communicate at once with Walter E. Frazee, 616 Keller building, Louisville, Ky.

* * *

Affairs at Glenville

BY B. HARRIS.

O. L. HULL

The Glennville Church of Christ at Cleveland is growing to such an extent that the Brotherhood and members are contemplating a large addition to the building. Our pastor, O. L. Hull, is a hard and diligent worker. Our Bible School superintendent, Dr. Neff, is a very busy worker—especially among the children. Brother Doty, McWade and Harris are at the front entrance to welcome strangers every Lord's day and have the glad hand of fellowship for every one present. They are a trio of the Lord's Disciples in the full sense of Christianity. We are a growing congregation for the upbuilding of the Kingdom.

* * *

Springfield, Missouri, Announcement

One thousand in attendance. Brotherhood in charge. South Street Christian Sunday-School, June 9th. We want to make this the greatest Sunday-School Day Southern Missouri has ever known, and we want you to be there.

Special music by orchestra and chorus. Assembly services in church auditorium at 9:00 a. m. Bring a friend.

The Result

SRPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 9, 1912.

R. A. LONG,

Care Independence Blvd. Christian Church,
Kansas City, Mo.

Greetings. Overcast sky; occasional showers; Brotherhood in charge of South Street Christian Sunday-School; one thousand and thirty in attendance; large percentage of men; great enthusiasm; the greatest Sunday-School day in Southwest Missouri. God bless the Brotherhood work.

F. L. MOFFETT, Pastor

Mr. Long's Reply

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 9, 1912.

REV. F. L. MOFFETT,

South Street Christian Church, Springfield, Mo.

Your telegram received. Heartiest congratulations yourself and officers and Brotherhood men in the ranks over today's success, especially the magnificent Bible School attendance. Permit me to predict that you are at the beginning of larger and better things for the Kingdom in your community. Shall watch your progress with interest.

R. A. LONG, President

* * *

A Unique Announcement

BROTHERHOOD DISCIPLES OF CHRIST.

The Methodist Brotherhood have extended us an invitation to attend their Brotherhood meeting Monday evening, June 10th, 8 p. m. It is up to us to make a good showing. We will meet at Christian church at 7:45 and go in a body. Please attend without fail. A good time is assured.—W. C. WESTLAKE, President.

Trenton, Mo.

* * *

Inter-Brotherhood Council

Upon the occasion of the Christian Conservation Congress in New York, the national secretaries of the various Brotherhoods and members of executive boards were graciously entertained at luncheon by Mr. Fred E. Tasker, president of the Methodist Brotherhood. The luncheon was spread in the private dining room of Wanamaker's. Matters of moment to the various national movements were discussed and a National Council of the Brotherhood was organized, with Fred E. Tasker president and Hubert Carleton secretary. Mr. Carleton is general secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. An executive committee consisting of the officers and three members was appointed, the members being Walter Getty, of the Presbyterian Brotherhood, Henry A. Kinison, of the Congregational Brotherhood, and Warren L. Bunger, of the Otterbein Brotherhood, United Brethren Church. The next meeting of the National Council will be held in Chicago at the time of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew convention in September.

A Report Worthy of Emulation

Secretary's Report

ANNUAL REPORT OF ELDORADO BROTHERHOOD DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, NO. 283.

From former treasurer	$19.00
Special subscriptions.	11.00
Lecture course, 1910-11.....	72.50
Dues first half of year.....	14.00
Stamps	4.00
Subscription for chairs.....	8.50
Powers.....	1.05
Subscription Men and Religion Forward Movement	8.00
Subscription National Brotherhood, January	15.00
Miscellaneous subscriptions and dues	14.10—$167.15
Aid for CHRISTIAN MEN.....	$10.40
Improvements on room.....	16.75
Lecture course, 1910-11.....	72.50
J. K. Shellenberger.....	12.30
National dues first half of year.	7.50
Purchase of University Church chairs	12.00
C. L. Hays, sundries advanced..	7.65
Stamps	4.00
Powers	1.05
Men and Religion Forward Movement Campaign	8.00
National Brotherhood, January offering	15.00—$167.15
February 6th, 1912, cash in general fund..	$1.10
Notes	None
Number of members	30
Subscriptions to CHRISTIAN MEN.....	30
Men regularly attending Bible Class.....	12
Professed Christians.....	19
Non-professors.....	11—30

* * *

Death of Dr. Fayette L. Thompson

One of the earliest advocates of the Brotherhood idea in the Methodist Episcopal Church was Dr. Fayette L. Thompson, the first general secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood. We recently received word from New York of Dr. Thompson's death. At the beginning of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, Dr. Thompson was a conspicuous figure at scores of preliminary gatherings in campaign cities and elsewhere, making stirring addresses from the various conference platforms. The committee of ninety-seven very wisely chose him as the chief associate of Fred B. Smith, the campaign leader. Just prior to the opening of the campaign proper last September, Dr. Thompson suffered a nervous collapse and was taken off a train unconscious. He rallied from this first attack only to be the victim of recurrences and was not able to be at any of the Men and Religion campaigns which he had so wisely assisted in preparing. His last days were spent in a hospital in New York, surrounded by a sorrowing family and friends.

The Methodist Brotherhood has lost a leader of rare ability and the Brotherhood movement in general will miss his counsel, for he was active in the affairs of the movement.

On behalf of the thousands of men identified with the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ we extend our sympathy to the bereft family and host of sorrowing friends.

* * *

Ashtabula, A Brotherhood Church

BY S. G. BUCKNER.

We have a membership of 771 resident members, an enrollment in our Bible school of about 800, a C. W. B. M. society with almost 200 members, supporting Mr. E. C. Davis in India.

Our men's organization is a leading feature with more than 300 members, with an average attendance, stretching over a period of almost two years, of more than 100 men per Sunday. Our Brotherhood meets in our own property across the street from the church, where it does distinctive work in the community. More than forty men from the Brotherhood have been baptized in a little more than a year. Constant evangelism is our program.

Our church has a decided community conscience and makes itself largely felt in all movements in this city of 20,000 people. The pastor has for two years been president of the Ministerial Association and is now chairman of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which is setting into our Brotherhood a scientific proportionate and effective program of work with a large Junior Brotherhood of about sixty boys.

The church is only nineteen years old in the midst of other churches in the community one hundred years old.

* * *

Newark Again

The latest stunt of the local Brotherhood of the Central Church of Christ of Newark, Ohio, is the establishment of a fraternal association of the Brotherhood. A set of rules and regulations for the conduct of the association has been incorporated and published. If space permitted they would make a very valuable contribution to CHRISTIAN MEN magazine. Those interested in similar matters would do well to send to A. B. Painter, secretary, 393 Eddy street, Newark, Ohio, for a copy of the rules and regulations. In fact, we are so much interested in them that we have sent for a supply to add to our organization packet.

* * *

Regarding Brotherhood Hymns

"The Business Men's Bible Class of the Trenton Christian Church have authorized me to purchase twenty-five copies of Brotherhood songs for use of the class. Please ship me by express at your earliest convenience, together with the bill," so writes W. C. Westlake.

* * *

This is a "Rush" order for one dozen Brotherhood Hymns. Kindly ship at your earliest convenience. These are for a male choir of Wilson Avenue Brotherhood class, J. J. Tis-dall, pastor and teacher. We will take an offering for Brotherhood work later on. Two confessions on Conservation day.—J. J. TISDALL, Columbus, Ohio.

* * *

Morris Still Busy

C. T. MORRIS

C. T. Morris, who has been one of our faithful, unpaid representatives, and who has traveled extensively among the Churches of Christ all over the country, sends us a list of twenty-four subscribers to CHRISTIAN MEN, this time from Yoakum, Texas, and with the list this letter:

"I have not been idle, even if silent, in the part of the Lone Star State, where the Disciples are hardly known. The enclosed list of twenty-four names for CHRISTIAN MEN are from two small mission churches in two towns of a few thousand population each. The Disciples are so few that two brothers paid for four subscriptions each; two others paid for two each."

* * *

Book Review

L. C. OBERLIES

"Mission in the Bible School" is the title of a neat booklet of sixty pages issued by L. C. Oberlies, State Bible School Superintendent, of Lincoln, Nebraska. Crowded between the pretty covers is a wealth of information and inspiration that means business in the missionary line with our churches. Chapters deal with the fundamentals in missions and all with our specific fields. The questionnaire method is used to great advantage.

Copies of the booklet may be secured for cents each by addressing the author at Lincoln, Nebraska.

* * *

Appreciation of Christian Men

I consider CHRISTIAN MEN about the best reading that comes to my desk. Let us have even more "Flesh and Blood" achievement writeups.

Sincerely yours,

FLOYD A. BASH.

* * *

Have enjoyed CHRISTIAN MEN very much. Each number is a treat. Could hardly do without it.—ERNEST MOLLOY, Bethany, Mo.

* * *

Allow me to express my appreciation of the recent issues of CHRISTIAN MEN. It is the most valuable magazine of its kind I know.—R. E. HUNT, Duluth, Minn.

* * *

Ohio Brotherhood's New Secretary

BY WM. SPANTON, AKRON.

WM. SPANTON

D. W. Teachout, of Cleveland, was elected secretary and M. E. Baker president at the State Brotherhood sessions at Canton. My work as superintendent of our Bible school here is as much as I can attend to. To do the work properly the secretary of the Ohio State Committee on Brotherhood has enough for one man without anything else, and there is no use trying to do two full jobs and slighting both of them. It has been very pleasant work, and I have made some very dear friends in the process. Of course my interest will still be with the movement, even though I may not be connected with it in an official capacity.

* * *

More Volunteer Field Secretaries

On our recent journey through the East presenting the merits of the Brotherhood Movement, it was our pleasure to confer with several groups of our ministers regarding our future work, and we are pleased to report the number of them are vitally interested in the movement—so much so that their services have been volunteered in making addresses before local groups and at conventions. This is a most commendable action and augurs well for increased growth in Brotherhood work. Scores of our churches should take advantage of this opportunity to have men's work presented adequately in their local field. Any one of these men will be able to bring before your people a larger vision of service, without which the church cannot hope to succeed. Those volunteering their services for this character of work were as follows:

C. M. Watson, Norfolk, Va., 505 12th St.; P. Atkins, Richmond, Va., 500 N. Meadow St.; Geo. A. Miller, Washington, D. C., 9th and D Sts.; John R. Ewers, Pittsburg, Pa., 102 Adler St.; J. W. Underwood, Pittsburg, Pa., 7241 Race St., E. E.; A. P. Finley, Bethany, W. Va.; Howard Cramblett, McKeesport, Pa., 422 Penny St., State Bible School Superintendent.

* * *

Quartette Makes A Hit

At the district convention at Albia, Iowa, a quartette of preachers made a big hit with songs from Brotherhood Hymns, especially "The Church in the Wildwood." They have already been engaged to sing at the Iowa convention at Oskaloosa in September. We have sent for a photograph of the quartette, which has not yet arrived. We understand two of the group are C. C. Davis, of Chariton, Iowa, and B. S. Denny, State Secretary.

* * *

Argument for the Bible

"Some time ago you asked this question: 'The Bible or CHRISTIAN MEN?' alluding to the inserting of the Bible lesson along with the notes. Give us the Bible. We all have Bibles. If not, we ought to get one. Give the place to other valuable material." So writes C. Gresham, Minister, Sioux Falls, S. D.

* * *

Regarding Men and Religion Movement

In the May number of Everybody's Magazine appears a very splendid write-up of the scope of the Men and Religion Movement, from the pen of H. E. Rood, a writer of rare abilities. Mr. Rood was in charge of a portion of the publicity work during the Men and Religion campaigns and the article from his pen is illuminating and worthy of a wide readership.

* * *

Brotherhood Sessions, Bethany Park, Indiana, August 17th and 18th

We have received the program of Bethany assembly for 1912. Crowded between its neat covers is a program of education and entertainment that compares favorably with any similar program that has come to our desk in some time. The sessions begin on July 25th and close on August 18th. Temperance, Politics, Preaching, Concerts, Equal Suffrage, Children, Sunday-School Movement and the Brotherhood Movement come in for a generous share of attention. There are the usual number of celebrities as speakers, lecturers, entertainers and faculty, well distributed throughout the length and breadth of the program. The gates of Bethany open inward and wide. The hospitality is of the genuine Hoosier sort. The cottages, campus, hotels, tabernacle, etc.; the lake and forest, and the country roads around about are extremely inviting. The editor of this paper anticipates a few days' sojourn for rest and conference at the Bethany assembly this year. We hope to meet a great host of our friends there on August 17th and 18th for the exchange of information and inspiration upon the very vital subject of men's work. The orators for our Brotherhood session will be Robt. N. Simpson, State Chairman, of New Albany, and Chas. C. Wilson, Lecturer and Traveler, of Milwaukee.

* * *

Patterson Moves Up

WILLIAM B. PATTERSON

William B. Patterson, former General Secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood, has resigned as Editor of Methodist Men, of which magazine he was one of the founders. He has accepted the Social Service Secretaryship of the Inter-Church Federation of Philadelphia. Mr. Patterson has been a member of the American Institute of Social Service for several years, and of the committee of that society which is publishing, under the editorship of Dr. Josiah Strong, lessons in "The Gospel of the Kingdom." He was one of the original group which organized the Laity League for Social Service in New York City, now operating autonomously through the Federation of Churches, and was the Vice-Chairman of the Social Service Committee of the New York Men and Religion Movement.

* * *

Oklahoma University Expands

In the great simultaneous educational campaign of the various schools and colleges during the next three years, Oklahoma University promises to have a large part. Their present plant, located at Enid, is said to be worth $150,000, including twenty acres of campus and several fine buildings. The school has an enrollment this year of 350, 94 being ministerial students. The school has no debt, and an endowment of $50,000. Twenty different states and countries are represented in the student body. The three years' campaign proposes to raise an endowment of $250,000; also to establish a Student Aid Fund of $10,000; an additional $10,000 for an industrial farm; $15,000 for married students' homes; forty acres of campus; additional buildings and equipment and an enlarged enrollment placed at 1,200. They are on the lookout for a strong man with energy, determination and a great vision to become the leader in this great campaign. E. V. Zollars is the President; O. N. Roth, Chancellor.

* * *

Annual Letter from Our Indiana Brotherhood President

ROBERT SIMPSON

I have done the best that I could do as President of the Indiana Brotherhood and the visible result of the year's work has been the organization of Brotherhoods at Corydon, Throntown, Howard Park, and an affiliated class at Scottsburg. I attended and addressed five of our District Conventions, delivered the Brotherhood address at our State Convention, and am on the program at Bethany Park. In addition to these I have spoken to a dozen more groups of men in the interest of the Brotherhood. I have met with some discouragement, but that is to be expected in any new work, and the subject has not been apparently a popular one at our conventions, but I have presented it in the very best way that I knew and have sown seed that I am sure will bear fruit.

* * *

Alexander Campbell as a Preacher

BY ARCHIBALD M'LEAN.

This book was published in 1908 and has had wide circulation among the Christian Church public. No man in our Brotherhood is more eminently fitted to speak upon the personality of the Campbells than Archibald McLean. The neat booklet on Alexander Campbell is a worthy compliment for that other book—Thomas and Alexander Campbell—by the same author. The book is well printed on good paper; contains 48 pages, with a wide margin and a neat paper cover, durable and attractive. Copies of the book may be secured from the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, Box 884, Cincinnati, or from Fleming H. Revell Company, the publishers, 158 Fifth Ave., New York City.

* * *

The American Bible

Why there is no Demand in this Country for a New Version

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: In The Sun of March 24 was an article headed "No Need of Again Revising the Bible." The reason why scholars here are not interested in a revision, as you correctly state, is that in nearly ten years we have had in this country such a Bible, the American Standard Bible, prepared by the greatest body of American Christian scholars ever assembled in this country. These scholars, representing the evangelical denominations and selected for their special fitness for the work, gave nearly thirty years of unselfish and unpaid labor to the preparation and translation of this version of the Scriptures and it has commended itself not only to America but to the scholars of the whole world.

The Congregational Sunday-school has the Bible in use and the denominational Sunday-school lesson literature uses it exclusively. I am informed that many of the other denominations do the same. The statement is made here, and I believe truly, that the text of this version is used in all the theological seminaries and in colleges which have courses in the English Bible, as well as the Young Men's Christian Association's Bible study course. Three carloads of these Bibles were shipped to California to supply the hotel bedrooms on the coast by the Gideons.

The accuracy of this version has so commended itself to the missionaries throughout the world that wherever the Bible is being translated into the language where they are working, this text is used. The Rev. Jacob Charlesberlain, M.D., D.D., LL.D., Coonoor, India, who was the representative from America to the Reformed Board, writes as follows:

"After reading the testimonials from Oriental Bible scholars it has occurred to me that you might like to know how the American Standard Bible strikes one who looks at it from the standpoint of an Oriental Bible translator and reviser.

"Having been engaged for more than twenty years as chairman of the Telugu Bible revision committee, in the retranslation of the Bible from the originals into one of the principal languages of India, and having at times had open before me on my table translations of the Bible in eleven languages to note the peculiar turn of an idea in particular passages and having watched with intense interest the work of the English and American revisers from the first, and now having used the complete work of the final American revision committee since its first issue in 1901, I am free to say that I regard the American Standard Bible as the most accurate and vivid rendering of the Hebrew and Greek originals of any version yet issued in any language."

The facts show why churchmen are not in sympathy with a new revision of the Bible for this country, for we already have The Standard English Bible of the World, the product of the ripest American Christian scholarship.

O. W. BINKERD.

New Canaan, Conn., April 12th.

* * *

Moving Pictures of Boy Scouts

Moving pictures are now utilized to show the maneuvers of the Boy Scouts. This will show the scouts in one portion of the country, have a view of their soldierly brethren in another part when being reviewed by Vice-President Sherman. The pictures will do much to show the boys how a soldierly bearing is not altogether associated with the carrying of guns. The Boy Scout movement is getting into the very blood of young America, and there could be no more enthusiastic leader of the movement than President Colin H. Livingston. The story of his association with the scouts came about in rather a roundabout manner. Two years ago in Washington was visited by Mr. W. D. Boyce, who asked for active interest in the Boy Scout movement. Livingston suggested several men whom he thought were better qualified than himself to lead, but he promised to help out as best he could, if it was not possible to get anyone else. Not long after he received a peremptory message to come to New York, and before he could catch his breath he was elected President of the American Boy Scouts.

He was right on hand at the organization of the American movement, was placed in the position as president without ceremony and has been able to get out of the office since. See Mitchell Chapple, in National Magazine.

* * *

Regarding Modern Knights of St. Paul

BY L. SCHOFIELD, GEN'L SEC'Y Y. M. C. A., BLOOMINGTON, ILL.

We purchased the book and all of our committee read the same, and they were so well satisfied with the general outline that they came to Cincinnati for a conference with me under. Last week I spent a day in Cincinnati and for five hours was in a conference with Mr. Jemison. Three hours on boys' work, Senior Brotherhood, and two hours on men's work or Senior Brotherhood.

In my mind it is the best outline I have ever seen or heard of for a definite work for boys and men. It's adaptable to the large church, to a small community, and is a splendid organization for the Y. M. C. A. to use in its inter-church work.

We have had two informal meetings since coming home—one of the Religious Work Finance Committee, and now we are submitting the plan to the Boys' Work Committee, which will be formally adopted for our Association at the next Board Meeting. We expect to begin at once on the Boys' Brotherhood, Modern Knights of St. Paul, and take up the men's department as soon as possible. It has as its one great central thought the winning of the boy to Jesus Christ, have him join the church, and keep him busy in Christian work. The men's organization naturally follows the boy's work, for when these young fellows become 18 or 19 years old they want something different. The men's department has two degrees and the boy's three.

Personally, I am delighted with the plan. It has been working now some six years where time has been given to it. After my conference with you in Bloomington the other day, I am of the opinion that if CHRISTIAN MEN could suggest a definite line of work for boys and assist the churches in getting started through the Brotherhoods in each church, it would be the greatest piece of work yet attempted, and I would not hesitate to recommend the Modern Knights of St. Paul for the boys and Fraternal Brotherhood for the men.

* * *

A Letter From Florida

E. S. NORTON

When the Bellavben class was young, E. S. Norton was its president. Norton was one of the leaders at the time of the Pittsburg Centennial. For some months he has been in Florida and wherever he goes he is interesting himself in the man problem. We are in receipt of a long and interesting letter in regard to his experiences there, all of which would make pleasant reading in CHRISTIAN MEN, but space forbids its publication. While Brother Norton is happy in his sojourn in sunny Florida, he yearns to be back among the noise and bustle of the smoky city and we doubt not that some day his path will lead to "Dear Old Bellavben."

Men's Movement at Mexico, Missouri

A Meeting Prophetic of Good

BY W. A. SHULLENBERGER, MINISTER.

W. A. SHULLENBERGER

Last Sunday afternoon the men of the Executive Committee of the Men's Movement met in joint session with the officers of the Church Board to plan coöperative measures for the successful termination of our church year and to survey the field of probable and imperative progressive enterprises. With one or two exceptions our entire Board was present, and the Men's Executive Committee was in attendance. The spirit of the meeting was one of mutual congratulation, the Board receiving the compliments of the men from the Men's Movement because of a year's work so triumphantly carried through and the men of the church being greeted with praise by reason of their well-backed revival and the marvelously well collected "Increase and Betterment Fund."

The treasurer's report showed that $565.24 of the "Increase and Betterment Fund" had come in during the three weeks of the revival, leaving outstanding of that fund but $37. This enabled them to pay off the note of $300 at the bank—a sum necessitated by renewal of three years' insurance on the building and installation of steam heat—and in addition paying the expenses of the revival and forwarding $50 to our brethren at Fulton to apply on their new building there. It will be remembered that when we built they did a similarly gracious act for us.

After jointly considering the year's work, the Men's Executive Committee made some suggestions and recommendations to the church for our advancement and larger work. They, moreover, declared emphatically that they were ready as representatives of the church's men to back every recommendation whenever the Board and membership thought fit to launch such enterprises. Following are the recommendations:

1. That good, strong arc lights be placed over the south and west entrances to the church.

2. That electric fans be installed in the auditorium.

3. That the church grounds be groomed and beautified by shrubberies.

4. That a nursery be provided in the church proper and equipped with folding cradles and all other conveniences, that mothers may have a place to leave their little ones.

5. That not less than 400 packets of Duplex envelopes be put out this year; that the number of contributors to the church be raised from the 517 to the 650 mark, and that every person who will use said Duplex envelopes, however young they may be as members, be so provided.

6. That a Financial Secretary be provided with an office on the business square near the court house. This Financial Secretary shall look after the church's finances under the direction of the Finance Committee, and also act as stenographer and private secretary to the pastor.

7. That this be made a record year in the collection of pledges made, so that at our annual meeting, June 5th, there should be a minimum of uncollected contributions.

8. That more room must be provided for general church purposes. The men pointed out how our Bible School was hampered in its work, and how the building was too small for church services to such an extent that over 100 to 300 had been turned away from the church services for the past two months. A balcony in the auditorium received mention and commendation looking toward the erection of a church annex providing a gymnasium, swimming pool, shower baths and reading room, also large dining room and kitchen, an auditorium with gallery seating 1,200 people on the main floor and so arranged as to give additional Bible School rooms.

Such was the interest on the part of the men in the discussion of the suggestions that the meeting lasted over two and a half hours to be then adjourned because of the lateness of the hour. The beautifying of the grounds was given into the hands of the ladies of the church. The Repair Committee was instructed to look into the matter of arc lights for outside use and to secure power on electric fans for the church to be installed in the near future. The Finance Committee reported the 400 packets of Duplex envelopes ordered. The Board unanimously approved the increase to 650 contributors. Everyone declared the problem of more room to be a big one, but for lack of time only a general discussion ensued on the subject. It was thought best to bring some of the recommendations up before the membership at the annual meeting of the church June 5th. The joint meeting of these men of the church will go down in our local history as the most significant of years.

Editor's Note.—The author of the above article was formerly pastor at Trenton, Missouri, before that he was a student at Drake. En route to our Portland Convention he was aboard the Brotherhood train and took part in the several discussions upon men's work in the Chapel Car. That his labors with men have not been in vain is self-evident.

Say you saw it in "Christian Men"

There's a Moral Here

You have to get "all wrapped up in a thing before you can get 'sold.'"

A Free Ticket

With each attack of delirium tremens goes a free ticket to a moving picture show.

What Is Money?

Money is the universal provider of everything but happiness, and the universal passport to everywhere but heaven.

And She Gets It

He—"Do you give your wife an allowance, or does she ask you for money when she wants it?"
She—"Both."—From Answers, London.

Estimation

Herwin: "So your father speaks very highly of me, doesn't he?"
Angelina: "Yes; he says you're the highest-priced doctor in town."

Nothing in a Name, Eh?

There's a man over in New Jersey running a hardware store by the name of Reckless. He added a small stock of celebration goods last Fourth of July time, and his store blew up!

Faulty Family Tree

Willie—Has Jack a good reason for being ashamed of his ancestors?
Willie—I should say so. His Grandfather struck four times in a world's series.—From the Philadelphia Record.

Reward for Faithful Service

See one of our big corporations is going to do something for its old clerks.
Good luck! What form will it take?
Well, after a man has been with them twenty-five years they're going to give him a gold stripe on his sleeve.—From Tit-Bits.

Prize Contest

At the request of my 9,759,312 readers, I am offering a reward of ten pins for the name of the author of the following poem:
As a rule, a man's a fool,
When it's hot he wants it cool,
When it's cool he wants it hot,
Always wanting what is not.

The Ten Most Dispensable Men

Numerous lists of the ten greatest men now living have been prepared, but there has been no list of ten who could be the most easily dispensed with. Herewith is a tentative ten:
Doctor Cook, Upton Sinclair, James Eads How, Bert Hubbard, Secretary Wilson, Richard Ballinger, Ferdinand Pinney Earle, George Cohan, Senator Lamer, Count Boni de Castellane.

No—He Works

A little girl, becoming separated from her mother in a crowded street, was picked up by a policeman and sent to the station. The deskman fancied a family resemblance between the wee maid and one of the officers of the station.

"Is your papa a policeman, little girl," the big desk sergeant asked.
"Oh, no," she replied. "He works."

Introducing His Successor

The old beggar, who called on Herb Meyer at his office in New York every week for his quarter of a dollar, came in last week with another man.

"What do you mean?" asked Meyer. "Isn't it enough to give you something each week without bringing in another?"

"Well, Mr. Meyer," answered the beggar, "I thought I would bring him in and introduce him—as I just sold him my route."—From the Saturday Evening Post.

A Brave One.

A merchant had ordered a jug of whiskey, the man who delivered it let the cork slip out and spilled a little on the floor. A rat in the corner came out and took a sip and scooted into his hole, then he came again and scooted into his hole, the third time he did not get back to the hole, he continued to shorten the distance every time, until he just stayed and licked all of the liquor up. Then he stood upon his hind feet and looking all around, said, "Now, where is that cat?"

The Celestial Telephone

In China, when a subscriber rings up the exchange, the operator may be expected to ask:

"What number does the honorable son of the moon and stars desire?"

"Tohi, two-three."

Silence. Then the exchange resumes:

"Will the honorable person graciously forgive the inadequacy of the insignificant service, and permit this humble slave of the wire to inform him that the never-to-be-sufficiently-censured line is busy?"—From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Willie's Idea of Santa Claus

"Mamma," said Willie, "does Santa Claus get in his sleigh on Christmas eve and drive round to all the houses of the little boys and girls?"

"Yes, dear," replied Mrs. Johnson.

"And does he stop at each chimney as he goes along and leave just the right things?"

"Yes, dear."

"He must be pretty quick to visit all the little boys and girls in one night."

"He is, dear."

"I don't believe he does it that way," declared Willie, thoughtfully.

"How do you think he does it?" asked his interested parent.

"I think he plans ahead and does some of the work beforehand."

"What makes you think so?"

"Well," said Willie, "I notice that he's got all my presents put away in one of the closets already."
—The Youth's Companion.

From Brotherhood Hymns

No. 67.

Old Glory.

COPYRIGHT, 1898, BY W. E. M. HACKLEMAN.

(Princely Knights' National Hymn.)

Americus W. Conner.

W. E. M. Hackleman.

Con spirito.

1. Flag of a thou-sand bat-tles! Beau-ti-ful flag of the free,
 2. Flag of a thou-sand vic-t'ries! Vic-t'ries of right o-ver wrong,
 3. Flag of Im-per-ial Man-hood! Un-der thy glo-ri-ous fold,

Wav-ing from hill and moun-tain, Wav-ing o'er land and the sea;
 Daugh-ters and sons most loy-al, Ev-er shall praise thee in song,
 Man shall at-tain his glo-ry— Glo-ry by proph-ets fore-told;

Out-ward and sea-ward ev-er, Proud-ly and grand-ly wave;
 Tell-ing the bless-ed Un-ion, Lib-er-ty joined with Law;
 Truth shall proclaim her mes-sage; Broth-er-ly love in-crease;

Un-der thy folds of splen-dor, Gath-er the true and brave.
 Na-tions shall give thee rev-'rence; Ty-rants shall stand in awe.
 Wave on, thou flag of glo-ry— Wave till op-pres-sion cease.

From Brotherhood Hymns

Old Glory.

CHORUS.

SOLO. Old Glo - ry, old Glo - ry,

Old Glo - ry, old Glo - ry, The world a - waits thy sto - ry!

Float on,.....

Float on,..... float on,..... Thou em - blem of the free!
Float on, float on,

Old Glo - ry, old Glo - ry,

Old Glo - ry, old Glo - ry, The world a - waits thy sto - ry;

Float on,.....

Float on,..... float on,..... Pro-claim-ing lib - er - ty!
Float on, float on,

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR JULY.

No. 2.

TOPIC—Religious Books.

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Old Glory," see page 32.
2. Prayer.
3. Scripture reading.
4. Male Chorus, from Brotherhood Hymns.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Devotional Books.

- a, Why as men we should read devotional books.
- b, Some devotional books that have helped me.
- c, How the Prayer Book came to be. Should we have one today? If not, what should we have in its place?

Address: The teacher training course.

- a, Its scope and purpose.
- b, Its value to the Bible School and to our men were they to take it.

Address: The Church and the Night School.

- a, The necessity for a night school.
- b, The night school as an open door to the church to the heart of the Foreigner.
- c, Teaching others who cannot afford the ordinary means of education as an avenue of expression for many who would like to do good.

III.—Business.

- Roll Call.
- Minutes.
- Reports.
- Unfinished Business.
- New Business.
- Reception of new members.

IV.—Recess, Social and Closing.

- Offering.
- A good time for ice cream, and good fellowship.
- Hymn.
- Benediction.

PROGRAM FOR AUGUST.

No. 1.

TOPIC—Christ in Modern Industry.

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "God will Take Care of You," Brotherhood Hymns.
2. Prayer.
3. Scripture Reading, Col. 1:14-20.
4. Hymn or special music.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Christ and Labor.

- a, Labor fundamental in the social order.
- b, Christ dignified labor by being a laborer.
- c, Selfishness the dry-rot of labor as well as capital.
- d, The Golden Rule applied to labor problems.

Address: Christ and Capital.

- a, Capital only a convenient means of exchange.
- b, Christ as a capitalist. He had ALL things at His command.
- c, Christ's lesson to Capital. "Thou Shalt not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God."
- d, The value of wealth when consecrated to doing good, and its hellishness when used for selfish ends.

Address: The place of "The Kingdom of God" in the social order.

- a, The Kingdom of God first.
- b, Was Jesus right in saying prospect of a community depended on the establishing of the Kingdom of God? Illustrate by actual examples.
- c, Which was Jesus' first thought: to take us to heaven, or to establish right relations between us while we are on earth.
- d, The Golden Rule as a solution of Capital and Labor war.

III.—Business.

- Roll call.
- Minutes.
- Reports.
- Unfinished Business.
- New Business.
- Reception of new members.

IV.—Social and Closing.

- A good time for a lawn party. Ladies invited.
- Lemonade and good fellowship.
- Offering.
- Hymn.
- Benediction.

PROGRAM FOR AUGUST.

No. 2.

I.—Business in Christianity.

Devotional.

1 Hymn, Selection from Brotherhood Hymns.

2 Prayer.

3 Scripture reading, Luke 7:1-5.

4 Hymn.

Cultural.

Address: Business in the local Church.
The lack of business in the conduct of the church.

The Brotherhood can correct this condition if it will.

The loop holes in our own church management.

What the Brotherhood can do to close them up.

Address: Church Extension.

What is the Church Extension Society?

Its history, its purpose, its aim.

The time we should make an offering for the work.

Address: The value of a church building to a community.

Its financial value.

Its civic value.

Its social value.

Address: Church Extension Annuities and "Named Loan Funds."

a, Show what they are.

b, They afford a safe investment.

c, Care for your money in old age without trouble or taxes.

(Note—Geo. W. Muckley, New England Bldg., Kansas City, Mo., will furnish all the information you can use on Church Extension free of charge. A postal card will get it.)

Clincher: That the Missionary Committee plan so that every member of the congregation is personally solicited in behalf of the Church Extension Offering.

III.—Business.

Roll Call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

Receiving new members.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Vacation is over. Renew your fellowships.

Introduce the strangers. Cultivate the family spirit in the Brotherhood.

Offering.

Hymn.

Benediction.

PROGRAM FOR SEPTEMBER.

No. 1.

I.—Christian Publicity.

Devotional.

1 Hymn.

2 Prayer.

3 Repeat the 23d Psalm in unison.

4 Music (Special).

Cultural.

Address: Successful advertising.

Everybody knows where the opera house is. Why?

So few can tell a stranger where the church is. Why?

The value of advertising as illustrated in business. Object: to let people know we are in town.

Advertising must be sane.

Must tell the truth.

Avoid mere sensation. Notice the advertisements in the magazines. They are winning but not sensational. They make known the merits of their goods.

Must be continuous. Say the same thing over and over. A trade mark is as good for a church as for a business. "Unceasingly at it" is a good motto.

Address: Promotion Literature.

For this address we would suggest that the one to give it would write to a dozen of our most active Brotherhoods and classes for samples of their promotion literature. Theories about good promotion literature might be all right and they might not. Find out what has worked, and make a display before your men.

Clincher: That a publicity Committee be appointed to see that the church and its work is constantly and sanely kept before the public. If about three men want to really serve the Kingdom let them become responsible for this task.

III.—Business.

Roll Call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

Reception of new members.

Offering.

IV.—Social and Closing.

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

LESSON 2—JULY 14.

THE SEED IN FOUR KINDS OF SOIL.

TEXT—Mark 4:1-20.

1 And again he began to teach by the sea side. And there is gathered unto him a very great multitude, so that he entered into a boat, and sat in the sea; and all the multitude were by the sea on the land. 2 And he taught them many things in parables, and said unto them in his teaching, 3 Hearken: Behold, the sower went forth to sow: 4 and it came to pass, as he sowed, some seed fell by the way side, and the birds came and devoured it. 5 And other fell on the rocky ground, where it had not much earth; and straightway it sprang up, because it had no deepness of earth: 6 and when the sun was risen, it was scorched; and because it had not root, it withered away. 7 And other fell among the thorns, and the thorns grew up, and choked it, and it yielded no fruit. 8 And others fell into the good ground, and yielded fruit, growing up and increasing; and brought forth, thirtyfold, and sixtyfold, and a hundredfold. 8 And he said, Who hath ears to hear, let him hear.

10 And when he was alone, they that were about him with the twelve asked of him the parables. 11 And he said unto them, Unto you is given the mystery of the kingdom of God: but unto them that are without, all things are done in parables: 12 that seeing they may see, and not perceive; and hearing they may hear, and not understand; lest haply they should turn again, and it should be forgiven them. 13 And he saith unto them, Know ye not this parable? and how shall ye know all the parables? 14 The sower soweth the word. 15 And these are they by the way side, where the word is sown; and when they have heard, straightway cometh Satan, and taketh away the word which hath been sown in them. 16

And these in like manner are they that are sown upon the rocky places, who, when they have heard the word, straightway receive it with joy; 17 and they have no root in themselves, but endure for a while; then, when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, straightway they stumble. 18 And others are they that are sown among thorns; these are they that have heard the word, 19 and the cares of the world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word, and it becometh unfruitful. 20 And those are they that were sown upon the good ground; such do hear the word, and accept it, and bear fruit, thirtyfold, and sixtyfold, and a hundredfold.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jas. 1:21.

21 Wherefore putting away all filthiness, overflowing of wickedness, receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls.

A new note is sounded today in Jesus' teaching, or rather, a new mold is used in giving form to truth. Hitherto His message was simple, direct, unmistakable. He called them by their names, dealt with sin fearlessly, condemned wrongdoers in language that could not be misunderstood. But He now changed His method of address. "He taught them many things in parables." From this time forth the great doctrines of the Kingdom are presented under the guise of familiar incidents whose real meaning was only disclosed to those who were in sincerity truth-seekers. The reasons for this seem to be two-fold: First, to hide the truth from those whose only ob-vs to pervert it and by misrepresentation to make it the instrument of His destruction; secondly, to help those who wanted to know the truth about the Kingdom, to see it more clearly and to awaken their interest in the deeper things of God. So to conceal the truth from those who had no appetite for it, and to reveal it to those who loved it, He spoke in parables, and has enriched our language with its choicest gems.

The Field of the Heart. This parable answers the question of the repeated failure of Bible school and church to regenerate the world. It is neither the fault of the seed nor the sower. It is not God's fault that lives are stony and unfruitful. It is the fault of the soil, the field of the heart. To present this truth Jesus used a familiar scene. Perhaps, as He taught by the seaside, the farmer, far up among the hills but still in sight, was putting in his crop. Some of the seed thrown broadcast would fall into unpromising places, some in good ground. Familiar with the Master's earnestness of purpose, the disciples knew there was some hidden truth in this simple incident. So, when alone with Him, they anxiously sought the meaning of the parable and learned that it was illustrative of a great fundamental principle. The real field was the human heart. The seed was the word of God. Several kinds of heart-soil are presented, three of which are unfruitful and three of which bring forth fruit in varying abundance. For the following analysis, I am indebted to R. A. Grey. It seems to most fitly present the different types that were in the Master's mind:

The Hard-Hearted Hearers. Note in each case Jesus is speaking of those who hear, and not of the great heedless masses who absent themselves from all kinds of religious gatherings. "These are they by the way side." They are like the hard beaten path on which some seed fell from the hands of the sower. The seed falling upon it remained only to be crushed by the on-going traffic, or to be devoured by passing birds. It was so with the human heart. Impulses unheeded, convictions stifled, opportunities neglected, had left the heart like the beaten highway. It becomes iron-hardened. As a result the truth finds no lodging place. "Straightway cometh satan and taketh away the word which hath been sown." They sat in the Bible class last Sunday but the life-giving Word found no lodging. The most earnest appeals to duty awakened no response. Swiftly some winged messenger of the world snatched the seed and the small impression is gone, and the sower goes on in its selfish, sinful way as though no appeal to one's better nature had been made.

The Shallow-Hearted Hearers. The stony ground of the parable was not ground full of stones, but soil on an outcropping ledge of rock. The shallowness of the earth and the depth of the dry underlying rock caused the seed to germinate quickly, and grow for a short season with promise. Then the conditions contributed to its premature growth were the barriers to its fruitfulness, for it was soon burned up in the overheated soil, "and because it had no root it withered away." The application in the light of modern observation and experience is not difficult to make. We have here illustrated a certain emotional type that responds to the emotional appeal. In the superheated atmosphere of the great revival they quickly come to decision and gladly respond to the invitation. There is no deep-seated conviction through the knowledge of the truth. There has been no well defined path of service in contemplation. They are ignorant of the real meaning of the step they have taken. In a few months, at farthest, every religious impulse is gone and they are living the old life of careless indifference to the things of God. The Bible class, with its careful training in gospel truth, deepening conviction, enlightening the intellect, at last bringing the student to intelligent decision, is the best remedy for the evil of shallow-hearted hearers.

The Half-Hearted Hearers. In this case the soil is preoccupied. Before the seed is sown, hidden away from view is the germ or root of briar and thistle. Springing up with luxuriant growth, the thorn chokes the good seed, and the early promise comes to nothing. There is not room enough in any soil for a crop of grain and a crop of thorns. This is also true when the field is the heart. The application made by Jesus presents one of the perpetual tragedies of religious experience. "And others are they that are sown among the thorns." Who are they? Usually men and women of largest possibilities for service in the Kingdom. They are capable, talented and skillful. They might be a power in building up the Kingdom of God. But the roots of worldly love are suffered to remain in the heart. The affections are divided. They, for a time, try to serve two masters. With the multiplying of worldly cares and the increase of riches and the glamour of worldly pleasures they begin to lose interest in the church and Bible school, become indifferent to the needs of the Kingdom, turn a deaf ear to the appeals for help and service. These things in the end "choke the word and it becometh unfruitful." The shores of eternity are strewn with the wreckage of such lives.

The Whole-Hearted Hearers. How refreshing to turn from these pictures of failure and despair to one of promise and abundant fruitfulness. After all a larger part of the seed fell on good soil and made the heart of the sower glad at harvest time. There are a lot of good folks in the world. Through the touch and inspiration of the gospel, which has fallen into their hearts as seed in good soil, they are bearing fruit in a thousand ministries that bless the world. They are the pillars of the church, the angels of mercy in every neighborhood, the messengers of hope to a dying world, "bringing forth fruit, thirtyfold and sixtyfold and a hundredfold." What encouragement for the sower today! Do not despair that every sinner does not respond, that all do not hold out, that some fall under the stress of temptation. It has always been so. Rejoice rather that the harvest has been as abundant as it has, and that as its fruitage we have a great multitude of noble men and women who are today enriching the world with their service.

Arrow Points. If more teachers and preachers would follow Jesus' example and throw aside conventionality, and teach men the simple word by the wayside as well as in the Bible class room, the harvest would be multiplied in fruitfulness. V. 1. * * * It is not everyone that sits in the pew who hears the sermon. It would be quite an easy thing for some whose minds are on worldly things to prove an al. V. 12. * * * How busy the devil is after the benediction has been pronounced destroying the impression of the sermon by frivolous remark, and sending the listener home without any new impulse to better living. V. 15. * * * If only the word of God could be planted before the thorns of worldly care and material ambitions were rooted in the heart, how many a religious shipwreck would be escaped. V. 16. * * * The happiest man is the one who finds growing up in his heart the fruits of the spirit and whose harvest is a life of helpful service. V. 20.

LESSON 3—JULY 21.

THE GROWTH OF THE KINGDOM.

TEXT—Mark 4:26-32; Matt. 13:33.

26 And he said, So is the kingdom of God, as if a man should cast seed upon the earth; 27 and should sleep and rise night and day, and the seed should spring up and grow, he knoweth not how. 28 The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear. 29 But when the fruit is ripe, straightway he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come.

30 And he said, How shall we liken the kingdom of God? or in what parable shall we set it forth? 31 It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown upon the earth, though it be less than all the seeds that are upon the earth, 32 yet when it is sown, groweth up, and becometh greater than all the herbs, and putteth out great branches; so that the birds of the heaven can lodge under the shadow thereof.

33 Another parable spake he unto them; The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till it was all leavened.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 6:10.

10 Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth.

The parable of the sower, in our last lesson, presented the difficulties in the way of complete gospel triumph. A chain of parables follow, dealing with various aspects of the Kingdom of God. In a number of familiar incidents Jesus presents the law of its growth, the further hindrances to its triumph, its inestimable worth, and the final elimination of everything that would mar its beauty. Our lesson today deals entirely with its growth, linking together the parable of the mustard seed and that of the leaven. It is well for us to remember that the prevailing notion of the Kingdom of Heaven was that it was to be political and material, and its benefits primarily for the Jews. The Kingdom, as presented by Jesus, was to be no less real, though spiritual and invisible. It was destined to extend its sway and blessing over the whole earth. Hence the prayer, "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven."

The Mystery of Growth. The lesson here taught is much needed in these days of the agnostic teaching of science. "The Kingdom of God is as if a man should cast seed upon the earth." Having fulfilled his task, the sower sleeps and rises, night and day, and in time the apparently lifeless seed becomes a growing plant, "he knoweth not how." Since we cannot understand the growth of the tiniest seed that springs from the soil at our feet, it should not stagger our faith that we cannot fathom the greater mystery of the Kingdom's growth. How very humble we should feel as we face the miracle of growth anywhere. We put the little seed down into a sunny nook of the garden. In its dark, silent chamber it at once begins a task, drawing from the soil its substance, and transforming it into plant and flower and fruit. "Modern science," says Professor Thompson, "has failed to find the slightest explanation of what the life in a seed is." But more marvelous and mysterious is the growth of the life of God in the human soul.

The Law of Growth. "First the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear." God's laws are uniform throughout nature. Henry Drummond, in his "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," shows how the law of change and growth in the material world is the law of God in the regeneration and spiritual uplift of the race. All about us nature moves upward toward the goal set by the great Architect of being. In the plant life that goal is fruitfulness. In the animal it is maturity and the multiplication of its species. In man it is the gradual unfolding of the character after the divinely fashioned pattern, until we come to "the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." Each thought and act aids or hinders in the realization of that ideal. Some one has said, "Sow a thought and you reap a deed; sow a deed and you reap a habit; sow a habit and you reap a character; sow a character and you reap a destiny."

The Joy of the Harvest. In the old days when harvesting was done by more primitive methods than now, the writer remembers still the thrill of pleasure as the last sheaf was carted into the barn, and the boys were giving lay for fishing. It was to such a harvest scene that Jesus called the attention of that Galilean congregation. "He putteth forth the sickle because the harvest is come." But a more thrilling scene is ours today, as there stretch away before us in every direction fields white unto the harvest. How the home field has ripened with the growth of the adult Bible classes and the men's movement. At the great Conservation Congress in New York one felt that we were at the millennial dawn of the world, as the way was pointed to fields of marvelous promise that only awaited the sickle. More marvelous still is the transforming grace that is working miracles of redemption in pagan lands. The harvest is come; and the harvesters, in increasing numbers, are going forth everywhere into ripening fields. The man who does not feel a thrill of joy for the privilege of living and having a part in Christ's work today has failed to catch the meaning of great movements that are going on among men.

The Visible Triumphs of the Gospel. "Like a grain of mustard seed." The figure is fitly chosen. Perhaps no plant from so small a seed produces such growth in a single season. That little seed is full of persistent energy. How like the growth of the Kingdom. Before Pentecost there was a small, insignificant group of disciples. Their Master had died an ignominious death. The world hated them. They were without support or influence. You can hardly imagine a more hopeless beginning. Alas, yet that little seed has grown to become the mightiest agency in all the world. It has fulfilled, in large measure, Jesus' parable of promise. It flourished in the face of the hate and opposition of the Jew. It conquered the Roman Empire. It gave the world its dominant civilization. It fashioned its government, suggested its laws, it moulded its institutions. No clime into which its branches have not pushed their way. It has flourished under the heat of the equator and in the frozen regions. Whatever it has touched has flourished. In one hundred and thirty years, from one pair of neglected children, brought together in Gloucester, England, to study the Word of God, it has grown until it is able today to furnish an army 25,000,000 strong. From one pair of young people in Portland, Maine, thirty-one years ago, there has grown a great multitude of several million, bound together by common ties of fellowship and service. From a handful of consecrated pioneers in Western Pennsylvania has grown a great body of Disciples, a million and a quarter strong. Everywhere is this miracle of growth. Jesus lives and reigns today over a vaster, richer domain than was ever dreamed of when Cæsar sat upon the throne of Rome.

The Leavening Influence of the Gospel. If the mustard seed was the prophecy of the external growth of the Kingdom, the leaven was the type of a subtle hidden force that is permeating all lands with Christian influence. Take any community; the acknowledged followers of Jesus aligned with our churches represents the growth of the mustard seed. But the leavening influence of the gospel has reached beyond church boundaries, and has exerted a transforming power on the entire community. It is the leaven of the gospel that has inspired the spirit of brotherhood expressed in scores of fraternal organizations. It is the leaven of the Kingdom that marked the difference between society in Christian and non-Christian lands. "Like the leaven which the woman took and hid in three measures of meal," the all pervading power of this grace is seen in the deep underlying progress of the gospel. Its silent unobserved energy will continue until it has permeated the whole mass of mankind and all nations, all hearts, all institutions are transformed into the ideals of the Kingdom.

Arrow Points. More potent than the seed cast into the ground is the seed sown in the heart of others by our example and influence. V. 26. * * * Seeds of doubt and seeds of indifference, as well as seeds of faith and service, spring up, we know not how, and produce a harvest of blight and misery. V. 27. * * * We should not be too impatient of results for, as from the seed in the soil, so from that in the heart, there must be first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear. V. 28. * * * Measured by its visible progress, the growth of Christianity through the centuries, in the face of adverse conditions, is the miracle of the age. V. 32. * * * The gospel is powerless without the agency of human hands. The man plants the seed, the woman hides the leaven, the loyal disciple must be the bearer of God's message of love and mercy if the world is redeemed.

LESSON 4—JULY 28.

THE WHEAT AND THE TARES.

TEXT—Matt. 13:24-30; 36-43.

Another parable set he before them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man that sowed good seed in his field: 25 but while the men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares also among the wheat, and went away. 26 But when the blade sprang up and brought forth fruit, then appeared the tares also. 27 At the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst thou not sow good seed in thy field? whence then hath it tares? 28 And he said unto them, An enemy hath done this. And the servants say unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up? 29 But he saith, Nay; lest haply while ye gather up the tares, ye root up the wheat with them. 30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather up first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn.

36 Then he left the multitudes, and went into the house: and his disciples came unto him, saying, Explain unto us the parable of the tares of the field. 37 And he answered and said, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; 38 and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom; and the tares are the sons of the evil one; 39 and the enemy that sowed them is the devil: and the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are angels. 40 As therefore the tares are gathered up and burned with fire; so shall it be in the end of the world. 41 The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that cause stumbling, and them that do iniquity, 42 and shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. 43 Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears, let him hear.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 13:30.

30 Let both grow together until the harvest: and in the time of the harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather up first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn.

We have presented in this parable another hindrance to the triumph of the gospel. In the parable of the sower the obstacle to success was in the people themselves. In the parable of the wheat and tares it came from without. In one case it was unfavorable conditions in the soil that limited the bounty of the harvest. In the other it was the malicious sowing of harmful seed. The parable answers the question of the presence of evil in the world, and reveals God's plan in dealing with it. Jesus foresaw what his followers have experienced in all these centuries of Christian conflict. For every messenger of truth bearing the good seed of the Kingdom there are messengers of evil throwing up barriers in the path of Christian progress. On the average for every church in our land there are three saloons. In opposition to every effort for human betterment are three hindering forces, the world, the flesh and the devil. But notwithstanding these, when the harvest time comes there is an abundance of ripened grain.

The Divine Husbandry. "He that soweth the good seed is the Son of Man." The Bible, from beginning to end, records the work of the divine Sower. With man's downfall, God began the sowing that has gone on unceasingly to the present time. The seed He has sown has been "the children of the Kingdom." Before the flood He scattered as good seed such men as Abel, Enoch and Noah. In patriarchal days He gave the world such men as Abraham, Joseph, Moses and Joshua. Down through pages of Jewish history are Samuel, and David and the prophets. With the establishment of His spiritual kingdom, what an army of heroes and martyrs and saints. The children of the Kingdom are still the good seed. Every neighborhood has them. They are scattered broadcast, growing up in unlikely places, in the world, but not of the world. It is through them that the Gospel is winning its triumphs in the world today. Are you allowing yourself to be used as seed of the Kingdom? It is by sowing the Word of God that the Son of Man sows "sons of the Kingdom." We become His laborers as well as the seed when we bring men to the knowledge of His Word or to the place where His Word is taught. Every man won to the Bible Class and to its ideals is a new seed sown; and every new seed means a more bountiful harvest of spiritual blessing.

The Devil As a Farmer. The world belongs to Christ. It is His field. He bought it at a fearful price. But by stealth another sower has entered. "His enemy came and sowed tares." In explaining the parable of the tares to His disciples Jesus declares that "the enemy that sowed them is the devil." This is the devil's old trick. In his role as farmer he always sows in somebody else's fields other than his own. If his sowing could be confined to those who are already his devoted followers, the world would soon be itself of tares, for the seed of sin speedily ripens into a harvest of death. At the rate of a hundred thousand and more a year death would soon end the drink business, it were not for recruits from the ranks of innocent boyhood. The clods of names of graves would soon cover the forms of fallen womanhood but for the fresh sowing in the hearts of pure girls. But he enters by stealth into Christ's great world field of innocence and purity and plants the seeds of vice and shame in the hearts of boys and girls that sometimes come out from our best homes and the harvest of ruin follows. Then he sows seeds of deception. Wheat and chaff are much alike. It is difficult to distinguish the young plants. So are the beginnings of wrongdoing. The by-path of Christ seemed to run parallel to the great highway and was more inviting, but led to the canyon of Giant Despair. The wine cup has been looked upon as harmless, but "at the last biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder." Beware of giving hospitable reception to any seed that you even suspect the devil has had a hand in sowing.

The Good and the Bad Together. This is a suggestion here of the problems of discipline. The roots of the wheat and the tares were so intertwined that the tares could not be pulled without uprooting the wheat. "Both grow together until the harvest." At the harvest time the separation could easily be made and the tares gathered up and destroyed. So good and evil are mingled in the world. To destroy the bad might work injury to the good. And God is so tender in His compassion that He is not willing that "one of His little ones should perish." He declared his willingness to save Sodom with its wickedness if ten righteous were found.

if Abraham had had faith to ask it the might have been saved for a much less number. The lesson we need is tender care in dealing with the wheat. God will take care of the tares. In its moral application, it is not men of faith made hardier and stronger because of the presence of evil in the world? The wreckage on the shore is a warning to other vessels to keep off the hidden rocks. One Titanic disaster changes the whole route of ocean travel. One blossomed nose boozier is worth a dozen sermons on the curse of intemperance. "Let them grow together." The good grow strong by resisting the evil. It is the war against wrong and wrongdoers that makes mighty men. Then we can know until the harvest time which will be the wheat? Sometimes even the good seed is choked by the cares of the world and the deceitfulness of riches and becomes unfruitful. And I am sure I do no violence to the figure when I say that which we class as tares may by its very proximity to the wheat be transformed, and through the miracle of His grace be made to contribute to the fruitfulness of the harvest. Bad people are often changed into good people because of their association with the good. Bad countries are made into good countries by the sowing of good seed in its tare-infected soil. To counteract the effect of the devil's sowing is the mission of Christ and His disciples, and it is our mission today.

The Reaping Time. "The harvest is the end of the world and the reapers are the angels." No warning is more needed today than that we will have to face the results of our sowing. The harvest time will come, a time of joy or a time of sorrow, as we have sown good or bad seed. "For whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Here is a never changing law. It is true in the material world and also in the realm of the spiritual. Wheat produces wheat. Tares ripen into a harvest of tares. The man who sows kind words, good deeds, helpful services will find ripening about him a perpetual harvest of joy. The man who sows to appetite, or passion, or greed, or hate, cannot escape the result of his sowing, for he that soweth to the flesh will of the flesh reap corruption. When the angels are sent to reap in your field what will they find?

Arrow Points. What a magnificent field for sowing this world presents, with its billion and a half of people to be won to the ideals of the Kingdom. V. 38. * * * Since the task of sowing has been undertaken by the Son of God himself we need not despair of results. V. 37. * * * Evil seed of Satan's planting may flourish for a season, but in the end will come to destruction. V. 39. * * * As there have been two sowers, two kinds of seed, two harvests, so there will be two destinies. Toward which are you turning your face? Vs. 41-43.

LESSON 1—AUGUST 4.

THE WORTH OF THE KINGDOM.

TEXT—MATT. 13:44-53.

4 The kingdom of heaven is like unto a treasure hidden in the field; which a man findeth, and hid; and in his joy he goeth and selleth all that he hath, and buyeth that field.

5 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a merchant seeking goodly pearls: 46 and having found one pearl of great price, he went and sold all that he had, and bought it.

7 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net, that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind: 48 which, when it was filled, they drew up on the beach; and they sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but the bad they cast away. 49 So shall it be in the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the righteous, 50 and shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth.

1 Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea. 52 And he said unto them, Therefore every scribe who hath been made a disciple to the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, who bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old.

3 And it came to pass, when Jesus had finished these parables, he departed thence.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 6:23.

23 But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is the darkness.

We all have possessions that money cannot buy. You would, perhaps, sell your farm for so much an acre, but at what price would you part with your health? You would dispose of your stocks for a fair advance on the cost, but what would you take for your boy? If you are half a man, there are other possessions that no man is rich enough to buy; your honor, for example. Among the invaluable assets of the world Jesus places the kingdom of heaven, and that He may impress its value upon the materialized multitude before Him, He uses the language of the market. But you will note, in each case, the price of the purchase means all that the man has. Nothing less would express the worth of the institution He was soon to establish.

The Hidden Treasure. The illustration was not improbable. In the absence of trustworthy banks, and gilt-edged securities, it was no uncommon thing for the family treasures to be buried in some secret spot. Later, through the death of the owner or as a result of the ravages of war the treasure is lost, until one day it is accidentally stumbled upon by a passerby, who, with the knowledge of its hidden worth, "selles all that he hath and buyeth that field." Everything that this man possessed was of small moment in comparison with this. To buy it doubtless involved the sacrifice of some things that he held dear. But the field must be his at any cost. "The kingdom of heaven," said Jesus, "is like that!" It is a hidden treasure, buried within the pages of the gospel, concealed from the eyes of those who refuse to read. But through accident or misfortune or sickness, or a pressing invitation to the Bible class or an especially illuminating sermon its real value is discovered, and a desire to possess it enters the heart. How can it be had? The parable is the answer. We must give up all if we would gain Christ and the treasure that is in Him. Nothing but a surrendered life will provide the purchase price. Nor is it unreasonable, when we come to know its blessing. Paul speaks of it in these terms, "the unreachable riches of Christ," and "the love of Christ which passeth knowledge." No wonder he could say, "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord." My brothers, would you have this treasure? It may be yours if you will pay the price of surrender, and what you give up is little indeed in comparison with what you get.

The Pearl of Great Price. This parable differs from the other in one important particular. Here the finding is the result of seeking. "The man that is a merchant is seeking goodly pearls." He is interested in pearls. He will be satisfied with nothing but the best, and when one of surpassing splendor is found he sacrificed all else that he had to make it his own. It was in seeking goodly pearls that he has made the discovery of one of great price. The man who seeks the goodly pearl of wisdom and character is sure to find, if his search is honest "the one Pearl of Great Price." True science in seeking goodly pearl leads to the discovery of the priceless in God's kingdom. "The astronomer," said Herschel, "thinks out God's thoughts after him." "The geologist," exclaimed Agassiz, "moves along paths worn deeply by the divine footprints." Jesus is the one pearl of great price, in whom all truth and wisdom is incarnate. To make Him ours, no price is too great.

The Modern Drag-net. This parable has been a source of great comfort, as I have looked over the results of a great evangelistic ingathering. The Gospel drag-net is thrown in. When the haul is made one finds "gathered of every kind." It was so then, it is so now. There are some born of God with hearts enkindled with the spirit of love and loyalty. Some are drawn in by the tide without conviction or purpose. Some take their places among the converts as a cloak to cover up selfish designs. Here are all kinds of goodness and all varieties of badness. Do not be discouraged with the results of your meeting, or the fruit of your labor. Jesus foresaw it as He walked among men, and He has forecast the final results. "The good were gathered into vessels and the bad were cast away." Today an invisible line runs between the one class and the other, but "in the end of the world" the separation shall take place, and the angels are to be God's messengers.

Things New and Old. The Bible is the disciples' treasure house. It contains old truths, truths that have been the bread of life to the hungry since they were first penned by the inspired writers. God and love and loyalty are old truths, but they are as essential now as when first revealed. But we are not to reject the new, for new light is constantly breaking from the Word of God. The spirit of union, the social aspect of Christianity, the practical application of the great commission, are new truths long hidden from the religious leaders of the world. Cling to the old truths, but cherish a spirit of hospitality toward the new.

Arrow Points. The Gospel of Christ offers a treasure of infinite value to every individual who will pay the price of a surrendered life. V. 44. * * * Wisdom, culture, refinement are all goodly pearls, but that which makes life worth living, the source of greatest blessing, the inspiration to noblest character, is the possession of the priceless pearl—citizenship in the Kingdom of God. V. 46. * * * Our task is to throw in the net, and gather in the fish. The final separation of the righteous and the wicked is the task of angels. V. 49. * * * Jesus offers no comfort, holds out no hope, promises no future probation to those who choose the path of wickedness. V. 50. * * * We have not outgrown the old truths that have been the inspiration of centuries, but they would find readier acceptance if clothed in new terms and applied to present-day needs. V. 51.

LESSON 2—AUGUST 11.

A TROUBLED SEA AND A TROUBLED SOUL.

TEXT—Mark 4:35 to 5:20, inclusive.

35. And on that day, when even was come, he saith unto them, Let us go over unto the other side.

20. And he went his way, and began to publish in Decapolis how great things Jesus had done for him: and all men marvelled.

GOLDEN TEXT—Ps. 46:1-2.

God is our refuge and strength, A very present help in trouble. Therefore will we not fear, though the earth do change, And though the mountains be shaken into the heart of the seas.

lesson marks the close of a busy day. It is just such a day as often comes in our experience when everything seems to be clamoring to be done first. Jesus had just returned to Capernaum with His disciples on a tour of Galilee. He entered the house of a friend (Mark 3:19), and immediately the people began to assemble around the door. It was a motley gathering of human afflictions—blind, dumb, demon-possessed. Forgetting everything else He took up the task of teaching and healing, not even taking time to rest. From the city Jesus went to the sea, the multitude still following, crowding Him in such throngs that He was compelled to enter a boat and push out from the shore. Then followed the series of parables which they have been studying. At last, weary and exhausted, Jesus dismissed the multitude, and as the shades of evening gathered He directed His disciples to row across the lake, while He rested from the strenuous effort of the day.

The Life-Preserver on Board. The sea has always been man's peril. The waves are restless. Man's strongest crafts have been wrecked by wave or iceberg or hidden rock. The ship-building was thought to have reached perfection when that mighty palace of the sea, the Titanic, sailed upon her maiden voyage. As wise men looked her over, they said she cannot sink. The sea has been conquered. But on that fateful night, within a few hours of her sides had been rammed by an iceberg, and she was resting in the bottom of the deep and her grave was the grave of fifteen hundred men and women who had committed their lives to her keeping. The horrible human loss was due to inadequate provision for the preservation of life. On board the little boat that was lighting its way through a perilous storm at Capernaum there was adequate provision for the safety of its occupants. The boat was frail, the storm was furious, the waves were great, but Jesus was on board. When the storm arose "He was in the stern of the ship asleep on the cushion." He was the Master of our nature. He was worn out by the day's toil. He knows how weary the millions get today. But as the storm increased its fury, alarm fills that little community. That He had power they did not doubt. He was asleep. "Master, carest thou not if we perish," they cry. Jesus then rises in His majesty as the Son of God, and His voice, "be still," hushed the winds and calmed the waves. You are on a voyage, my brother. There will be many perilous storms and towering waves before you reach port. Have you made adequate life-preserving provision? Have you taken Jesus on board? If you have, there is no need of fear.

Transforming Grace. There is one miracle of Jesus that has been repeated wherever His Gospel has been preached. It is the transformation of degraded manhood through the power of His faith. I saw him on the street once, a man as vile and loathsome and profane. Six months later I welcomed him into the church as a penitent child of God. The transformation was complete. The old life, with its degrading vices was abandoned. The old marks of sin vanished. His countenance as he sat with God's worshiping people was radiant with new-found joy. He was clothed and in his right mind. What power had wrought this change? It was Jesus sending forth afresh His transforming grace. There was Jerry McCauley and Samuel Hadley and an army of redeemed men who have confirmed the miracle wrought on the demoniac.

Manhood or Property. It seems strange that any fault should have been found with Jesus for His kindly ministry to an afflicted man. But it had involved property loss. A man had been saved, but a herd of hogs had been lost. And hogs, then as now, represented money. So "they began to beseech Him to depart from their borders." The same problem confronts many a community today. The question of the elimination of the saloon is up. The fight is to rescue men from the demon possession of drink. No question but scores of men will be saved from their enemy, homes brightened, children better fed and clothed, and the morals of the community bettered. But it involves the destruction of property, a few saloon doors are closed, a few pieces of property lose their rental value. Manhood or property, which shall it be? Many a man who prides himself on his respectability says property, and votes the saloon to stay.

Saved to Serve. It was natural that a man so marvelously blessed should desire to be near his benefactor, and what better credential of Jesus' saving power than to have such a man in His company. "Howbeit Jesus suffered him not." He had something far better for the man than to follow idly in His footsteps. There was a field in which he could put his new found life into action. "Go home to thy friends and tell them how great things the Lord hath done for thee." We have been slow to learn the value of service in personal salvation. Nine-tenths of those who fail in the Christian race do so because no definite task has been assigned or undertaken. The mission of every Brotherhood Bible Class is to give its men something to do, and what greater task than to help Jesus through personal evangelism, to win this old world to His standard.

Arrow Points. There was no need of modern devices for the safety of passengers and crew so long as Jesus was on board the boat. Many modern makeshifts might be dispensed with if we only would keep near Him. V. 36. * * * Let no one question the Father's love because storms arise or danger threatens. Not a sparrow falls to the ground without His notice. V. 38. * * * In the hour of peril there is always one to whom we can go, and if we listen quietly we will hear His "peace, be still." V. 39. * * * To those who have passed through life's storms and have felt the presence and power of the Man of Galilee, there is but one answer to the question, "What manner of Man?" He is the Divine Man. V. 40. * * * Men with swinish natures will always prefer swine to the Redeemer of Men and Redeemed Manhood.

LESSON 3—AUGUST 18.

THE RULER'S DAUGHTER.

TEXT—Mark 5:21, 24, 35-43. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 5:41.

21 And when Jesus had crossed over again in the boat unto the other side, a great multitude was gathered unto him; and he was by the sea. 22 And there cometh one of the rulers of the synagogue, Jairus by name; and seeing him, he falleth at his feet, 23 and beseecheth him much, saying, My little daughter is at the point of death: I pray thee, that thou come and lay thy hands on her, that she may be made whole, and live. 24 And he went with him; and a great multitude followed him, and they thronged him.

35 While he yet spake, they come from the ruler of the synagogue's house, saying, Thy daughter is dead: why troublest thou the Teacher any further? 36 But Jesus, not heeding the word spoken, saith unto the ruler of the synagogue, Fear not, only believe. 37 And he suffered no man to follow with him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of James. 38 And they come to the house of the ruler of the synagogue; and he beholdeth a tumult, and many weeping and wailing greatly. 39 And when he was entered in, he saith unto them, Why make ye a tumult, and weep? the child is not dead, but sleepeth. 40 And they laughed him to scorn. But he, having put them all forth, taketh the father of the child and her mother and them that were with him, and goeth in where the child was. 41 And taking the child by the hand, he saith unto her, Talitha cumi; which is, being interpreted, Damsel, I say unto thee, Arise. 42 And straightway the damsel rose up, and walked. for she was twelve years old. And they were amazed straightway with a great amazement. 43 And he charged them much that no man should know this: and he commanded that something should be given her to eat.

The sojourn of Jesus in the country of Gadara, when He healed the demoinac, was brief. He had proved Himself an undesirable citizen to those who were more interested in material possessions than spiritual blessings, who valued a drove of swine above a redeemed man. So at their urgent request, He withdrew to the neighborhood of Capernaum. Jesus never forced Himself upon any community. He did not remain where He was not wanted. Nor does He today. He knocks, but you must open. He asks admission, but you must welcome. He offers salvation, but you must accept it. He has rich blessings to bestow, but you must receive. With the experience of twenty centuries behind us, it is strange that He is not universally received and welcomed today.

Parental Solicitude. The most direct route to the hearts of right thinking fathers and mothers is by way of the kindergarten. The prophet, long ago, recognized it, when he said,

"A little child shall lead them." Many a unyielding heart has been won to Jesus by example or tender pleading of a child. A proud-hearted Jewish leader is brought humbly to the feet of Jesus because of solicitude for an afflicted daughter. He is forgotten all about his position as the chief man in the synagogue, and the prejudice of his associates, and in his anxiety for the welfare of the child, "he falleth at Jesus' feet." This row has brought more men to Jesus than most anything else. Under the hand of affliction the heart that has forgotten God is brought proudly resists Him, is brought to feel the need of help that can come from no other source. If only men could feel the same concern for their children when the danger threatens them is moral blight, and be brought to the acceptance of the gospel that they may guide their children by example and prayer and prayer into the safe path.

Faith Under Difficulty. "Thy daughter is dead; why troublest thou the Master further?" Responding to the ruler's earnest entreaty, Jesus hastens toward the home of affliction. As He goes along the way two incidents occur, one that strengthens faith and one that puts upon it the severest test. In the joyful crowd that accompany the Physician on His way to the sick room, a poor afflicted woman touches the garment of Jesus, is healed and acknowledges His power. But the short delay of this miracle of healing brought a trial to Jairus' faith. Messengers came announcing the daughter's death. It seemed as if Jesus was now too late. "Oh, that the Master had not delayed by the way." He might have healed the sick, but she was dead. "Why troublest thou the Master any further?" was a moment of greatest trial. What if Jairus' faith should fail! It is to meet this crisis in the soul that Jesus buoys him up with the assuring words, "Be not afraid, only believe." Jesus proposes but one cure for the still, and that is faith. "This is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith." Wherever faith is, fear vanishes and victory is wrought. Faith and fear cannot co-exist in the same heart.

The Chosen Three. As Jesus goes into the chamber of death He chooses His companions. He is particular who is near Him in this sacred moment. "He suffered no man to touch Him save Peter and James and John." Why this inner circle? There are other prime moments in Jesus' life when He invites their companionship alone. On the Mount of Transfiguration they are with Him, and again in the Garden of Gethsemane. Why these three? It was not an expression of favoritism that led to their selection. It was a matter of their fitness. He simply uses those who had demonstrated their ability to enter into His sympathy and helpfully into His ous experiences. He did what every er does in the school, select the best pre-al pupils for tasks requiring special fitness.

he is no questioning or complaining upon part of the other disciples. By common ent, since all could not go, it was best that and James and John should accompany It was a great privilege to be near Him ch an hour. It is worth while to so learn e lessons of the Master today that He may se us and be able to use us in the further-of His great plans.

Death Transformed. The presence of Jesus ie death chamber of Jairus' home has aged many of our expressions. "The rael is not dead, but sleepeth." "Lazareth eeth." Falling into Jesus' manner of exression, Paul said of the witnesses of the rection, "Some are fallen asleep." Today
e world's burial grounds are no longer cities
e dead, but cemeteries, "sleeping places."
ne light of faith, death ceases to be the rel enemy it was before Jesus came. It is god night to earthly scenes, with a happy ow in prospect. Our friends may not as soon as Jairus' daughter did, but they surely wake, if faithful, to the experience glad new day.

The Authoritative Voice. How Jesus' os on the mountain thrill us! How quieting His tones to the forces of nature as He utter His "Peace, be still!" How majestic His utterance as He commands the evil spirits to depart! But no words of His have thrilled the world like those spoken in the presence of death: "Talithe cumi," "Young man, arise," "Lazareth, come forth." In each instance that voice is obeyed. "The maiden straightway arose." The widow's son is again in his mother's embrace, and Lazareth is once more the center of that happy Bethany circle. That voice has lost none of its authority or power, for the time is coming when "they that are in their graves shall hear His voice and come forth."

Arrow Points. How many men there are today that proudly resist the claims of Christ until the hand of death is laid upon some loved one or misfortune overtakes them. V.
22. * * * If we would pray for our children when in moral peril, then there would be fewer delinquent youths and Godless men and women. V. 23. * * * Death placed no greater barrier in the way of Christ than disease so long as faith survived. "According to your faith" is the measure of His blessing.
V. 36. * * * Jesus does not condemn sorrow or tears, but despairing, tumultuous grief is a mark of faithlessness that He will not tolerate. V. 39.

LESSON 4—AUGUST 25.

THE VISIT TO NAZARETH.

TEXT—Luke 4:16-30. GOLDEN TEXT—Jno. 1:11.

1 And he came to Nazareth, where he had e brought up; and he entered, as his cusm was, into the synagogue on the sabbath y and stood up to read. 17 And there was e handed unto him the book of the prophet an. And he opened the book, and found e place where it was written.

18 The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, Be-u he anointed me to preach good tidings
e poor: He hath sent me to proclaim re-as to the captives. And recovering of sight e blind, To set at liberty them that are rned, 19 To proclaim the acceptable year e Lord. 20 And he closed the book, and it back to the attendant, and sat down:
d the eyes of all in the synagogue were stied on him. 21 And he began to say at them, Today hath this scripture been lled in your ears. 22 And all bare him itss, and wondered at the words of grace h proceeded out of his mouth: and they ic Is not this Joseph's son? 23 And he ic into them, Doubtless ye will say unto me isparable, Physician, heal thyself: whatsoe we have heard done at Capernaum, do sc here in thine own country. 24 And he ic Verily I say unto you, No prophet is ceable in his own country. 25 But of a ut I say unto you, There were many dys in Israel in the days of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, when there came a great famine over all the land; 26 and unto none of them was Elijah sent, but only to Zarephath, in the land of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 And there were many lepers in Israel in the time of Elijah the prophet; and none of them was cleansed, but only Naaman the Syrian. 28
And they were all filled with wrath in the synagogue, as they heard these things; 29 and they rose up, and cast him forth out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill whereon their city was built, that they might throw him down headlong. 30 But he passing through the midst of them went his way.

Since Jesus laid down His carpenter's tools at Nazareth and joined the throngs that were pleading to hear John, a great change had taken place. From an obscure village peasant,
He has become the best known man in all Palestine. His fame as a teacher and healer has spread everywhere. Crowds throng Him.
The ignorant are eager to hear His words, the sick to receive His healing touch, the curious to see Him. And now that He is back home, neighbors and townspeople are anxious to discover what there is about this plain carpenter, whom they used to see on the streets of their village every day, that has made Him the object of so much adoration. It is pretty hard for a neighborhood to fully appreciate genius or greatness that has been nurtured unobserved in its midst. After all He is only a carpenter's son to them.

The Church-Going Habit. Coming back to the village "where He was brought up," no spot was, perhaps, dearer to Him than the meeting-house where, as a child and young man, He had spent so many happy Sabbath days in communion with His Father. He had formed the church-going habit in youth. His parents were churchgoing people, and they always took Him with them. Wherever He went the Sabbath found Him in the house of prayer. And now that He is back amid the familiar scenes of childhood, "as His custom was, He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day." What men need to acquire today is the church-going habit. It is not difficult to form, but is easily broken. After a half dozen consecutive Sundays in Bible school and church you wonder that you had not always gone. An absence of two or three Sundays and you are careless about starting again. As you value your spiritual welfare and religious growth, follow the example of Jesus and cultivate the habit of church-going.

The Gospel for the Age. The peculiarity of Jesus' preaching was that it fit into the needs of the common people. Hitherto they had been overlooked. The teaching of the scribes had been on subjects of theological dispute, that did not concern them. But Jesus came preaching good tidings to the poor, healing the broken-hearted, restoring sight to the blind, proclaiming the acceptable year of the Lord, doing the things that their most honored prophets had foretold. His message touched the real heart-need of the age. As a result "the common people heard Him gladly." And they hear Him gladly still, when the gospel is preached in simplicity. That the rank and file are so largely out of the church today is discreditable to the church and its ministry. Too often they come for food and are given a stone. A basket of flowers is handed them from the pulpit, when what they need is a loaf of bread. The gospel of Jesus is still the gospel for the age.

The Prophet in His Own Country. At first Jesus' message to His old neighbors seemed to meet with hospitable reception. They wondered at His gracious words. The message appealed to their deeper need. But the Messenger,—who was He? Just a carpenter's son. They had known Him from childhood. His relatives were just ordinary people whom they met every day on the street. He had made furniture for their houses, and had never enjoyed privileges beyond those of their own sons. It seemed ridiculous that this common man should pose as teacher and assume the exalted role of one foretold by their cherished prophets. They were saying among themselves, "If He is such a marvelous man, let Him do here some of the wonders that are reported to have been done in Capernaum." Jesus' answer to these taunts was "No prophet is acceptable in his own country." How true to common experience. James is always "Jimmie" to his home folks and neighbors. They never can understand why people are making such a fuss about him in the city where he is hailed as a man of destiny. Great men are accepted at their worth by the generation they served. Washington was despised, Lincoln was ridiculed, the great men neglected and suffered to starve. Jesus could not escape the common judgment of those who have risen above their environment or led men out into some new field of thought.

An Example of Moral Courage. The quick admiration turned to ridicule and then to wrath. "They rose up and cast Him out of the city." With murder in their hearts they sought His destruction by hurling stones from one of the lofty precipices above the town. Nowhere does the example of Jesus reveal the majesty of His person to greater advantage. "He passing through the midst of them, went His way." There was a moral courage that overawed them. Conscious of their own inferiority in every element of moral worth, to this Galilean Prophet, the maddened people did not dare to lay their hands upon Him. So He passed on His way never to return. The people of Nazareth had their opportunity, but they threw it away. In rejecting Him, they rejected themselves. In this often this tragedy is being repeated among men. Jesus knocks through conviction, but in rejecting Him, conviction itself is taken away and He never passes that way or knocks again.

Arrow Points. How many hearts have been stirred after years of absence from the old country neighborhood, where they spent their youth, by the sentiment "No spot is so dear to my childhood as the little brown church in the vale." V. 16. * * * How wondrously Jesus' ministry fits into the old prophetic picture of the coming Messiah, and how it all fits into the heart-needs of our toiling millions today. V. 18. * * * It was a great opportunity the people who attended church that day might have enjoyed if prejudice and blindness had not blinded their eyes. V. 21. * * * Jesus' power to help and save is still limited by human barriers reared through unbelief. V. 23. * * * Force is still the only argument which vanquished error can command and that is sure to fail in the end. V. 24. * * * In rejecting Jesus, men have injured His cause, but have brought ruin upon themselves. V. 30.

LESSON 1—SEPTEMBER 1.

THE DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST.

TEXT—Mark 6:14-29. GOLDEN TEXT—Rev. 2:10.

And king Herod heard thereof; for his name had become known: and he said, John the Baptist is risen from the dead, and therefore do these powers work in him. 15 But others said, It is Elijah. And others said, It is a prophet, even as one of the prophets. 16 But Herod, when he heard thereof, said, John, whom I beheaded, he is risen. 17 For Herod himself had sent forth and laid hold upon John, and bound him in prison for the sake of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife; for he had married her. 18 For John said unto Herod, It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife. 19 And Herodias set herself against him, and desired to kill him; and she could not; 20 for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he loved him, and when he heard him, he was much perplexed; and he heard him gladly. 21 And when a convenient day was come, that Herod on his birthday made a supper to his lords, and the high captains, and the chief men of Galilee; 22 and when the daughter of Herodias herself came in and danced, she pleased Herod and them that sat at meat with him, and the king said unto the damsel. Ask me whatsoever thou wilt, and I will give thee. 23 And he sware unto her, Whatsoever thou shalt ask of me, I will give it thee, the half of my kingdom. 24 And she came out, and said unto her mother, What shall I ask? And she said, The head of John the Baptist. 25 And she came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked, saying, Give me that thou forthwith give me on a platter the head of John the Baptist. 26 And the king was exceeding sorry; but for the sake of his oaths, and of them that sat at meat, he would not reject her. 27 And straightway the king sent forth a soldier of his guard, and commanded to bring his head; and he went and beheaded him in the prison, 28 and brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the damsel; and the damsel gave it to her mother. 29 And when his disciples heard thereof, they came and took up his corpse, and buried it in a tomb.

Our lesson today has been selected with a view to impressing the gospel of temperance. The subject of drink is not mentioned, but the feasts of that day were usually drunken feasts, and the conduct of Herod that of a man in the advanced stages of intoxication. John is only one of many martyrs to the cause of righteousness and temperance, and his death belongs to a long line of conspicuous men whose lives have been blighted and ruined by the curse of drink. Today the war between the forces represented by these two goes on. There is no neutral ground. Every member of the Bible class is on one side or the other. A vote for the saloon puts him in Herod's crowd. A vote for its overthrow, for country wide, or state wide, or nation wide prohibition of the liquor traffic puts one in company with John and the best and noblest of all these Christian centuries. In the hands of the men who study their Bibles today are enough votes to free any community from the drink curse.

The Accusing Voice of Conscience. The fame of Jesus was awakening widespread speculation. Who was He? Opinion differed. But the general conclusion was that one of the old prophets, who had illumined the earlier pages of Jesus' history, had returned. But one man, high in authority, had reason for a different opinion. He said, "It is John whom I beheaded; he is risen from the dead." The memory of his crime haunted him. The accusing voice of conscience filled him with terror. With the ghost-haunted Macbeth he could say:

"My conscience hath a thousand several tongues,

And every tongue brings in a several tale,
And every tale condemns me for a villain."

More terrible than the condemning sentence of the judge, is the sentence of this inner judgment seat. Professor Webster, of Harvard, imprisoned for the murder of Dr. Parkman, sent for his jailor one morning and asked to be placed in another cell. "At midnight," he said, "the prisoners in the next cell tap on the wall and whisper 'thou art a murderer.'" Now there were no prisoners in the next cell. The whispers were only the echoes of a guilty conscience.

The Fearless Preacher of Righteousness. There is need of more men like John the Baptist today. Modern matrimonial mix-ups in high places call for the severest condemnation from pulpit and press. Instead, the gross licentiousness of society is condoned under the mild term of "affinity," and the tragedy of home-breaking and law-breaking goes on unchecked. Herod's offense was only a case of modern so-called affinity, but John, undaunted by the high position of the offender, said, "It is not lawful for thee to have thy brother's wife." The exalted station of the wrong-doer only emphasized the need of rebuke. Herod's course was bringing untold evil upon the people, involving the country in war with the indignant Aretas, and setting an example that was sure, sooner or later, to corrupt the morals of the lowest ranks of his subjects. It was the voice of the patriot as well as that of the religious teacher that was heard in John's fearless reproof. Patriotism, if not religious conviction, should today demand the practice of Christian morality.

The Tragedy of the Wine Cup. Wine and women were the final undoing of Herod. Social drinking and social dancing have led to the downfall of unnumbered millions since.

Herod, in his sober moments, had a profound respect for John and received his message gladly, and was able to resist the clamor of his adulterous wife. But the birthday feast, with its accompaniment of wine, its wild revelries with dissolute princes and nobles, its lascivious dances and voluptuous music, left Herod a fit subject for the caprice of the vengeful Herodias. None but a drunken king would have endangered his realm by so rash an oath, or so lost sight of right and wrong as to have kept a wicked oath by the commission of so heinous a crime. That men will today trifle with a demon that steals reason, debases manhood and leads to moral ruin, is one of the moral mysteries of the universe. The age-long experience of the race was long ago expressed in these words of wisdom: "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

The Vengeance of a Wicked Woman. When John fell into the hands of Herod, his fate was sealed, not because the king willed it, but because back of him was a wicked vengeful woman. What she could not accomplish by entreaty, she secured by a cunningly devised trick and the sacrifice of, what every mother should hold sacred, the modesty of her daughter. The steps to the accomplishment of her purpose were swift,—the drunken feast, the voluptuous dance, the foolish oath, the ghastly request, the weak compliance, and a great reformer has met his fate and a wicked woman's vengeance has been satisfied. But the sweets of such vengeance are soon changed to bitterness. Not long after she was disowned by the king she had outwitted, and died in exile.

The Fate of the Prophet. John belonged to that great company of martyrs who have made the centuries luminous by their unselfish sacrifice. But for the men who, like him, stand fearlessly for the right in the face of death, the kingdom of righteousness would have long since perished. The unflinching loyalty of John has saved thousands from destruction. But to save others, he could not save himself. In him was exemplified a great utterance of Jesus, "He that findeth his life shall lose it, and he that loseth his life for My sake shall find it." John did not live very long. He died when he was only about 32 years old, but "he has lived all down the ages as one of the foremost heroes of the world."

Arrow Points. Ghost-frightened men shrink from reckoning with conscience and pursue the sinful way. V. 14. * * * One way to escape condemnation for sin is to imprison a preacher of righteousness, another is to amputate one's life. V. 17. * * * When ministers of the gospel follow fearlessly John's example in condemning sin in high places, there will be a new role of martyrs. V. 19. * * * The vengeful woman has often done more to hinder the work of the church than a score of male disturbers. V. 19. * * * Many a man, like Herod, has lost his head and plunged into crime because of a beautiful dancer. V. 27. Victory over an enemy at so great a cost is sure to be short lived. Herod soon lost his throne and died in exile. V. 27. The seemingly conquered servant of God lives while the seemingly triumphant Herodias is eternally perished.

Our Men's Bible Class

The comments on the Bible Lessons as outlined by "Our Own" Bible School Editor, are eliciting favorable comment. These notes are exclusive. Not a syllable appears in any other publication. Students desiring originality in thought and expression should not fail to refer to the terse, complete exposition outlined in the issues of "Christian Men." "Your neighbor's cat may have seven kittens, but it is not necessary that you know about it." There are things about every lesson that are true but not necessary for the commentator to dwell upon. "Christian Men" eliminates the superfluous and presents to its readers the gist of the lesson boiled down and concentrated.

CHRISTIAN MEN

A Bi-Monthly Publication, Being the Official Organ of
THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

E. ELLIOTT, Editor

FRANK LAUDER, Circulation Manager

THE GENERAL BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

EXECUTIVE BOARD

OFFICERS

E. A. LONG, President	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.	T. S. RIDGE, Rec. Sec'y.	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
J. I. HAYMAKER, Vice-President	-	Wichita, Kan.	F. J. BANNISTER, Treas.	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.

DIRECTORS

W. GRAFTON	- - - - -	Indianapolis, Ind.	R. A. DOAN	- - - - -	Nelsonville, Ohio
H. G. FRANK	- - - - -	Liberty, Mo.	D. P. GRIBBEN	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
F. NASE	- - - - -	Portland, Oregon	C. M. CHILTON	- - - - -	St. Joseph, Mo.
V. PALMER CLARKSON	- - - - -	St. Louis, Mo.	D. Y. DONALDSON	- - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.

NOTE—The Officers and Directors together constitute the Executive Board

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, Kansas City, Mo.

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1909, at the post office at Kansas City, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879.

Subscription—Single, 50 cents per annum, in advance; clubs of 10 or more; 35 cents per annum; 20 or more, 25 cents per annum in advance. Ten or more copies to one address to be paid for quarterly—in advance. Canadian postage, add 12 cents. Foreign, add 2 cents. Make remittances payable to order of Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Address 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Missouri.

Magazines will be discontinued at the time of expiration unless renewed within thirty days. Sample copies, when available, will be sent free.

Advertising rates upon application.

Volume 8.

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER, 1912

Number 2

FALL IS HERE

Only six weeks until frost," was the significant bulletin posted by the Kansas weather prophet last night. "Fate awaits the day," echoed from half a million parched throats. "Six weeks until the Louisville Convention," we rejoined to ourselves, and battled at the typewriter harder than ever. Yes, it is only a few days until the gathering hosts will assemble at our sixty-third annual convention, the fourth one for the Brotherhood movement. Louisville entertains this time, and we are looking forward to even delightful days of true Kentucky hospitality. It is fitting that our convention should meet in Louisville this year. To begin with, it is in almost the center of our people. Kentucky alone boasts of 150,000 Disciples, and Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois are close seconds, while Missouri, that great state of hogs, hominy, and the typical Missouri mule, has upwards of 200,000 at last count, and that has been some years ago. This will be a great home coming time for Kentuckians. The states are full of Kentuckians, and the "Corncrackers" are legion everywhere the world over. Thousands of them will turn their faces homeward along about the time of the National convention. "But what is Louisville to do with a million and a half of Disciples?" Well, in the first place, they are not all coming. Some have married a wife and can't come, and then we will need to leave some at home to care for the stock and attend to the chores, and fill the pulpits, and carry on the affairs of the congregations in our churches. But even then there will be many who could just as well make the journey, and bring back inspiring messages that will put off serious consideration until too late. Kentucky will be there, and the great hosts from the neighboring states and from throughout the Nation will make a large and enthusiastic company. We look for the largest attendance at any similar gathering excepting only The Centennial, and so does Louisville. The committee of one hundred of Louisville's foremost citizens are busily arranging accommodations for all who may come. The hotels will be filled early, of course, but hundreds of homes will open their doors outward and take us into their arms, so none of us need sleep in the park. The convention hall, where the Brotherhood and other general sessions will be held, has a seating capacity of 20,000, and if that mammoth place proves inadequate, there are other halls and churches, for be it known, this modern city is blessed with meeting places, and none of them more handsome and commodious than our own First Christian Church, whose counterfeit presentment adorns the cover pages of CHRISTIAN MEN this month. The Vanderbilts, Morgans, Rockefeller and Pennsylvania lines have tracks leading Louisville way, and the great Ohio river is free to those desiring to come by boat. The questionable period will come when you go to take the train and find it fully occupied and you have to stand up. But you will get to Louisville all right if you can get a handhold. There are lots of good things to see and bad things to drink in Louisville, but we will have no time for that as we are there on important business. There will be some history made at this convention. The Committee on Unification will make its report, and we doubt not there will be some valuable and clarifying discussion of this long-debated topic. The Council on Christian Unity will have an inning, as will the Brotherhood, the C. W. B. M., the A. C. M. S., the Foreign Society, the Benevolent Association, the Temperance Board, the Sunday-School, the Christian Endeavor and what not. It will be a simple, dignified convention, with reports, addresses and prayer—yes, we need more time for prayer in our conventions, and were we permitted a voice in the framing of programs, we would say that we have sufficient addresses at past conventions to last us for awhile, and what we need most now is conference and prayer. As our conventions are top-heavy with speeches—sermons—and the like, we have enough in their place, but out of place in our conventions. You will note in the program of the Brotherhood Convention elsewhere in this issue of CHRISTIAN MEN that we have left a place for prayer right in the middle of our afternoon program, and this is preceded by an hour of real downright business of the old order. The addresses on the Brotherhood program have to do vitally with the progress of this movement, and we are looking forward to an unprecedentedly successful gathering.

THIS MONTH'S MAGAZINE

We present for your consideration this month an array of literature which we think measures up to any past issue of this journal. The articles this month were all prepared especially for CHRISTIAN MEN, and the very names of the authors bespeak careful reading and sure interest. Oliver W. Stewart, who presents the cause of temperance in this issue, is not unknown to our people; he has been in the limelight of Christian politics these many years, and as a preacher-statesman of the highest order Mr. Stewart will be one of the speakers at the Brotherhood Convention in Louisville.

Secretary I. N. McCash, presents his inimitable style, the great cause of the Mission Week, and Muckley on Church Extension, gives an old topic a new style, while P. F. Jerome, one of our good business men, a Secretary of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association, gives an enlightening essay on "Foreign Missions at home," that is worthy of more than a hasty glance. President Sears finishes his treatment of the Call of the Ministry in this issue.

The Brotherhood Movement is moving along in many ways satisfactorily. The office in Kansas City is sending out literature in liberal proportions. The movement has been presented at many of the state and district conventions during the summer, by the Secretary and others chosen for this important post, and the encouragement accorded us on all sides is gratifying. There are many things that we wish might be secured, among them we may be permitted to mention, a closer fellowship with our local churches through affiliation of Brotherhoods, Leagues and Bible Classes, the extension of the circulation and usefulness of CHRISTIAN MEN magazine, a more observance of the semi-monthly programs for Brotherhoods and Bible Classes, and the sympathetic coöperation of a greater number of our ministers. Those who have been chosen to guide and direct the energies of this movement on behalf of our own people, deserve all praise and more. The officers and directors of this movement make bold to claim that the program of the Brotherhood, including as it does, all the work of the church, local, state, national, and international, will materially assist all the work of the church, and with the men of our local churches actively engaged in this coöperation, a better condition of affairs in general will prevail, than would otherwise be the case. The movement has long since passed the experimental stage. Its progress, like all new movements, has been necessarily slow. It takes time and talent and energy to promote new things, and this is no less true of the Brotherhood Movement. First-blush impressions unfavorable to the movement have retarded its progress. Many well meaning persons have misrepresented the work and thus placed a block in the path. Some have not taken kindly to the Brotherhood for commercial reasons, others this, and others that, but thanks to the group of officers and directors who have met together month in, month out, from the inception of the movement until the present day, pouring over the difficulties, altering plans and programs, pushing here and planting there, many good Brotherhoods are growing up among us, and you are to hear about them at Louisville. For the National Secretary, and editor of CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine, we may say that the work is hard—very hard, beside which our years in railway offices and traveling were sinecures, indeed. There have been many discouragements, but they have been met. Work among men anywhere is hard, and the man who succeeds will have to pay the price, whether in the local church, the District, State, or Nation. There are few easy things to accomplish in the church, we all know that. We did not know when we entered this work that the difficulties would be so many and varied, but if we had to do it over again, we would not have swerved from the path a digit's length. This work is not for a day, or a year, but for eternity. Brethren, don't you want to have a larger part in it?

The Editor's Vacation

VACATIONLAND

Vacationland, that elusive commonwealth of rest and recreation, lies everywhere but at home. To the north, south, east and west, it may be found, with tempting allurements. The annual trip "back home" is the diversion of many, and the magnanimity of the transportation lines by rail and lake, in the proffer of "reduced fares" makes it almost criminal to remain at home with its discomforts and "inconveniences." Whether we accept this logic at the beginning or in the end makes little difference. If we go away, we often wish we had stayed at home, and if our decision is to stay at home we are almost sure to wish we had gone away, and so there you are. For ourselves, we early determined to go away, so shortly after the noon of June, we packed as much of the editorial office, and our family, as bulging suit cases would accommodate, and took to the rails.

GALESBURG

Pastor James A. Barnett, and his good men at Galesburg do not believe in vacations. As testimony thereof, we were taken bodily off the train at midnight, put to bed in a good hotel, compelled to make public address no less than four times in the succeeding twenty-four hours, and again placed aboard train at the noon of night. But this is only a way station on our journey to Vacationland.

CHICAGO

All roads lead to Chicago, and all trains stop there. Our train pulled into the Union Station, which is a twin of the Kansas City Union Depot and resembles Noah's Ark, and as we passed through the gate we instinctively looked for the "high water mark" upon the wall. That we did not see it is not the depot's fault. It ought to be there, for be it known to Chicago's discredit, that station has long since outlived its usefulness, and our observations are always has a waiting list of trains trying to gain access to its tracks. Chicago is growing apace. Every time we visit the place we wonder if it will ever cease building. Pedestrians can hardly navigate its downtown streets for the obstructions about towering skyscrapers while the outlying sections are cumbered with increasing flats and dwellings that spatter from an artist's pen.

CHICAGO

UNIVERSITY

Twenty years ago, when John D. Rockefeller was not as rich as now, he conceived the idea of founding a University that would stand up and call him blessed in his old age, and proceeded to pour his millions upon the prairie round about Jackson Park and the then notorious Midway-Plaisance. The piles of stone and mortar that responded to the clink of coin in that recent day are a modern marvel, and the Oil King builded better than he knew. Here are a group of buildings that would shame the halls of far famed Harvard, and we conjecture, compare favorably with any similar group in the Educational universe. Chicago University, although ostensibly a Baptist School, is not altogether unknown among the Disciples of Christ. Its fame has gone out among our churches far and wide, and more than three hundred of our preachers and teachers are said to have at some time in their educational careers, had the names among those of its student body. It is in connection with the University that the Disciples of Christ maintain a Divinity House, with a corps of teachers, and trustees, to give expression to our own peculiar history and to the teaching of the Bible and its kindred studies, similar to the work of Bible Chairs maintained in connection with several of the State Universities. Charles M. Sharpe, late of the Bible College of Missouri, is the Dean of the Disciples.

Trinity House, and a valuable addition to our group of educators about the University. We did not study under Sharpe, Willett, Ames or Gates. We make this statement for fear that some who read these lines may place a question mark beside our own name, similar to that which already adorns several in the Disciples' Year Book. We came to the University, not to study at the feet of these men—although we might say in passing that we would delight in an opportunity of investigating their particular kind of philosophy—but rather to brush some of the cobwebs off our clouded brain in lines of more practical usefulness to us in the special work in which we are engaged. The University of Chicago is a great school, and the Disciples' Trinity House, when it comes into its own with our people, we are reasonably sure is to be one of the greatest educational agencies maintained by the Disciples of Christ anywhere. The five weeks we were permitted to attend the classes were of great profit. Five hours daily in the class room, with additional hours devoted to reference and study, though far from a vacation, were well expended. The fellowship in the divinity halls with ministerial students of every known and some unknown and unfathomable faiths, was delightful. We roomed on the top floor, dividing the study room with a Baptist theologian who ought to be, and thinks he is, a Disciple. Across the hall roomed a couple of Mennonites, while Japanese and Negroes shared facilities along the halls. It was a cosmopolitan crowd, from every part of this Nation and many foreign countries, all searching after that elusive something called knowledge. While we were busied with our studies, we found time to receive and answer our usual office mail, thanks to a faithful and efficient stenographer, and also to make short pilgrimages to adjacent Brotherhood groups at Valparaiso, Whiting, Peoria, Springfield, and several within the limits of Chicago. It was our privilege to attend and speak briefly at the annual dinner of The Disciples' Assembly at the university and to speak later to the regular meeting of that august body of believers. It was a great vacation. We are ready for another of the same sort, and some day we hope to have it. We believe Chicago University has exceptional facilities for advancement of knowledge and that our preachers and educational leaders should take advantage of them increasingly. The fact that this year we had representatives from several of our own schools and colleges and a number of our preachers, teachers and missionaries studying under the experts of Chicago University bids fair that such recognition will prevail. We are convinced that a mistaken conception of what the University has to offer in the way of science and philosophy, as well as religion, exists among our people, and while we are not crying the merits of this school to the exclusion of our own stable and efficient church colleges and Universities, it is our firm belief that expert direction in many lines may be here obtained.

HOME AGAIN

The office has not suffered during our absence. The R. A. Long Building still stands, and we are buckling down to business of the Brotherhood with greater zest than ever.

Δ Δ Δ

The Brotherhood Emblem

The Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ has adopted an emblem for members of Local Chapters, and general members to wear. The cut of this emblem appears at the heading of this article. Thousands of members of Brotherhoods, Leagues, Clubs and Men's Bible classes are already wearing it. When you see this emblem upon the lapel of a coat, or adorning the cravat or linen, you may be sure you have found a friend, and may feel free to fellowship with him, as Christians only can. There is no other emblem that specifically denotes a Brotherhood man. Thousands of our men who are not wearing the emblem would delight in doing so if the matter were called to their attention. Here is a field of activity for Local Brotherhood Secretaries. The colors of the emblem are red and gold, the gold for consecration and the red for life.

Who May Wear It?

Members of Local Chapters, affiliated with the National Brotherhood, and general members, may wear the emblem. If your Brotherhood, Club, League, or Men's Bible class is not a chapter of the National Brotherhood, it ought to be. There is no tangible argument against such affiliation, that will not be dispelled by investigation into the merits of the movement. We have half a million men in the Christian Church in America, and thousands of organized groups in local churches, Bible classes and other forms of organization that ought to become chapters in this National coöperation. By enlisting in this National Movement, your men will be a part of the National Brotherhood, and have a voice in its affairs and assist in extending the idea of efficient coöperation among men. Our women have an organization that is doing a magnificent piece of work. Their movement was cordially received and grew rapidly from the beginning. Why cannot the men have a similar National Movement in fact as well as in name? This is the question that has been distressing leaders of our men's work since before the inauguration of the National Brotherhood. We started to write about the emblem. YOU ought to wear it. Your men ought to be a part of the National movement, and action on your part may be all that is necessary to bring it about. Return a sample of the emblem will be sent in 15 cents in stamps. Address

BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST
Kansas City, Mo.

Δ Δ Δ

Christian Men Magazine

CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine is now rounding out its fourth successful year. Beginning without any subscription list, it has gathered together the names of more than sixty thousand men who have at one time paid their annual subscriptions, and more than fifteen thousand paid up subscribers are at this writing upon our books. Figuring the number of readers according to the publishers' scale we have something less than fifty thousand readers, men, women and children. The publishers of this journal have never been satisfied with the circulation figure and it has been the aim of the editorial department to make the magazine so appealing that the subscription list would materially increase. That we have failed in many respects we humbly admit. We have no paid agents, and rely entirely upon the loyalty of friends of the Magazine to promote its circulation. We feel abundantly able, with the assistance of a host of good writers whose contributions are on our waiting list, to direct the policy of management so that our subscribers will be enthusiastic over its contents. We receive hundreds of letters of sympathy from our friends throughout the country which, for reasons of modesty and lack of space, we do not care to publish. What we more desire is that these letters should be accompanied with lists of subscribers and checks that may be cashed at the bank. It is only occasionally that we make public appeals through the newspaper columns for assistance in this regard. We we have a feeling that our subscribers are as loyal to us as to any other publication in which they are interested, and it has been demonstrated hundreds of times during these four years, but—children—our lists expire each year and it is necessary for some one with grit and determination to seek the renewals and new subscribers. We are holding our old subscribers wonderfully well, in fact, better than we at first expected. We long ago adopted the policy of discontinuing the magazine when not promptly renewed. It is necessary for financial reasons, but if those who read these lines will take a moment's time and personally solicit the subscriptions of men of the church or the Bible Class, or the Brotherhood, League, or Men's Club, the trick will be turned. It is no trouble to obtain the subscriptions of scores of men by simply presenting the matter to them. We know this is true, for we have taken thousands of subscriptions ourselves at gatherings of men in local churches and know how easy it is. It is only necessary that you hold your own copy of the magazine and make the following talking points:

CHRISTIAN MEN'S Magazine is full of facts and figures relating to men's work in the Christian Church.

It contains up-to-the-minute articles relating all missionary and benevolent interests.

It has a department of Bible Study with the International Uniform Lessons prepared by "our own" Bible School Editor, that appeals to the busy man.

Its news items are snappy.

Its record of achievements of local groups are veritable exchanges of ideas and methods.

It is convenient for the coat pocket.

The typographical appearance is excellent.

We will soon inaugurate a department of Social Studies, without any increase in price.

Its page of "About the Board" is rich and rare.

Hundreds of Men's Bible Classes order CHRISTIAN MEN as the class paper.

It may be paid for quarterly in quantities all to one address.

The individual subscription rate—in clubs of 20 is only 25 cents per year; in clubs of ten, 35 cents, and individual subscriptions 50 cents a year.

Others take it, why not you?

Don't wait for samples to distribute, but begin now to ask your friends to subscribe.

"Put me down" cards and subscription blanks free on request. Address,

FRANK LAUDER,
Circulation Manager,
420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Says I to my class, says I—

“‘Christian Men’ is the Paper to Buy”

—says I.

Thos. W. Phillips is Dead

THOS. W. PHILLIPS

Thos. W. Phillips, one of the earliest and most persistent advocates of the masculine idea in religion among the laymen of the Churches of Christ, died at his home in New Castle, Pennsylvania, July 21st, 1912. Mr. Phillips, in his life time, was one of the most conspicuous business men among us, and his opportunities for usefulness in extending the Kingdom upon the earth are rarely exceeded by any man. The story of his life and work was set forth in the May, 1909, issue of CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine. He was a keen business man; a student of political and social conditions; a trenchant and forceful writer; a liberal philanthropist, and in all of these realms exerted an influence the like of which is rarely seen in the same personality.

Mr. Phillips believed in the Brotherhood idea. He assisted in the organization of a Men's Missionary Society in his church at New Castle before the National Brotherhood came into being. He talked the idea and wrote about it. Only a year and a half ago the writer visited with Brother Phillips in New Castle; the weather was stormy and Phillips had not been well, and yet he took time to visit with us for several hours at the hotel, supping with us around the dinner table. In almost every sentence Mr. Phillips betrayed his anxiety for the success of the enterprise of the church, and manifested that keen interest that has been his these many years.

He leaves a widow and family faithfully devoted to the work of the Kingdom and while our Brotherhood and the world at large has lost a wise counsellor and a worthy exponent of religion, we have left behind him a heritage of which any man should be proud.

Mr. Phillips was born in February, 1835, being, at the time of his death, 77 years of age.

The Million Dollars in Sight

"A Million Dollars in our Church Extension Fund!" This has been our goal and it is a pride and satisfaction to know that we are now within $40,000 of reaching this goal. The day of Offering is now just ahead of our churches and we can and ought to raise this amount the month of September and go to Louisville in October to report at our National Convention the $1,000,000 raised. Not only will it be a time of great jubilation at a convention; but it will bring a blessing to many struggling churches who must have help in building. Let churches everywhere take the Offering for Church Extension in September and help the Board to reach this Million Dollar Goal.

Brotherhood Special Train to Louisville

Last Year's Train at the Continental Divide

For the third time in the history of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, the officers and Directors announce a SPECIAL TRAIN PARTY to one of our National Conventions. The first led by the Brotherhood officers was to Pittsburgh, through from Kansas City, the second train ran to Portland, with convenient stops for sightseeing and visiting a number of points, and the train to Louisville, while a bit less in distance, will be none the less grand in its conference and deportment. It is planned to gather our friends from Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, at Kansas City on the morning of Tuesday, October 14th. There will be a complimentary automobile to take about the boulevards and parks of Kansas City, to while away the few hours between trains. Then we will board the BROTHERHOOD SPECIAL TRAIN DEPARTING, waiting for us in the Kansas City Union Depot, shortly before noon, and en route for St. Louis. A table de hôte luncheon will be served at a moderate price aboard the train, so you will not have to bother with luncheon before starting. Our train, which will consist of solid-vestibuled, electric-lighted chair cars, coaches and sleepers, the latest and best, will run through to Louisville, stopping en route only for coal and water, and to pick up parties by the way, who make arrangements in advance for accommodations. We will arrive at St. Louis in the early evening and it is planned to hold a reception and dinner at some convenient place, where we can meet and greet our St. Louis friends, and will be joined by friends from Omaha, Des Moines, and others from the Southwest. It will be an evening of glorious fellowship, and one long to be remembered, should you be with us, and regretted if you are not with us. Special street cars will be at the St. Louis Union Station to transport us to and from the reception. Our train will be in waiting for us at the station as early as ten o'clock, but we will not leave St. Louis until the clock strikes midnight. We will then cross over the broad Mississippi River into Illinois and spend a pleasant night, with assurance that we will be in Louisville at eight-thirty. A table de hôte breakfast will be served aboard the cars, so you will not suffer inconvenience and loss of time upon arrival at Louisville.

Special street cars will be at the Louisville Railway Station to carry our party direct to the hall of registration, and we will have a full day to locate our accommodations and get settled before the opening of the convention that evening. This will be a glorious journey. The fellowship of friends en route will be one of the delights of your lives. Nothing will be left undone that will minister to your comfort, and you may be sure of a pleasant and safe journey all the way. It is hoped at this writing to include in this issue of CHRISTIAN MEN the schedule of rates of fare from the principal points, but if this is not possible, this office will be very glad to place you in possession of detailed information, giving full particulars, upon receipt of a postal card. The route will be over the Chicago & Alton Railroad, Kansas City to St. Louis, and the B. & O. S. W. Railroad from St. Louis to Louisville. These are the official routes selected for members of the Brotherhood and those of our friends desiring to travel in fellowship with us en route are requested to buy their tickets over these lines.

For further information address

E. E. ELLIOTT,

Manager Special Train Party,
420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City,

Official Call for Brotherhood Convention

The fourth annual convention of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ is hereby called to meet in Louisville, Kentucky, Wednesday, October 16, 1912. The National Advisory Council, consisting of Chairmen of State Brotherhoods, where such organizations exist, and one representative at large from States without such organization, will meet at the Henry Watterson Hotel at 8:30 a. m. for consideration of such business as may properly be brought before the Council. At 2 p. m. the convention will be called to order and delegated representatives from Local Brotherhoods will constitute the business body of the convention. Reports of officers and directors will be there presented, and plans announced for the conduct of the work of this movement for the ensuing year. Local Brotherhood chapters are hereby called upon to appoint one representative for each fifty members, and to advise the National Secretary at his office in Kansas City, Missouri, of such appointment. Reports from each Local Chapter will be made from the floor. Please be prepared to have reports of the achievement of your chapter in the hands of your representative. The business of the convention will be concluded with a banquet session with three addresses by men of world-wide experience.

Your fraternally,

President

N. B.—All General Members will be seated in the delegate section of the Convention, and will be entitled to vote in the election of officers and directors. All business relating to Local Chapters will be administered by Local Chapter delegates only.

Kansas City, Mo., August 25, 1912

Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ

Fifth Annual Convention

Louisville, Kentucky, Wednesday, October 16, 1912

PROGRAM

AFTERNOON SESSION

Presiding Officer, Judge J. N. Haymaker, National Vice-President

2:00 p. m.—Song Service led by W. E. M. Hackleman

2:15 p. m.—National President's Address R. A. Long

2:45 p. m.—National Secretary's Report E. E. Elliott

3:05 p. m.—Roll Call of Chapters, and Business Session.

Report of Committee on Resolutions.

Report of National Advisory Council.

4:00 p. m.—Devotional Period.

4:15 p. m.—Spiritual Address by . . . A. B. Philputt, Indianapolis, Indiana

Adjournment.

EVENING SESSION

Presiding Officer, R. A. Long, National President

6:30 p. m.—Banquet Hour.

7:30 p. m.—Address "The Duty of Good Citizens"
Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, Chicago, Illinois.

8:00 p. m.—Address "The Call of the World"
Dr. J. E. Williams, Vice-President Union University, Nanking, China.

8:45 p. m.—Address "Massing of the Masculine"
C. M. Chilton, President American Christian Missionary Society, and National Director Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ.

Benediction.

Church Extension Down to Date

BY G. W. MUCKLEY, CORRESPONDING SECRETARY, BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

G. W. MUCKLEY

Every movement must be judged by its accomplished results. Men are impatient of theories. When a man says I have a theory as to how this and that thing can be done the world says,—“Put it to work. Show us results or we will cast your theory to the scrap heap of the impractical.” Many men waste lifetimes in vain imaginings. They propose things that never work out in real life. To meet the serious problems of life and help solve them are worthy the best effort of man.

ANCIENT PRACTICES

Before our Church Extension Fund was started we had the most indirect and expensive methods of trying to house our homeless congregations that could not build in the nick of time. There was the Charity Chain craze that went around the country. By this plan a man or a woman on a busy day receives a letter from an earnest worker at a mission point requesting that you send a dime to help complete their church building. Besides you are asked to write three letters, duplicates of the one you received, to three of your most particular friends asking them to each send a dime to the mission church and write three letters to their three particular friends making similar requests, and so on ad infinitum until a sufficient amount is secured to complete the mission church building.

You are earnestly requested to note in writing the letters, for if you do the chain will break at some link and the whole scheme will come to naught and the mission be left unhoused. The trouble with the Charity Chain scheme was that it accomplished nothing, because the chain always broke at some link and the whole thing fell to pieces. And the writing the three letters it always cost nine cents to get ten cents until the letters came in and these never came because some one would not write the letters and links in the Charity Chain were broken. This plan was abandoned.

CHAIN LETTERS

Then, there was the “nickel” for every member novel that went around the country for a while. By this plan some one for the homeless church writes both the pastor and Sunday-School Superintendent of a stronger church, asking them to give five cents from every man, woman and child. The men are asked to do without cigars and tobacco to give five cents or a multiple of five cents. The ladies are asked to do without a flower plume on their hats, a ribbon, or a curling design of a hat pin to give a nickel or quarter. The young people are to do without popcorn, peanuts, chewing gum, soda water and the like to give five cents. When all the nickels are in then the names are to be written in a little book and that book is to be deposited with the corner stone of the mission church is laid for the perpetual memory of the multitude of five-centers. But this plan failed also. Then came the women to the church to the rescue by inventing the Autograph Quilt. This was an appeal to all good men and true women ever to send 50c to the Ladies' Aid Society at the mission church, together with your autograph. There were to be four blocks in each quilt and forty names were to go into each block. The plan was to get as many distinguished names as possible. The name of your pastor or Representative or Governor was preferred. The more famous the name the higher price the quilt would bring. When all the money and autographs were in, then, by the delicate hands of the Ladies' Aid Society, these names were to be wrought into the quilt of variegated and beautifully colored silk and, forty names in each block, forty blocks in each quilt. Then the quilt was taken up at auction and the auction money, together with that which came from the autographs, was to complete the mission church building. But this scheme failed and was abandoned.

Now all these schemes are unworthy, but the schemers are worthy. Their desperation to get a church made them get up such plans to secure necessary funds. Then our churches struggling to build began sending men over the entire country to collect money from the stronger churches. Some were worthy and some were unworthy. Many unworthy preachers used this method of collecting money for themselves. A case in point is that of a man who came to Washington City at the inauguration of Grover Cleveland. He wrote to F. D. Power and asked permission to speak in his church, and at the same time ask for an offering to help complete our church building at The Dalles, Oregon. He was permitted to make his appeal and he received $72. Brother Power asked him to give the name of the treasurer of the church at The Dalles and he would forward the money. This man represented himself as the pastor at

The Dalles and had letters that purported to show that fact. He said he had been in the habit of forwarding all the money and he was therefore given the $72. On Monday Brother Power wrote to the Elders of the Christian Church at The Dalles and in ten days found that no such man had ever preached for them. This rogue came to Washington, got a collection and paid his way to and from Washington to see the inauguration of Grover Cleveland and was never heard of afterwards. In many cases this same thing happened. Generally the men were worthy.

THE MODERN METHOD

Finally our Church Extension work was organized to take the place of all this in-direction and for the purpose of aiding worthy mission churches to build that could not build without borrowing and that could not borrow locally, except at an exorbitant interest rate and on short time. This was but to invite disaster to the struggling little church as proven by the fact that churches that borrow at such rates today finally come to the Board of Church Extension for relief in saving their buildings from being sold for debt. The Church Extension Fund is a financial friend to the mission church that has no friend financially. That was the definition given to our Church Extension Board long ago by the lamented George Darsie, the best preacher friend Church Extension ever had.

The church is aided to build in the following manner: When a congregation applies for help the Board at once finds out if the church is worthy. This can be done through a State or District Board or City Missionary Society. An application blank of four pages is sent to the applicant for aid. In this blank many necessary questions are asked, such as population of the town or city, number of members, size of Sunday-School, and general prospects of growth. The size and cost of lot and its location are found out. The brethren are asked to send a written statement from a reliable real estate firm as to the value of the lot. Then a description of the church building is asked and the material. The Board furnishes up-to-date plans and encourages churches to build only up-to-date buildings. If everything is satisfactory and the money is available the Board grants about one-third the cost of the lot and building, governed of course by the town or city where the church is located. Sometimes closer loans are made in cities where lot values are permanent.

HOW LOANS ARE MADE The money is loaned at 4 per cent from the General Fund and Name Funds, and at 6 per cent from the Annuity Fund, to be paid at the completion of the building and when all other debts are paid in cash except what the loan will pay. This means not only debts which may become liens against the property but all other indebtedness as well. This precaution is taken so as to avoid liens. The loans are made at arms length and must be made with care. Old line insurance is required in every case, both fire and tornado. In short, every care is taken to protect the loan and at the same time protect the mission church in business and legal proceedings. The church must have an absolutely clear title to its property, and the Extension Board takes first mortgage security.

The loan is made to be returned in five annual installments so that it can go out again to help some other mission build that has been on the waiting list for months. This is a provision of the National Convention. It is a remarkable fact that since the beginning more than $1,273,000 has been paid back to go out again, and over 900 churches have paid their loans in full of the 1,528 that have been aided. In handling the original fund of $965,000 plus the $1,273,000 which has been returned and reloaned the Board has lost only $1,026 in eleven cases where churches gave up and deeded their property to the Board to sell the mortgages. They quit voluntarily because only a few were left. This loss of $1,026 is only one-twenty-fourth of 1 per cent of the $2,238,000 handled. Mission churches have shown great loyalty in making such a record.

MOVING ON THE CITIES

According to statistics of the Unity Foundation Trust of April, 1912, we have 1902 congregations without buildings. The same Tract shows that we have 3.8 of all the Protestant membership in cities. We must now move upon cities with solid ranks and move quickly. This means a larger Church Extension Fund and our men will see the point and give it. Let us do our first work in this direction by completing the Million in September. Thirty-thousand dollars more will do it. Mobilize altogether now! Let us get the Million! The goal is too close to fail.

Foreign Missions at Home

Work Among Russians in New York

BY P. F. JEROME.

P. F. JEROME

ROMANCE MISSIONS

Yes, even in home missions! And a romance which leads to improved conditions, better housing, living as and families united. This is the of the work among the Russians New York City. Starting with a group of Christian men, the Disciples in New York have established relations with the group of Christians in Russia, who may nearly equal in number our brotherhood in America. They have been found to be identical in faith and customs to ourselves. Fraternal meetings have been exchanged and the time is ripe for a closer relation to be established. My own interest started with the language school. I had an office four years ago named Julian Zelensky, a young, raw Russian, who brought to our notice the group of Russians who have since formed the nucleus of the Russian Church. The point of contact came through the teaching of English.

VARIETIES

Our opening night in November in the Y. M. C. A. on the Bowery had 57 students, and from that beginning the school has been in operation with over 100 different men as pupils. The figures "57" suggest the "varieties" of another kind, but we had variety enough on our opening night. Men in peasant costume, in high top boots and coats lined with sheep's wool, fresh from Ellis Island. Others longer in the country and more Americanized, bravely wearing celluloid collars and red neckties. Some showed discouragement with the little progress towards success in a free land. On the faces of all was the hope of help in the struggle for life, liberty and pursuit of happiness. The first lesson of the series of ten on the domestic duties of the home is entitled: "Getting up in the morning." The lesson story was translated into Russian, describing the man asleep in bed, waking, dressing and getting ready for breakfast. The teacher illustrates the sentences to the pupil who imitates the teacher in action and speech until the imitation becomes perfect. The first sentence, "I awake from sleep," with a stretch and a yawn, is soon followed with others by the delighted students.

THE EDUCATIONAL WORK

The most pressing needs of the immigrant is to acquire the English language. His opportunities are so limited in this country when he cannot speak the language. You can imagine yourself in a foreign land, and unable to secure employment for this very reason.

In the school the beginners study courses in domestic life, commercial and industrial topics. The advanced class is studying the history of the United States. Each student learns to speak, read and write and when the beginner finishes his term he has acquired a vocabulary of three hundred words useful in his every-day life.

Some of the students were unable to read or write the Russian language and their new accomplishment is a great wonder to themselves.

THE LESSONS The subjects of the lessons in the domestic series taught to the beginners are these:

Domestic Series

1. Getting up in the morning.
2. Getting wood to light the fire.
3. Lighting the fire.
4. Preparing breakfast.
5. Table utensils.
6. Eating breakfast.
7. A man washing.
8. A family of eight.
9. Welcoming a visitor.
10. Going to bed.

You will note that these subjects cover lessons which can be immediately applied to the daily life of the student.

UNCORKING THE BOTTLE Of course, many amusing incidents occur in teaching the lesson. One I remember in particular occurred on the evening on which we were preparing the table for dinner, on the table were found the plates, cups and saucers, salt and pepper and the vinegar bottle, the teacher taking the cork out of the bottle, asked the class to describe the action, one student immediately said: "He opens the door of the bottle." He had just remembered the lesson previous in which the phrase occurred "He opens the door to the bedroom." On another occasion in the industrial series, the workman comes home soiled from his day's work, and goes to the bathroom to wash, the teacher in describing the bathroom did not seem to make much impression on the student, he repeated "bathroom, bathroom, bathroom," and drew a picture of the bathroom on the blackboard.

One student more advanced than others, said, "We understand 'bathroom' but none of us are married." This can be made clear to you by the fact that these students are mostly young men, who must live in very crowded quarters where the bathtub is scarce, and when a man gets married does he need that a bathtub is a necessary addition to his living rooms.

Two men landed at Ellis Island, the following week found both in school. These men were married. The younger man had had more school training than the older man, who spent some years in Siberia as a Russian soldier. Work was found for both men, the younger one going to work in a piano factory at eight dollars per week, the other man secured work as a presser in a Jewish clothing factory at four dollars per week. In the next fall the wife of each of these men came to this country and two new homes were established in meager quarters. The older student paid four dollars per month for one room, the other student lived in two rooms, paying five dollars and fifty cents rent for himself, his wife and their year old boy. After a year in this school the older student received eight dollars per week and the younger one thirteen dollars per week. They are both able now to carry on a working conversation in English. Their living-rooms are now being used as a result of their increased prosperity.

When a man comes to you and says, "How do you-do-sky," it is a sign that he is not like the rest of us. At Pittsburg at the Centennial, a delegate went up to Johnson, our Russian delegate, and said, "Well: I'm glad to see

YES! RUSSIANS ARE WHITE

Russian and to know that they are white, always thought they were black."

One of the students, Peter, out of work met on the street by a man who told him he could get him a job for five dollars. The student had a twenty dollar bill at home and together they went to a room and got the money. The stranger took him to the entrance of a department store and told the student to wait for his return with the change and a job. Says Peter: "I wait and wait and he comes not again." In the same manner many a foreigner has been swindled by short change deals, by quack doctors and tenement agents.

MAN OF THE HOUR The teacher of the school finds himself consulted as to the method of naturalization, to settle with natives imposing on them, to find employment for needy, to suggest hospitals for the sick and under-privileged in case of death.

His unselfish work for the Russians has created a bond of friendship which makes it easy to be of service to them in the organization of a Russian Christian congregation. Friendship counts with the Russian just as much as with the American. There are ten thousand Russians in New York City needing the same aid and opportunity as this congregation of Russian Christians. The attitude of friendship toward them wins their sympathy and confidence.

The school and the congregation meet in the ground floor rooms in the Olivet Memorial Church, at 63 East 2d Street. The cost of these rooms is fifty-five dollars per month. The rooms are used every day in the week and twice on Sunday. There are thirty baptised members in the congregation and the meetings have a seriousness of purpose which is not frequently found in a Christian mission.

Recently a stereopticon address was given in connection with one of the school sessions, showing pictures of men who made the nation, dealing principally with the characters of our war for independence. There were fifty-seven men present and on the following Sunday evening thirty new men were in attendance at the evening service.

THE RELIGIOUS WORK

Out door services on a street corner of avenue A are held twice a week. Here Johnson, the missionary, and his helpers speak to the throngs of this crowded district. Only recently Johnson was interrupted by a Russian who shouted, "Don't listen to him, it's false, he lies." "There is no GOD." Johnson invited the man to go with him to the meeting which followed in the church building. He refused, but the following Sunday found him at the service. He is now an inquirer.

That such a spirit of evangelism should be communicated to the fatherland is but natural. A student of the school, Dimitry Dadianoff, returned to his home in the south of Russia and started a Christian mission among his associates, and letters from him tell of the glad news that he has over one hundred in the congregation.

A DEATH IN THE FAMILY

Another incident of more shadow than sunshine occurred in a winter month. Johnson called on me and quickly told me of the death of one of the little girls in the family of one of our Russian members of the church. Johnson had remembered how I had helped his brethren in some legal matters and had come to me for advice and assistance. He said: "I know you will help us now, because we do not know what to do, you must help us get an undertaker, and see about the body." I arranged for an undertaker and a grave. Johnson said: "I remember when I came first to this country my baby died, and I did not know what to do with the body, so I gave it to a policeman. They told me that was the way. I know differently now, and we want to have a funeral service if we can." So the next day, with the father of the child and three or four members of the school, Johnson, the undertaker and myself took the body to Mount Kisco Cemetery. Here we had secured a grave which gave us the privilege of placing three bodies, one above the other in the same opening, this child being the first. At the request of the father, the men lowered the body into the grave as the others stood around in the snow and cold, and from the undertaker's manual I read the burial service, and then the grave was filled and we came home. From that day there has grown a tie of friendship between the Disciples of New York and the Russians which cannot be broken.

MORE RUSSIANS
COMING

Every daily paper tells of immigrants now on the sea bound for this country. Ought not the heart of every patriot thrill with the privilege of welcoming this great host into the Christian citizenship of our land. The quality of the Russian citizenship depends upon the Disciples of Christ. The responsibility for the Russians is ours. Shall we not get into action and do our duty? The easy way is to sit down in ease and content and rust away.

Will the work grow? Can this grow influence others? What are dividends? Three points to be remembered: 1st. One of the students has gone back to Russia and has started a church with nearly hundred in the congregation. That's home missions abroad!

2d. The second school has been started, primarily by Johnson, among a group of twenty-five Polish young men speaking Russian, in a free school room. That's the golden rule!

3d. On a recent Sunday twenty-five Russians went to Flushing bay on Long Island Sound and witnessed there in the salt waters of the sea the baptism of three young men who came to this step through the work of the congregation. That's the real thing!

In the larger aspect of our relation as Disciples of Christ to the World Field, it would seem that when connection is established with the Disciples in Russia it will prove to be the greatest contribution to our brotherhood in a generation.

New York City.

Hear Ye! Hear Ye!! Hear Ye!!!

The Fourth Annual Convention

— O F —

The Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ

Will be held at Louisville, Kentucky, Wednesday, October 16th.

See detailed program elsewhere in this Magazine.

The Churchman's Relationship to the Liquor Traffic

BY OLIVER WAYNE STEWART, FIELD SECRETARY OF THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

OLIVER WAYNE STEWART

LAW The liquor traffic enjoys the protection of the law.

What is the worst thing that can be said about the present situation. It is bad enough that men are drunkards. It is worse that men are willing to coin profit out of the drunkard-making business, but the worst is, that a Christian government makes provision by its law for the legislation of the saloon and for the protection of the liquor traffic by the power of the state. The relationship of the churchman to the liquor traffic is that of every other citizen, who consents to the present situation, except that the sin of the churchman is the greater because he is presumed to have the finer vision of the high ideals of duty.

THE CHURCHMAN has two things to save—his church and his country, for the protection of the saloon by a Christian nation is demoralizing to church and state and both are essential to the Christian man.

It may be true that the liquor traffic would exist in fugitive form if the government did withdraw the protection of the law, but as a fugitive from justice, whining and begging for mercy, it would not be a thing to be feared. Protected by the law, it is strong and powerful; it is in position to dictate policies, control primaries and determine elections. Once it loses its legal standing, the rest will be easy.

CHURCH MUST LEAD The churchman must lead in the fight to bring about this desirable result. If we cannot turn to him for leadership and help, the case is hopeless.

Two things should be emphasized. The first is the wisdom and value of total abstinence. The question is not, can a strong willed man curb his desire for drink so as to indulge and yet avoid the rock of drunkenness. The real question turns on the wisdom of any man attempting so to do and it is safe to say that for the one man who finds himself able to pursue that course, hundreds of others go down to destruction. Every drunkard in the land today comes from the class of men who intended to drink in moderation. Not one drunkard ever was produced by total abstainers. The business world is helping to teach the value of total abstinence and it is not too much to say that at the present rate of progress, the great affairs of the world will be handled in the near future by the men who take no chances with intoxicants but follow the practice of total abstinence.

The second point to be emphasized is the necessity of a right governmental policy toward the liquor traffic. The churchman as a citizen should stand opposed to any form of license for a bad and vicious thing. It may take years to suppress the liquor traffic by the prohibition policy, but it could be done. But the saloon will never die by the license system. It is better for a Christian man to stand for a policy, which will some day put an end to the liquor traffic than to throw his influence for a policy, which however perfected, still leaves the liquor traffic enjoying the protection of the law.

EDUCATION NECESSARY

These results can never be achieved except by education, and here again the churchman becomes invaluable. He can by personal example, in conversation, in public addresses, by the circulation of literature and in many other ways help to carry the truth to those who are in need of it. He can give his moral and financial support to organizations acting as preachers, teachers and agents for the suppression of the liquor traffic and he can go to the ballot box and cast his vote against liquor traffic. It is the churchman's duty of opportunity and I believe he will measure up to it.

Chicago, Ill.

Liquor Traffic Statistics

(Report of Anti-Saloon League, 1911)

Expenditures of the United States

Foreign Missions	$ 9,000,000
Brick	95,000,000
Churches	165,000,000
Potatoes	205,000,000
Silks	230,000,000
Furniture	235,000,000
Sugar and Molasses	295,000,000
Public Education	310,000,000
Flour	435,000,000
Boots and Shoes	435,000,000
Woolen Goods	460,000,000
Cotton Goods	650,000,000
Lumber	685,000,000
Printing and Publications	725,000,000
Tobacco	800,000,000
Iron and Steel	1,100,000,000
Meat	1,500,000,000
Intoxicating Liquors	1,750,000,000

There is one (1) church to every fifteen hundred and twenty-seven (1,527) persons.

There is one (1) saloon to every five hundred and four (504) persons.

The Greatest Problem Before the Church Today

Paper No. 2—Remedies

BY E. V. ZOLLARS, PRESIDENT OF OKLAHOMA CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE? If adequate ministerial supply is the burning question of the hour, as tried to show in Paper No. 1, the question arises, where does the responsibility for the accomplishment of this work, which is fundamental to all our activities as a Christian people. I answer first of all upon our preachers.

THE MINISTER'S DUTY It seems to me that ministerial duty requires a man to study this question of ministerial supply as a matter of first and chiefest importance. Jesus said, "I pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into His harvest." This laid upon the disciples the obligation of preparing an adequate ministry, and the preacher is in a position today to do more than any other one can possibly do in this direction. He is or ought to be, in close touch with the young men of his church. He has an opportunity to know them as no other man can know them—yea, better than they know themselves. He has their confidences; they look to him for advice. It is possible for him to so magnify the greatness of the work of the ministry that young men will fall in love with it and see in it the greatest possible chance for effective service to men.

FACTS LITERATED 8,000 more churches than preachers! 3,200 churches that have no preaching at all! How can a preacher sleep quietly on the face of such a condition, having made no attempt to meet the emergency. It seems to me that this burning need should so press upon the heart and conscience of the preacher that he would have no rest day or night, unless he do his utmost to enlist volunteers for this great service. I verily believe if every preacher would do his duty the ministerial students in our various schools would be multiplied many times within a few years. But to be more specific, what can the preacher do? Answer:

SELECT VOLUNTEERS 1. That he can select such men as seem to him to have the needed qualifications and gifts and talk to them upon the subject, encourage them, show them the glory of the service and importance of it, and instill into them the spirit of heroism and devotion. For the time has never been—I presume the time will never come—when it will not require real heroes to become preachers. Men who can turn their backs upon the emoluments of the world and accept a lot of hardness for Christ's sake; but praise God, it is the men who endure hardness for conscience and Christ's sake who have the greatest joy.

PREACH SERMONS 2. He can preach an occasional sermon on Christian Education and Ministerial Supply. In fact, I doubt whether he is guiltless before God if he allows even a month to pass without making some reference to the subject from the pulpit, and once a year—certainly as often as that—there ought to be a great rally day for volunteers for the ministry. The indifference on this subject is really disheartening were it not for the fact that Christ is over all and will in some way overrule our indifference to His glory. Last fall I sent out about eight hundred letters to as many preachers, asking them to observe Educational Day.

ANSWER LETTERS

I sent a second letter, enclosing material, statistics, etc., that I thought would be helpful in observing the day. I wrote the third time to the same preachers, asking them not to overlook this important matter. Out of the eight hundred I received less than fifty replies, and did not get enough money in return to pay for my postage stamps and stationery. I make no complaint. I am not saying this in anger. I speak in sadness. I say it in the hope and in the belief that greater things and better things are near at hand. Perhaps someone may say that I had no authority to write to these preachers, and that I had no reason to expect a reply. Perhaps this is true, but if so, it only shows that the time has come when we should have a great educational organization, with someone selected who has the right to send out such letters and to urge coöperation in the great work of ministerial supply. One of the youngest movements among us is the great Brotherhood movement. How I have wished that this great organization, so potent for good, could adopt ministerial supply as its central point of emphasis. There is no organization among us that can do it so logically and so effectively.

ORGANIZATION NEEDED

3. He can call the attention of church boards to the importance of this question and have it considered in every officers' meeting. This would have a wonderful effect upon the churches. This would stir up the Brotherhood. Imagine a church board at every meeting considering the question of ministerial supply as one of its regular items of business. If this were done it would not be long until every church would have one or more men in training. If this were done it would not be long before our colleges would be well endowed. O! let me say to the preachers that they have it in their hands to solve this great problem in a large way. In the next place, permit me to say the obligation rests upon our church boards.

OFFICIAL BOARDS RESPONSIBLE

This is involved in what I have said above. To carry out the commission of our Lord is the primary business of the individual Christian, of the local church and of our churches collectively. The local church exists not simply for its own sake. Whenever that idea takes possession of a congregation the seeds of death are sown. The church that would grow must enlarge its vision, and an enlarged vision means adequate ministerial supply for the church at large. No local church has any right to be satisfied because it has a good preacher, yet there are many churches that feel perfectly complacent as long as its pulpit is filled with what they call a strong man. What brooks it to such churches that there are 3,200 and more churches that have no preaching? Alas! I fear there are many churches that never take this fact into consideration. To preach the gospel to every creature requires us to plant and foster churches as a basis of supply, and to plant and foster churches is a question of men. No church of any considerable strength can meet its responsibilities before God and the world that does not consider questions outside of purely local importance. When boards and officers get together in their meetings one of the things they ought talk about is the question of ministerial supply. They should ask, "What can we do as a church to increase ministerial supply?" They ought to cast about for suitable men for this work, and lay plans for sustaining them while securing the needed preparation. They could get down on their knees and plead mightily with God over this question, and feel that they cannot meet the need at last unless they have done everything in their power to meet this crisis that confronts us. Last of all, the responsibility rests upon men of means.

CHURCH RESPONSIBLE, TOO

By "Men of Means" I mean men of moderate means as well as upon very rich men. There are many brethren in moderate circumstances that feel they are under no obligation in the matter of college endowment or ministerial preparation, because they are not able to give large sums. The man who cannot give $100 will not give at all, because he cannot give $1,000. The man who cannot give $1,000 will not give, because he cannot give $10,000, and the man who cannot give $10,000 will not give at all, because he cannot give $100,000, and so the matter goes. I have worn out my lungs in trying to persuade men to join hands in this great work of ministerial supply. I am getting near the end. I hope and pray that the Lord will give me a little longer time to live that I may see His salvation in this matter. Somehow, down in my heart I have a feeling that great things are in store for us in the near future. Somehow I feel that God will let me see some of our schools with a million dollars of endowment; that He will let me see some schools that number their ministerial students by the hundred, and if this day shall ever dawn men of means, moderate means, as well as wealthy men, must do far more than they ever have done before. We must give in a larger way for this work of ministerial supply, which involves the founding and endowing of colleges. The young men who enter the work of the ministry are poor, in most cases very poor. To secure the needed preparation for the ministry is a herculean task. It not only requires time, but a considerable amount of money. After the expenses have been reduced to a minimum, still it costs no small amount for clothing, books and other incidental matters, to say nothing of the tuition, which most of our colleges find it necessary to charge. Expenses must be kept to the bottom. Many schools as they grow richer grow more expensive. This ought not to be so among us. Opportunities should be provided for young men to assist themselves by different forms of work. All this means more money for our schools; all this means that a great obligation rests upon men of means. Give me $50,000 and I will guarantee to support 100 young men, with their own coöperation, while they are preparing for the ministry, and do it perpetually. If a few of our schools had a million dollars and would administer it properly a long step would have been taken toward solving the question of ministerial supply. There are thousands of men and women who love our Lord and are devoted to His cause who could have a hand in this work who have never so much as touched the burden with their little fingers. Our ministerial problem could be solved in a few years' time if those who are able to assist would undertake this work. Brethren, what will your answer be?

THE CASE OF THE STUDENTS

Wireless Whispers

Federated Brotherhoods of Yakima County

BY PAUL G. KRUGER.

For a long time I have been considering the possibility of bringing together the entire Brotherhoods of the various churches in this City. I did not stand long on ceremony neither did I consult any one, realizing if there was to be anything accomplished, some one must take the lead. Thus I issued a call through the newspapers, heading it CHURCH MEN WILL UNITE. On Tuesday following the call I had the pleasure of seeing representatives from the different churches at the meeting to whom I explained the nature of the call. To-wit: The object of this meeting is to bring together the different Brotherhoods of this city to unite upon a common basis for civic righteousness and closer fellowship of all the men laying aside all questions of denominations, and blending in one harmonious whole, all workers for the uplifting of the church. The response to this call was spontaneous and before the meeting closed we had effected a temporary organization and appointed one delegate from each Brotherhood as well as delegates from churches having no Brotherhoods as a committee, to perfect a Constitution. One week from that date we met at the Salvation Army Hall. In the early part of October, the Executive Council well meet at the Y. M. C. A. and begins its work for a better Yakima. I am also working on the proposition of bringing the different women organizations together, to be known as the Federated Sisterhood of Yakima county and it is possible to have these coöperate with the Federated Brotherhoods. I hope and pray that this movement will spread and thereby bring together the different churches in a more perfect understanding pertaining to the Honor and Glory of God and His Kingdom. In this movement, I am not neglecting the colored Brethren, whom I have already addressed.

* * *

International Christian Missionary Convention, Oct. 15-22

Louisville, Kentucky, Convention Railroad Rates

Final word has been received from the various railway associations, and published schedules have been issued. The regular 2 cent rate without any concession, will obtain in the Western and Central associations. The Southeastern and Southwestern Passenger Associations including all the territory south of the Ohio River and southwest to the border of New Mexico and Colorado, will give one and one third fare, and, by the deposit of the ticket at Louisville, for validation, and the payment of $1.00, the time will be extended to November 11, 1912. Beyond the southwestern limits, a round-trip minimum of 2 cents each way, up to the gate-ways, to Louisville will be charged. Tickets will be on sale, October 14th, 15th and 17th, in the central parts of our country, and in the more remote regions October 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th. All persons desiring to attend can get the scheduled rates from local points of their railway agents.

Extension of this time to November 11th is a great boon to the Convention, and will furnish an opportunity for hundreds of former residents of the Central States, especially Kentucky, to visit their old homes after the Convention.

I. N. McCASH, Secretary.

* * *

Recent Brotherhood Achievements

The biggest thing our Brotherhood did within the last year was to give $50.00 to the building fund and a few other little charitable things. We expect to build in the near future.—G. J. CRYMES, President Local Brotherhood Washington, D. C.

Ordained to the Ministry at Franklin Circle

W. F. ROTHENBURGER, CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Mr. Earl Brown, son of the late Russel Brown, was ordained to the Christian Ministry in the Franklin Circle Church, in which he was reared, on the evening of June 20th. Mr. Brown took his Bachelor degree at Fram College and his Master's degree at Alle, and enters upon his work with a church at Beaver, Pa., with a splendid equipment as well as a passion for service. The pastor was assisted by Walter S. Goode, pastor of the Lakewood Church; Frank C. Ford, pastor of the West Boulevard Church, and Alanson Wilcox, one of the veteran preachers of Ohio, and one of the active elders of the local congregation. The service was a most impressive one, and the church is rejoiced in the contribution it has made to the ranks of the Disciple Ministry in this day of its greatest need.

The Franklin Church has been fortunate in sending ten men into the ministry and one young lady into the mission field in the last ten decades. The following is a list of ministers with the dates when they entered upon their active work and their present location as far as obtainable; Earl Brown (1912), Beaver, Pa.; William Hennesy (1912), Highland Avenue, Cleveland; Marion Bradshaw (1911), Ma, Ohio; C. C. Wilson (1907), Milwaukee, Wis.; Mrs. Edna Kurtz Settlemyer (1907), Hankin, China; Harry Knowles (1905), S. D.; Luis Getcher (1900); Dr. Fred Kline (1890), Inevelont Association; J. J. Tisdale (1891), Columbus; A. Stroupe (1890), Alabama; Miss Ora Hofrichter, Hiram College (1913), is preparing for work in the Young Men's Christian Association. Our Brotherhood sent one of our own young men to Hiram last year with a scholarship and has both another man and a scholarship ready for next year.

* * *

Kansas City's Homes for Girls

For years, the smaller towns of Missouri and Kansas have been sending hundreds of young girls to our city to earn a living. The rural districts have been doing the same. Girls should stay at home unless a necessity compels them to come, for too many have come already.

And of these, too many have been very poorly equipped for earning a living. Perhaps they have attended a commercial college for a few months and have been told that they are well prepared to hold a good position in the city. The president of such a school in Minnesota is now serving a term in their state penitentiary for engaging a position for a girl which he knew she was incompetent to fill. She was allowed to work only an hour and then was dismissed. The miserable man was in league with the procurers from whom the girl miraculously escaped.

Doubtless such things are going on elsewhere. We are getting evidence against a physician and against a tailor for advertising for girls to nurse and to sew, when in reality they have no honorable employment for them.

These facts show some of the dangers awaiting country girls. A daily paper recently advertised rooms for rent to two young ladies. City officials not admiring the location, went there one evening to inquire for rooms. They found to their own satisfaction that the place was a disreputable house. Later, the police raided the place and the woman was fined in police court. This will not prevent her from changing her location and her name and resuming her evil calling. A younger and less shrewd girl might have engaged room there and met her ruin.

Hundreds of girls go to cheap places to do light housekeeping. The landlady rents all her rooms. The girls entertain callers on the street or in their rooms and it is surprising that so many come out unscathed. While we permit this, we must not wonder at the number of young girls with painted faces and gaudy attire on our streets at night.

There are four good homes for girls in our city. The Girls' Home Association, 612 West 11th street, is the oldest. There is room there for thirty young women, the price ranging from $3.50 to $3.75 per week.

The Young Women's Christian Association Boarding Home was the second founded. It can care for 85 girls. Its roof garden is an attractive feature in the summer time. Its prices are from $3.25 to $4.50.

The Girls' Hotel was next founded. It looks after the very poorly paid girls—does not take any girl who earns more than $7.00 per week and accepts half a girl's wages in payment for room and board. Its wide porches and beautiful shaded lawn are attractive features.

The latest comer is the Coöperative Club. Here the girls are expected to pay enough to meet the expenses of the house. So far they have been $3.50 per week. When larger quarters are secured, the sum will be smaller. Broad porches and a good view make this place attractive.

All these homes have parlors where guests are entertained. All make a specialty of giving the girls a good time—music, picnics and parties. All have good matrons or house mothers, and a kind spirit is cultivated in all.

All girls coming to the city are recommended to go to one of these homes and to stay until board in a good private family can be found, if that is preferred. A systematic canvass for good homes is to be made. There will be places of all prices; there will be people of all religious faiths on the lists.

Good board in a private family must always cost a little more, and generally there are no laundry privileges, and there is car fare. The four homes spoken of, are all within walking distance of the business sections of the city.

The Bible in Public Schools

It is generally acknowledged that apart altogether from its religious and spiritual aspects the Bible is the greatest literary monument in the English language—the book that has inspired the highest thoughts and moulded the style of the greatest authors, and that no education is complete without a knowledge of its contents. Plebiscites of the electors and of school committees, so far as such can be taken by private effort, have shown that there is a majority of the public in favor of the restoration of the Scripture to the Public Schools, from which they have for thirty years been excluded, to the great disadvantage, it is feared, of children who lack efficient home instruction. The Sunday-schools of the country can not reach all the children; and the instruction therein given is largely by untrained teachers, naturally more concerned with religious than intellectual development.

States in America where the Bible is read in the Public Schools. The comments are supplied by the Superintendents of Public Instruction:—Maine, "Bible daily read in school for 270 years;" New York, "Read daily for 250 years;" New Hampshire, "Read daily since 1623;" Vermont, "We encourage Bible-reading in schools;" District of Columbia, "Bible read and Lord's Prayer repeated;" Kentucky, "Generally read;" Tennessee, "The Bible is our rock of public safety;" Alabama, "Custom in our schools neither enjoins nor forbids;" Illinois, ditto; Mississippi, "The Bible is not excluded and is generally read;" Michigan, ditto; Arkansas, "Read in part of the schools;" Texas, "Read in some schools;" Oregon, ditto; West Virginia, "No law prohibiting Bible-reading;" Florida, ditto; Delaware, "Bible-reading universal;" Pennsylvania, "The Scriptures must not be omitted;" New Jersey, "Read in nearly all schools;" Georgia, "The Bible cannot be excluded;" Connecticut, "The Bible has always been read;" Massachusetts, "Bible has been read in schools for 278 years;" Maryland, "Read daily in our schools;" South Carolina, "Generally read;" Rhode Island, "Universal custom to read the Scriptures;" Indiana, "The Bible shall not be excluded;" South Dakota, "May be read without sectarian comment;" Virginia, "Read in nearly all schools;" Ohio, "We thoroughly believe in it, as it has a good influence upon our children;" Missouri, "Optional; character-building is an important factor with us;" Nebraska, "Encourage moral culture; generally read;" Kansas, "Read in part of our schools;" Wyoming, "Left to local boards to decide;" Colorado, "Read in some schools;" New York City, "Rules observed for nearly three centuries; all schools are opened by reading the Bible in New York."

* * *

Brotherhood Achievements

Our Brotherhood paid out $15.00 for the assistance of a young man in college.—O. M. LANE, Secretary of Brotherhood No. 346, Monmouth, Ill.

Labor Sunday Will Be Widely Observed

The Federal Council Commission on the Church and Social Service (215 Fourth avenue New York) reports that already about 20,000 pastors have taken up the observance of Labor Sunday, September 1st, or in some cases, a later Sunday, and that the subject of Seven-Day Labor will be presented with an appeal for One-Day-In-Seven for Industrial Workers. The Commission supplies a leaflet of suggestions and a printed program for the day, on application.

* * *

The Front Rank Bible

In response to a growing demand among our people, the Christian Board of Publication has brought out what is known as "The Front Rank Bible," which is now ready for circulation among our church leaders and members. A casual look into the Front Rank Bible will reveal to the ordinary reader that this is no ordinary Bible, but a most extraordinary one. In addition to a very up-to-date and authentic Concordance, and Dictionary, it has a number of timely articles prepared especially for this Bible by authors whose very names alone add worth to the Bible as a document of exceptional merit. These make it a reference book to be valued by the most exacting Bible reader and student. The typographical appearance of the Bible, text and subject matter is most excellent, with the usual marginal references, while the superb binding in extra quality of limp leather indicates the highest class of workmanship. In fact we are told by the publishers, that Thos. Nelson and Sons' Company, the makers, laid themselves out in the manufacture of this Bible, and indeed examination demonstrates this fact. The value of the book is agreeably enhanced by the articles relating to the origin, growth and work of the Churches of Christ throughout the world, and those desiring to have the very best in Bibles, will make no mistake in ordering The Front Rank Bible. It is made to sell at a very low price, in three qualities, and prices announced are $2.25, $2.75 and $4.50. Address, The Christian Board of Publication, 2712 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

* * *

Phillips Bible Institute

Attention is called to the announcement of the Phillips Bible Institute, at Canton, Ohio, in the advertising section of this number of CHRISTIAN MEN. For a long time the mind of the late Thos. W. Phillips ran along the line of an institute for the training of lay leadership and professional ministers as well. That this institute was not established earlier in the life of its founder is not any fault of his. He saw the need and advocated it for many years. He realized that our colleges at st, could not hope to turn out professional ministers rapidly enough to meet the demand and numerous rural and smaller town pastors churches abound throughout the country. Mr. Phillips alone in his view. Business men, educators, and ministers have studied the subject from various angles and come to the same conclusion—i. e., that such an institute as the Phillips Bible Institute would supply a real need.

The magnificent buildings of the Canton Christian Church made possible the selection of that convenient center for the school, although many other places held out inducement for location. We haven't examined the courses of studies suggested, but we know of other Martin L. Pierce, the dean, well and favorably. Mr. P. H. Welshimer, the Bible school specialist, was the editor of the Bible school notes for CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine for several years, and CHRISTIAN MEN readers needed no introduction to him.

This school will receive the heartiest support of our entire Brotherhood and we would suggest the opening of correspondence with the school, by teachers, presidents, and superintendents, who desire to make themselves efficient religious leaders. It is our understanding that courses may be had by correspondence if desired.

* * *

Methodist Man Commends Christian Men

At the Portland Convention, Oscar D. Sunley, President of the Sellwood Methodist Brotherhood, Chapter No. 968, attended our banquet and subscribed for CHRISTIAN MEN. Renewing his subscription for three years he says: "As you will see by our letterhead, I am not a member of your church, but have been your paper since your banquet here in Portland, which I attended and enjoyed very much. I like to take other papers besides my own, so I can get the different ideas from each one. Our Brotherhood got the men of the Christian, Baptist, and Presbyterian Churches to work with us, and kept one of the breweries from putting in a saloon in our suburb. Now we are working to try and get all Brotherhoods of other churches to work together to put the saloons out of the residence district in the fire limits or business district. We have received a great deal of encouragement. I want my subscription to begin where the old one ended, and enclosed you will find $1.00 to apply on same."

* * *

Missouri Convention

The Missouri State Convention for 1912 was held in Brookfield, June 17th-20th. The Brotherhood Secretary was permitted to address the convention three times. Once at an informal conference of men, Thursday; again at 2:40 p. m., and a third time at the men's dinner at 5 o'clock. More than one hundred men sat down together. It was a most enjoyable occasion. We have not attended a state convention this year that gave us a more cordial hearing, nor one in which we felt our audience, almost to the last man, was more in sympathy with the difficult task in which we are engaged. As a manifestation of their interest in our work, a committee was appointed to cooperate with the national secretary and the general office in carrying forward a campaign of promotion of the idea of men's work in the church during the year, and especially to arrange a liberal attendance of our men from the pew as well as from the pulpit at the next convention, which will be held in Fulton. This committee is composed of J. L. Garvin, Fulton; F. W. Allen, Paris; S. G. Fisher, Trenton; J. B. Hunley, Kansas City; J. W. Perry, Joplin; J. H. Jones, Springfield, and Sydney H. Thompson, St. Louis.

Already arrangements are being thought about for two special trains to the Missouri Convention next year. One starting from Kansas City; the other from St. Louis. With such a committee headed by a man of rare abilities like Garvin, the convention ought to be one of the largest in history.

* * *

Oklahoma State Brotherhood

The Oklahoma Brotherhood met during the session of the State Convention at Ada, which is in Southern Oklahoma, early in June. It was a good convention. These Oklahoma folk from everywhere like to get together and talk over the affairs of the Kingdom, and they never let a speech interfere with the transaction of their business—and in this they are wise. The Brotherhood sessions were held at the State Normal School, and proved to be the largest and most enthusiastic sessions of the entire convention. Pres. A. R. Spicer of Lawton presided with dignity and rare power. Addresses were made by a number of our sterling men, who are grappling with the man problem, and officers were elected for the ensuing year. A. R. Spicer, for the presidency; Mr. Babbitt, secretary and treasurer, and E. L. Kirtley, our minister at Marlow, as a member of the executive committee.

* * *

South Auburn, Nebraska, Doings

We sent our President to Men and Religion Forward Campaign at Lincoln. Had a men's rally on rally day, for men and boys. Have had several banquets. Gave a program at the 11 o'clock hour last Sunday by special arrangement, thus relieving the pastor. Are to have charge again soon. Do all ushering, and have many responsibilities. We are right in the midst of a church building campaign, and hope to have building completed by fall. Will cost approximately $20,000 and has the best location and will be, we think, the most comfortable church in our community—M. S. McINICH.

What Can the Men Do?

- A—dvertise the church.
- B—race up the prayer-meeting.
- C—are for all the finances of the church.
- D—o "scout" duty for the pastor.
- E—ndeavor to be "a big brother" to some boy.
- F—ollow Christ, whatever it may cost.
- G—ive one-tenth of your income to the church.
- H—old on to the men you win.
- I—nspire others to do harder service for the church.
- J—ump at every opportunity to "boost."
- K—eep church statistics of attendance, etc.
- L—ook for the weak places in the church and strengthen them.
- M—uster those who are on the church's "side lines" into active service.
- N—ever utter or sanction a dirty or smutty word.
- O—rganize men for definite and continuous service.
- P—ray as if God was to do it all and work as if you were to do it all.
- Q—uicken the zeal of other men and get them to work.
- R—ecreate wisely and common-sensically.
- S—ee that business methods are adopted in church management.
- T—ake your religion everywhere.
- U—rge purity of life by precept and by example.
- V—isit other men and bring them in.
- W—in one other man to Christ and the church.
- X—cel in Christ-like character.
- Y—earn for the man who is "down and out."
- Z—ero religion is a thing of the past.

O. O. INMAN.

Terre Haute, Indiana.

* * *

Booth Makes Good Again

I spoke at Bozeman, Montana, to the men's banquet, and it was a great meeting. There were about eighty-five men and sixty-five women that sat down to dinner together. I had the principal address of the evening. The men were full of life and enthusiasm, evidenced by the fact that $1,500.00 was raised during the evening for state missions. I speak tonight to the men's banquet on Brotherhood work. We ought to have a good meeting as the convention is well attended and enthusiasm runs high.—JOHN H. BOOTH, Board of Church Extension, Kansas City, Mo.

* * *

Is It Worth It?

Billy Sunday received $17,000 for a six weeks meeting in Wheeling, W. Va. If men want plenty of work and good pay, the work and the money are waiting. There are several thousand jobs like Billy Sunday has, in this old world. But it requires men of certain convictions and definite standard of character to fill these places. The trouble with us is, we want the other fellow's pay without meeting the conditions—without paying the price.—Uricksville, O., Christian.

Things for Brotherhoods and Men's Bible Classes to Do

MISSIONARY

- Organize an energetic Missionary Committee.
- Encourage systematic giving and tithing.
- Support a missionary or native worker in the field.
- Coöperate with the Layman's Missionary Movement in carrying out its plans.
- Personally recommend strong missionary books to individuals.
- Collect a missionary library.
- Help your church to adopt its apportionment.
- Inaugurate and carry through an EVERY MEMBER CANVASS.
- See that your church adopts the best methods of missionary finance.
- Systematically educate men concerning the missionary propaganda.
- Ask the pastor to preach missionary sermons.
- See that the men of your church attend missionary conventions.
- Help to develop prayer for missions.
- Organize a mission study class.
- Cultivate an intelligent and active allegiance to the established missionary agencies of our church.

* * *

Laymen's Missionary Movement

At the Second Annual Conference of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, held at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, July 27th-31st, the following resolutions were presented at the Disciples Conference by E. M. Todd, minister, Ft. Wayne, Indiana:

RESOLVED, That the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ be requested to be the coöperating agency of the Laymen's Missionary Movement among the Disciples of Christ. Seconded and carried.

RESOLVED, That a committee be appointed to address a letter to our people regarding this conference and expressing our regret that we, as a people, have not been in closer coöperation with the Laymen's Movement heretofore. That we urge a liberal attendance of our laymen at meetings of the Laymen's Movement wherever held. Seconded and carried.

* * *

Dodge City Data

It is our purpose to get all the men in the church in the Brotherhood. We are working to establish communion services in two small cities in this county, and in time hope to be able to establish churches at these points. While without a pastor, we attended C. E. in a body on one occasion, and encouraged them in their work; we assist in the ushering, and most every member attends Sunday-School. Our chapter is meeting monthly. Followed the programs found in Christian Men in the larger number of our meetings.—RICHARD W. EVANS, JR.

The Boy Scouts

A recent article appearing in CHRISTIAN MEN appears to have done injustice to the Boy Scout Movement and some of its leaders have asked us to correct the impression that was erroneously conveyed therein. This we gladly do by publishing herewith an article appearing in the Outlook for February 24th, on the editorial page. Anything appearing in the Outlook is generally taken to be correct, and while we are not convinced in our own mind that the Boy Scouts is the best movement (a claim made by practically every leader of Boys' Work for his particular organization), we are glad to reprint what the Outlook says is good about the Boy Scout Movement. For ourselves, we strongly adhere to the program of Boy Work recommended by the Men and Religion Forward Movement, which ties up every local church to the boy and the boy to the church. Any other program will die with the leader. We have some notable examples of Boy Scouts in our churches at Washington, D. C., Kansas City, Kansas, and elsewhere, doing commendable work. While these local camps are under church auspices, the National Movement is not. We think it should be.

THE BOY SCOUT MOVEMENT The Boy Scouts of America, an admirable organization for teaching and training boys outside of the recognized educational agencies of the country, has already been firmly established, but it has received a very strong forward impulse from the visit to this country of General Sir Robert Baden-Powell, who may justly be called the founder of the movement. General Baden-Powell, who won great distinction in the British army as the defender of Mafeking during the South African War, is now in the United States for the purpose of inspecting the work done and the progress made by the Boy Scouts of America during the last two years. At a dinner given in his honor the week before last at the Hotel Astor in New York City

General Baden-Powell delivered a very interesting address upon the purposes and work of the organization, which was illustrated by lantern slides and by moving pictures. The chief criticism of the Boy Scout Movement has been founded in the fear of many good people that it would develop a spirit of militarism in the boy. General Baden-Powell devoted considerable time to pointing out that this criticism is a result of a complete misunderstanding of the spirit and methods of those who are directing the Boy Scouts. The effect of military discipline, he said, has generally been in the past to repress individual character and initiative and to force private soldiers into a uniform mold. The purpose of the Boy Scout organization is to develop individual character and initiative. An examination of the "Handbook for Boy Scouts," which may be obtained at the chief office of the organization, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City, confirms beyond question General Baden-Powell's views: When a boy becomes a Scout, he must take the following oath:

"On my honor I will do my best (1) to do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout law; (2) to help other people at all times; (3) to keep myself physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight."

The laws of the Boy Scouts, which he promises to obey when he joins the organization, provide that a Scout must be trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean, reverent. Any organization that can develop these twelve qualities in American boys deserves the hearty support of all men and women who believe in good citizenship. General Baden-Powell, in his address at the Boy Scout dinner, told many stories of actual life to show that the organization of Boy Scouts is developing these qualities in its members in a very remarkable degree. We wish the handbook already referred to could be read by somebody interested in boy life in every village, town, and city of the United States.

How is affiliation with the National Brotherhood brought about?

Answer: Organize with a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer and several committees such as Program, Membership, Boys' Work, Bible Study and Missions. File application with National Brotherhood Office.

What are the National dues or assessments?

Answer: No dues, no assessments; an annual offering for the National work is asked of all Chapters.

From "The Brotherhood Movement. What is it?"

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR SEPTEMBER.

No. 2.

TOPIC—Front Rank Churches and Bible Schools.

I.—Devotional.

Hymn, "Oh Happy Day That Fixed My Choice."

Prayer: All pray the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Scripture Reading: Hebrews 6:1-8.

Music.

II.—Cultural.

Part 1.—Let one be appointed to conduct a Round Table on the "Front Rank Standard for Churches." This can be secured by dropping a postal card to E. E. Elliott, 420 R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. Display the different points necessary to make your church a front rank church. Explain them, and show their practical value to the church attaining them. Bring out clearly how much your church lacks in being a front rank church. Put it up to your men whether they will make your church a front rank church for 1913.

Part 2.—Appoint another who shall handle this part similar to the above. Get the front rank standard for the Bible schools for 1912-13, if you do not already have it, send to Robert Hopkins, Carew Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio. Seriously measure your school by this standard. Show your men just where you come short, and be ready to suggest to them how they may "heal the breach." We do not believe this is an evening for speeches. It is an evening for heart to heart discussion and looking your conditions squarely in the face. Do it and throw your men behind the weak places in both church and Sunday-School.

Clincher: That this church be known hereafter as a front rank church, and we are glad to have the standard placed higher each year.

III.—Business.

Roll-call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

Reception of New Members.

Offering.

IV.—Social and Closing.

PROGRAM FOR OCTOBER.

No. 1.

TOPIC.—Christ and Social Conservation.

I.—Devotional.

Hymn, "Help Somebody Today," Brotherhood Hymns.

Prayer.

Scripture Lesson, Luke 10:25-37.

Hymn, "Somebody Did a Golden Deed," Brotherhood Hymns.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Some Causes of Crime, Disease and Human Waste.

a, Poverty.

b, Ignorance.

c, Excessive riches.

d, Christ relationships the solution.

Address: Solicitude for the Children.

a, In the home.

Health.

Environment.

Intelligence.

b, In Society.

Playgrounds.

Juvenile Courts.

Settlement work.

Address: The Church versus the Saloon.

a, The progress of Temperance Movement.

b, The seeming retrogression. Its Cause.

Address: The White Slave Traffic.

a, Causes:

Poverty the chief cause.

Ignorance.

Environment.

b, Remedy.

Apply the Christ relationships among men.

III.—Business.

Roll-call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished Business.

New Business.

Reception of New Members.

IV.—Social and Closing.

PROGRAM FOR OCTOBER.

No. 2.

OPIC—Base of Supplies, the Local Church.

—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "The Son of God goes forth to war," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 38.
2. Scripture reading, 1 Cor. 3:1-23.
3. Prayer for consecration of the local church.

I.—Cultural.

Address: The need of the local church as a base of supplies.

- a, The apostolic church was local.
- b, What an organized band of men can do in local church betterment.
- c, How to make the local church educationally efficient.

Address: Local church operation.

- a, The church school should include everybody and every society.
- b, There is need of local church unity.
- c, An organized, perpetual, campaign for local church efficiency.

Address: A chain is as strong as its weakest link.

- a, Why we have weak churches.
- b, What this church can do to assist mission stations at home.
- c, What this group of men proposes as a remedy for present inefficiency in the local church.

Discussion: Resolved, that organized efficiency under the direction of the local men's society and the pastor will do much toward betterment of local church conditions.

Resolved, that this church ought to be a religious educational institution, including all ages, from the cradle to the grave, and embrace the work of all societies under the council of education, and that this group of men will go about finding the best ways and means of putting this modern plan into effect.

Bibliography: The "Front Rank" Bible, published by the Christian Board of Publication contains some excellent material regarding the origin, growth and work of the Christian Church, invaluable in preparation for this program.

The American Home Missionary. The A. C. M. S., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Business in Christianity. The Board of Church Extension, Kansas City, Mo.

"180 things for Brotherhoods to do."

Published by this office.

III.—Business.

Roll-Call.

Minutes.

Reports of committees.

Unfinished business

New business.

New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members, silver offering, hymn, benediction.

PROGRAM FOR NOVEMBER.

No. 1.

OPIC—Christianizing American Civilization.

—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Hear your country's call," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 44.
2. Scripture reading, Isaiah 2:1-22.
3. Prayer, that we may know more of conditions of American civilization, and help Christianize it.
4. Quartette, "Onward Christian Soldiers," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 65.

—Cultural.

Address: America, not distinctly Christian.

- a, The number of Christians in cities, only 25 per cent of population.
- b, Drunkenness, rioting, fast living, pleasure, detracting.
- c, Absence of family altar—grace before meat.

Address: Social betterment the first step in Christianizing process.

- a, Church should create desire for better laws relating to conditions of living and occupation.
- b, Church should create desire for law enforcement—proper observance of Sunday as day of rest.

- c, Child and woman labor, tenements, social evils should be eradicated.

Address: How can a local church group of men begin agitation for America's Christianization?

- a, Agitation among church members, teachers and officers, especially voters.
- b, Inter-church agitation in community, with lectureships of unchristian conditions, local, state and nation.
- c, Coöperation in National leagues for Christian and social uplift.

Bibliography: Bliss' encyclopedia of social reform, pp. 205-224.

Social duties from Christian point of view, Henderson.

III.—Business.

Roll-Call.

Minutes.

Reports.

Unfinished business,

New business.

New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Silver offering.

Hymn, "God be with you until we meet again.

Benediction.

Say you saw it in "Christian Men"

Must Have Been Crowded

An Irishman walking through a graveyard saw a tombstone on which was inscribed, "Here lies a lawyer and an honest man." "Bejabers!" said Pat, "Oi wonder how they came to bury both iv them fellers in wan grave?"

Experience Unnecessary

The Author: "You can't appreciate it. You never wrote a book yourself."

The Other: "No, and I never laid an egg, but I'm a better judge of an omelet than any hen in the country!"—London Opinion.

A Fishy Tale

Two or three young men were exhibiting with great satisfaction the results of a day's fishing, whereupon this young woman remarked, very demurely, "Fish go in schools, do they not?" "I believe they do; but why do you ask?" "O, nothing, only I was just thinking that you must have broken up an infant class."—Washington Star.

Terrible Jar

"What's the matter with your wife? She's all broken up lately."

"She got a terrible jar."

"What has happened?"

"Why, she was assisting at a rummage sale, took off her new hat, and somebody sold it for thirty-five cents."—Washington Herald.

The Difference

F. Hopkinson Smith tells a story showing that Boston boys of the street are like all others. He overheard a conversation between two youngsters selling newspapers.

"Say, Harry, w'at's the best way to teach a girl how to swim?" asked the younger one.

"Dat's a cinch. First off you puts your left arm under her waist and you gently takes her left hand—"

"Come off! she's me sister."

"Aw, push her off de dock."

What Drives Newspaper Men Crazy

"Where do you get all of your ideas? Clip 'em out of the other papers?"

"Is it true that your wife writes all of your stuff?"

"Why don't you write a play?"

"Huh, you have a snap. All you got to do is to sit at a desk five or six hours a day."

"I saw that joke of yours nineteen years ago in Warner's Safe Cure almanac."

"My kid said the funniest thing the other day. You oughta use it."

"Why don't you roast the gas company once in a while?"

"How much do you get a week for working on a newspaper? I suppose you have lots of things given to you."

"Most all of your stuff's sent in, ain't it?"

—The Housekeeper.

Working His Feet

O. Henry, beloved by every editor in the country sometimes was the bane of their lives, but no one could harbor wrath against him. The humorist had promised to write a story for a big magazine, which failed to arrive. Finally the editor went to O. Henry's apartment and sent up a curt note: "If I don't have that story within twenty-four hours, I will come up and kick you down-stairs. I always keep my promises." O. Henry promptly sent back the note, "Dear Bill: If I did all my work with my feet, I'd keep my promises, too."—Christian Endeavor World.

Wanted to be There.

Tony came over from the old country and obtained employment in America as a section hand. Some time afterward he went to his foreman and said: "Boss, I like haf vacashun."

"Tony, you don't need a vacation," answered the boss.

"Yess, boss, I like haf vacashun," repeated Tony.

"What do you want with a vacation? If I give it to you Tony, you will go back to the old country, blow all your money, and then come back broke. You had better stay here."

"I like haf vacashun, boss," stolidly repeated Tony. "I'm going to get married and I'd kinder like to be there."

Hard-Earned Wages

An old Catholic church in Belgium decided to repair its properties, and employ an artist to touch up a large painting. Upon presenting his bill the committee in charge refused payment unless the details were specified, whereupon he presented the items as follows:

To correcting the Ten Commandments.....	$ 5.12
Embellishing Pontius Pilate and putting new ribbons on his bonnet.....	3.02
Putting new tail on Rooster of St. Peter's and mending his comb.....	2.20
Repluming and gilding left wing of Guardian angel.	5.18
Washing the Servant of the High Priest and putting carmine on his cheek.....	5.02
Renewing Heaven, adjusting the Stars and cleaning up the Moon.....	7.14
Touching up Purgatory and restoring lost souls	3.06
Brightening up the Flames of Hell, putting new tail on the Devil, mending his Left Hoof, and doing several odd jobs for the Damned.	7.17
Rebordering the Robes of Herod and adjusting his wig.	4.00
Taking the spots off the Son of Tobias.....	1.39
Cleaning Balaam's Ass and putting one shoe on him	1.70
Putting earrings in Sarah's ears.....	1.71
Putting a new stone in David's sling, enlarging the head of Goliath, and extending Saul's legs	6.13
Decorating Noah's Ark and putting a head on Shem.	4.31
Mending the shirt of the Prodigal Son and cleaning his Ear.	3.39
Total.	$60.45

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

LESSON 2—SEPTEMBER 8.

THE MISSION OF THE TWELVE.

TEXT—Matt. 9:35-10:15.

35 And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and healing all manner of disease and all manner of sickness. 36 But when he saw the multitudes. He was moved with compassion for them, because they were distressed and scattered, as sheep not having a shepherd. 37 Then saith he unto his disciples, the harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. 38 Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest.

1 And he called unto him his twelve disciples, and gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to heal all manner of disease and all manner of sickness.

2 Now the names of the twelve apostles are these: The first, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother; James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother; 3 Philip, and Bartholomew; Thomas, and Matthew the publican; James the son of Alphæus, and Thaddeus; 4 Simon the Cananæan, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and charged them, saying, Go not into any way of the Gentiles, and enter not into any city of the Samaritans; 6 but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7 And as ye go, teach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand. 8 Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out demons; freely ye have received, freely give. 9 Get you no gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses; 10 no wallet for your journey, neither two coats, nor shoes, nor staff; for the laborer is worthy of his food. 11 And into whatsoever city or village ye shall enter, search out who in it is worthy; and there abide till ye go forth. 12 And as ye enter into the house, salute it. 13 And if the house be worthy, let your peace come upon it: but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you. 14 And whosoever shall not receive you, nor hear your words, as ye go forth out of that house or that city, shake off the dust of your feet. 15 Verily I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for that city.

GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 10:40.

40 But to sit on my right hand or on my left hand is not mine to give; but is for them for whom it hath been prepared.

The ministry of Jesus has now reached its climax of popular interest. Everywhere the crowds throng Him. The demands upon His time, energy and compassion are exhausting. Messengers are coming from all parts of Galilee and beyond, urging their need of His presence. And while He goes "with tireless feet "about all the cities and villages," He can only visit a small number in person. It was because of this physical limitation of His personal ministry that He urged the necessity of His going away, in order that "the Comforter, which is the Holy Spirit, might come." But to meet immediate necessities He organized and gave direction and power to His chosen disciples; and sent them forth two by two that they might bear His message to the towns He was unable to visit. Later, in a larger campaign, He selected seventy of His most trusted followers and sent them out on a similar mission.

A Gospel of Compassion. The inspiration of Jesus' entire ministry was a burning desire to help discouraged, suffering humanity. "He was moved with compassion for them because they were distressed and scattered as sheep not having a shepherd." He so closely associated their sufferings with himself that later he declared "inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me." Our modern world has not outgrown the need of this kind of a gospel and of teachers and religious leaders who represent its spirit. Conditions may have changed, but human hearts are the same. There is the same sorrowing, sinning and suffering. Often the would-be leaders in the church are selfish and heartless, alienating those whom Christ came to save and tearing down that which Christ gave His life to help build. Let the church fulfill its ministry of shepherding, and the flock will return to the fold.

A Bountiful Harvest. Men are not always able to distinguish the indications of a bountiful harvest. Last spring hundreds of farmers in Illinois and Missouri plowed up their wheat fields as winter-killed, while their neighbors, with just as unpromising an outlook, waited until the reaping time and gathered in a bountiful harvest. Many a man has grown pessimistic as he has studied the thoughtless, degenerate masses that surge through the streets of our cities, or gather in aimless groups on the street corners of our villages. But looking upon the same throngs and groups, Jesus would say, "The harvest truly is plenteous. This is not a vast field of weeds, but of ripened grain." Here are uncounted multitudes waiting for the good news and ready to accept it, when it is brought to them in the spirit of the Master. Sometimes sin, sometimes misfortune and disappointment, sometimes affliction, have ripened hearts once godless and degenerate, for the gospel of divine love and compassion. The meagerness of the harvest today is not lack of whitening fields, but because the rank and file of the church has not gone into the harvesting business.

The Scarcity of Laborers. Our religious papers and college presidents are just now calling our attention to the dearth of men for the ministry. But that is not the most serious obstacle in the way of Christian triumph. It is the dearth of men and women, whose names encumber our church rolls and Bible school records, who are willing to take up some definite line of religious work and train themselves for effective service. When the heart of the church is warmed by devotion to duty and the members of the church are on fire with enthusiasm for the salvation of men, the preacher problem will be solved. What is needed is a few old-fashioned prayer-meetings in every church where the burden of prayer will be that the Lord of the harvest will send forth each of its members into the harvest field and set them to work helping the Lord answer our prayers.

The First Commission. To meet an emergency Jesus assigns to the twelve the important task of carrying his message to the towns and villages which he is unable to visit himself. They are crude, callow fellows, just Freshmen in the university of Christian learning, but they are the best to be had. The demands are imperative, so Jesus uses them, just as He can use the most unpromising member of the class or the most untalented member of His church today. But whatever was lacking in training or culture or talent was made up by the Master Himself, for "He gave them authority over unclean spirits to cast them out and to heal all manner of disease." Education, culture, refinement are good, but a heart through which the love of Christ is being revealed to men is a more potent force in extending the Kingdom. This first commission differed somewhat from the great commission, given as He was about to leave the world. Their field now is narrow and limited. "Go not into the way of the Gentiles and enter not into any city of the Samaritans. Later they were commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. Now they are to announce the coming of the Kingdom, later the Kingdom established, they are to bring men under its sway. As yet they are unprepared for the larger task, so Jesus sends them out on missions of mercy among "the lost sheep of the house of Israel."

God's Care of His Workmen. When God puts a difficult task on a man, He always takes care of that man. The disciples were now to go forth in a campaign of service that was to prove God's care. They were to go as sheep in the midst of wolves. They were to go without provision for their daily wants. They were to go without precaution against emergency. They were simply to go as faithful servants, doing each day the task at hand. They are working for God and the workman is worthy of his food; and the one whom they served would see that they got it. The fare might be plain, the way might be difficult, they were to work hard, but they should not want. Paul tested God's care throughout his marvelous ministry, and was provided for. Jacob Kenoly, whose untimely death in Liberia we lament, went as the disciples of old "without staff or scrip or money" and was fed and clothed and cared for in a no less providential way than they. Let us be sure we are doing God's work and then banish all anxiety about other things.

Arrow Points. What Jesus did in His marvelous way could be done in a more marvelous way today if all the members of all the churches would go in His spirit. V. 35. * * * What an ingathering there would be if we all took up the task of hunting Jesus' lost sheep. V. 36. * * * It is never safe to pray for laborers in God's harvest field unless you have your sleeves rolled up, ready to go yourself; for if your prayer is sincere, he will choose ou the very first one. V. 38. * * * God ts no bounds to the field of your service day. None so high and none so low, none near and none so far, but you may have part the work of their redemption. V. 5. * * *

we were to give as freely as we have received, what a tide of blessing would flow through the desert places of our world. V. 8.

* * * If there was more of the old-time plain, cordial hospitality, there would be more homes where the peace of God would manifest itself. V. 13.

LESSON 3—SEPTEMBER 15.

JUDGMENT AND MERCY.

TEXT—Matt. 11:20-30.

20 Then began he to upbraid the cities herein most of his mighty works were done, cause they repented not. 21 Woe unto thee, Corazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon which were done in you, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes.
But I say unto you, it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon in the day of judgment, than for you. 23 And thou, Caper-naum, shalt thou be exalted unto heaven? thou shalt go down unto Hades: for if the mighty works had been done in Sodom which were done in thee, it would have remained until this day. 24 But I say unto you that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee.
25 At that season Jesus answered and said, Thank Thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that Thou didst hide these things from the wise and understanding, and didst reveal them unto babes: 26 yea, Father, for so it was all-pleasing in Thy sight. 27 All things have been delivered unto me of my Father: and no one knoweth the Son, save the Father; neither can any know the Father, save the Son, and whomsoever the Son willeth to reveal him. 28 Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. 29
Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me;
for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. 30 For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 11:28.

28 Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.

God's blessings are calls to repentance. The greater the privileges of any community, the greater the reasons that its people become God-fearing. But how often prosperity and special privilege lead to religious indifference and luxurious folly. Men forget God when the sea is calm and are only recalled to their need of him when it is lashed into fury by the storm.
Men forget their obligations to the church when the flood-gates of prosperity are opened wide, and only learn their mistake when panic at ruin confront them. What would not Corazin and Bethsaida and Capernaum have done a generation later, when the bezom of destruction was sweeping them into hopelessness, to have had Jesus with them. So many men, living in the glow light of Christian privilege, turns a deaf ear to the call of God, only to realize his mistake when it is too late.

The Day of Opportunity. To no people ever came a richer blessing than those little cities that clustered around the sea of Gallilee
"wherein most of His mighty works were done." There were no sick but might have had the privilege of healing, no blind but might have gone seeing, no sorrowing but might have found comfort. For we are told that He "healed all who were brought to Him."
He had compassion upon every shepherdless soul. He was ready to help all who were in need. But from the tone of Jesus' message in the lesson of today, we are led to infer that there was still distress and sickness and blindness and sorrow. Through lack of faith, the sick were unhealed, the demoniacs unreleased, the broken-hearted un comforted. Their condemnation was that light had shined, but, loving darkness better than light, they had closed their eyes. Great was their privilege and great their sin in rejecting opportunity.
But how about the men and women of your city, who in the light of these twenty Christian centuries and in the enjoyment of the fruits of Christian civilization, calling them to acknowledge and follow Christ, go on their way of irreligion as though He had never made possible the blessings they enjoy? Ours is the day of greater opportunity and greater responsibility.

Sinning Against the Light. "If the mighty works had been done in Sodom which were done in thee, it would have remained unto this day." In the blackness of the past, Sodom is the one city that has become the synonym of all that was vile and loathsome in city life. Living in luxurious indulgence, with only the weak protest of a materialized Lot to warn it, even Sodom, with such an example and message as that of Jesus, would have changed her course and escaped her doom. The amount of light given and rejected is the measure of a nation's or individual's guilt.
What a responsibility is ours as a nation,
founded by a god-fearing, church-loving people, built upon the principle that righteousness exalteth a nation, granting to every man the largest liberty in his service of God and protecting him in that privilege, enjoying the richest material and intellectual blessings that ever came to any people—if we fail to live up to the light, transcending even that of Caper-naum and Bethsaida, what shall be our fate?
And what of the men and women into whose lives have been poured the flood-light of religious opportunity through Christian ancestry and church privilege and Bible school instruction, but who still live on in wilful disobedience or thoughtless indifference to the claims of Christ? In the light of the desolation that has come to the world's Chorazins and Bethsaldas and Capernaums, may we not be awakened to a better use of our privileges than they?

Truth Hidden and Revealed. Knowledge is the result of attitude. The school has little for the boy who knows it all, or thinks he does. Its privileges are for the ignorant who want to know. Prejudice also closes the door of knowledge and rears an insurmountable barrier in the path of truth. This is peculiarly true of religious truth. Jesus' teaching in large measure failed to impress those who had fixed religious views, like the Scribes and Pharisees, but found ready and hearty acceptance among the unschooled multitude. Here was virgin soil, teachable minds who were anxious to learn of God and duty. Hence his thanks that the Father "didst hide these things from the wise and understanding and didst reveal them unto babes." The humble, child-like spirit is still the teachable spirit, and to such the Father is still ready to reveal Himself through Christ, who alone knoweth the Father and is able to reveal Him to our longing hearts.

Unrest and Its Remedy. No utterance of Jesus strikes a more universal chord than this call to rest. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." The world was weary then, and it is weary still. There are the overburdened and the careworn everywhere. Weary toilers and weary seekers. No word better characterizes our age than restlessness. There is physical restlessness, the restless effort for gain, from the humblest wage-earner to the millionaire, all driven by a lash that forbids rest. There is intellectual restlessness, seeking for some new truth or some new cult, but failing to find anchorage. Then there is religious restlessness, those whose loftiest aspirations have met with disappointment and whose fruitless search has plunged them into despair. It was to such a weary, restless world that Jesus came with his invitation and promise, "Come and I will give you rest." But if we pause here we miss the goal sought. "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me." Here are the two essential elements, "come" and "take." First, come to Jesus and learn of Him and then take up one end of the yoke and have Him share with you the burden of your daily task. His rest is rest in service. It is having Jesus as a yoke-fellow in the long, hard pull up the hill of life. It is then that we learn that

"Rest is not quitting
The busy career,
Rest is the fitting
Of self to its sphere."

Thus working out the great problem of living in harmony with God and in coöperation with Jesus, the soul finds rest and happiness.

Arrow Points. If Jesus were to speak to your mind as freely about your community as He did about the cities of Galilee, what would be your sentence? V. 20. * * * If Chorazin, Bethsaida and Capernaum had enjoyed the privileges of the ripe product of twenty centuries of Christian history, would they have been as wicked and impenitent as our modern American cities? V. 21. * * * If impenitent cities are doomed, what of the impenitent man or woman who in the light of this age rejects the claims of Christ? V. 23. * * * It does not require the brain or training of a theologian to understand and enjoy the simple, helpful teachings of Jesus, but it does demand a humble, child-like mind and purpose. V. 24. * * * No word so sweet to our weary, over-worked world as rest, and no task so restful as that which we tread with Jesus as a yoke-fellow. V. 28.

LESSON 4—SEPTEMBER 22.

FEEDING THE FIVE THOUSAND.

TEXT—Mark 6:30-44.

30 And the apostles gather themselves together unto Jesus; and they told him all things, whatsoever they had done, and whatsoever they had taught. 31 And he saith unto them, Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place, and rest a while. For there were many coming and going, and they had no leisure so much as to eat. 32 And they went away in the boat to a desert place apart. 33 And the people saw them going, and many knew them, and they ran together there on foot from all the cities, and outwent them. 34 And he came forth and saw a great multitude, and he had compassion on them, because they were as sheep not having a shepherd: and he began to teach them many things. 35 And when the day was now far spent, his disciples came unto him, and said, The place is desert and the day is now far spent; 36 send them away, that they may go into the country and villages round about, and buy themselves some what to eat. 37 But he answered and said unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they said unto him, Shall we go and buy two hundred shillings' worth of bread and give them to eat? 38 And he saith unto them, How many loaves have ye? go and see. And when they knew they say, Five, and two fishes. 39 And he commanded them that all should sit down by companies upon the green grass. 40 And they sat down in ranks, by hundreds, and by fifties. 41 And he took the five loaves and the two fishes, and looking up to heaven, he blessed and brake the loaves; and he gave to the disciples to set before them; and the two loaves divided he among them all. 42 And they ate, and were filled. 43 And they took up broken pieces, twelve basketfuls, and also of the fishes. 44 And they that ate the loaves were five thousand men.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jno. 6:35.

5 Jesus said unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.

The importance of this lesson may be gathered from the fact that it is the only miracle recorded by all four of the gospels. The reason for this is not difficult to discover. First, the miracle of the loaves, while requiring no greater exhibition of the supernatural than other miracles, touched in a personal and helpful way so many lives. In His miracles of healing a few were helped, the multitude were wondering spectators. Here they were to the number of 5,000, happy participants in the fruit of His creative power. Then the miracle works a crisis in the life of Christ. He has reached the full tide of His popularity. In the wild outburst of popular favor, an attempt is made to force upon Him their materialized idea of the Messiahship, and to exalt Him as their leader in casting off the Roman yoke. His refusal to yield to this demand, along with His earlier discourse upon the Bread of Life alienated a large part of His following and gave encouragement to those who led the growing opposition, which ended in a demand for His crucifixion.

Christ's Concern for His Servants. The disciples who had been sent forth two by two through the villages of Galilee had returned from their task footsore and weary. It was with enthusiasm that they gathered about the teacher to report the results of their mission. While rejoicing together over the results of their labor, news was brought that John the Baptist had been murdered. These two circumstances, the weariness of the disciples and the death of John, caused Jesus to seek a retreat for himself and disciples in an uninhabited part of the coast of Galilee. He did not care to expose them to the hate of the murderous Herod, and after the strenuous work of the campaign of teaching and healing, He sought for them a season of rest. "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest a while." Jesus is just as much concerned about His servants today. The overworked pastor, the busy Sunday-school teacher, the faithful helper in every department of His service—all are the objects of His concern. To rest is just as religious as to work, if we have done faithful work. A vacation may be as essential to the continued triumph of the kingdom as a campaign. A clear brain, a strong body, a fresh enthusiasm, a renewed courage, and the elements which contribute to effective work, and for ordinary mortals these can be maintained only by religiously observed rest periods.

The Appeal of the Shepherdless. "He had compassion on them because they were as sheep not having a shepherd." How frequently this note repeats itself in the record of Jesus' ministry. Nothing touched His heart and appealed to compassion like a man or a group of men whom nobody cared for. His parable of a lost sheep was a faithful expression of His concern for lost men. How helpless and hopeless this world has always been without His shepherding care. In large part it is just as helpless and hopeless today because in ignorance of His willingness and power to help. Here are great masses of earth's toilers led by modern charlatanism, as sheep without a shepherd, wounded by wolves of selfishness, and torn and bleeding. What Jesus' attitude is toward these we are not left to guess. He is moved with compassion and as His servants, ours is to follow in fields of labor where His compassionate word would lead. When we catch His spirit, every lost man will be looked upon as a personal appeal to bring Him under the care of the Good Shepherd.

Hungering Multitudes. Jesus recognized two hungers, soul hunger and physical hunger. His great mission was to bring to men the bread of life, but He was not unmindful of temporal necessities. While He taught He also healed and fed. Knowing the temptation that comes to men in hunger, He was not willing to send them away unfed. Hunger, common physical hunger, is still in the world. In New York it is said sixty thousand children go to bed hungry every night. The bread-line is a common spectacle in our cities during the trying months of winter. "'Taint gospel we want, but grub," was the reply of a hungry band of unemployed men as the untactful city missionary sought to urge upon them the claims of religion. If we would make the church the power it ought to be with the masses, we must seek to improve their physical condition.

Using What We Have. "How many loaves have you?" The disciples made the mistake that many are making today. Conscious of the meagerness of their supply, they would have sent the crowd away hungry. The only provision in sight, and that the generously offered lunch of a small boy, was "five barley cakes and two small fishes." It was out of this small store, brought to Jesus, consecrated in prayer, divided among the disciples, given to the hungering multitude, that all were fed. God has always been able to use man's humblest instruments in His marvelous works of grace. He used Moses with his shepherd's staff to deliver his people from one of the mightiest military powers of the ancient world. With the sling of a shepherd boy he delivered Israel from Philistine bondage. Mary with her alabaster box and Dorcas with her needle, and the widow with her two mites, all were used of God and found their way through these humble means to enduring blessedness. Don't be discouraged by lack of time, or talent, or money, from joining the forces that are seeking to bring to the world the Bread of Life. He can use what you have, and having fed His hungering sheep, return you many fold the store surrendered to Him.

A Lesson in Divine Economy. "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost." (Jno. 6:12.) No lesson more needed today than that taught by "the twelve baskets full of fragments." We are only beginning to learn the sinfulness of wastefulness. Great industries are made to prosper today by the elimination of waste. A system of scientific management is being adapted by which the results of labor are multiplied and the expense of production reduced. It is based on the principle of Jesus at the feast, gathering up fragments of wasted time, energy and effort and making them effective. The same principle might be applied to church management. There is waste through idleness of men and women who profess to be servants, waste through the parallel operations of denomina-tionalism, waste through the multiplication of societies that overlap and crowd each other. Gather up the fragments and the church would have at command the means of evangelizing the world in the next decade.

Arrow Points. I am wondering what kind of a report some members of this class would be able to make, if asked to give to Jesus an account of the things done and taught since the first of January. V. 30. * * * Work and play both have place in the divine plan of human development, but play as the well-earned respite from work. V. 31. * * * If you are a lover of ease and leisure, do not make the mistake of showing interest in the earth's lonely, afflicted children, for they are sure to interrupt the rest of a kind, generous-hearted man. V. 33. * * * When Christ gives you a task to perform, be sure He will equip it for you, if you bring what you have to Him. V. 37.

LESSON 5—SEPTEMBER 29.

REVIEW.

The lessons of this quarter have covered a period of about six months, in some respects the most interesting and fruitful of Jesus' earthly ministry. He is received with popular accord. Multitudes throng Him. His praise is on every lip. His power is everywhere manifest. Six of His most marvelous works occur within this period, the healing of the deaf and dumb demoniac (Lesson 1), stilling the storm on the lake and restoring the Gadarene demoniac (Lesson 6), raising Jairus' daughter and curing the woman who touched His garment (Lesson 7), and feeding the five thousand (Lesson 12). It was the period, too, in which He taught some of His beautiful lessons, the parable-speaking period. Thus teaching and healing and helping, He found Himself the center of a throng whom He characterized as "sheep without a shepherd," and who in the end would have made Him their king, had He consented.

Parables of the Kingdom. There were eight of them, linked together like so many gems in a chain of pearl. Leaving the direct method of address with which His ministry began, He now resorts to a figure that half concealed, half revealed the truth He sought to present. In so doing He awakened the interest of those who were anxious, honest truth-seekers and escaped the censure of those dull or prejudiced hearts who saw in them only a commonplace narrative of familiar incident. After these two thousand years of Christian history, how simple and plain and true to fact the parables are seen to be. The sower, the seed and the soil, the enemy and the tares, the law of growth and the harvest, all so true to nature, and equally true in the experiences and hindrance through which the kingdom has grown from a mere handful of believers in that first century to the world-regenerating force of today. Its worth is well presented by the hidden treasure and the pearl of great price. Multitudes there are today, who place it above every earthly interest and who have, at great sacrifice, found their way into the enjoyment of its blessing.

Opposing Forces. Running through this period so full of fruitfulness and blessing was a discordant note, gathering volume with each passing month until it drowned everything in its cries of "let him be crucified." At the very beginning of the quarter this voice was heard accusing Jesus of demoniacal possession. It found expression among the commercialized Gadarenes in a request that He go out of the country. In Nazareth, His childhood home, it took form in forcible rejection and in the murder of John the Baptist who foredoomed the fate of Jesus. What Jesus endured while pouring out His life in sympathy and helpfulness in these great days of His ministry has been shared by an army of Christian heroes, whose motives have been misunderstood, whose path of service has been beset by hounding enemies, and the results of whose ministry have been neutralized by evil men.

Transcending Power. If one miracle can be said to be greater than another, Jesus touched the summit of His miraculous power within the period of this quarter's lessons. Diseases in all forms He had healed before but it remained for Him to measure His power against the finished work of disease. So into death's chamber He goes to prove Himself conqueror even there. At His gentle summons death's victim is restored to life as easily as the mother's call awakens the sleeping child. But nature, the mighty forces of nature, can He master and chain them? Again at His command the storm-tossed Galilee, with its threatening waves, filling with terror His disciples, becomes calm. The winds and the obey His will. But more marvelous still His creative power. They had yet to that "by him were all things created that in heaven and that are in earth, visible and invisible." But now before their wonder-eyes took place that strange miracle of death and they saw the few loaves and fishes become food for thousands. Nothing but His victory over the grave ever transcended the marvelous achievements of this Galilean country, now drawing to a close.

Key Points. Unless you are willing to be misunderstood, misrepresented and even persecuted, do not undertake to imitate the example of Jesus in His ministry of helpfulness. Lesson 1. * * * If only we would cultivate the field of the human heart by unselfish service and sowing, there would be no good ground and bountiful harvests in neglected places. Lesson 2. * * * Impatience has spoiled many a child's flower garden and many a Christian worker. It takes time to grow either a garden or a character of beauty and fruitfulness. Lesson 3. * * * Careful what you pull up in the growing field. What you mistake for tares may produce the finest of the wheat. Lesson 4. * * * If you are genuine in your discipleship, it has brought you treasure, that neither wealth nor fame can buy. Lesson 5. * * * Every voyage will encounter storms, but with Jesus in the prow of the vessel, the safe entrance into the harbor is assured. Lesson 6. * * * Jesus in the chamber of death changes it into a passageway of this earthly life of toil and sorrow into one radiant with the eternal morning of God. Lesson 7. * * * In rejecting his illustrious Son, Nazareth closed her door of opportunity, as many another city has done in rejecting the Gospel. Lesson 8. * * * The body of the preacher of righteousness may sleep in a martyr's grave, but his soul goes marching on. Lesson 9. * * * It is a privilege to be a disciple, but a richer blessing to be an apostle, sent of God on errands of mercy. Lesson 10. * * * In the day of judgment what will be the doom of some of our American cities, who have lived in the glow light of Twentieth century blessings? Lesson 11. * * * If we were to bring to Jesus the loaves and fishes of personal influence and let Him use them, He would take the world in this generation. Lesson 12.

LESSON 1—OCTOBER 6.

JESUS WALKING ON THE SEA.

TEXT—Mark 6:45-56.

GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 14:27.

27 But straightway Jesus spake unto them, saying, Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid.

45 And straightway he constrained his disciples to enter into the boat, and to go before him unto the other side of Bethsaida, while himself sendeth the multitude away. 46 And after he had taken leave of them, he departed into the mountain to pray. 47 And even as it began to come, the boat was in the midst of the sea, and he alone on the land. 48 And seeing them distressed in rowing, for the wind was contrary unto them, about the fourth watch of the night he cometh unto them, walking on the sea; and he would have passed by them: 49 but they, when they saw him walking on the sea, supposed that it was a ghost, and cried out; 50 for they all saw him and were troubled. But he straightway spake with them, and saith unto them, Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid. 51 And he went up unto them into the boat, and the storm ceased; and they were sore amazed in themselves; 52 for they understood not concerning the loaves, but their heart was hard-

As we have already seen, the miraculous feeding of the five thousand brought on a crisis in the ministry of Jesus. John tells us that these recipients of His bountiful provision were disposed "to take him by force and make him king." As in the case of every exhibition of mob-frenzy, something must be done quickly. With an authority that He ever possessed in His relationship with men, He sent the multitude away and then with difficulty induced the disciples to take the boat and return to Bethsaida, while He remained to fight out His battle alone with God. Only those who have been sorely tempted and who through His help have resisted the temptation, can understand the agony of this tragic night.

53 And when they had crossed over, they came to the land unto Gennesaret, and moored to the shore. 54 And when they were come ashore, straightway the people knew him, and ran round about that whole region, and began to carry about on their beds those who were sick, where they heard he was. 56 Wheresoever he entered, into villages, or cities, or into the country, they laid the sick in the market-places, and besought him that he might touch if it were but the hem of his garment; and as many as touched were made whole.

A Night of Prayer. "He departed into the mountain to prayer." For the moment the old temptation, the temptation of the wilderness, was upon Him again. Shall He yield to the people's idea of the Messiahship and the easy path of popular favor, or pursue to the bitter end the thorny road to Calvary? The first reef was passed when He sent the multitude away, but He must now fight it out with Himself, which He does in solitude and prayer. It was a struggle lasting well through the night. He had sent His disciples away in the early evening and it was in the fourth watch of the night, or from 3 to 6 o'clock in the morning, when He came down from this prayer-retreat to the assistance of His terror-stricken company. A night in prayer! Have you ever tried the prayer-cure for a sleepless night? Business has gone wrong, barriers have blocked the way, the temptation to dishonor is battering down the door of conviction, and sleep has departed. Why not give the night to prayer, instead of worry and doubt? "More things are wrought by prayer than e'er man dreamed of."

The Contrary Winds. The sea has not changed its moods these thousands of years. Our means of meeting and mastering them have been improved. But the sea is the same, with its angry waves and its contrary winds. Jesus directed His disciples to row over to Bethsaida, only a short distance across the sea, but in the early morning watch, after a hard, perilous night, they were only about three miles away. A contrary wind blowing strongly from the northeast had driven them far into the sea. But in that night of peril there was an unrecognized safeguard. "He saw them toiling in rowing." Distress there might be because of their ignorance, but no disaster while His eye was upon them. Life's voyage with most of us is not so different from that of the disciples on that perilous night. In every life at times there are contrary winds. They beat in our faces as we make the pull of our lives toward some Bethsaida of promise. They drive us back when we have almost reached some coveted harbor. They make hard rowing necessary where we expected easy sailing. How suddenly and unexpectedly and repeatedly they rise against us. There are the contrary winds of sickness and pain, of treacherous friends, of relentless enemies, of hard times, of materializing prosperity, of business failure, and a hundred others. But He who "saw them distressed in rowing" is not unmindful of His storm-tossed followers today.

The Cheer of His Presence. In the extremity of their danger, when these stout-hearted fishermen were being mastered by fear, Jesus came to them. But in the dimness of the early dawn, His coming, at first, only added to their terror. Had He been with them in the boat, they would not have doubted His power over the waves. But He came "walking upon the sea." In a new way He manifested His supernatural power over nature. As they saw Him they were troubled. Matthew says "they cried out for fear." It was then that He revealed Himself to them as the friend most needed in the hour of distress. "Be of good cheer: it is I; be not afraid." How Jesus' presence changed the attitude of that company of storm-tossed men. All fear is gone. Confidence is restored. The storm ceases to beat in fury against them. Jesus tells us that "immediately the ship was at land whither they went." Jesus, often unrecognized in the midst of life's storms, will bring the cheer of His presence today. His promise was, "Lo, I am with you always, unto the end of the world." If that promise means anything it means that we may have His companionship in loneliness, His sympathy in sorrow, His help in trouble, His "be of good cheer" always. Is your Christ a living Christ or a dead Christ? If living, trust Him and find comfort.

The Great Physician. Jesus met the contrary winds of temptation by prayer. He met the contrary wind of Galilee that buffeted His disciples by His presence and power. He meets the contrary winds of disease in the same masterful way. "As many as touched Him were made whole." It was the old story of faith and friendship. Jesus healed all who were brought to Him. Only those who were brought by friendly hands to the great physician were healed. Unbelief doubtless closed many a door. Indifference left many to perish with disease though Jesus was passing through the village and might have cured them. The great physician is still here with power to save. That more are not made partial beneficiaries of His saving grace is due to the indifference and neglect of those who are His professing followers. If only those who know Him would "run through the whole region round about" all our churches, a great world-wide revival would be inaugurated.

Arrow Points. It would be worth while to try the prayer-cure on besetting sins—ungovernable temper, the mean disposition, unruly tongue, the hindering habits, etc. V. 41. * * * Contrary winds after all may reveal to us some latent power within ourselves, the source of Divine help near at hand. V. 42. * * * Many a tempest-tossed soul would find calm and safety if they were only to take Jesus on board. V. 51. * * * The salvation of the world today awaits the hearty united coöperation of all God's people in bringing lost men and women to Jesus for healing. V. 55. * * * It is not the enormity of sin that closes the door of mercy to the sinner, but the failure to get in touch with the cleansing. V. 56.

LESSON 2—OCTOBER 13.

CLEAN AND UNCLEAN.

TEXT—Mark 7:1-13.

1 And there are gathered together unto him the Pharisees, and certain of the scribes, who had come from Jerusalem, 2 and had seen that some of his disciples ate their bread with defiled, that is, unwashed, hands. 3 (For the

Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands diligently, eat not, holding to the tradition of the elders; 4 and when they come from the market place, except they bathe themselves, they eat not; and many other things are, which they have received to hold, things of cups, and pots, and brazen vessels. 5 And the Pharisees and the scribes say unto him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat their bread with defiled hands? 6 And he said unto them, Well did Isaiah prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written, This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. But in vain do they worship me, teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men.

But ye leave the commandment of God, and fasten the tradition of men. 9 And he said unto them, Full well do ye reject the commandment of God, that ye may keep your tradition. 10 For Moses said, Honor thy father and thy mother; and, He that speaketh of father or mother, let him die the death: but ye say, If a man shall say to his father or his mother, That wherewith thou mightest have been profited by me is Corban, that is to say, Given to God; 12 ye no longer suffer him to do ought for his father or his mother; making void the word of God by your tradition, which ye have delivered: and many such things ye do.

GOLDEN TEXT—Rom. 14-7.

For none of us liveth to himself, and no one dieth to himself.

While the multitude were thronging Jesus to the blessings they might receive, another class followed Him that they might injure His cause and destroy His influence over the people. They were "the Pharisees and certain of the scribes which had come from Jerusalem." Their motives are easily discovered. They were losing prestige. Their sway over the ignorant rabble was being broken. The crowd followed Jesus. Something must be done to check the popular career of the Galilean teacher or their influence and their occupation would be gone. So they resort to deceit and rivalry. They find fault with His disciples. They criticise the company He keeps. They perplex Him with misleading questions. They try to draw from Him self-condemning utterances. But as in every clash between the genuine and the spurious, Jesus puts them to rout.

The Fault Finders. When men set out to find fault they usually succeed. These men in Jerusalem were following Jesus to see what fault they could find in Him. They watched Him closely from day to day. They tried to find a single law of God which He had broken. His reverence for the Word of God was beyond dispute. It was a hard task which they had set for themselves. But they succeeded in the end in finding what they wanted. "They found fault." There has been a numerous progeny. The fault-finder sits in the Bible class. He occupies a prominent seat in the pew. He gets himself appointed on important committees and elected to membership on church boards. His chief business is to find fault with the way things are done. He finds fault with the choir and the preacher, with the people who are doing things, and the people who, like himself, are doing nothing but grumble. Wrongs there are to be righted, imperfections to be corrected, crooked paths to be straightened, but it is never Mr. Fault-finder who undertakes the task of putting things to rights. He is too busy with his chosen profession.

Ceremonial Defilement. One day these fault-finders from Jerusalem found what they wanted. The disciples of Jesus neglected the customary ceremonial washings before and after meals. "They saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with unwashed, hands." These disciples had not neglected to observe the laws of cleanliness and health. Nor had they omitted anything commanded by the law of Moses. What they neglected to do was punctiliously to observe the ceremonial washings which had been handed down by tradition from past generations. It was a very burdensome, meaningless ceremony, without the authority of either reason or the Word of God. Hence the severe rebuke uttered by Jesus in reply to the Pharisaical fault-finders.

Tradition Versus the Word of God. "Teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men." The failure to distinguish between the Word of God and traditional doctrine has always been a barrier in the way of progress of truth. Before we criticise these moss-backed Pharisees too freely, let us be sure that we are not in their company. There is danger of making that fine phrase, "Where the Scriptures speak we speak," mean "where the pioneer fathers speak we speak." It is better far that we use the privilege they claimed for themselves, and brushing aside any modern accruing tradition, go back to the Word of God itself. So long as men come to the Bible with a free and untrammelled mind that they are not going to stray far afield from the Shepherd's fold.

Real Hypocrites. It is the common method of the fault-finder outside the church to apply the term hypocrite to the imperfect examples of discipleship inside the church. The term in most instances is misapplied. It is not human weakness that Jesus denounces as hypocrisy, but religious dishonesty. The hypocrite was an actor, "one who is playing a part." They were thus described by the prophet Isaiah: "This people honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." Religion was a mere cloak, covering up their righteousness. It consisted in form without spirit, in ceremony without love, in profession without fruit. The hypocrite today is the man who, without love for God or humanity, lives a mean, selfish life, under the title and form of religion.

Trifling With the Word. As a concrete example, Jesus presents their deceitful evasion of filial obligation. The law of Moses placed among the highest duties the respectful care of parents. The requirement was very explicit and its violation involved the severest punishment. "He that speaketh evil of father or mother, let him die the death." To escape the responsibility and at the same time the penalty, a skilful device was contrived. Under the cloak of a religious gift, he was absolved from the obligation of supporting his parents or caring for them in old age. Thus religion was made an excuse for violating one of the most positive commands of God. God's laws are often imperiled today upon just as trifling pretexts. The man who makes his profession with mental reservation, or who misquotes the Word to sustain a doctrinal attitude, or who wrests the Scriptures to the defense of an unrighteous course, is trifling with the Word of God and putting himself in the company of those whom Jesus denounced as hypocrites.

Arrow Points. Let the church revive and begin in earnest the work of winning men to Christ and all the Pharisees and scribes of the community will begin to find fault. V. 1. * * * A hearty appetite and good wholesome meal are what most men want, and not a lot of meaningless table etiquette and empty dishes. V. 3. * * * It is not the kind of clothes a man wears that determines his claim to the title of gentleman, but the kind of heart that he carries inside. V. 4. * * * Many a man could prove an alibi if accused of attending church, for while there in body his mind is far away on business or pleasure. V. 6.

LESSON 3—OCTOBER 20.

MISSION TO THE GENTILES.

TEXT—Mark 7:24-30; Matt. 8:5-13.

24 And from thence he arose, and went away into the borders of Tyre and Sidon. And he entered into a house, and would have no man know it; and he could not be hid. 25 But straightway a woman, whose little daughter had an unclean spirit, having heard of him, came and fell down at his feet. 26 Now the woman was a Greek, a Syrophœnician by race. And she besought him that he would cast forth the demon out of her daughter. 27 And he said unto her, Let the children first be filled: for it is not meet to take the children's bread and cast it to the dogs. 28 But she answered and saith unto him, Yea, Lord; even the dogs under the table eat of the children's crumbs. 29 And he said unto her, For this saying go thy way; the demon is gone out of thy daughter. 30 And she went away unto her house, and found the child laid upon the bed, and the demon gone out.

5 And when he was entered into Capernaum, there came unto him a centurion, beseeching him, 6 and saying, Lord, my servant lieth in the house sick of the palsy, grievously tormented. 7 And he saith unto him, I will come and heal him. 8 And the centurion answered and said, Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed. 9 For I also am a man under authority, having under myself soldiers: and I say to this one, Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my servant, Do this, and he doeth it. 10 And when Jesus heard it, he marvelled, and said to them that followed, Verily I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel. 11 And I say unto you, that many shall come from the east and the west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven: 12 but the sons of the kingdom shall be cast forth into the outer darkness: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. 13 And Jesus said unto the centurion, Go thy way; as thou hast believed, so be it done unto thee. And the servant was healed in that hour.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jno. 6:37.

37 All that which the Father giveth me shall come unto me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out.

The earthly ministry of Jesus was limited to a very small territory. Only once did He cross over the boundary of His native country. That instance is recorded in this lesson. His sojourn in a foreign land was brief but significant. His motive, while not specifically stated, was perhaps to find the quiet and rest now denied Him at home, because of His widespread fame. In this excursion abroad He "would have no man know it, but He could not be hid." He was a demonstration of the truth of Emerson's famous statement, "If a man preach a better sermon, write a better book, or build a better mousetrap than his neighbor, though he hide himself in the wilderness, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

The First Foreign Missionary. It seems strange that professed believers in the Gospel should be unresponsive to the appeal from pagan lands, or look upon the missionary as a modern innovation. With all due credit to Morrison and Carey and Judson, the first and greatest of the missionary heroes was Jesus. As He "went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon" He was on distinctively pagan soil. But passing by this brief excursion beyond the boundaries of Palestine, He was really a foreign missionary from the moment He set foot on this sphere. His work was to win an alien race from their idols and errors to the service of His Father. To this end He stepped from the throne of God and "made Himself of no reputation and took upon Him the form of a servant and was made in the likeness of men." His earthly ministry was that of a foreigner to our shores and the result has in the implanting of a spirit of love and service that is slowly, but surely, transforming the race.

The Cry of Heathen Womanhood. The incident of the Syrophenician woman is not touching, but prophetic. In her appeal is voiced the cry of untold millions in pagan lands today. It is the cry of womanhood for her rightful place. It is the unselfish cry of womanhood for the protection of her children against demons of evil. "She besought him that he would cast forth the devil out of her daughter." In that appeal is voiced the cry of the daughters of China "where the women drudges of the household, where the feet of the ladies have been crushed and crippled to make them small and give them social standing, where hundreds are so ill-treated that they commit suicide and thousands are sold into slavery every year." It is the cry of the women of India—"25,000,000 are widows and of these 200,000 are child widows, condemned to curses and cruelty at the hands of whom they meet, because of no sin of their own; millions more are shut up in zenanas, with no liberty and opportunity even to read or write." Is it not significant that the first rendered by Jesus, to one beyond the borders of His own country, was a pagan woman and the first convert to His religion on European soil was a woman?

Faith Tested and Rewarded. To understand the language and attitude of Jesus in His treatment of this distressed woman we need to combine the accounts by Matthew and Mark. There seems to be a note of harshness and bigotry in Jesus' words, as we note, at first, His silence and later His rebuke in response to her impetuous appeals. Only as we read the warm words of praise with which the incident closes, "Oh, woman, great is thy faith," do we discover the kindness of the Master's purpose in withholding for a time the blessing sought. It was to call out that which His discerning eye had discovered in the heathen woman's heart, a faith that was unshaken by doubt and that would brook no discouragement. For such faith Jesus always has a blessing. To this woman came more than she sought. Not only was her daughter healed, and her home transformed, but she herself had been tested, instructed and commended. Henceforth new ideals, new hopes, new fields of usefulness were hers.

The Heathen at Home. Jesus did not need to go beyond the borders of His own country to find pagan soil ready for the reception of His gracious words. Pagans were living in His own city under the shadow of the synagogue where He often worshiped. There were foreign merchants with their wares, foreign rulers with their retainers, foreign captains with their companies of men. Often these presented the richest soil for the sowing of truth, which only racial and religious prejudice hindered. Of such was the centurion whose distress brought him to Jesus, and whose consciousness of his own unworthiness and of Jesus' marvelous power led him to say, "Lord, I am not worthy that thou shouldst come under my roof, but only say the word and my servant shall be healed." Here was a broad-minded man, generous and kindly, whose religious longing led him to build a synagogue for the hated Jew, like Cornelius, seeking the light. This centurion is an example of the opportunity within the reach of every Bible, in those who have come to our shores and are to be found in all our towns and cities. One million of them landed last year. Our opportunity is to help them to receive and enjoy the blessings God has given us. Many of these, like the centurion, only need to know Jesus, to be made marvelous examples of faith.

A Triumphant Faith. "I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." Here again is a lesson of faith. Faith triumphing over difficulties, breaking down pride, overcoming prejudice. While the leaders of the Jews, to whom Jesus directed His message, were doubting and finding fault, and plotting His destruction; here was a man whose faith was built upon what He had "heard concerning Jesus," and whose confidence in Jesus' power was expressed in the sentence, "Speak the word only and my servant shall be healed." His reasoning was logical. "As the commander of my company I only need to give orders and they are obeyed. As the Supreme Ruler in the realm of life your order is sufficient." And it was. The servant was healed. The centurion got what he sought. He got it because he believed.

Arrow Points. It is impossible for a man who is doing a real work for the world to hide himself. Those in need of the service he is fitted to render are sure to find him. V. 24. * * * Love knows no distinction of rank or station or race, but leaps over all bounds in seeking for and giving help to the helpless. V. 26. * * * Genuine faith is persistent but humble. V. 28. * * * The answer of Jesus to every sincere petitioner is "I will come." He is always ready to accept the invitation to any home or heart. V. 7. * * * What constitutes the real greatness of faith is the object upon which faith is fixed. V. 10.

LESSON 4—OCTOBER 27.

WANDERINGS IN DECAPOLIS.

TEXT—Mark 7:31-8:10.

And again he went out from the borders of Tyre, and came through Sidon unto the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the borders of Decapolis. 32 And they bring unto him one that was deaf, and had an impediment in his speech; and they beseech him to lay his hand upon him. 33 And he took him aside from the multitude privately, and put his fingers into his ears, and he spat, and touched his tongue; 34 and looking up to heaven, he sighed, and saith unto him, Ephphatha, that is, Be opened. 35 And his ears were opened, and the bond of his tongue was loosed, and he spake plain. 36 And he charged them that they should tell no man: but the more he charged them, so much the more a great deal they published it. 37 And they were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well; he maketh even the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak.

1 In those days when there was again a great multitude, and they had nothing to eat, he called unto him his disciples, and saith unto them, 2 I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days, and have nothing to eat: 3 and if I send them away fasting to their home, they will faint on the way; and some of them are come from far. 4 And his disciples answered him, Whence shall one be able to fill these men with bread here in a desert place? 5 And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven. 6 And he commandeth the multitude to sit down on the ground: and he took the seven loaves, and having given thanks, he brake, and gave to his disciples, to set before them; and they set them before the multitude. 7 And they had a few small fishes: and having blessed them, he commanded to set these also before them. 8 And they ate, and were filled: and they took up, of broken pieces that remained over, seven baskets. 9 And they were about four thousand: and he sent them away. 10 And straightway he entered into the boat with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 7:37.

37 And they were beyond measure astonished, saying, He hath done all things well; he maketh even the deaf to hear, and the dumb to speak.

We must not measure Jesus' journeys abroad by our modern standards and methods. It would be an easy matter for the motorist of today to leave a town like Capernaum after breakfast, drive thirty-five miles to Tyre, then twenty-five miles further to Sidon, spend an hour or two in rest or sight-seeing, then back to the region of Decapolis on the southeastern shore of the sea of Galilee in time for supper and be refreshed with the day's outing. But for Jesus and His disciples it was a journey requiring many days of fatigue and hardship, as they traveled on foot these weary miles. It must be remembered that Jesus is still seeking retirement and not an opportunity to proclaim the gospel of the kingdom. For this reason He returned to a stretch of country beyond Jordan, whose population was mostly made up of Greeks, Syrians and Romans. But even here He is brought face to face with multitudes who "glorified the God of Israel when they beheld His marvelous works" "saw the dumb to speak, the maimed to walk, the lame to walk and the blind to see." Matt. 15:30.

The Deaf and Dumb in Our Churches

"They bring unto Him one that was deaf and had an impediment in his speech." Out of his busy days of miracle-working, Mark selects this specific instance, as an example of Jesus' method of cure. The means employed by Jesus was only sign-language to one who was deaf, assuring him that hearing and the power of speech were gifts of the Son of God. The cure was complete and a lonely pilgrim was again put into happy communication with his fellows. Would that Jesus might come into our modern churches and open deaf spiritual ears and loosen dumb tongues. Physical deafness is a real calamity, but spiritual deafness is worse. The noises of the world, the voices of self-interest and sensual pleasures have drowned the melody of celestial music, and so often made men's "ears dull of hearing," when the gospel of His grace is being proclaimed. How many good sermons fall on such ears and are fruitless. What a change it would make in our prayer-meetings if the dumb tongues were loosed and all would join in bearing testimony to the goodness of God, "teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs." The born deaf are dumb. If you have nothing to say in the house of God, the hearing must be faulty. It is impossible for one who has received an important message to keep silent. "We cannot but speak the things we have seen and heard."

The Language of Jerusalem. Jesus' cures were never halfway effected. Where his miracle of healing was wrought on the dumb man "he spake plain." The impediment to his speech was gone. He spoke in clear, strong tones the language of his fellows. A fine note struck by the pioneers was that "we call Bible things by Bible names," that if the church was to return to the ideals and practice of primitive Christianity, it must drop medieval nomenclature and speak the language of Jerusalem. Is not there need just now that we speak the plain old-fashioned truth as it is found in the Book? There is need that we "speak plain" in dealing with sin, in condemning unrighteousness, in declaring the terms of salvation, and in pronouncing the judgment against disobedience. The modern disposition to put an impediment in the preacher's speech when dealing with wickedness and modern social follies and future punishment, calls for the healing touch of Jesus.

Lessons We are Slow to Learn. How stupid the disciples of Jesus were. I do not wonder that later He said to some of them, "Oh, fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken." At His command the seas were calmed, but the very next storm encountered threw them into a frenzy of fear. On cent occasion He had provided food for thousands by multiplying their little store of loaves and fishes. But now that a new emergency has arisen, and another multitude that forgotten hunger in their eagerness to follow Jesus and that He refuses to send away, are before them, the disciples are again in despair and answer, "From whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?" Yet, in what respect do they differ from ourselves? How slow we have been in learning the lesson of trust! With twenty centuries of providential history we wonder how we are coming to. Fortified by a thousand mercies in the past, we are anxious for the future. With the hand of God clearly seen in the work of yesterday, we worry about tomorrow. Shall we never learn that this is God's world and that the work to which He has called us is His, and that we are the children of His care? How much of life's joy we might escape if we only more apt scholars in the school of Christ.

Feeding Hungry Souls. "So they did eat and were filled." What a wondrous meal was laid out on the green grass by the lakeside! Where ever such food as that which came from the hands of Jesus? Yet the privilege enjoyed by that wilderness company was not exclusive, for He feeds us now upon the Bread of Life. His word embodied in one small volume we call the New Testament, given through the ministry of these plain men who followed Him during His earthly ministry, has gone on multiplying and multiplying until last Monday twenty-five millions sat down in companies of fifties and hundreds and were fed, as the Bread of Life was broken to them by the teachers of the Bible school. And yet enough was left to be carried into the homes where millions of others might satisfy their soul hunger. What a daily miracle of feeding the Word presents as it is read and preached and taught in all the world. And yet there are millions today without it, waiting for the messenger of God to bear it to them with its life-sustaining message. Our duty, like that of the disciples at the feast, who received the loaves from the Master's hand and "did set them before the people," is to receive as a sacred trust the word and see that it is placed in the hands of those who need.

Arrow Points. If statistics could be had, the number of deaf people in our modern congregations would be appalling. V. 32. * * * One would think from the awkward pauses in the average prayer-meeting that impediment of speech was a prevailing malady. V. 32. * * * When once the love of Christ finds its way into hearts, how differently men listen and what new melodies greet the ear. V. 34. * * * If you have nothing to say in the prayer-meeting, it must be that your spiritual hearing is defective. V. 35. * * * For the self-satisfied worldling a thirty minute sermon seems interminable, but for a soul that thirsts after God, the time element is forgotten while listening to His word. V. 2. * * * The few small fishes did not seem of much account, but Jesus took them and blessed and multiplied them just as he does the small talent that is put into His hand today. V. 7. * * * No one with a real soul hunger ever goes away empty from Christ's table. V. 8.

LESSON 1—NOVEMBER 3.

THE SIGN AND THE LEAVEN.

TEXT—Mark 8:11-26.

11 And the Pharisees came forth, and began question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, trying him. 12 And he sighed in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek a sign? verily I say unto you, there shall no sign be given unto this generation. 13 And he left them, and again entering to the boat departed to the other side. 14 And they forgot to take bread; and they were in the boat with them more than one thousand. 15 And he charged them, saying, Take heed, beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, and of the leaven of Herod. 16 And they reasoned one with another, saying, We have no need thereof. 17 And Jesus perceiving it saith unto them, Why reason ye, because ye have no bread? do ye not yet perceive, neither understand? have ye your heart hardened? 18 Have ye eyes, see ye not? and having ears, hear ye not? and do ye not remember? 19 When I took the five loaves among the five thousand, how many basketsful of broken pieces took ye up? They say unto him, Twelve. 20 And when the seven among the four thousand, how many basketfuls of broken pieces took ye up? And they say unto him, Seven. 21 And he said unto them, Do ye not yet understand?

22 And they come unto Bethsaida. And they brought him a blind man, and beseech him to touch him. 23 And he took hold of the blind man by the hand, and brought him out of the village; and when he had spit on his eyes, and laid his hands upon him, he asked him, Seest thou aught? 24 And he looked up, and said, I see men; for I behold them as trees, walking. 25 Then again he laid his hands upon his eyes; and he looked steadfastly, and was restored, and saw all things clearly. 26 And he sent him away to his home, saying, Do not even enter into the village.

GOLDEN TEXT—Jno. 8:12.

12 Again therefore Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life.

Some of Jesus' great victories were followed by severe trials. After His baptism came the wilderness temptation. After the feeding of the five thousand came the temptation of a material reign. After the feeding of the four thousand was the renewed attack of His enemies. They had witnessed the marvelous demonstration of His power as He healed the wounded, fed the multitude, calmed the storm and raised the dead. What more was needed to sustain His supernatural claims? To honest hearts this was enough, but to that class whose eyes were blinded by prejudice and self-interest, each new demonstration of His power only intensified their hatred and multiplied devices with which they sought to entrap Him, break His hold on the multitude, and bring Him to condemnation.

Modern Sign Seekers. As the enemies came making their hypocritical demands for a sign from heaven, it was the old scheme with which Satan sought the undoing of Jesus at the beginning of His public career. "If thou be the Son of God," said the tempter, "cast thyself down from the temple pinnacle." What they asked for was some spectacular demonstration in the sky, the flashing of some celestial light, the appearance of some strange apparition in the heavens, or the reproduction of the pillar of cloud and fire which had guided Israel through its wilderness journey. While refusing to yield to these tempting demands to bolster up His claims, He foretold one of more surpassing wonder than they had asked, that of His own triumph over the grave, using the experience of a Jonah as a type of His own three days sojourn in the tomb. Mat. 12:40. When His resurrection took place, more marvelous and convincing than any celestial fireworks could have been, they still fortified themselves in their unbelief. Today there are those who have the spirit of the Pharisees of old. They are asking signs of Jesus' power "while in the very presence of the tremendous sign of His own amazing life." There are men who deny His miracles in Galilee while enjoying the miracles of His grace, and witnessing the miracle of His uplifting power on sin-cursed lives all around them.

The Leaven of Pharisaism. While using leaven to illustrate the mysterious permeating influence of gospel truth in regenerating the world, Jesus also used it as a type of evil, eating its way into the heart, breaking down the wholesome tissues of sincerity and honesty, and breeding the spirit of hypocrisy and formalism. Using the term in the latter sense, Jesus said, "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the leaven of Herod." This warning was needed then and is needed now. The lifeless legalism of the Pharisees and the gross materialism of the Herodians were equally destructive of genuine religious expression. Our greatest danger today is the leaven of false teachers; and the most dangerous falsehood is that which presents itself with culture and plausibility while undermining the very foundation of faith. Error could not survive for a day but that it conceals itself like leaven in the measure of wholesome meal. An insinuating remark, a slighting attitude, plants the leaven of doubt and the undermining of the heart's citadel of faith has begun. Take heed, beware of the leaven of modern planting which destroys faith in the sacred word of God.

Spiritual Blindness. "Having eyes, see ye not?" Jesus' message had again fallen on deaf ears. He was talking to them about leaven and they were thinking about their carelessness in failing again to provide sufficient provisions for their journey, for "they had not taken the boat with them more than one loaf." Strange reasoning theirs in view of past experiences. Had they forgotten how on more than one occasion thousands had been fed from their scanty supply? Could they never learn the lesson of His providing care? With a hardened heart Jesus expresses His disappointment in the question, "Having eyes, see ye not?" What must be His disappointment at this lack of spiritual discernment? Back of us the experience of centuries made resplendent by the victories of the cross, a civilization has received its inspiration from His matchless manhood, a social progress that is daily approaching the standard of the Golden Rule. And yet how often we are blinded by error, we mistake and fail to discern and cooperate in the work that will contribute to the world's spiritual progress.

Opening Blind Eyes. In the face of the moral blindness of Pharisees and the spiritual blindness of His disciples, there was a significant lesson in this remarkable cure of physical blindness. The means employed in such cases varied. Once, as in the case of the man born blind, it was by the anointing of eyes with clay and the command to "go, wash in the pool of Siloam." In the case of Bartimæus at the Jericho gate, it was by the spoken words, "Receive thy sight." In this case Jesus used as an aid to faith the touch of His moistened garment to the blind man's eyes. Whatever means employed, it was always the result of His power, coupled with human faith. In this way Jesus is still revealing Himself to men as the light of the world. It is by His truth and His faith that we see. Often our sight of spiritual things like that of the blind man who first saw "men as trees walking," is gradually restored. Only as we feel again and again the touch of His redeeming love does the full glory of His gospel burst upon us.

Arrow Points. The spirit that prompts men to seek signs then is today manifest in consulting clairvoyants and mediums and other cheap deceptions as a means of settling life problems. V. 11. * * * Error hides itself under so many guises today, and often cloths itself in such plausible apparel that the veiled elect need to take heed. V. 15. * * * We are all such poor scholars, learning so slowly, forgetting so quickly, that only a Father of infinite love could bear with us. V. 18.

CHRISTIAN MEN

A Bi-Monthly Publication, Being the Official Organ of
THE BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

E. E. ELLIOTT, Editor

W. GRAFTON, Bible Lesson Editor

FRANK LAUDER, Circulation Manager

THE GENERAL BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST

EXECUTIVE BOARD

OFFICERS

J. HAYMAKER, President - - - -	Wichita, Kan.	T. S. RIDGE, Rec. Sec'y. - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
C. I. CHILTON, Vice-President - - - -	St. Joseph, Mo.	F. J. BANNISTER, Treas. - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.

DIRECTORS

D. DONALDSON, Chairman - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.	SYDNEY, H. THOMSON - - - -	St. Louis, Mo.
T. V. GRAFTON - - - -	Indianapolis, Ind.	R. A. DOAN - - - -	Nelsonville, Ohio
ROBERT G. FRANK - - - -	Liberty, Mo.	D. P. GRIBBEN - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.
JOSEPH L. GARVIN - - - -	Fulton, Mo.	I. W. GILL - - - -	Wichita, Kan.
E. E. ELLIOTT - - - -	Kansas City, Mo.

NOTE—The Officers and Directors together constitute the Executive Board

E. E. ELLIOTT, National Secretary, Kansas City, Mo.

Entered as second-class matter February 20, 1909, at the post office at Kansas City, Missouri, under Act of March 3, 1879.
Subscription—Single, 50 cents per annum, in advance; clubs of 10 or more; 35 cents per annum; 20 or more, 25 cents per annum in advance. Ten or more copies to one address to be paid for quarterly—in advance. Canadian postage, add 12 cents. Foreign, add 24 cents. Make remittances payable to order of Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Address 420 R. A. Long Building, Kansas City, Mo.
Magazines will be discontinued at the time of expiration unless renewed within thirty days. Sample copies, when available, will
be sent free.
Advertising rates upon application.

Volume 8. KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1912 Number 3

CHRISTIAN MEN TO CEASE

This is with a great deal of regret that the officers and directors of the Brotherhood Movement announce that for the present the publication of the CHRISTIAN MEN magazine will be either discontinued or very materially reduced in size, and published less frequently than heretofore. It has been suggested by many of our leading men throughout the country that there is not now a very decided demand for CHRISTIAN MEN, at least in its present form, and while your officers and directors have always favored the publication, the funds available are sufficient to sustain it, they do not in any wise count themselves the court of last resort in this matter. While it is probably true that the magazine is filling a need and doing a work that is at present not done by any of our monthly or weekly journals, it is also true that the magazine costs money to edit, print, and circulate, and this expenditure is larger than our present income. We therefore took the matter up with a number of leaders among us, and it was determined that the above action was the only one that could consistently be taken, at least for the present. No arrangements have at this writing been made to fill out the unexpired subscriptions with some other journal, but this will be considered, and what seems to be for the best interests of all concerned, will be done. CHRISTIAN MEN is not insolvent, but the Brotherhood movement, in the opinion of those in whose hands you have placed its destinies, should have the money contributed to this cause expended upon the work of the secretary and the field rather than in the maintaining of a mailing list and all that it means in the way of office expenses. It may be it will be decided to return to the publication before many months. Possibly a Joint Journal will be undertaken by several societies, which in our humble judgment should be done, but for the present CHRISTIAN MEN will not appear again, unless other arrangements are made for the additional cost.

Ministerial Relief

This is Ministerial Relief month, and the counterfeit countenance of W. R. Warren, the new Field Agent, adorns the cover of this issue. There is a story elsewhere in this number of CHRISTIAN MEN telling out who Warren is, where he came from and where he is going. Turn over and read it and when you meet Warren, say, "I saw you in CHRISTIAN MEN." Warren is a splendid fellow, an able writer and speaker, a thorough-going conscientious Christian gentleman, and the work he represents is one of the most worthy benevolences of the Churches of Christ. Think of the calls we are making on our ministers. They must live well, dress themselves and their children in the position in which they move, give liberally to the church and to charity and philanthropy, and save a competence. They are able by cutting their own allowance to do all but the last, and they cannot do that. Preachers hear more hard luck stories and relieve more distress than any other profession, and as a rule, receive the smallest pay. When they get past sixty they are laid on the shelf and younger men are chosen to take the leadership. Like an old horse, they are turned out to die. Let us Brotherhood Men see to it that this fund for aged ministers, their widows and orphans, receives the same support and as hearty as that accorded any other benevolence. Charity begins at home. Does not the minister who has served his Lord these years deserve fully as much consideration at the hands of our people as the waif, or other dependent, cared for in our hospitals, homes and orphanages. We think they are. Not one red cent less for the widow and orphan, the sick and afflicted, but as much for the aged minister and those who are dependent upon him when his earnings cease.

The Brotherhood Convention

The Brotherhood Convention at Louisville went off on schedule time, with but nothing to mar the proceedings, and was the absence of Brother Long, whose business detained him at the last minute and caused him to cancel all arrangements at the convention. This was regret to the entire convention, as was recently expressed by our leaders, who were becoming to recognize Brother Long as one of our national leaders, and with whom hardly a National Convention is hardly complete. Every speaker with one exception was on hand and delivered his message hot from the heart. The program which we arranged for and had the convention of delegates from Local Brotherhoods. Seventy-five delegates responded to the roll call, and this was considered excellent in view of the fact that the session of our Brotherhood was some distance away from the seat of the General Convention. There were but a few individual members present when the roll was called, but several hundred arrived after the roll was called, making the attendance at the afternoon session very near to 500 men. As has been stated Brother Long was not present to make his address as President, but Judge Haymaker, then Vice-President and now President of the National Brotherhood, to make the address. Judge Haymaker was equal to the occasion and delivered a masterful and powerful address which a Louisville paper quotes as follows:

In his address, which was in part extemporaneous, Judge Haymaker, representing President Long, held the attention of his hearers for five minutes. Judge Haymaker took occasion to say a few plain truths to the delegates. He declared the laymen of the church are much entitled to the position of leadership, the preacher, not only in a financial, but in a spiritual, way. He said his remarks might be considered harsh, but he did not so mean them. His object was to stir up the men of the church to a realization of their obligations. Judge Haymaker said the laymen must get a different conception of the work of the church. Judge Haymaker urged the organization of adult Bible classes for men.

URGED STUDY OF BIBLE.

He said they could be made of thrilling interest. He urged a movement for the organization of the men in the church for a more efficient Christian life and work. He urged an intelligent and persistent study of the Bible and said that the success of the Brotherhood movement must be predicated on prayer.

The report of the Committee on Resolutions and Nominations reported through the National Advisory Council as follows:

Report of the National Advisory Council presented at the Louisville convention of the Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ, October 16, 1912, First Christian Church:

The National Advisory Council submits the following report:

Resolved 1, That we, the Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ in convention assembled, hereby express our gratification and thankfulness at the increased activity of men in all the affairs of the church. We call attention to the report of the Executive Board and the National Secretary, describing results accomplished along all lines, and also the broad program of work outlined for future. We would vigorously emphasize that unless the church adequately deals with the problems now demanding attention, she is liable to be deserted by earnest men, while some other human agency accepts the challenge and wins the victory.

Resolved 2, That we rejoice in the great and effective campaign, conducted by the Men and Religion Forward Movement, of which our own Brotherhood performed no insignificant part. And we hereby adopt their program of service, namely: Bible Study, Missions, Boys' Work, Social Service, and Evangelism. We hereby express our sympathy with all movements, towards the elevation of Christian Citizenship and improvement in our national life, and urge all men of the Disciples of Christ to maintain the spirit of coöperation, with every reasonable agency for the extension of the Kingdom. In civic reform, in the abolition of child labor, in the betterment of industrial conditions for working women, in the case of dependent children, in the evangelization of the immigrant, in the abolition of the saloon, in the nomination and election of proper officials, in the municipalities, counties, states and the nation, and in every other Christian activity, men should lead.

The Council recommends the following changes in the Constitution:

First—Article 9, Executive Board, Section 2, now reads: "The officers of the General Convention, together with seven directors to be elected by the said general convention, shall constitute the executive board, and the said officers of the general convention shall be the officers of the General Board."

Section 2, as amended, would read: "The officers of the General Convention together with nine directors, one of whom shall be chairman of the board, to be elected by the said General Convention, shall constitute the Executive Board."

The change in the above article consists in the addition of one director, and the creation of the office of the chairman of the Board of Directors, which position is now occupied by the President.

Second—An additional paragraph to Section 2, Article 9, is recommended, as follows:

"The President, Vice-President, Recording Secretary, and Treasurer are to be elected annually by the General Convention. Beginning with the Louisville Convention of 1912, two directors are to be elected for four years, two for three years, two for two years and three for one year each, and thereafter two directors for these consecutive years shall be elected at each General Convention to serve for four years each, and each fourth year three to serve four years, or until their successors shall have been elected. Vacancies occurring among the officers or directors by death, resignation, or otherwise, may be filled by appointment, by the President, upon the recommendation of the Advisory Committee, such appointment to fill out the unexpired term.

Third—We recommend the appointment of a committee of seven to revise the constitution, national, state and local, and that this committee be composed of men representing the various interests of the Brotherhood.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

First—We express our sincere appreciation of the work of the National Brotherhood Secretaries and office force during the past year, and our great gratification at the very efficient service which they have rendered in a very difficult undertaking.

Second—That this convention, through a rising vote, acknowledges with grateful thanks and deep appreciation, the services of R. A. Long as National President, since the inception of the organization, and with his voluntary retirement of the Presidency with this convention, our organization has lost its earliest and most persistent advocate. That we commend Brother Long for his untiring energy and the strength of his personality, that has been put into this movement, and we would recognize also the large financial contributions that he has made towards the expenses of the National office, and thank him for this contribution, which has made the work of our Brotherhood Movement possible. More than this financial gift, however, is the gift of his devoted life to the cause and the fact of his giving his time continuously for a full month during October, 1911, is, we think, a wonderful manifestation of his devotion to the cause of Christ.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR ORGANIZATION.

We recommend first, that the designation of the last Sunday in September, which is usually the Promotion Day in the Sunday-School, be known as "Men and Boys' Day," and that local churches be urged to use a part of that day as an opportune time for the presentation of the aims, purposes and work for men in the church.

Second, That we approve the appointment of District and State Committees as efficient means for carrying forward this movement, and that the question of the relation of the District and State Committees to each other and to the National Brotherhood, be referred to the National and Executive Board for their consideration, with power to act.

Third, that the officers of all District and State Conventions be requested to make arrangements for a full session at such Conventions, for the consideration of men's work in the church. The program thereat to be arranged between the District or State Committees, and the National Brotherhood office.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR IDEALS FOR THE COMING YEAR.

We recommend first, five hundred new local chapters, before the Next Annual Convention, and recommend that special effort be made to affiliate all our men's Bible classes with the Brotherhood as the Central Agent in bringing about coöperation of all our men's organizations in Christian Service.

Second, five hundred volunteers for Christian education during 1913, out of which will grow volunteers for the Ministry and Mission fields.

Third, the entire expense budget of the Brotherhood movement contributed by a large number of individuals in small amounts, rather than a few contributions of large amounts.

Fourth, a Laymen's Mid-year Conference held in at least twelve important centers during this fall and winter, according to plan of coöperation with our various Missionary and Benevolent Agencies that may be mutually determined upon.

Fifth, the development in every church of the evangelistic spirit, to the end that the Christian Ministry may be adequately recruited with efficient ministers, and the standard of the Ministry elevated by a large appreciation of the Ministry as a profession.

Sixth, the cultivation of a wider use of the printer's ink and a more general reading of religious papers, magazines and books on the part of our men.

The Committee submits the following nominations:

For President.....J. N. Haymaker
Wichita, Kan.

For Vice-President.....C. M. Chilton
St. Joseph, Mo.

Recording Secretary.....T. S. Ridge,
Kansas City, Mo.

Treasurer.....F. J. Bannister,
Kansas City, Mo.

For Directors:

Years—D. Y. Donaldson, Kansas City, Mo.

Years—Graham Frank, Liberty, Mo.

Years—R. A. Doan, Nelsonville, Ohio.

Years—D. P. Gribben, Kansas City, Mo.

Years—Sydney H. Thomson, St. Louis, Mo.

Years—Jos. L. Garvin, Fulton, Mo.

Year—T. W. Grafton, Indianapolis, Ind.

Year—E. E. Elliott, Kansas City, Mo.

Year—I. W. Gill, Wichita, Kan.

Signed.

Bert Wilson, Chairman

Jos. L. Garvin

Sydney H. Thomson

J. A. Barnett

A. I. Zeller

N. J. Clarke

Members National Advisory Council.

The above report was unanimously adopted.

The report of the National Executive Committee was presented, but for lack of space it is not included. One of the most interesting parts of the afternoon program was the service of prayer conducted by Robert Graham Frank. Following this came the closing address of the afternoon

DR. A. B. PHILPUTT

Dr. A. B. Philputt of Indianapolis, on "strengthening the Undertone." Mr. Philputt said in part:

Our hope for the kingdom lies not in the good men we have, but in the good that is found in all men. Our passion must be not for the salvation of the few, but for the uplift of the many. Jesus said the field is the world. Our gospel compels us to service. The love of Christ constraineth us. The world today has that unerring instinct of judgment which Jesus had when he said: "What do ye more than others?" When some of his disciples were restive about honors and position he pointed to that as a weakness of the world and said, "It shall not be so among you."

Christian men should not be as other men. Their standards are higher. They belong to a new and better order. Jesus staked the whole issue of the kingdom so far as the human element is concerned upon men's willingness to serve. Recall his parable of where he says "The good seed are the children of the kingdom." In this fine statement Jesus goes beyond that of any other teacher the world has ever known. Socrates and others depended upon truth in the abstract, apart from men. He would not depreciate the mighty power of a new idea, a new conception. But the seed of the kingdom is not fine ideas or larger thoughts or splendid visions. The Master said the seed of the kingdom is good folks, which means that good ideas are worth nothing until they are incarnated and find expression in personality.

There are not fine ideas enough on earth to evangelize a generation. There are folks enough in any generation who may so incarnate the gospel in their lives as to evangelize a continent. The church needs not alone to know more, but that the truth of God may become incarnate and personalized. The church in this world is a militant force. It must finally conquer or become extinct. Jesus in a passage of somewhat doubtful interpretation seems to predict its victory, but whether he did or not we are sure he felt that it would be victorious.

In the evening at the Galt came the crowning session of the day. Four hundred men crowded into the spacious banquet hall, where we entertained when on the Team Work Campaign, and after a dainty and modest spread had been consumed, Judge Haymaker rapped for order and introduced the Fife Brothers, who rendered several selections of the type destined to provoke good humor. Then the Toastmaster introduced Judge Henry S. Barker, President of the State University of Kentucky, who impressed the audience with the fact that Kentucky is not only a good state to live in, but good to come from and return to. His theme was "Kentucky Hospitality," and if any son of the Blue Grass Commonwealth can eclipse the President of the Great University of the State in the handling of this world famous topic, we have never been privileged to hear him. When casting about for a speaker to respond to this toast, E. L. Powell told us that the Judge could make good, and he certainly did so. Closely following the Judge, Brother C. M. Chilton, one of our own directors, made a strikingly powerful address on "Massing the Masculine," in which he dealt with the fundamentals of men's work in the local church. The closing address and what was considered by some to have been the most interesting and important address of the evening was by Dr. J. E. Williams, Vice-President Nankin University, a Presbyterian business man, clergyman, traveler and missionary. He spoke on "The Great Awakening in China." It is hoped to have this address in bulletin form for a wide distribution. Dr. Williams is recognized as authority on matters in China, and his council and advice is sought by Nations interested in the far East. We are indebted to the Foreign Christian Missionary Society for this address by Dr. Williams.

DR. J. E. WILLIAMS

The sessions of the Brotherhood have passed. The day was wonderfully worth while from every standpoint. The officers and directors have been inspired with the encouraging words that have come to them universally from hundreds of men and women here in Louisville. We have in mind some very definite plans of work for the future with which you will be made more fully acquainted later.

The Brotherhood Train to Louisville

The Brotherhood train to Louisville was a very decided success. Two engines were required between St. Louis and Louisville. A pleasant day's journey brought us to St. Louis, where we were entertained sumptuously at the Terminal Hotel by a banquet. W. Palmer Clarkson was toastmaster and the speeches were many and varied, and all were good also the dinner. Our party occupied eight sleepers, two chair cars and two dining cars. We were glad to serve our brethren and sisters in the capacity of pilot upon this occasion.

* * *

Brotherhood Mottoes

Rauschenbusch.

"Men say the church is dying.—This Movement is a reply."

"—Speaks to the heart of employers and employees and calls both to repentance in the sinfulness of our economic relations."

Los Angeles.

"We are not unaccustomed to tidal waves of religious enthusiasm, but no movement has ever touched the people as this is doing."

"Men are digging deep into the great problem of church work."

Des Moines.

"The men and Religion Campaign has meant a new life in many of the churches."

"It has done much to unify the moral force of the city."

"It has released some of the mighty powers of the Gospel in behalf of the Kingdom of God among men."

Columbus.

"It justifies Christianity to its critics."

"Awakening of many men to see what is possible in Columbus churches."

Wichita.

"That's a splendid proposition to reach thousands of men. We are willing to tackle it here."

Atlanta.

"There has been no such far-reaching religious awakening in all of the history of Atlanta."

"The greatest impulse to genuine Christianity the city has ever known."

St. Louis.

"One of the greatest and most significant movements of the churches of America within the last fifty years."

The First Laymen's Movement of the Disciples

W. R. WARREN.

We naturally look to the preachers to take the lead in all religious matters. "That is their business," we are too ready to say. Even in local church affairs the minister must start the new building and the revival, the missionary offering and the thanksgiving service. In matters of national scope the rule is even more uniform.

But the very unselfishness of the preacher, which makes it necessary to have a Ministerial Relief Fund, made it practically impossible for any minister to propose it. So we came to the year 1885 before anything was attempted, and to 1895 before work was actually begun.

When it was A. M. Atkinson, a retired business man, of Wabash, Indiana, who undertook the long neglected task. He gave a thousand dollars of his money for the rest of his life, serving as secretary without pay. After his death Howard Cale, a lawyer of Indianapolis, carried on the work with like devotion. Gradually a few preachers began to get outside themselves sufficiently to view the question on the basis of the general good. Scott grew. Four preachers served with five laymen on the board of trustees, and Dr. A. L. Orcutt, finally became the executive officer.

But even so, all the large gifts to the work not only came from men and women in the pews, but almost entirely as spontaneous offerings. It is not of record that anyone, except his sainted wife, bequeathed R. H. Stockton for $6,000. T. W. Phillips gave $5,000 voluntarily. The proposition who is back of the 20 per cent proposition for that five-year challenge to the Brotherhood's heart and conscience and good sense originated and formulated it without assistance.

SPONTANEOUS SUPPORT

Still more striking is the far larger ratio, both in number and amount, of offerings from individuals to those from churches, as compared with our other national boards. There the preacher leads and the people give all together in the name of the church; here, in nearly half the cases, the individual has to take the initiative and make his own remittance to headquarters. The wonder is that so many have done it. Our joy is that there is such an awakening of the individual conscience that those who have not given heretofore will do so hereafter, whether personally asked or not. As for those who have been giving individually, we trust they have reached the point where they will insist on having their several churches enlisted as churches.

GIVE YOUR CHURCH A CHANCE

Of more than six thousand churches that have fellowship, more or less regularly, with one or more of the societies, there is scarcely one that would not make an offering to Ministerial Relief, if given a fair chance. The Presbyterians number about the same as the Disciples, and are no better folks than ours. Yet 5,492 of their churches made offerings to Ministerial Relief last year, and only 540 of ours. That our people are not indifferent is shown by the record of September, 1912. The year was to end on the 30th, and we had to get $11,616.31 or miss the $4,000 of the 20 per cent proposition. Unsolicited payment of the T. W. Phillips bequest of $5,000 and of $500 from the Reed Fund in Massachusetts encouraged us to try for the goal. September 10th we lacked $5,928.57 of the $20,000 necessary before we could claim the extra $4,000. About $2,100 we expected to come in without further effort, judging by past years. We actually got $2,216.82.

The quest of the balance became a race against time in three heats, and we won as follows:

A Race Against Time

FIRST HEAT.

September 10.	J. L. Kendall, Pittsburg.....	$ 100.00
September 11.	Eastern Pennsylvania.	72.40
September 12.	Mrs. Catharine Von Lunen, Johnstown, Pa.....	100.00
September 13.	Mrs. Elizabeth S. Moore, Greensburg, Pa.....	100.00
September 14.	Robert Norris, Connellsville, Pa.....	$ 25.00
	Dr. G. W. Newcomer, Connellsville, Pa.....	25.00
	O. M. Waddle, Bellevue, Pa.....	25.00	75.00
Five Days, 1,354 Miles.....			$ 447.40

SECOND HEAT.

September 15.	R. H. Stockton, St. Louis, Mo.....	$ 100.00
September 16.	A. C. Smither, St. Louis, Mo.....	$ 25.00
	Mexico, Missouri.	50.00	75.00
September 17.	Miss Mary J. Chiles, Independence, Mo.....		1,000.00
September 18.	W. S. Dickinson, Cincinnati, Ohio.....		100.00
September 19.	Fletcher Cowherd, Kansas City, Mo.....	20.00
	Independence, Missouri.	50.00	72.00
September 20.	Missouri Churches and East St. Louis.....		72.94
Six Days, 1,171 Miles.....			1,417.94

THIRD HEAT.

September 22.	Joseph I. Irwin Estate, by Mrs. Z. T. Sweeney and Wm. G. Irwin.....	$200.00
September 24.	Mrs. J. Irvin Bitner, Hagerstown, Md.....	50.00	250.00
	Marshall T. Reeves, Columbus, Ind.....	50.00
	Cash.	1.00	51.00
September 25.	Western Pennsylvania.	64.70
	R. S. Latimer.	25.00
	Emory W. Ross.	5.00	94.70
September 26.	East End, Pittsburg, by Mrs. Margaret B. Evans		100.00
September 27.	Miner J. Allen.	100.00
	Miss Cynthia A. Allen, Akron Ohio.....	100.00
	A. Teachout.	100.00
	W. H. Cowdery, Cleveland, Ohio.....	25.00	325.00
September 28.	Akron, First Church.	73.80
	Wabash Avenue Church.	7.54	81.34
September 29.	Bowling Green, Ohio.	129.00
	Rudolph, Ohio.	23.25
	Toledo, Central.	50.00
	Toledo, Norwood.	5.00	207.25
September 30.	Miss Viola Compton, Del Rio, Tenn.....		1,000.00
Eight Days, 1,694 Miles.....			2,109.29

Won in 19 days, 4,219 miles.....	$ 3,974.63
Total offerings of the year.....	20,262.88
The 20 per cent proposition.....	4,052.57
Interest on permanent fund.....	1,665.54
Total receipts.	25,980.99
Gain over last year, 50 per cent.....	8,664.44

Those nineteen days in five states demonstrated not only that God's people are quick of conscience, sound of judgment, and ready of hand to take up the cause of Ministerial Relief in a dignified way that will be creditable to all concerned, but that the hand of our God is upon this work in blessing. His hour has struck for the advancement of Ministerial Relief to a place in the first rank of national agencies of the Disciples of Christ.

For the current year the goal is set at offerings of $30,000, which will win the maximum of $6,000 from the 20 per cent proposition, and, with interest on the Permanent Fund, total receipts of $38,000.

Where the church's missionary offerings are made on the budget plan, not less than 12½ per cent of the whole should go to Ministerial Relief. A larger percentage is really demanded by our long neglect of this work and the necessity of bringing it up at once.

However the offering is made, the third Lord's Day of December, which falls upon the 15th, should be observed as Ministerial Relief Day.

Any preacher can make a strong address on this subject, and where there is no preacher, someone else can present this matter better than any other missionary cause, for it is distinctly a women's movement.

When the offering is taken the 15th of December, in the midst of Christmas preparations, there is not a member in our church who will not gladly seize the chance to make a Christmas present to the old preachers. It not only directly gives honor to whom honor is due, it also glorifies the Christ, in whose service they have spent their lives, and in whose likeness their evening faces shine.

INCREASES EFFICIENCY

Moreover, only by bringing this fund up to adequate proportions can we secure general church efficiency. It will make our present preachers lengthen and strengthen their pastorates in the hard fields of country and city, resist the temptation to cut off the best years of their service by taking secular employment, and urge young men of promise to enter the ministry.

Ask the Board of Ministerial Relief, 120 E. Market Street, Indianapolis, Indiana, to send you the Annual Report and other printed matter and tell them how many envelopes you can use in taking the offering. Time for preparation is short. Churches and individuals giving $100 or more are accounted Living Links. The number of these grew splendidly last year and must do still better this year. Make haste; the day draws near.

* * *

More Mottoes

Dallas.

"This movement is the sanest, most practical, most hopeful of all the general religious movements projected in this generation."

Providence.

"It taught churchmen how to show a united front for the best things."

"It offered churchmen a man's job, big enough in scope, clear enough in significance and high enough in purpose to make it thorough, heroic—spiritual."

South Bend.

"The greatest religious movement ever put on in this city."

Seattle.

"The sanest proposition ever offered to the church in the way of a special revival feature."

"It will revolutionize the methods of winning men."

Fort Worth

"The high tide to which it brought the better sentiment and feelings will not soon subside."

"The best balanced interpretation of Christianity that has ever been given."

Make Room for the Men

BY J. K. SHELLINGER.

J. K. SHELLINGER

The very chivalry innate in true men compels them to take a back seat in all meetings where women are prominent. In the public meeting the women are given the best seats, the most advantageous view points. If anybody stands it is the men. If anyone is compelled to give his place in the service to another, it is the true man who is first to do so.

FIFTY YEARS AGO Fifty years ago the women began to organize in the interests of the Kingdom of God.

By working their organization they became prominent in the Lord's work. Their growing efficiency brought them into prominence. Men naturally stepped aside to make room for them. Thus unconscious to himself and to his sister man gave up his position and lost his efficiency in the church. We are not attaching blame to anyone in making such a statement, simply citing a historic fact. This fact must we face and with it must we reckon.

The women have their special meetings radiating from the church as a common center. Here they think and talk and work together. Their prominence and interest in the church is due to the fact that they have made the church more or less the center of their social life. When the public meeting is called, whether in the Lords Day services, the prayer-meeting, the Bible School, civic reform meetings, or any other meeting in which the church is taking a prominent part, the women are in evidence and the men are still prone to take to the rear. There is no spirit of usurpation in the women. Their prominence is the result of aroused interest. We would not for the world have them less interested, but we would have the men more interested.

SOME have said that the difference in the prominence of men and women in the church is due to the fact that men and women are constitutionally different—that the church appeals to the female mind more than to the male mind. Such a statement is not only ludicrous, but all but blasphemous. Jesus Christ knew the human race when He founded the church. We are not ready to discredit Him by saying that He gave to the world an institution designed to save the WORLD, and yet made it adaptable to only one-half the race. It is doubtless true that the conduct of the church of today appeals more strongly to the female mind than to the male mind. It is with this fact that the Brotherhood would deal.

THE GOSPEL RACE The Gospel of Christ is adaptable to the race, independent of sex. If we offer manhood what we offer womanhood, we shall see a new enlistment of men in the activities of the church. The fact remains that there is nothing in which men, yes, mén, are so deeply interested as religion. They think religious thoughts, ed in their accidental meetings they discuss them freely. But we have given them no time nor place where they can get together, simply as men, and crystallize these thoughts and translate them into action.

THE WORKING CHURCH
The working church is a social activity in which the social life must be prominent. Man as well as woman is a social animal. He is born with a social desire. The social gathering, whether club or lodge, is but a logical sequence of the manner of one's constitution.

Allow me to quote from Rev. Frank E. Day in "Why, How, When, What," of the Methodist Brotherhood, St. Paul Chapter No. 190, Albion, Mich: "But it gives color to social desire. Social desire is more than a longing for indiscriminate commingling. It is more than a desire to meet in social functions. It is more than this, but it is more. It includes a social appetite which is peculiar to sex. There are times when the longing of manhood is for women only. And likewise there are times when men long for a season of fellowship with men only." The C. W. B. M., the Ladies' Aid, et cetera, have supplied these demands so far as the women are concerned, but what has the church done to meet the social demands of its men?

SERN
The stern fact that we must face is that men have grown so used to doing without the church in their social life that they have come to the conclusion that they do not need it. Their sense of the value of the church to them as a social asset has been deadened until they do not longer appreciate it. The lodge and the club have become the church's substitute. Men are finding their social satisfaction outside of the church. Result: The church has been "killed" by women, and naturally has conducted herself in such a way as to appeal to women. The pastor, though a high-strung, virile man at his graduation from college, finds no place in the church for the use of the forces that put him at the head of the athletic class in college, that made him the champion batter on the ball team, that made him bore his way through a human wall in a foot-ball scrimmage, that made him broad-shouldered, deep-chested, keen-eyed, that gave him knots for muscles and wires for sinews. And unless he actually seek the association of men outside the church, in company with his parishioners, he becomes a "sissy"—a rubbing-his-palms-whistling-through-his-teeth-bowing-and-scraping-nicey-nicey mollycoddle. So he, too, fails to attract the men who are following their impulses to find free rein for their masculine energy. And still we wonder why the church has not more men in it!

A MOLLY-CODDLE

For a decade the men have been knocking again at the doors of the church asking that they be admitted as men, rather than as indescribable integers that make up the crowd. He is pleading that the church recognize that he is a man, that she make a place for him as a man, and that she give him a man's work to do. Dr. R. P. Shepherd tells the story of the pastor who was granted a vacation to go to Europe. While he was gone the church secured a supply in the person of a young man just from college. This young man brought his college virility to the men of the church and inspired them with a sense of their own possibilities for the kingdom. He gave them a desire to be something in the Lord's work. In the fall when the old pastor returned his men met him at the train in royal reception. They escorted him to the church, where 150 men were gathered, waiting to offer their services to him as their leader in things pertaining to the Kingdom of God. The pastor was dumfounded. It was a new experience to him. He listened to their proposals in a dazed manner. When they had finished he replied:

SHEPHERD'S STORY

A WEEK FROM TONIGHT "Brethren, I want to meet you half way. I must have time to think this matter over. Meet me one week from tonight and I will give you my answer." The week went by and the men came again, eager to hear what their pastor had to propose. After a careful and studied introduction he said he had thought the matter over very carefully. He wanted to be as true to them as they were to him. And if they would meet him in that room every Tuesday evening for the next six months he would endeavor to read them a lecture once a week on "Apologetics."

Some months ago a pastor of one of our large churches made this confession to the writer. The town had just passed through the whirlwind of a "Billy Sunday Meeting." There had been thousands of men and women awakened. Many of them had connected themselves with the organized churches. The pastor in question had received his quota of converts. The Sunday following the closing of the "Sunday" meetings more than 300 men met this pastor and said in substance: "Here we are. We have joined the church. We want something to do. Put us to work. We are ready to give the church our best. Give us definite tasks." The pastor confessed with tears in his eyes that the longest vision he had was to tell the men to join the Men's Class in the Sunday-School. But the men said: "Of course, we expect to join the class and study the Bible, but we want something to do that will satisfy our social instincts in the church. We will backslide if we do not get it."

These are not isolated cases. Their number is legion. And such a condition is no indictment of our faithful pastors. It is the result of a long neglect. The Brotherhood is seeking to repair the damage of this long neglect.

THE BROTHERHOOD'S PURPOSE In order to create a masculine group consciousness among the men of the church the Brotherhood has been called into existence. It suggests that the men be provided a place in the calendar of the church where they can meet as men and act like men, talk like men, plan like men, and forge out the things that appeal to the masculine mind. Men are anxious to make the church the center of their life, as is evidenced by the tremendous uprising of men in the last decade. Hundreds of thousands of men are meeting every Lord's Day in Bible School studying the Book. But this very fact is fraught with danger if the church fail to provide these men with avenues of expression. The business of the Bible School is to teach. The business of the Brotherhood is to work. These two institutions are in no wise invading each other's territory, but each is complementary to the other.

CHURCH'S BUSINESS The church's business is to manifest life at its highest possible norm. We have no criticism for the lodge. It has done good work in a neglected field. But the church can and must open up life on a still higher plane. She can do fraternal and social work on a higher plane than the lodge, because it is rooted in the richest soil of man's deepest affection—his religion. The Brotherhood builds men's social life around the Christ and His church; it makes the Kingdom of God the chief aim of man. No soety of men can radiate about such a center for a term of years without their life becoming refined, their vision becoming clarified, their enthusiasm becoming unbrookable, and their power the power of an irresistible army. The church's business is not only to discover the science of happiness, but also of living.

Hence the business of the Christian's Brotherhood becomes apparent at once: Namely, to reestablish the supremacy of the church in the lives and relationships of men. To such a position Jesus Christ dedicated it. It is ours to restore it to its rightful place. Jesus was not dealing in platitudes when He said, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and its righteousness and all the things that the Gentiles seek shall be added unto you." He was stating a sociological truth which we have yet to work out. He was making up a plain, simple business proposition, and telling us that it pays to live the life of Christ.

The Brotherhood, then, must be more than a mere organization. An organization is nothing but the articulation of possible forces. Only when the organization begins to act—to really function—does it become of value. The members of the Brotherhood are living organisms in themselves, hence as the organization works it generates power by giving off energy. The biggest resultant from a Brotherhood, then, is not the spectacular things the men may be able to do and which may be exploited before the public, but rather the growing spirit of Brotherhood among them, which is the real asset in the kingdom of heaven and the thing that makes life worth living.

Have a Brotherhood, then, because it is most vitally needed—not simply for the church's conduct, but for the highest good of the men themselves. Let us open an avenue of expression through which men may express the best and holiest within them.

Neighbor to All

My house is built by the roadside,
Where curled smokes dim the sky,
And all day long a busy throng
From the ends of the earth toils by:
And I cry: "Ho, welcome, Brothers!"
For a lover of men am I.

Who comes as a friend and fellow
Shall never be denied
His share in the food of brotherhood
And a measure of cheer beside:
So I cry: "Ho, welcome, Brothers!"
My doors are opened wide."

I judge no guest by his garments,
The rich and the poor I call,
For each can learn of the other
And none are too great or small:
So I cry: "Ho, welcome, Brothers!"
My house is builded for all."

My house is built by the roadside,
Where curled smokes dim the sky,
And all day long a busy throng
From the ends of the earth toils by:
And I cry: "Ho, welcome, Brothers!"
For a lover of men am I.

—The Open Door.

William Robinson Warren, Captain of Industry

BY ROBERT PERRY SHEPHERD.

Some of it may doubtless be charged up to old Bethany, but not all. Virginia is partly responsible, and Presbyterianism, and the spirit of the pioneers, and a girl, and the spirit of primitive Christianity, and Baltimore, and Episcopalianism—countless and innumerable indeed are the converging influences and conditions which are responsible in their totality for it. And, to suspend further suspense, let it be stated bluntly that the it in this case is a him, and the name is William Robinson Warren.

Away back in the Daniel Boone days, one Martin Warren, Virginian, soldier of the Revolution, father of pioneers, took his sons, caught up with the veritable Daniel Boone, and with him explored the far west as far as the spot where the Warrens concluded they had come upon a good stopping place, camped, and called the spot Warrensburg, Missouri. The Calvinism of fate foreordained that this group of Presbyterians should locate here. Meanwhile one Watson, Quaker, domicile Stockton-on-Tee, England, was preparing, unknown to himself to be the grandfather of considerable destiny. Great Grandfather Aldridge, Episcopalian, Baltimore, and Great Grandfather Dillingham, Baptist, minister, Virginia, were preparing to cross life lines in the production of that same element of destiny. Out of this heterogeneity, or more properly speaking into it, came the element of zeal to restore the spirit and practice of the simple Christian faith of the Apostles and all living grandparents of this particular human unit merged their differences and diversities into this vital homogeneous lift in the Spirit.

Therefore, and in consequence, Bethany college began to prepare to graduate a hopeful youth, yclept Warren, when the said youth should have passed, by a little more than two months, his long looked-forward-to majority. For while June of 1889 seemed to tread on the heels of March 24, 1868, many things of moment had been transpiring, among which was this youth named Warren. Bethany could not withhold first honors from the young man, and thus coronated with academic plaudits and approval, she sent him to Pinewood Academy in Tennessee, as Principal teacher of the school and Preacher of for and to the church at that place. Dayton called loudly, and the Buckeye summons is, to most preachers, like a categorical imperative. Warren went to Dayton for two years. But alma mater had need of her first honor progeny, and what heart of man is proof against the sweet seductive charm of mother's call. Warren went to Bethany as professor of Latin and preacher for the church which had withstood, or rather stood with, the preaching of Alexander Campbell, W. K. Pendleton, and others of the fathers.

Meanwhile, necessarily, inevitably and most fortunately, a quiet but very fervent correspondence had been going on between Warren and some of the home folks. The fervency of epistolary diligence was but one of the many evidences of a purpose growing desperately earnest. The western end of the correspondence was in the home of one of Missouri's foremost and best known educators, the founder of the Military Academy at Boonville. The atmosphere of scholarly culture and military discipline keeps out many things, but missives love laden are wondrous penetrating and make their own atmosphere. Merely as an aside and apropos of nothing in particular, it may be remarked that some fellows are mighty lucky to be able to make love more efficiently by letter than to take it as a sort of personal, straight out face-to-face storming of apparently impregnable embattlements. Resuming the main thread of the narrative of human interest and destiny, the consummation of such waste of time and toil came when Warren took Susan Alice Kemper to wife and to California. Here first Warren began to live. He has not openly stated it to be the fact, but every man knows that if every man don't admit it to his wife will,—the fact that he did not begin to live until she took hold of the job and began to straighten out the tangled web of his helpless imbecility. At all events, Santa Barbara, that paradise of lovers and all other stricken mortals, never cast benign spell over more ecstatic hearts for the period of three years than over the new pastor's wife and her pastor, of the Christian Church, in that place.

But when the soul of scholarship is in a man by long lines of ancestry, when it is embedded in a temperament distinctly poetic and artistic and embodied in a passion for efficient service, not even the seductions which lie between the Santa Ynez mountains and Santa Barbara bay can sate the hunger for wider touch with Truth and men. The department of New Testament Greek in the University of Chicago claims Warren for a year and then Connelville, having blown the coke gas from its field of vision for a moment, spies him and sets him to the task of pastoral leadership. At six years of effort enlarge the soul-view of the pastor, to say nothing of what it did to the church, and Warren becomes now the manager, editor, promoter, main spring, inner works and all the hands on the face of The Christian

Worker, the organ of inter-communication and common interests of the Christian churches in Pennsylvania. During these two years there began to loom large in the horizon the celebration of one hundred years of talk and other efforts of the Disciples of Christ. Pittsburgh had invited all creation to be its guest in 1909. Someone had to help all creation to get ready to be a worthy guest at such a feast and to be the yard stick and measuring gauge of Pittsburgh's hospitality. Pittsburgh looked itself over with painstaking care and could find none so fitted for the steadfast endurance of the several million perplexities incident to the Centennial campaign as was the manager, editor, etc., of The Christian Worker. Therefore the Worker gave up its worker for the larger work. The Centennial history is public property. Its history is embalmed along with a unique explanation—also embalmed and irragrant.

But out of the Centennial celebration there came a work whose value to the church of the Lord is immeasurable. The Christian Board of Publication became a possibility by the consecrated generosity of a Christian business man of unique fore-sight, far-sight and insight. Who should pioneer the untrod path of representative journalism for the Christians of the Christian churches? Far and wide was the field searched, combed, scanned and scrutinized. One child of destiny stood out conspicuous among the possibilities. Warren became the burden bearer, the eager servant, the willing slave, the pivotal figure of all sorts of forces which centered in the new enterprise. After one year it became obvious that other shoulders must carry some of the burdens which crush heart and spirit and life. Warren carried the editorial burdens of The Christian Evangelist for a year longer with unusual power, gracious skill and approved ability. But meanwhile destiny was working out yet other plans to meet growing needs and painfully obvious human necessities.

When the Christian churches were in missionary session in Portland last year, a generous offer was made by a true friend of preachers and Christian workers to help tremendously to endow a fund for pensioning the aged and dependent servants of the church. Once more was the national field scanned with eager care to find the one who best could waken the Christians of today to the living obligation of gratitude resting upon them for the toilers of yesterday. Would Warren do it? Could Warren be secured? Warren can do it. Warren has been secured. Warren has been called to lay aside, for a time, the persuasive pen of inspiration and aspiration and to take up the personal persuasiveness needed to create a fund of generous proportions which shall stand between faithful servants of the Lord and helpless dependence in the days of incapacity and want. It is an angelic task. It is a beautiful service. It is not charity but simple honesty in returning a living to those who give their very best with eager abandon.

Therefore and now, when the secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relations arrives, hail him and welcome him as a servant prepared of God to do exceptional work. The soul of chivalry and courteous ancestry is in his veins unsullied and unspoiled by any ungracious act. The uplift of humanity gives forth its fragrance in such lives as his. A son and two daughters are heirs of fortune, such a fortune as cash can never buy. A father who loves his home and family, a citizen who loves and serves his state by every inspiration of his citizenship, a scholar who crucifies his instincts for the pursuits of culture and erudition for the harsh tasks of human service, a Christian who loves the church better than he loves all else except Christ who is the Life of the church, such a heritage is nobler than coronation handed down to posterity or the curse of unearned wealth bestowed. And it is such a heritage that is to the family and the loved ones who share the spirit and confidence of William Robinson Warren.

Statement of the Ownership, Management, Etc., of CHRISTIAN MEN MAGAZINE

Published Bi-Monthly at Kansas City, Mo.

Required by the Act of August 4, 1912

Managing Editor, E. E. Elliott Kansas City, Mo.
Publisher, Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ Kansas City, Mo.
(E. E. Elliott, National Secretary)

Signed, E. E. ELLIOTT, Editor.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 30th day of September, 1912.

[SEAL]

R. T. DEMSEY, Notary Public.
(My Commission expires February 28, 1914)

Efficiency in Church Work

Various business men who are awake to the great progress that is being made by the use of scientific methods in business, are calling attention to the relative failure of the church in the conduct of its affairs. Men who are inside the church, who believe in it and are devoted to its high interests, recognize its inefficiency in the conduct of its enterprise, in the getting of results for the kingdom. And they are calling attention to this fact not to prove the church obsolete, nor to convict it of failure, but to point the way to the larger success which they believe can and must be achieved.

In the last issue of the American Journal of Theology, published at Chicago University, Dr. Samuel W. Dike, who is a well-known Congregationalist, points out the serious aspect of the problem, particularly in our independent Protestant churches, and sounds the call to more efficient methods. We quote the following paragraphs from the above article:

These churches are now made up of a heterogeneous collection of institutions—in manufacturing we should call them machines—that have come in from time to time to meet real or supposed needs, all running side by side without much regard to the relation each should sustain to the other or to the whole. Indeed, the situation is much like that which we should find in a factory if it had introduced its machinery in a similar way, running it all at the top of its speed or as the various operators felt disposed, with little regard for the precise amount and quality of work from each machine which the general objects of the factory required, and rarely throwing out a machine or adjusting it to the common need * * *

"Nobody tries to keep in touch, nobody can, with this variety of independent effort but the minister. There is no central board nor anything else that can act as a clearing-house for all these activities. The overworked minister is distracted with the effort he feels he must make to know something about all of them. He feels that he is made a 'jack-at-all-trades.' And yet men of affairs accustomed to methodical systems by which they have the oversight of their own business easily arranged and carefully distributed, do not lift a finger to secure like efficiency in their own churches.

"The young in our churches are exposed to a variety of societies having no intelligent adjustment of their work to each other, or, what is quite as important, to the home from which they come. The home may be working along the line of Christian nurture, but the Sunday-school teacher or the leader in the society of the young people may unconsciously upset all the work of the home by insistence on instantaneous conversion. Instruction may be the work of one institution and training to service may be done in another, the one professing to be the laboratory of the other, but the subjects of the two may be so far apart in time and character as to secure small results so far as this common end goes. It is easy to see that at present the church is far behind the times in ordinary organization and seriously lacking in efficiency.

"There is another evil inherent in this state of things. For the present condition lends itself too easily to the great moral and social evil of exploitation, and those practices which, in other circles, we call graft. Outside organizations, especially if they have taken on the essential form of trusts, as is sometimes the case, can foist on churches their schemes by simply enlisting the sympathy of the pastor or some person or persons of influence. Sometimes the practical control of the religious instruction of the church is in the hands of some enterprising publishing company that is itself under no control from the church except through a general public opinion."

"The time is ripe for a new movement," asserts Dr. Dike, and he concludes his article with this statement of his faith:

"When once the idea is fairly lodged in the minds of the more thoughtful people, it will quickly take root. The idea of a careful adjustment of functional to group, or, what is called in business 'gang' organization, and in school affairs 'class' organization, will come up from the first. What correspond to time or motion studies in business may or may not have a considerable place in working out the engineering problems of the church. But the proper studies will come somewhere. Somewhere, too, here single church and there another will perhaps throw its entire organization into the crucible in the hope of bringing out in a new form. Others will make over their organizations step by step. Mistakes of course will be made. Empirical methods will be mistaken for science and even crude rule-of-thumb procedure will hold the field in many places. But it is not hard to see that the present need, the demand of business men who feel keenly the lack of efficiency in the present chaotic character of church organization, and the sweep of the modern scientific movement as a whole will in time change the entire situation. For the situation, discouraging as it appears to be from one point of view, is in reality one of the greatest promise. The immediately urgent question for us is, 'Will the churches see their opportunity and seize it?' "

Social Evil and the Church's Duty

Excerpts from the Report of the Social Purity Committee of the Chicago Church Federation Council, Presented by the Chairman, Dr. Herbert L. Willett, and adopted by the Federated churches at a Meeting in Association Hall, May 27, 1912.

1. We register our solemn conviction that the minister of the gospel, as the moral and spiritual leader of his people, is charged with the responsibility of providing the members of his congregation with such knowledge of the dangers which are encountered in the present social order as may warn the uninstructed, and may organize sentiment in behalf of clean lives and upright citizenship. We recognize the delicacy, as well as the urgency, of this task, and weigh fully the responsibility which it places upon ministers. Yet it seems impossible to place this responsibility elsewhere, and the instances in which it has been met with courage, and yet with sensitiveness to all the interests involved, encourage us to believe that this ministerial duty may be performed with tact and fearlessness to the immeasurable advantage of the churches and the community.

2. Equally are we of the opinion that there is a place for wise and tactful instruction in sex morality in Sunday-school classes. The International Sunday-school Association has recognized this fact by the appointment of a superintendent of the purity department of the Sunday-school, and the publication of an increasing list of works intended to afford Sunday-school teachers some adequate knowledge of sexual morality as related to other Christian disciplines, and to offer suggestions as to the best means of making impressive such truths in the lives of the young.

3. We cannot too strongly urge the duty of parents to inform themselves regarding the mysteries of the physical nature, the facts of awakening sexual awareness in the experience of children, the beauty and nobility of clean lives through the periods of childhood and adolescence as well as in later experience, the appalling physical dangers which ensue from the practice of sexual vice, and the responsibility of the family to the city and the state for their safety and progress. The establishing of intimate and confidential relations between parent and child is often felt to be one of the most delicate and difficult tasks. Yet the dangers of its neglect and the satisfactions of its achievement, constitute a sufficient warrant for unceasing effort on the part of parents to interpret in a simple, pure-minded, and tactful manner, the great secrets of the sexual life. The choice does not lie between instruction and ignorance on the part of the child. The facts are sure to be known from some source. The choice is between parental and less desirable sources of information on this all-important subject.

4. Recognizing, as we do, the fact that only sound information can supply parents, teachers, and ministers, a basis for the instruction which they are charged with providing to those committed to their care, we venture to name some half dozen books on which this committee has reached entire agreement as books of scientific authority, presenting the facts relating to the sexual problem, and suggestions as to sex instruction of the most profitable character. The very brevity of this list at a time when a multitude of books is appearing upon the subject, indicates the feeling of the committee that it is better to suggest a very few titles, and those of the best sort, than a more extended bibliography in which selection would be more difficult, and the chances of any adequate and definite reading would be lessened. Furthermore, it is the hope of the committee to provide presently a more extensive list of books, carefully annotated for the use of all who are interested in the theme. But mean-time, we urge such a study of the subject as shall in some definite manner provide a sense of awareness regarding the nature of the problem now confronting the churches. We are of the opinion emphatically that these and all similar books on sex instruction should be used by the parents, teachers, and ministers for their own information and guidance in their educational work, rather than as material for child reading on the subject. Children ought to learn the mysteries of life not from books, but from those who, as parents and teachers, have both awareness and sympathetic insight into the life of the child.

5. As it is well known that there is a very large amount of disease, which has its origin in, or is spread by the social evil, and as there are no records in our city or county which show the amount or consequences of these diseases, we request the Society of Social Hygiene to make a special investigation, and as soon as possible publish a report showing the amount of sexual disease spread by vice, also to show the amount of late manifestation or indirect consequences of these diseases, such as insanity, feeble-mindedness, hereditary defectiveness, blindness, surgical operations upon women, or other consequences which can be gathered in such an inquiry.

The Need of the Country Church

JOSEPH H. ODELL, IN THE MUNSEY MAGAZINE.

Social Sterility is the Curse of the Rural District and Nothing but the Church can Remove It
The Only Way the "Meetin' Houses" can Maintain Their Hold on the People is to Sink Their Differences of Doctrine and Coalesce

MISSOURI The records of three representative rural counties—Knox, Adair and Sullivan—give only 29 per cent church membership, both Protestant and Catholic, out of 53,701 population. There are five Catholic churches taking care of 6 per cent of the people. Each of these churches has clubs for men, for women, and for young people respectively. There are one hundred and eighty Protestant churches ministering to 23 per cent of the population. One-fourth of these are growing, twenty-one have been abandoned.

AVERAGE MEMBERSHIP The average membership of the Missouri country church is fifty-three. In twenty-three villages, averaging 241 persons to a village, there are fifty-six churches. Four villages—Novelty and Newark, in Knox County, and Gibbs and Brashear, in Adair County—have four churches each. Two of these villages have less than 225 inhabitants, giving each church a parish of forty-five persons.

NO MEN'S CLUBS There is not a men's club or organization among the Protestant churches. Nothing is being attempted in the way of social welfare or entertainment. In many of the churches, preaching is held only at intervals, as one minister is trying to serve three or four organizations. It requires $50,500 a year to keep the 159 semi-activated Protestant churches going at all.

The first mission of the rural church must of course be spiritual. There is no danger, however, of that function being minimized. Every minister's call and consecration rests upon the primacy of the spiritual. But in order to strengthen and make that mission real, the interests of the soul must be related to every other interest of life.

Two-thirds of the rural population of America are practically untouched by the church. If the churches were so established and maintained that they could influence the social, intellectual and business life of the community, this would be immediately changed. The farmer will not object to driving as far to the church as he does to the store or the postoffice, if the church becomes as necessary to his wellbeing as the store and the postoffice.

A TRAINED MINISTRY The ministry of the country church should be specially trained for its work. The preacher must know something about the regeneration of the soil, as well as of the soul. In the Bible, Jehovah is the giver of fertility to the fields, and his representatives of today cannot afford to be ignorant about the value of nitrogen. There is no reason why men should not dedicate their lives to a country ministry, with adequate special preparation, if the churches will unite and give them a living wage and a field that holds possibilities of permanent service.

But the essential thing is that the local churches should coalesce in such a way that they can establish and maintain a plant that will furnish a worthy expression of their life.

SOCIAL STERILITY The village or open country churches today are chiefly the 1-room type—an oblong, barn-like structure, furnished with hard, straight backed pews. With a proper amalgamation, that may become one of a cluster of buildings, or a part of a multiform plant. There should be a reading room and a library; a playroom, perhaps a bowling alley and a pool table; a place for exhibitions and lectures bearing upon agriculture or social enjoyment. The curse of the country is its social sterility, and nothing but the church can safely remove that curse.

RECREATION The recreation of the young people should be encouraged and supervised by the church, with suitable grounds — base-ball diamonds and tennis courts—and with regular field days and tournaments and fairs, where such are not already conducted by county or state associations. But none of these ideals can be reached by the present little segregations, each occupied in its vain struggle for existence.

The only way in which the country churches can regain and maintain their hold upon the people, and minister to the total life of the community, is to find a basis of union and sink their infinitesimal differences of doctrine and polity. Then they will really serve their age as their Master served His.

To the Friends of Christian Men Magazine:

Brotherhood programs, news items and editorials will be furnished regularly each week to our weekly papers for insertion in those publications, pending such arrangements as may be considered possible for an official organ.

Watch for Them

THE EDITOR.

The History of Lay Leadership

A paper prepared for the Laymen's Missionary Conference, Lake Geneva, Wisconsin, July 27-31, 1912.

BY E. E. ELLIOTT, NATIONAL SECRETARY, BROTHERHOOD OF DISCIPLES OF CHRIST, KANSAS CITY, MO.

In the annals of Religious History, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, and David appear to have been the earliest and most persistent advocates of the masculine idea in religion. These men were not priests, but rather were businessmen, cattlemen, ranchers, statesmen, and warriors. Caleb, Gideon, Samuel and Isaiah were men of affairs and not ministers. Saul was probably the first man upon earth to organize a Brotherhood. He had a "band of men whose hearts God had touched." Shortly following the baptism of Jesus he formed another Brotherhood immediately following Pentecost, and out of this Brotherhood grew the first Christian church. Coming down from Pentecost through the years of religious history, we find the Brothers of Sincerity, a Mohammedan Society, organized A. D. 1000. Trade guilds under church patronage were first formed by Bonaventure in the Roman Catholic Church about 1267, although the Carmelites, a confraternity of the same church was formed a few years previous, or in 1251. The purpose of the Trade Guilds was the uplifting of those who labored with their hands, and the Carmelites had as their chief motive, the rescuing and ransoming of Christians held in captivity by the Mohammedans. Patronage extended by the church in exchange for services and gifts soon built up a membership of men of the world in these confraternities, and the system of monasteries with attendant evils of idleness and debauchery overcame the original aims of the organizations. The system of confraternities died during the Reformation, but the Society of Jesus (Jesuits) organized by Ignatius Loyola in 1539 infused new life into the idea, and the confraternities flourished again, with much that was distasteful to the State, such as feasting and disorder in general, both in Italy and France. The idea prevailed for centuries, or until 1882, when the Italian government alone dissolved 2,250 confraternities, turning their members, consisting mainly of monks recruited from the laity, into the street, thus relieving the church of an unpleasant and (for it) an almost impossible task. During the Fifteenth century the Brothers of Common Life came into existence in the Roman church, with members among both clergy and laity. Their aim was to live the simple life. Many of them preached earnestly.

In Germany during the Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries there were established many "Houses of Devotion." These were mainly lay-orders. Religious brotherhoods were numerous during the Middle Ages. Many were established without the authority of the church, and fell under the charge of heresy. The order of Free Masons sprang from such a society. In Italy especially, the brotherhood idea took root and flourished. In the main the object of these brotherhoods was to comfort the sick, relieve the oppressed, assist strangers, and provide for the destitute.

The idea of using laymen in the affairs of the church appears to have been entirely lost sight of during the first three-fourths of the Nineteenth century, especially in America. In England, however, he leaven was at work in the minds and hearts of great religious thinkers. In 1650, one John Balmutto, a layman, grouped about him Godly men, who traveled about and evangelized, rendering services of mercy and help, concerning themselves with both body and soul of those to whom they ministered. They were simply traveling lay preachers. About this time Charles Wesley, then a student in Oxford University, organized the "Holy Club," a society of the college, which later grew, under the leadership of John Wesley, into the Oxford Men's Club, the outgrowth of which is said to be the great Methodist Episcopal Church. John Wesley developed in this Men's Club the lay-preachers, and utilized them in all fields of activity in the church. As a result of this effort in England alone it is said that "today three-fourths of the sermons preached in Wesleyan churches are by laymen."

In France, Frederic Ozanam, a newspaper editor in Paris, organized the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in the Roman Catholic Church in 1833, with nine men attending the first gathering. This society was first organized in America in 1846. The present Catholic lay-order, Knights of Columbus, is an outgrowth of this French society.

The Young Men's Christian Association had its beginning in London, June 6, 1844, when Sir George Williams and eleven other men met in an upper room for prayer and devotions. At this meeting four of the leading denominations of England were represented.

The first Young Men's Hebrew Association was organized in New York in 1874.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew in the Protestant Episcopal Church was organized in Chicago in 1883 by the late James M. Houghteling, a banker; and but twelve men were present at the first meeting. This is the oldest and probably the strongest and most effective of the denominational brotherhoods.

The Brotherhood of Andrew and Philip, an Interdenominational Men's Movement, was organized in 1888 by Rev. Dr. Rufus W. Miller in Philadelphia, and now has chapters in nineteen of the denominations.

The Methodist Brotherhood began in 1875 as the Mizpah Brotherhood in Charlestown, Mass., under the leadership of Rev. Dr. Amos D. Kendig. The Wesley Brotherhood, organized in Philadelphia in 1890 by the Rev. Dr. Thos. B. Neely, and the Brotherhood of St. Paul, organized 1895, later along merged with the Mizpah Brotherhood and formed the Methodist Brotherhood as it is today.

The United Presbyterian Brotherhood began in 1905, the Laymen's Missionary Movement in 1906, the Baptist Brotherhood in 1907, growing out of the Brotherhood of the Kingdom (established 1893), an undenominational men's movement—the Presbyterian Brotherhood in 1907. In 1908 the Congregational Brotherhood was inaugurated in Detroit, Michigan, and in the same year, the League of Universalist Laymen, the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, the Southern Presbyterian Brotherhood, the Lutheran Brotherhood, and in 1909 the Otterbein Brotherhood in the United Brethren Church, and the League of Unitarian Laymen were organized with national or international officers.

The Gideons (Christian Travelers Association) was formed in 1899 by John H. Nicholson, of Janesville, Wisconsin, and S. E. Hill, of Beloit, Wisconsin. The story of this society forms a unique chapter in the history of religious progress during the closing months of the Nineteenth century.

In the above treatment of the history of lay-leadership, the writer has not dealt with the agitation of the subject, which has been carried on through religious and secular press at various intervals since 1890, both in America and abroad. One notable example will serve in this regard. The Brotherhood of Christian Unity was proposed by Mr. Theodore F. Steward at Orange, N. J., in 1891, with the avowed purpose of bringing the various denominations in to unity. Articles were published in the Contemporary Review (1890), Review of Reviews (1892), The Arena (1892-3), Christian Literature (1893-4). Nor have I attempted to touch upon the Men and Religion Forward Movement in America, which but recently held its closing and climacteric session in the Christian Congress in New York City. This Movement has a unique history, and a literature distinctly its own. The uniqueness consists in the fact that the Men and Religion Forward Movement was a practical combination of all the denominational and interdenominational agencies in a gigantic endeavor to arouse the manhood of America to a proper sense of their responsibility to Christ and the Church. On account of the valuable and completely up-to-date and authentic literature presented by these participating organizations in the form of syllabi, at the Christian Congress, reference to the same is purposely brief. For a comprehensive and exhaustive treatise, please examine the books and pamphlets appended.

ADDENDA.

"The Brotherhood and the Church," The Presbyterian Board of Pub., Philadelphia, Pa.

"Modern Church Brotherhoods," by Wm. B. Patterson, F. H. Revell & Co., New York, N. Y.

Syllabus of the Brotherhood Movement.

Syllabus of the Young Men's Christian Association.

Syllabus of The Gideons.

Syllabus of The Laymen's Missionary Movement.

Presented at the Christian Congress, New York, April, 1912.

Published by the Association Press, 124 East 28th Street, New York, N. Y.

International Encyclopedia, Vol. 3, pp. 486-7.

Church Review, 1890, pp. 204-212.

Bliss Encyclopedia of Social Reform, p. 192.

International Journal of Ethics (1897-8), pp. 439-60.

National Review No. 70, p. 515.

Wireless Whispers

The Call of Brotherhood

Have you heard it, the dominant call
Of the city's great cry, and the thrall
And the throb and the pulse of its life
And the touch and the stir of its strife,
As amid the dread dust and the din
It wages its battle of sin?

Have you felt in the crowds of the street
The echo of mutinous feet
As they march to their final release,
As they struggle and strive without peace?
Marching how, marching where, and to what?
Oh! by all that there is, or is not,
We must march, too, and shoulder to shoulder!
If a frail sister slip, we must hold her,
If a brother be lost in the strain
Of the infinite pitfalls of pain,
We must love him, and lift him again.
For we are the guarded, the shielded,
And yet we have wavered and yielded
To the sins that we could not resist.
By the right of the joys we have missed,
By the right of the deeds left undone,
By the right of our victories won,
Perchance we their burdens may bear,
As brothers with right to our share.
The baby who pulls at the breast
In its pitiful purpose to wrest
The milk that has dried in the vein,
That is sapped by life's fever and drain;
The turbulent prisoners of toil,
Whose faces are black with the soil
And scarred with the sins of the soul,
Who are paying the terrible toll
Of the way they have chosen to tread,
As they march on in truculent dread—
And the old, and the weary, who fall—
Oh! let us be one with them all!

By the infinite fear of our fears,
By the passionate pain of our tears,
Let us hold out our impotent hands,
Made strong by Jehovah's commands.
The god of the militant poor
Who are stronger than we to endure
Let us march in the front of the van
Of the brotherhood valiant of man!
—CORINNE ROOSEVELT ROBINSON, in Scribner's Magazine.

Iceland is a Utopia

Jails, Liquor and Illiterates are Unknown on the Little Island

Iceland has no jails and no penitentiary. There is no court and only one policeman. Not a drop of alcoholic liquor is made on the island. Its 78,000 people are total abstainers, since they will not permit any liquor to be imported.

There is not an illiterate person on the island, nor a child ten years old unable to read. The system of public schools is practically perfect. Much of the improvement is due to the abolition of the liquor traffic and prohibition of all alcoholic beverages in this compact little island of the North.—Temperance.

* * *

Luther on "How to Read the Bible"

Martin Luther used to teach his children to read the Bible in the following way: First, read through one book carefully, then study chapter by chapter, and then verse by verse, and lastly word by word, for he said: "It is like a person shaking a fruit tree. First shaking the tree and gathering up the fruit which falls to the ground, and then shaking each branch, and afterward each twig of the branch, and last of all, looking carefully under each leaf to see that no fruit remains. In this way, and in no other, shall we also find the hidden treasures that are in the Bible."—Selected.

* * *

Farming for Religion

In order to raise money for installing a furnace in a church at Olathe, Kansas, the teachers of two Sunday-school classes composed of men conceived the idea of renting a few acres of ground and putting in a corn crop. Ed Hoff, a farmer who belongs to the class, agreed to furnish twenty acres of ground, the teams with which to work it and the meals for men when they were working in the field. Mr. Hoff agreed to take one-third of the crop for his rent.

On account of the extremely busy season the corn was cultivated thoroughly only once, but it is estimated it will make at least fifty bushels to the acre. Corn sells readily on the local market for 60 cents a bushel. The church will therefore receive several hundred dollars for their enterprise.

Brotherhood Rally Song

Tune: "We're Marching to Zion."

BY J. E. MYERS, CORONA, CAL.

Come, Brothers, one and all,
And join our noble band;
Oh, listen now to duty's call,
Oh, listen now to duty's call,
And lend a helping hand,
And lend a helping hand.

CHORUS.

We're banded together,
Hand and heart together,
We're bravely working together
For Jesus, our Savior and King.

Look all around and see,
Along life's rugged way,
The work that's needing you and me,
The work that's needing you and me,
To save those gone astray,
To save those gone astray.

On ev'ry hand are those
Who need our love and care,
Bowed down with ills and griefs and woes,
Bowed down with ills and griefs and woes,
That drive them to despair,
That drive them to despair.

For those by toil oppressed,
We need to point the way
To Him who came to give them rest,
To Him who came to give them rest,
And cheer them ev'ry day.
And cheer them ev'ry day.

Come, then, and join our band,
This loyal Brotherhood;
Join in and help us all you can,
Join in and help us all you can,
Make it a pow'r for good,
Make it a pow'r for good.

* * *

New Albany Brotherhood Entertains the Boys

BY HARVEY PEAKE.

September 30th the Brotherhood of Central Church, New Albany, Ind., were the hosts of the boys of the church.

A program was rendered by the Boys' Work Committee and included an ice cream treat. 44 boys and 32 men were present.

An address was made by Mr. Levi Scott, of the Indiana Reformatory at Jeffersonville.

The Boys' Work Committee of this Brotherhood is a live wire and doing splendid work.

* * *

The Secret is Out

With the resignation of P. H. Welshimer, who prepared our Bible Lesson Helps from September, 1909, to February, 1912, one of our Directors, T. W. Grafton, undertook the preparation of these notes. It was at his suggestion that the name of the editor was omitted and has not been made public until this time. The notes have met with universal commendation on all sides and our modest Bible School Editor has finally consented to allow his name to appear at the head of those pages which come from his fertile mind. That these notes have been prepared by a genius in man-handling has gone without saying, but now that his name is known the stock market of the notes and he who prepares them will be materially enhanced. Long may his pen wave over these pages.

* * *

Police Boost Sale of Bibles

The Wilmette police refuse to arrest or send out of town any book agent who cares to sell the Bible to residents of Wilmette.

Yestrday the police received a call from a prominent woman who asked them to arrest a book agent who she said was annoying the residents of her neighborhood.

When the police learned he was selling copies of the Bible at a reasonable cost they told him to put as many of the books in the homes as he could.—Chicago Tribune.

* * *

Education in Missions

Elsewhere in this magazine we hope to present, for the information of our readers, a co-operative plan of Education in Missions for the advancement of the cause of all of our organized work. There is no one thing so neglected at the present time in our church as Missionary Education. We have Mission Programs, to be sure, but they are generally for a day, a week, or a month, and cover only one phase of the Missionary propaganda. What we need most is an adequate Missionary Program for the whole church for all the time. Such a program has been feebly outlined in the plan presented. If the plan is concurred in by the societies, it is very probable that campaigns will be under way by Christmas. Don't you hope they will be?

* * *

Illinois Brotherhood Convention

The Illinois Brotherhood Convention this year was held with the State Convention at Centralia. J. A. Barnett, the efficient Chairman of last year, was re-elected, together with A. I. Zeller, another minister of ability and power, to serve the cause of men's work in the Prairie State for the ensuing year. Barnett is a patient and persistent advocate of the work for men, and Zeller is likewise an enthusiast. There are approximately one hundred thousand members of our church in Illinois, and half are men and boys, distributed throughout the 769 churches of the state. At the State Convention a Men's Dinner was held, at which J. A. Barnett made his report as Chairman, outlining what work had been done and progress made during the year. Ten-minute addresses were made by C. L. DePew, A. I. Zeller, and S. E. Fisher. Literature was distributed and the Men and Religion Charts were on exhibition. In writing of the outlook, Chairman Barnett says: "The luncheon was a success in every way in spite of the fact that it was on the last evening of the Convention, and a large number of delegates had gone home." A letter from Zeller, who shares the responsibility with Barnett the coming year, says. "Barnett has done good work, and he has done it in the face of obstacles which no one knows better than I. There is a big day for the Brotherhood just dawning in Illinois. I am willing to get under the load or on top of it or back of it, whatever is necessary to make the Brotherhood a go in Illinois." As this is Presidential year, let us say "Hurrah for Barnett and Zeller." They will receive the heartiest coöperation from the National office.

* * *

Regarding the Federal Council

The Second Quadrennial of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America will convene at Chicago, December 4th-10th. The place of meeting, at this writing, is not announced, but further announcement will be made through our weekly papers.

Very few of our churchmen have a proper conception of what this Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America is, and what it proposes to do for the churches. It is a long story and would take up much valuable space to attempt it in the columns of CHRISTIAN MEN. If you are interested, however, an inquiry addressed to Dr. Chas. S. MacFarland, the Executive Secretary, 215 Fourth Ave., New York City, will bring you the desired information. In the judgment of those who are competent to speak in regard to the Federal Council, it is doing a magnificent piece of work for the combined Protestant church. According to their literature, 31 denominations and the Disciples of Christ are engaged in this coöperation. The Federal Council is doing much to promote efficiency, economy and unity in the operation of Protestant churches, and, while it is necessarily a very slow moving body, it is making very distinct progress in a number of ways. For instance, the agitation for one day in seven as a day of rest for toilers is meeting with splendid success. The most notable achievement in this regard is the entire abolition of Sunday work in all of the postoffices of this country. This movement is in a fair way to succeed in other lines of industry and it is safe to predict that within another decade a host unthought of progress will have been reported.

The Federal Council is acting as the coöperative agency in the continuation of the Men and Religion Forward Movement Campaign. The Quadrennial at Chicago is worthy of a liberal attendance of the people. The Federal Council is supported by voluntary contributions of individuals and a large number of our ministers and business men are sustaining members of the Council. Of course our people as a body maintain the same relation to this movement as to any other movement and that according to the degree of coöperation we manifest.

Christian Men is Making Good

BY J. E. MEYERS, CORONA, CAL.

No, I don't want to miss a single number of CHRISTIAN MEN. I have simply put off renewing from time to time. I like CHRISTIAN MEN for its optimism, its enthusiasm, its plain, practical, common-sense way of handling present-day problems. I especially appreciate its treatment of the Bible School lessons, which approach very near the ideal. One who really wants to reach the hearts of his pupils can't afford to waste his soul-vitality in wading through an encyclopedia in preparation of the lessons. Much less can he afford to bring to the class a mass of material 99 per cent of which is practically useless so far as meeting the real needs of the class is concerned.

* * *

Regarding Wireless Whispers

To relieve curiosity of numerous inquirers, we will say that this column is moulded with material gathered from approximately 700 aggressive men's organizations. The impression that these articles were the work of a single individual is not well founded, to speak politely. It would require the concentrated effort of an extraordinary human dynamo to supply this fund of literature single-handed and alone.

* * *

Macfarlane Making Good in Literature

Our friends frequently request information regarding the whereabouts and condition of servitude of P. C. Macfarlane, formerly General Secretary of the Brotherhood Movement. We are happy to say that Mr. Macfarlane is devoting his time exclusively to literary pursuits and the acceptance of his contributions by leading magazines of the country is evidence of the fact that he is making tremendously good. A series of articles on the great preachers of this country is at this writing being concluded in Collier's Weekly. Other articles are appearing in monthly periodicals and we understand a more extensive manuscript will soon be issued in book form from

Mr. Macfarlane's pen. The photograph reproduced herewith is of Mr. Macfarlane in his summer residence at Yardley, Pennsylvania, in conference with Mr. Wm. M. Daley, of the staff of Everybody's Magazine. Mr. Macfarlane's residence is in New York City.

* * *

World's Sunday-School Convention

Over in Zurich, Switzerland, next July, the World's Sunday-School Association will hold its seventh convention. Several steamships have been chartered to carry special parties from America, and announcement just issued over the signature of Marion Lawrance, the General Secretary of the American Section, indicates that 2,000 delegates from North America are expected. A neat booklet entitled "The Conquest of the World Through the Sunday-School" has just been issued, which outlines fully the work of the convention, and those anticipating attendance upon this most pleasant and profitable assembly will do well to communicate with Marion Lawrance, 1416 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

* * *

Moses' Law of Brotherhood

If there be among you a poor man of one of thy brethren within any of thy gates, in thy land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not harden thine heart, nor shut thine hand from thy poor brother;

But thou shalt open thine hand wide unto him, and shalt surely lend him sufficient for his need, in that which he wanteth.

Beware that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eyes be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought; and he cry to the Lord against thee, and it be sin unto thee.

Thou shalt surely give him, and thine heart shall not be grieved when thou givest unto him: because that for this thing the Lord thy God shall bless thee in all thy works, and in all that thou puttest thine hand unto.

For the poor shall never cease out of the land; therefore I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thine hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy, in thy land.—Deut. XV:7-11.

* * *

Report of Special Committee on Illinois Brotherhood

At the Brotherhood session of the Centralia convention, Chairman J. A. Barnett, by instruction from the convention, appointed a committee on recommendations and nominations for the year 1912-1913, as follows: H. J. Reynolds, Camp Point; C. E. French, Virginia;

A. I. Zeller, Petersburg, who reported as follows at the Brotherhood luncheon:

"Your committee respectfully recommends that the interests of the Brotherhood of the Disciples of Christ in Illinois be placed under the watch-care of a committee of two for 1912-1913, the same to be J. A. Barnett, of Danville, and A. I. Zeller, of Petersburg, Ill. It is further recommended that our State Board be asked to accord, bestow or grant to the Brotherhood interests the privilege of representation in the regular meetings of the State Board.

"Respectfully,

"H. J. REYNOLDS,
"C. E. FRENCH,
"A. I. ZELLER."

(The above resolution was adopted by unanimous vote at the Brotherhood luncheon, Sept. 5th.)

* * *

Speaking of Contests

BY P. H. WELSHIMER.

P. H. WELSHIMER

The First Christian Bible School, Canton, Ohio, and the eleven Bible Schools of the Disciples Union, of Cleveland, carried on an attendance contest through two months recently. Owing to the larger enrollment and larger number of organizations, Cleveland offered Canton a handicap of five hundred per Sunday, which was accepted. The attendance of the schools per Sunday, on the contending sides, after deducting Cleveland's five hundred, was as follows:

CANTON	CLEVELAND
July 7..1,887	2,287
July 14..1,773 (storm)	2,142
July 21.. 539 (severe storm)	1,759 (showers)
July 28..2,302	2,020
Aug. 4..2,231	2,152
Aug. 11..2,162 (rain)	1,455 (rain)
Aug. 18..2,951	2,077
Aug. 25..3,861	2,808
17,706	16,700

Canton won the contest by 1,006.

A Week of Home Missions

BY I. N. M'CASH, SECRETARY AMERICAN CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

I. N. McCASH

Many readers of CHRISTIAN MEN are not aware of a nation-wide plan to educate the people in American Missions. Home Mission Week is the name of an uprising, November 17th-24th inclusive. It is not an undertaking, for the enterprise is to be kept out of the hands of an undertaker. It is not a movement, for the public has become surfeited with movements. It is an organized effort which will express itself in local churches and communities. While there may be some experts on American Missions who will figure prominently in strategic places, all parts of our country will be in the spot-light and affected alike.

Prior to Home Mission Week, a systematic educational campaign, beginning September 1st, will cover the three following months. The Home Missions Council and the Council of Women for Home Missions, representing thirty-six societies, have united in this campaign. Almost the entire number of Protestant churches of America are thus officially enlisted. From a central office in New York, 2,500 cities in the United States with a population of 2,500, or over, will be reached by locally organized committees. Through these committees a great Home Missionary demonstration will be given. Outside and beyond the named cities, local congregations will join in the observance of a nation-wide program. The following plan has been outlined and adopted:

On Sunday, November 17th, at the morning service, the minister or a chosen speaker will discuss, Our Country's Debt to Christ.

In the evening, Units in Making our Country God's Country.

Monday, November 18th, American Indians, Africans and Asiatics.

Tuesday, November 19th, The Frontier and the Island Possessions.

Wednesday, November 20th, The Immigrants.

Thursday, November 21st, The Rural Regions and the Cities.

Friday, November 22d, American Social Problems.

Saturday, November 23d, Prayer and Fellowship.

Sunday, November 24th, a. m., Our Country's Opportunity for Christ; p. m., Unity in Making our Country God's Country.

These subjects will be presented with fresh facts gathered and freely distributed through syndicated literature. Women will hold conferences each afternoon, in the local churches or in homes, for the purpose of discussing phases of subjects peculiarly interesting to women. Printed programs and suggestions will be prepared by the central office for many special meetings. Local committees will be held responsible for a final mass meeting to be held in every community on the evening of November 24th. On that occasion, churches will unite and give emphasis to the home missionary cause. The best speakers available will present the unmet religious needs of the Home Land.

There is promise of great effectiveness through methods employed in preparing and distributing literature. One plan embraces the preparation of a series of twelve posters on American social and religious problems. These posters are to be used each week in the three months of the preliminary period. These posters will be sent directly from the New York office to committeemen and interested persons selected by the various Home Mission Boards. They are to be without expense to the local congregation. Every Protestant religious body in the Home Land may, for the asking, be supplied with a complete set of posters.

Quantities of literature, in addition to posters, in forms of suggestive programs and plans of committee organization, will be distributed. Daily newspapers, religious periodicals, magazines, and church publications will be employed to exploit plans and create enthusiasm. Every Saturday, in the three months' preliminary campaign, there will be given to newspapers in more than 100 cities, syndicated articles on Negroes, Indians, The Frontier, Spanish Americans, Country Life, Immigrants, Civic Problems, Women and Children in Industries, Social Conditions, The Saloon versus Temperance Reform, The Church a Social Factor, The Church as a Religious Force and A United Church for America's Sake. It is hoped that great magazines will give special articles in their November issues on the Home Mission questions of our day. Such articles will be prepared by writers who enjoy national notoriety. Fresh information upon all these vital questions will be furnished editors, pastors and evangelists for editorials and missionary addresses.

Embodied in the general plan, is contemplated the organization of study classes for American Missions. Seed will be sown in the minds of our youth to be harvested in coming years. Such educational activity will create at the same time a new church constituency. The present supporters of all our Home Missionary enterprises have received their training and date their missionary interest from childhood. A new generation of missionary enthusiasts must be generated if the expansion of Christ's Kingdom is to continue.

Finally, Home Mission Week will be an attempt to lay upon the heart and conscience of all followers of Christ the paramount need of His Gospel in every relation of life. It will bring to the consciousness of every patriot the fact that America's civilization cannot endure without Christianity. It will be a nation-wide demonstration of such power, through simultaneous effort, that the unity of God's people, which our Lord craved, will receive a mighty impetus.

The Phillips Bible Institute

BY P. H. WELSHIMER.

The late Thomas W. Phillips, of New Castle, Pa., for several years talked with ministers, educators and publishers in the Christian Church concerning the establishing of a Bible Institute which would enable young men who could not take a college course, to equip themselves for the ministry of the Word in the country and village churches. He also desired to provide a course of instruction for Bible School workers, elders and deacons, associate pastors, pastoral helpers, etc. In the early summer, after consulting with several brethren, he decided to locate such an institute in Canton, Ohio, in connection with the First Christian Church of that city. His reasons for coming to Canton were that the church has the largest membership of any of our congregations and is unsurpassed in its equipment for practical educational and evangelistic work. The Canton Bible School has the largest average attendance of any school in the world and uses methods of organization and instruction which are sane and businesslike. These features helped in deciding the location.

The institute is intended to reach five distinct classes of students.

First: Elders, deacons and Bible school workers who feel the need of additional equipment to fit them for efficient work in local churches.

Second: Ministers, who while in college, were unable to get such courses as are offered here, especially those dealing with the history of our movement and setting forth our literature and plea.

Third: Young people who wish to engage in Christian service but who cannot take the regular college course. Some have not the money; others are needed at home to help support the family, while still others are debarred from our colleges by the present entrance requirements, while some are beyond college age.

Fourth: Those who have had courses in colleges but have no instruction in Christian service. The Bible Institute will give opportunity for the practical side of preparation.

Fifth: Those who have completed a high school course, who wish to devote all their lives to studies which will directly equip them for a life work. The correspondence course will enable many to equip themselves for service who could not otherwise do so.

It is hoped in many of the churches, classes will be organized under the direction of the pastor or some able leader in the church. Work will be done in connection with the institute under the direction of such a preacher or worker. Several churches in Ohio have planned to have students from the institute do preaching for them while pursuing the studies here. Several others have secured employment in restaurants, hotels, and various other lines of work in the city, which will enable them to work their way through school.

In the first five weeks after the books were opened, over 80 were enrolled in the institute. The trustees are Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., Benjamin D. Phillips, J. K. Baxter, O. E. Sala, H. B. Webber, E. L. Hang, P. H. Welshimer, and H. C. Hodges.

The board has been most fortunate in securing the services of Martin L. Pierce, of Johnson Bible College, to be dean of the institute. Brother Pierce has had fourteen years experience in Bible college work in Tennessee. He is a student of Hiram, Butler, Kimberlin Heights and the University of Michigan.

P. M. Kendall, known to the brotherhood of the Disciples as one of the leading song evangelists and personal workers, has accepted a call to teach in the Institute and will move to Canton September first, and begin his duties. Mr. Kendall is a graduate of Kentucky University, has traveled extensively through Palestine and the Orient, has assisted in revivals in the leading churches of our brotherhood from coast to coast and is in full sympathy with the work which the Institute proposes to do. For the present, classes will meet in the rooms of the First Christian Church; later steps will be taken towards securing other permanent quarters.

EDITOR'S NOTE: P. H. Welshimer, the author of this informing article, is pastor of the Christian Church at Canton, Ohio, and one of the instructors of the Phillips Bible Institute. For a number of years he has been a regular contributor of Bible School literature to the press of the church, and for three years was Bible School Editor of Christian Men Magazine. An account of Mr. Welshimer and his work appeared in Christian Men for September, 1909.

Programs for Local Brotherhoods

PROGRAM FOR NOVEMBER.

No. 2.

TOPIC—"Woman in Modern Religious Life."

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn.
2. Scripture reading, First Corinthians, 14:33-35; Proverbs 31:10-30.
3. Prayer.
4. Quartette—"What is Home Without a Mother?"

II.—Cultural.

Address: Proper Place of Women in the Home and Church.

- a. Home Work to the Exclusion of the Church.
- b. Church Work to the Exclusion of the Home.
- c. A Happy Medium.

Address: Woman's Place in the Nation and the World.

- a. Her Responsibility for Human Welfare.
- b. Her Method of Expressing Her Sentiments by Voice, Pen or Ballot.

- c. Remarkable Growth of the Suffrage Movement and its Effect in States Where Women Can Vote.

Discussion, resolved that women should have no voice in the affairs of the church, school, or nation, and should not be in competition with men either industrially, socially, politically or religiously.

Bibliography. Read all of Paul's letters in New Testament.

Compare Paul's letters with modern religious practice.

III.—Business.

Roll-call.
Minutes.
Reports of committees.
Unfinished business.
New business.
New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members, silver offering, hymn, benediction.

PROGRAM FOR DECEMBER.

No. 1.

TOPIC—"Payments of Debts Due."

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Going Down the Valley," Brotherhood Hymns, No. 54.
2. Scripture, First Corinthians 16:1-14.
3. Prayer for the aged minister and widow and orphans.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Modern Pension Systems in Industry.

- a. United States Steel Corporation.
- b. Pennsylvania and Other Railway Systems.
- c. Practice of Commercial Concerns to Insure the Lives of Their Head Men.

Address: Government Pension Systems.

- a. The United States Army, Navy and Post Office Departments.
- b. European Old Age Pension Systems.
- c. Governmental Laws Covering Liability.

Address: The Pension System of the Church.

- a. Ministerial Relief in Presbyterian, Methodist and other Bodies.
- b. Ministerial Relief Among the Churches of Christ.

Note—Send to O. L. Orcutt, 120 E. Market St., Indianapolis, for facts and figures including annual report of Ministerial Relief Fund.

Resolved, That the Churches of Christ should adequately support the aged minister, widows and orphans of ministers, with a fund that would make the minimum paid $300 per year.

Resolved, That every Church of Christ should have fellowship in caring for the aged and afflicted who has served his time upon the firing line of the Christian Ministry, and that this Church will see that a liberal offering is taken or if the budget system is in effect that a commensurate portion of the Missionary Funds of this Church are forwarded to the Board of Ministerial Relief immediately following the First Sunday in December, upon which day the offering should be taken. (See Article on Ministerial Relief by W. R. Warren, the new National Field Secretary of the Board of Ministerial Relief, elsewhere in this number of CHRISTIAN MEN.)

III.—Business.

Roll-call.
Minutes.
Reports of committees.
Unfinished business.
New business.
New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members, silver offering, hymn, benediction.

PROGRAM FOR DECEMBER.

No. 2.

TOPIC—The Big Brother.

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn, "Oh, Man, Where is Thy Brother?" Brotherhood Hymns, No. 84.
2. Scripture, First Corinthians 13:1-13.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Living the Love of Christ.

- a. The Love of Christ—What Is It?
- b. How to Feel It.
- c. How to Relate Yourself to Others so That They Will Feel It.
- d. The Collective Manifestation.

Address: Appreciating the Love Christ Gives.

- a. Personal Appreciation.
- b. Family Appreciation.
- c. Community Appreciation.
- d. How Best to Manifest the Same.

(Note—This topic has to do with the Christmas Cheer. Every man and certainly every group of men identified with Sunday-school or Church can act the "big brother" to some unfortunates this Christmas and thus bring cheer to them at a time when, under any other circumstances, they will be overlooked. You can obtain names of worthy boys and girls, men and women, or even whole families, by communicating with public welfare organizations in cities, with township trustee or overseers of the poor in smaller towns and rural communities, or best of all, you may know of some widow or indigent family to whom a well filled basket of food and a package of warm clothing, a load of coal or wood would be an act becoming a "big brother" and thus you will be manifesting the love of Christ and appreciating your own fellowship with the Master.)

Resolved, That this Brotherhood or Bible Class will see to it that some individuals or families will be remembered in this way on Christmas Day, 1912, either directly or through the regular channels of the Church. By a little ingenuity and hard work to bring the matter before the attention of your Church members several weeks prior to your Christmas, you can secure pledges of meat, vegetables, fruit, and other necessities, and especially clothing, sufficient to stock a number of baskets and those possessing vehicles could be enlisted to do the delivering on Christmas morning.

III.—Business.

- Roll-call.
- Minutes.
- Reports of committees.
- Unfinished business.
- New business.
- New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members, silver offering, hymn, benediction.

PROGRAM FOR JANUARY.

No. 1.

TOPIC—The Home.

I.—Devotional.

1. Hymn.
2. Scripture, Mark 10:1-31.

II.—Cultural.

Address: Safe-Guarding the Home.

- a. Family Altar.
- b. Grace Before Meat.
- c. Regular Attendance at Church and Sunday-school Services.
- d. Family Fellowship Between Parents and Children and Between Children Themselves.

Address: The Enemies of the Home.

- a. The Saloon, Dance Hall, Pool Room, Etc.
- b. How to Regulate the Good and Eradicate the Evil.
- c. Wholesome Recreation an Antidote.

Address: The Value of the Home to the Church and Society.

- a. The Absolute Unity of the Home.
- b. Contagion of Family Atmosphere.
- c. Recognition of Authority.
- d. Its Influence Upon Every Member.
- e. Its Industrial, Social and Religious Ratifications.

III.—Business.

- Roll-call.
- Minutes.
- Reports of committees.
- Unfinished business.
- New business.
- New members received.

IV.—Social and Closing.

Introduction of new members, silver offering, hymn, benediction.

Say you saw it in "Christian Men"

Any Size, Colonel

Colonel Jasper, having a new pair of shoes that hurt his corns, decided to give them away to one of the negro hostlers at the hotel livery stable and picked out Zeke as a likely subject of his generosity when he saw the old fellow shambling toward him wearing a pair of tattered shoes that looked like sandals.

"Zeke, what size shoes do you wear?" he called to him.

The old negro stopped short in expectation.

"Any size, cunnel!" he exclaimed earnestly. "Any size!"—Judge.

Which Road to Take

"Sistren and brethren," exhorted Uncle Abraham, a recent promotion from the plough to the pulpit, according to Lippincott's, "on de one side er dis here meetin'-house is a road leading to destruction, on de odder is a road gwine to hell and damnation. Which you gwine pursoo? Dar is de internal question: Which is you gwine pursoo?"

"Law, Brer Aberham," spoke Sister Eliza from the back pew, "I speck I'm er gwine home throo de woods!"

Freak Advertisements

The following queer advertisements have been collected and printed by Philadelphia club women:

"Bulldog for sale; will eat anything; very fond of children."

"Wanted—A boy to be partly outside and partly behind the counter."

"Widow in comfortable circumstances wishes to marry two sons."

"Annual sale now on; don't go elsewhere to be cheated; come in here."

"Wanted—By a respectable girl, her passage to New York; willing to take care of children and a good sailor."

"Lost—Near Highgate Archway, an umbrella belonging to a gentleman with a bent rib and a bone handle."

"An airy bedroom for a gentleman 22 feet long and 11 feet wide."

"An exchange contains the startling news that 'A carload of brick came in for a walk through the park.'"

Flash by Brainless

A dead man is known by the estate he leaves.

Fully Explained

"That explains where my clothes-line went to," said an Iowa woman who found her husband had hung himself in the barn.

"Not Born—Got Stepmutter"

A small Norwegian lad presented himself before a Minnesota school teacher, who first asked him his name.

"Pete Petersen," he replied.

"And how old are you?" the teacher next asked.

"I not know how old I bane," said the lad.

"Well, when were you born?" continued the teacher.

"I not born at all; I got stepmutter."—Metropolitan.

Piggy

A few weeks ago Simp Summers caught a crow, split its tongue and began to teach it to talk. He had only taught it to say "piggy" when the crow escaped and returned to the woods. As a result there isn't a range hog in this section that will be fit to go on the market this fall. They have run after that crow until they are as thin as a first reader.

Simp Summers's mule attempted to bray in the face of a gale. A hen being carried along by the velocity of the wind entered the open portals of the mule's face and lodged near the brink of its throat. Simp went out to the barn a few moments later and was frightened into a fit when the mule thrust its head out of the barn door and cackled.

Seven Daughters Enough for Any Man

The Rev. John W. Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame College, tells of a priest who was giving a lecture on the evil of great wealth. In the audience was a man the priest knew. The man was the father of seven girls, and the lecturer pointed to this man as an example.

"Think," said the priest, "of being the proud father of seven daughters. Think who is happier—the man with a million dollars or the man who is the father of seven daughters."

"I will ask you, Mr. Sheldon, who do you think is the happier?" said the priest, pointing to the subject of his argument.

The man arose and said: "Father, I think that a man with seven daughters is the happier. A man with a million dollars worries for more. A man with seven daughters never does."

OUR MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

THOMAS W. GRAFTON, Editor.

LESSON 2—NOVEMBER 10.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY.

TEXT—Hosea 7. GOLDEN TEXT—Isa. 5:11.

1 When I would heal Israel, then is the iniquity of Ephraim uncovered, and the wickedness of Samaria; for they commit falsehood, and the thief entereth in, and the troop of robbers ravageth without. 2 And they consider not in their hearts that I remember all their wickedness; now have their own doings beset them about; they are before my face. 3 They make the king glad with their wickedness and the princes with their lies. 4 They are all adulterers; they are as an oven heated by the baker; he ceaseth to stir the fire, from the kneading of the dough, until it be leavened. 5 On the day of our king the princes made themselves sick with the heat of wine; he stretched out his hand with scoffers. 6 For they have made ready their heart like an oven, while they lie in wait: their baker sleepeth all the night; in the morning it burneth as a flaming fire. 7 They are all hot as an oven, and devour their judges; all their kings are fallen; there is none among them that calleth unto me.

8 Ephraim, he mixeth himself among the peoples; Ephraim is a cake not turned. 9 Strangers have devoured his strength, and he knoweth it not; yea, gray hairs are here and there upon him, and he knoweth it not. 10 And the pride of Israel doth testify to his face; yet they have not returned unto Jehovah their God, nor sought him, for all this. 11 And Ephraim is like a silly dove, without understanding: they call unto Egypt, they go to Assyria. 12 When they shall go, I will spread my net upon them; I will bring them down as the birds of the heavens; I will chastise them, as their congregation hath heard. 13 Woe unto them! for they have wandered from me; destruction unto them! for they have trespassed against me: though I would redeem them, yet they have spoken lies against me. 14 And they have not cried unto me with their heart, but they howl upon their beds; they assemble themselves for grain and new wine; they rebel against me. 15 Though I have taught and strengthened their arms, yet do they devise mischief against me. 16 They return, but not to him that is on high; they are like a deceitful bow; their princes shall fall by the sword for the rage of their tongue: this shall be their derision in the land of Egypt.

Reforms must be measured by epochs, not by seasons. From year to year but little progress appears to be made in the cause of temperance. But from century to century great improvement has been witnessed. A century ago a world's temperance Sunday would have been unthinkable. Grog was sold at every corner grocery, along with coffee and sugar. The deacon of best standing in the church ran the still. The decanter was an indispensable article in every well regulated family. The preacher frequently found the bottle of spirits an aid to spiritual fervor as he entered the pulpit. The first step toward total abstinence was the organization of the Total Abstinence Society in 1809. Since then the temperance army has been growing, and in the face of bitter opposition we have witnessed the incoming of a wave of temperance reform that is world wide today. The Protestant churches without exception are on the side of temperance reform. The Catholic church has a large and growing total abstinence society. The great industries, in the interest of good workmanship and dividends, are putting the ban on even moderate drinking. Science is adding her protest against the use of alcohol n any form as a beverage. Temperance education has been introduced into the schools of nearly every state in the Union. What marvelous progress the last century has witnessed in the treatment of the temperance question!

The Age Long Curse. Our lesson today shows that as far back as Hosea's time, more than 700 years before the coming of Christ, the drink-curse was producing its ripened harvest of debauchery and crime and misery. Referring to the coronation of a new king in Israel, Hosea writes, "On the day of our king the princes made themselves sick with the heat of wine;" and then follows a portrayal of scenes of vice and shame unknown today outside the brothel, which we still weakly tolerate. Though he writes of those in exalted positions, he denounces them as guilty of every moral crime. They lie. They steal. They commit adultery. They scoff at religion. They turn their nights into hideous orgies. It was because of the debasing, blighting effect of the drink habit, that the prophet gave expression to such epithets as "Ephraim is joined to his idols, let him alone." "Ephraim is a cake not turned." "Ephraim is like a silly dove, without understanding." Alcohol has lost nothing of its brain-destroying, body-blighting, soul-perverting power, through the march of centuries. What drink did toward the overthrow of the ancient kingdom of Israel, it has done for the downfall of nations that have since gone to their graves, and it will bring the same fate upon us, if we do not destroy it.

What Drink Does. It is difficult to formulate a summary that will adequately portray the blighting effect of drink on the individual. There is scarcely a woe that it is not in some way responsible for. No more truthful arraignment of the liquor traffic can be found than the following from an address by J. Frank Hanley: "I hate it for the load it straps on labor's back, for the palsied hand it gives to toil, for its wounds to genius, for the tragedies of its might-have-beens. I hate it for the human wrecks it has caused, for the almshouses it peoples, for the prisons it fills, for the insanity it begets, for its countless graves in potter's fields. I hate it for the mental ruin it imposes on its victims, for its spiritual blight, for its moral degradation. I hate it for the crimes it has committed, for the homes it has destroyed, for the hearts it has broken. I hate it for the grief it has caused to womanhood, the scalding tears, the hopes deferred, the strangled aspirations, its burden of want and care. I hate it for its heartless cruelty to the aged, the infirm and helpless, for the shadow it throws upon the lives of children, for its monstrous injustice to blameless little ones." The justice of this arraignment none can question. The only wonder is that in the face of such startling crimes, we meekly submit to the dominion of those who coin the traffic into gain.

What is the Remedy? Men are asking that question as never before. Fathers and mothers are asking it as they look into the faces of their little boys, soon to be thrust out into the path of temptation. Religious workers are asking it, as they face the barrier the drink-curse has reared in the way of Christian progress. Philanthropists are asking it, as they look upon the world of human wreckage that grows in magnitude in the face of their well-meant ministries. What is the remedy? It must be something more than pious homilies and good resolutions. It requires something different from the attacks of ranting pulpiteers and rabid reformers. In the first place it demands some movement in which all good people can unite. There are enough men and women in the Bible Schools of the country to drive the saloon out, if they were to join hands in any sort of a rational measure. In the second place, our good intentions must be crystalized into votes. So long as the saloon is linked through licenses with city, state and national government, it can only be dislodged by a majority of the people who compose the government in those different units, and the only effective way of giving expression to their desire is through the ballot-box. When right-thinking people who desire to see the saloon eliminated, bury their petty religious and political differences and march to the ballot-box in solid rank, the nation will be freed from the drink curse. Will it ever be done? Well, look back over the progress of the past century and do your duty, and we may not have to wait so very long for the nation's new emancipation.

Arrow Points. One of the best evidences that the cause of temperance is making headway, is that we have in our Bible School calendar today a world's temperance Sunday. * * * When we note what a brood of vipers the saloon turns loose on the community, the wonder is that any sane man would give his sanction to the planting of a single saloon in his city. V. 1-4. * * * It seems strange that any man of ordinary understanding would start on a path that has led to the downfall of millions, viz., the moderate use of alcoholic drinks. V. 8. * * * Drink not only leads to the downfall of individuals, but of nations. Shall America's be a drunkard's grave? V. 16.

LESSON 3—NOVEMBER 17.

THE GREAT QUESTION.

TEXT—Mark 8:27; 9:1. GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 16:16.

27 And Jesus went forth, and his disciples, into the villages of Cæsarea Philippi: and on the way he asked his disciples, saying unto them, Who do men say that I am? 28 And they told him, saying, John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; but others, One of the prophets. 29 And he asked them, But who say ye that I am? Peter answereth and saith unto him, Thou art the Christ. 30 And he charged them that they should tell no man of him.

31 And he began to teach them, that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders, and the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. 32 And he spake the saying openly. And Peter took him, and began to rebuke him. 33 But he turning about, and seeing his disciples, rebuked Peter, and saith, Get thee behind me, Satan; for thou mindest not the things of God, but the things of men. 34 And he called unto him the multitude with his disciples, and said unto them, If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. 35 For whosoever would save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's shall save it. 36 For what doth it profit a man, to gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? 37 For what should a man give in exchange for his life? 38 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of man also shall be ashamed of him, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.

1 And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, There are some here of them that stand by, who shall in no wise taste of death, till they see the kingdom of God come with power.

It is examination day with the disciples. They have been two years and more in the school of Christ. They have listened to His heart-thrilling message. They have witnessed His deeds of marvelous power. They have mingled with the multitude that thronged Jesus' pathway. It is time to examine them on their impressions and knowledge. That they may be free from interruption He took them apart, leading them far to the north in the region of Cæsarea Philippi. Here He takes account of the effect of His ministry. The examination is brief, but comprehensive. Only two questions were asked, but the answers to these questions have since filled the libraries of the world. "Who do men say that I am?" "Who do ye say that I am?" These questions are still before us to be answered by each oncoming generation. On the answer given rests the triumph of the kingdom of heaven.

The World's Estimate of Jesus. "Who do men say that I am?" After these busy fruitful years, what is the popular estimate of his person and character? Teaching and healing, He gave evidence of wisdom greater than the scribes and power that transcended all human achievement. The people have had an opportunity to see, hear, and judge. What is their judgment? What impression has He made on the unthinking multitude? The disciples mingling freely with the throngs that attended His ministry have sensed the popular judgment and they answer, "John the Baptist or one of the prophets." That answer expressed the highest ideal of a gross materialistic age, but it came far short of accounting for the career of Jesus. There is a world-spirit today that is willing to accord Jesus a place among the greatest of men that is dishonoring to Him. Even Robert Ingersoll declared, "For the man Christ Jesus I have the profoundest regard." Renan in his "Life of Jesus" places Him among the mightiest of the mighty sons of earth. Multitudes today who refuse to accept Him as Lord are willing to pay tribute to His goodness and wisdom and beauty as a man. They are willing even to divide Him honors with founders of other religious systems.

The Disciples' Estimate of Jesus. "But who say ye that I am?" That the answer to the first question was disappointing to Jesus, is proven by the query which he presses home to His disciples. "After these two or three years of companionship," He is asking, "is that your estimate of Me?" Peter, speaking for the twelve, answers, and voices the fervent faith of millions of devoted adherents today: "Thou art the Christ, the son of the living God." Jesus received this confession with joy and announced the truth to which they had given expression as the rock foundation upon which was to be built the church that was to bear His name. "Upon this rock I will build my church." Higher honor can never be bestowed upon Jesus than that accorded in Peter's confession. No creed statement has ever been formulated that has improved upon this one. No truth has ever been uttered that has gripped the heart and compelled the loyalty of men like this one. And no estimate of Jesus fits into the phenomena of His life and the audacity of His claims but this one. The answer of the world and the answer of the disciples can never be harmonized. Either He was and is all that the disciples declared Him to be, or He was and is undeserving of the lesser honor the world has been willing to bestow on Him.

Rejected of Men. While accepting the Messianic title, He hastens to disabuse the minds of His disciples of any material conceptions they may have entertained. He is indeed the Christ, but not the Christ of popular expectation. He will "be rejected by the elders and the chief priests and the scribes and be killed." Then how can He be what they have acknowledged Him to be? He will "after three days rise again." It is not surprising that they should crave for Him escape from such a fate or that He should regard the very suggestion as a temptation from His old enemy. Hence His rebuke to the well-meant concern of Peter, "Get thee behind me, Satan." The only way to the accomplishment of His divine mission was that which He here announced, the way of the cross, and any suggestion of escape was a temptation to be fearlessly resisted.

The Conditions of Discipleship. Not only did His course lie up the rugged path of suffering, but there was no other way for His disciples than that trodden by His own bleeding feet. "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." When all our theologies are simmered down, they mean just that, if they are true to the teaching of the Gospel. Confession, repentance, baptism, service, are only steps along the highway that leads to fellowship with Jesus. Self-surrender and self-sacrifice are indispensable traits of the true Christian soldier. The terms may sometimes seem hard, but they are not arbitrary conditions. They grow out of the very nature of our earthly environment. No service in the work of human uplift is possible without sacrifice. If the fallen are to be lifted, somebody must stoop. If the world's burden is to be carried, some back must bend beneath its weight. If the lost are to be found, somebody must forget ease and comfort in seeking them. To be disciples of Jesus, to seek to attain His character and reward, there is no other way.

A Lesson in Profit and Loss. We are all anxious to find the way to make the most of life. But often we mistake the goal and lose the way. We are under the magic spell of the goddess Fortune. We have perverted the scripture to read, "A man's life consisteth in the abundance of the things which he possesseth," and have adopted as a working principle, "While you're gittin' git a-plenty." In the face of the moral and physical wreckage of modern avarice, how timely are the words of Jesus, "What doth it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his life?" Tolstoi tells of a Russian peasant who was offered all the land he could encompass on foot from sun rise to sun set. The man started at a brisk pace, but allured onward by attractive fields, midday found him so far from the starting point that it required him to strain every nerve and redouble his speed to reach it before the sun went down. By a supreme effort he was able to throw himself across the goal in time, and the broad acres were his, but when they picked him up he was dead. But what of the man whose success has been purchased through moral suicide and spiritual death?

Arrow Points. Apart from what any person else has declared concerning Jesus, what is your answer to the question, "Who say ye that I am?" V. 29. * * * If Jesus is indeed the Christ, the Son of the living God, what excuse have you for not yielding allegiance to Him? V. 29. * * * The world has not yet, and never will, improve on Peter's confession of faith. Why not accept it as a sufficient test of discipleship? V. 29. * * * He who would be worthy of the title of discipleship, must follow the Master along the path of self-denial and cross-bearing. "By the thorn road and none other is the mount of vision won." V. 34. * * * Any one who has followed the careers of Jane Addams and Raymond Robins, needs no further comment on the Master's words, "Whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's shall save it." V. 35.

LESSON 4—NOVEMBER 24.

THE TRANSFIGURATION.

TEXT—Mark 9:2-13. GOLDEN TEXT—Luke 9:35.

2 And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them; 3 and his garments became glistering, exceeding white, so as no fuller on earth can whiten them. 4 And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus. 5 And Peter answereth and saith to Jesus, Rabbi, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah. 6 For he knew not what to answer; for they became sore afraid. 7 And there came a cloud overshadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud, This is my beloved Son: hear ye him. 8 And suddenly looking round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves.

9 And as they were coming down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, save when the Son of man should have risen again from the dead. 10 And they kept the saying, questioning among themselves what the rising again from the dead should mean. 11 And they asked him, saying, How is it that the scribes say that Elijah must first come? 12 And he said unto them, Elijah indeed cometh first, and restoreth all things: and how is it written of the Son of man, that he should suffer many things and be set at nought? 13 But I say unto you, that Elijah is come, and they have also done unto him whatsoever they would, even as it is written of him.

Hopes built upon Peter's confession but dashed down when Jesus talked of dying, needed confirmation. The transfiguration scene was the antidote given beforehand for the gloom of Gethsemane and Calvary, and it has been the inspiration to faith and devotion through all these Christian centuries. The scene occurred far up the slopes of Mount Hermon, where Jesus and a few of His trusted disciples had gone for prayer. That it was night is evident from the sleepiness of the disciples (Luke 9:32), the splendor of the illumination and their return to the rest of the company the next day. While neither of the three witnesses has described the scene, Peter and John both allude to it. "This voice which came from heaven," says Peter, "we heard when we were with him in the Holy Mount." John declares, "We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."

The Inner Circle. "Jesus taketh with him Peter, James and John." These were the three best scholars in the school of Jesus. In spiritual sympathy and understanding they surpassed the rest. In selecting reliable witnesses to a scene of transcendent splendor, He chose them. It was not an exhibition of favoritism. He was simply advancing to higher studies those who had demonstrated their fitness for promotion. He does what every sensible teacher and every shrewd business man is doing. He makes His promotions on the basis of efficiency. "Faithful over a few things, ruler over many" is the divine law of advancement. To win promotion to the inner circle of Christian service demands faithfulness in the lesser duties of daily experience. If you have not secured the recognition you think you deserve, or the place of responsibility to which you aspire, review your past record, the service rendered and the spirit in which you have done your work. The inner circle, the circle of life-giving service, is open to all who will fit themselves for it.

The Upper Circle. The real significance of that mountain scene was not the splendor of His transfigured person, the beauty of His garments, nor the brightness of the overshadowing cloud, but the exalted group that met under this heaven-illuminated canopy. "There appeared unto them Moses and Elijah, talking with him." Jesus, Moses and Elijah—never in earthly court was there ever assembled such nobility and power. Moses was the representative of the law and his moral code has found its way into the statute books of every civilized land. Elijah was the representative of the prophets and his spirit has enkindled the zeal of champions of righteousness in every century. Jesus was now the meek and lowly messenger of truth, but soon to be exalted as King of kings and Lord of lords. It is significant that in this circle, representative of the world's three greatest dispensations, the theme of conversation should be that which has enkindled the world's devotion, for "They spoke of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem."

The Supremacy of Christ. "Let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." Peter's ill-timed remark voices the sentiment of multitudes since, who have been willing to accord Jesus a place among the world's leaders. He would place Jesus, Moses and Elijah side by side on the same plane of authority and honor. There is a disposition among a certain class of intellectual leaders today to say, "Jesus is a great prophet, but so was Confucius and Buddha and Socrates and others." Others have failed to distinguish between the law and the Gospel, regarding the words of Moses and Jesus as of equal authority in pointing the way to acceptance with God. The transfiguration scene exalts Jesus to His rightful place of preëminence. As if in answer to Peter's request, a voice out of the luminous cloud speaks: "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him." And then as if that were not sufficient proof of His right to a place of supreme authority in the realm of religious truth, when they raise their eyes again upon the scene, "They saw no man save Jesus only." Moses the law-giver is gone. Elijah the greatest of the prophets is gone. Jesus, whose rightful authority has been attested by a voice from heaven and will later be declared "With power by his resurrection from the dead," is still with them. And He is with us, and claims the undivided affection of our hearts.

The Great Secret. "He charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen." There are experiences, great moments, in our lives that cannot be understood by others and had best be kept to ourselves. Then there are times when a presentation of the higher altitudes of Christian experience would draw men away from the plainer, simpler duties of loving and serving God. It was not time to make known a scene of such splendor while men were still groping their way through the darkness. It would only dazzle their eyes and add to their confusion. It would excite false hopes and contribute to their disappointment. But "When the Son of Man should have risen again from the dead" and faith had found a sure anchorage in the great facts of the Gospel, the story of the transfiguration would contribute to their confidence and brighten their hopes. So they went down the mountain side carrying the great secret in their hearts.

The Spirit and Power of Elijah. One prophetic declaration seems to have fastened itself on the popular mind. That was, that before the Messianic reign "Elijah must first come." The scribes had used it as an argument against the claims of Jesus. Elijah had not yet come, therefore Jesus could not be the expected Messiah. The disciples who witnessed the transfiguration were asking, "Was the appearance of Elijah in the mount the coming of Elijah?" If so, why were they forbidden to proclaim it? In His answer Jesus declares the scribes were right in their expectation, and Elijah had already come, not in the return of the prophet at the transfiguration, but in the person of John the Baptist, who came in the spirit and power of Elijah, and who had suffered death at the hands of Herod. John's person and ministry in a marked way resembled the old prophet of Israel.

Arrow Points. The privilege of the chosen three may be shared by every true disciple, for "God hath raised us up together and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." V. 2. * * * While the mount of transfiguration is a good place to be, it is not a good place to stay, for there is work to be done in the valley. V. 5. * * * No better answer to the question, "Does death end all?" than the appearance of Moses and Elijah alive hundreds of years after they disappeared from earth. V. 4. * * * The best way to find our way through the confusing maze of philosophy and theology is to keep our eye fixed on "Jesus only." V. 8.

LESSON 1—DECEMBER 1.

THE LUNATIC BOY.

TEXT—Mark 9:14-29. GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 9:23.

14 And when they came to the disciples, they saw a great multitude about them, and scribes questioning with them. 15 And straightway all the multitude, when they saw him, were greatly amazed, and running to him saluted him. 16 And he asked them, What question ye with them? 17 And one of the multitude answered him, Teacher, I brought unto thee my son, who hath a dumb spirit; 18 and wheresoever it taketh him, it dasheth him down; and he foameth, and grindeth his teeth, and pineth away: and I spake to thy disciples that they should cast it out; and they were not able. 19 And he answereth them and saith, O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you? how long shall I bear with you? bring him unto me. 20 And they brought him unto him: and when he saw him, straightway the spirit tare him grievously; and he fell on the ground, and wallowed foaming. 21 And he asked his father, How long time is it since this hath come unto him? And he said, From a child. 22 And oftentimes it hath cast him both into the fire and into the waters, to destroy him: but if thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us. 23 And Jesus said unto him, If thou canst! All things are possible to him that believeth. 24 Straightway the father of the child cried out, and said, I believe; help thou mine unbelief. 25 And when Jesus saw that a multitude came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I command thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him. 26 And having cried out, and torn him much, he came out: and the boy became as one dead; insomuch that the more part said, He is dead. 27 But Jesus took him by the hand, and raised him up; and he arose. 28 And when he was come into the house, his disciples asked him privately, How is it that we could not cast it out? 29 And he said unto them, This kind can come out by nothing save by prayer.

How striking the contrast between the lesson of today and that of last Sunday. It is not merely a change of altitude from mountain summit to valley, but a change of atmosphere, from one luminous with heavenly splendor to one rendered stifling and oppressive through human misery and helplessness. Both were essential in training men for work in a world of realities. The mountain for vision, the valley for service. The one to catch a view of God's glory, the other to interpret it to suffering, despairing hearts. Mountain tops offer an inviting prospect, but they are not for the homes of men. Mountain experiences have their value, but we could not live in a state of constant spiritual exaltation. Bunyan's Pilgrim was cheered by views of the Delectable mountain, but his way lay along valleys made hideous by unearthly sounds, and ghostly shadows. So our course is along paths beaten hard by the feet of sinning, suffering, despairing men.

The Perplexed Disciples. While Jesus and the chosen three were enjoying heavenly fellowship, the rest of the apostolic company were experiencing a night of humiliation and distress. A lunatic boy had been brought to them for healing. Remembering that on their missionary tour they had healed the sick and cast out demons through the power that Jesus had given, they now undertook the cure of this afflicted boy, but, to their chagrin, they failed in their attempt. They were utterly powerless and helpless. To add to their mortification the scribes took advantage of the perplexing situation, and began questioning them, using their failure as an opportunity of discrediting the disciples of Jesus before the people. A study of any of the encounters between Jesus and these doctors of the law will reveal the shrewdness and ingeniousness of their method of attack. It was at this hour of defeat and failure that Jesus suddenly appeared, and turned a scene of disaster into a glorious victory.

More Faith Needed. "Why question ye them?" Jesus at once seeks the cause of the disorder and confusion, and learns from the father of the afflicted boy that he had sought the help of the disciples, but "they were not able." What was the trouble? Jesus' answer makes it clear: "O faithless generation, how long shall I be with you?" The rebuke was not for the disciples alone, but for the father and those standing about. The very atmosphere was surcharged with doubtings. After all it may be the father brought the child at the suggestion of these hypocritical scribes who took advantage of Jesus' absence to bring His cause into disfavor. But whatever may have been the motive, the presence of the Master awakens new hope in the father's heart and He breathes a prayer, "If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us." It was the prayer of faith, wrestling with doubt, the prayer we so often pray still in our hours of trial and distress, "Lord, I believe, help thou my unbelief." "I have some faith, give me more faith." That prayer voices the universal need of this generation. It is not greater talent, or larger gain, but more faith. With men of faith to lead, revivals are born where spiritual dearth has reigned. Church buildings have been reared where conditions seemed impossible. Debts have been lifted whose crushing weight was stifling religious enterprise. "All things are possible to him that believeth."

The Boy Reclaimed. In our concern for the perplexed disciples and the distressed father, we are in danger of overlooking an important fact. A boy was healed, reclaimed from an influence that was wrecking his young life and would rob the world of a useful member. We are always overlooking the boy,—we men who have visions of large things. We build our churches for men, plan our services for men, preach our sermons to men, while we give our boys over without constraint to evil influences that lurk along our streets. One day the father and the community will wake up to the fact that another lad, whose endowments fitted him to be a valuable asset to the community, has fallen under evil influence and is on the highway to ruin. Then we go to work building penitentiaries and reformatories and asylums, to protect ourselves against him. The most rational and economic method would be to bring him to Jesus, before his feet have wandered into forbidden paths, and plan for him, care for him, safeguard him, until the character is formed, and his manhood assured. The best work a men's Bible class can do is to take up a definite, effective plan of boys' work and see that every boy in the neighborhood is linked up with it.

The Cause of Our Failures. "Why could not we cast him out?" There is a logical reason for every spiritless church, every lifeless Bible School, every religious failure. If your class is not growing there is a reason. If the protracted meeting was a failure, there is a reason. If your plan of boy work failed, there is a reason. If your prayer-meeting fails to attract or interest, there is a reason. And that reason is to be found in yourself. You have not been willing to pay the price of power and success. "This kind can come out by nothing save by prayer." The disciples had not paid the price and so had failed. It is not merely prayer, but that which must grow out of prayer, if it is sincere. It means that having prayed earnestly for a religious awakening, or a spiritual harvest, or the enlargement of the Bible class, or the salvation of our boys we will make sacrifice to help realize the object of our prayer; that we will give up leisure and pleasure and worldly goods to secure the end sought. When we go about it in that way results are sure to follow. One man of prayer like John Knox was able to shake Scotland. One man of prayer like Moody was able to carry on an evangelism that awakened with religious fervor two continents. One man of prayer, who will put his prayer into daily practice, can put new life and power into the cause of Christ in any community.

Arrow Points. When we allow doubts and questionings to separate us from Jesus, and His word, trouble is sure to begin. V. 14. * * * The demon that needs casting out today is not in the boy, but in the neighborhood in the form of a grog-shop and a billiard-parlor and a few other devices of Satan. V. 17. * * * How many times we stand powerless and helpless in the face of vested wrong when all that we need is the courage born of faith. V. 19. * * * One lesson that we are slow to learn is the irresistible power of a man linked to God by faith. V. 23. * * * The man who has faith enough to pray today, "Lord I believe, help Thou my unbelief," is a man to be reckoned with in the moral battles of tomorrow. V. 24. * * * "Save a man," says Chas. Reign Scoville, "and you save a soul; save a boy and you save a soul plus a life." V. 37. * * * If we would only bring our failures to Jesus in prayer, our defeats would be turned into victories. V. 28.

LESSON 2—DECEMBER 8.

THE CHILD IN THE MIDST.

TEXT—Matt. 18:1-14. GOLDEN TEXT—Matt. 18:10.

1. In that hour came the disciples unto Jesus, saying, Who then is greatest in the kingdom of heaven? 2 And he called to him a little child, and set him in the midst of them, 3 and said, Verily I say unto you, Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven. 4 Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5 And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me: 6 but whoso shall cause one of these little ones that believe on me to stumble, it is profitable for him that a great millstone should be hanged about his neck, and that he should be sunk in the depth of the sea.

7 Woe unto the world because of occasions of stumbling! for it must needs be that the occasions come; but woe to that man through whom the occasion cometh! 8 And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee: it is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into the eternal fire. 9 And if thine eye causeth thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is good for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into the hell of fire. 10 See that ye despise not one of these little ones: for I say unto you, that in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father who is in heaven. 12 How think ye? if any man have a hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine and go unto the mountains and seek that which goeth astray? 13 And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, he rejoiceth over it more than over the ninety and nine which have not gone astray. 14 Even so it is not the will of your Father who is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.

The desire for honor, like that for gain, when kept within legitimate grounds, has contributed to human progress. But when it degenerates into petty rivalries, burning envies and treacherous duplicities, it becomes a curse to the individual and a menace to good government. The disciples of Jesus were dangerously near this point. Anticipating the speedy establishment of a Kingdom which would rival if not overthrow the Roman Empire, they were in danger of degenerating into a gang of office-seekers. They had even engaged in unseemly dispute over their relative rank in the new kingdom as they followed the Teacher in His return to Capernaum. It bid fair to rival that of a modern political caucus or convention. It was to rebuke this spirit of self-seeking and set before the disciples the true goal that Jesus gave the beautiful object lesson of our study today.

The Way Into the Kingdom. Jesus always puts first things first. "Seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." A question of more importance than the way to greatness is the way into the kingdom. That this truth might be fastened indelibly upon their minds, He took the child as an object lesson. "You are asking how to be great in the kingdom of heaven," He said; "you had better be inquiring how to get in; for except you turn and become as little children, you shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven." In these days of scholastic attainment, material achievement and selfish, worldly ambition, we need this lesson. If the Bible is true some of our so-called cultured and successful men are going to have to face about or miss the privilege of citizenship in the kingdom of God. With the child as a standard, where do you stand? Have you a child's unwavering faith? Have you a child's singleness of purpose and guileless sincerity? To gain these we must turn down pride and selfishness and wilfulness, and turn to Him who is "The way, the truth and the life."

True Greatness—How Attained? The religion of Christ does not stifle ambition, only directs it toward the right goal. It speaks of thrones and crowns. It offers rewards and honors. It points to estates and titles. The kingdom to be established was to offer opportunity for the display of real greatness. Men were not to live upon a common level in it. There were to be mighty men of power and blessing like Paul and Augustine and Luther. It was the means of attaining true greatness that men needed to learn. Again the child was presented as the object lesson. "Whosoever shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven." When the question was up later for discussion among the disciples, Jesus changed the figure to that of a servant, "Whosoever would be first among you shall be your bondservant." The child and the slave, humility and service, these are the qualities that contribute to enduring greatness. The greatest woman of the Nineteenth century was perhaps Frances Willard, whose whole life was spent in the service of humanity. Possibly the greatest woman of this century thus far is Jane Addams, whose life is given unreservedly to the down-trodden and neglected. And when the real Hall of Fame has been erected it will be discovered that every luminous name has found greatness along the path trodden by the feet of the lowly Nazarene.

The Crime Against Childhood. "Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones." We have yet to learn the value of childhood and the criminality of our neglect to safeguard it. We provide food and raiment and kindergartens and schools and congratulate ourselves on the ample provision made for the children of the community. But we leave open pitfalls along our streets in the form of uncensored picture shows, pool rooms, wine rooms, tobacco stores, dance halls, saloons, etc., through whose open doors they are stumbling to ruin in appalling numbers. Almost equally criminal is our failure to make wholesome provisions for our boys and girls in the form of church equipment and playgrounds and to show our interest in them and sympathy for the things that concern them. It were better for some of our church officials and public guardians "That a great millstone should be hanged about their necks, and that they should be sunk in the depth of the sea" than that this wreckage of child-life should go on unchecked.

The Science of Moral Surgery. "If thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off." Modern surgery is proving itself a wonderful boon to our suffering race. A friend of mine who suffered untold agony for years, came through a successful operation and after a few weeks of convalescence was a new woman, freed from pain, renewed in strength. We need to apply the principles of surgery in dealing with the blighting effect of sin. There is the sin of covetousness, of worldliness, of indifference. Like a canker they gnaw into the very hearts of faith and loyalty, and end in spiritual death. They demand heroic treatment today from the pulpit and religious leaders. In many instances nothing but the surgeon's knife of repentance will save the patient, cutting so deeply that purse strings open in large giving, that connections with worldly allurements are severed, that the heart strings are quickened into new action. It was suggested long ago by the prophet, as the only means of saving life, "Turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will you die?"

The Joy of Finding the Lost. There is a peculiar pleasure, known to all, in finding lost things. The article may not be of great intrinsic value, but the fact that it is lost preys upon the mind and disturbs content. Then, in some forgotten drawer or hidden receptacle it is found, and you go about your work with an inexpressible satisfaction. The lost is found. No note more frequently sounded by Jesus in parable than the joy of finding the lost. He tells about lost sheep, lost coins, lost men. He pictures the joy that thrills the heart, and household and community when the lost is found. He applies it to the great task which called Him from the Father's throne. "The Son of man is come to save that which was lost." The enthusiasm of His ministry was born of a burning desire to find lost men and restore them to the Father's service. That they were lost was all He cared to know. When or how or where they went astray He did not inquire, rejoicing only that they were brought to repentance and sending them forth with the injunction, "Go and sin no more." That task He has committed to the men of this class. The worst that can be said of moral reprobates of any type is that they are lost—lost to God. If so, then it should be the duty of every Disciple to seek until they are found; and if we have the spirit of Jesus we will take pleasure in finding morally lost men.

Arrow Points. The first question to be settled is our relationship to the kingdom of God, not our station in it. V. 1. * * * What better example of real greatness than the beauty, the simplicity, the docility and faith of the unspoiled child! V. 4. * * * What are you doing through your example, your sympathy and your provision to help the boys and girls of your neighborhood, and to safeguard them against the devices of Satan? V. 5. * * * We do not need to put stumbling blocks in the way of tender feet to be guilty of offense against childhood; refusal to remove them is sufficient evidence. V. 7. * * * "If you are going to do anything permanent for the average man," says ex-President Roosevelt, "you have got to begin before he is a man. The chance of success lies in working with the boy and not with the man." V. 14.

LESSON 3—DECEMBER 15.

FORGIVENESS.

TEXT—Matt. 18:21-35. GOLDEN TEXT—Eph. 4:32.

21 Then came Peter and said to him, Lord how oft shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? until seven times? 22 Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, Until seven times; but, Until seventy times seven. 23 Therefore is the kingdom of heaven likened unto a certain king, who would make a reckoning with his servants. 24 And when he had begun to reckon, one was brought unto him, that owed him ten thousand talents. 25 But for as much as he had not wherewith to pay, his lord commanded him to be sold, and his wife, and children, and all that he had, and payment to be made. 26 The servant therefore fell down and worshipped him, saying, Lord have patience with me, and I will pay thee all. 27 And the lord of that servant, being moved with compassion, released him, and forgave him the debt. 28 But that servant went out, and found one of his fellow-servants, who owed him a hundred shillings: and he laid hold on him, and took him by the throat, saying, Pay what thou owest. 29 So his fellow servant fell down and besought him, saying, Have patience with me, and I will pay thee. 30 And he would not; but went and cast him into prison, till he should pay that which was due. 31 So when his fellow-servants saw what was done, they were exceeding sorry, and came and told unto their lord all that was done. 32 Then his lord called him unto him, and saith to him, Thou wicked servant, I forgave thee all that debt, because thou besoughtest me: 33 shouldest not thou also have had mercy on thy fellow-servant, even as I had mercy on thee? 34 And his lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors till he should pay all that was due. 35 So shall also my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye forgive not every one his brother from your hearts.

man's unkindliness to his fellow man and his unforgiving nature. But the disposition to quarrelsomeness is not confined to the unregenerate. Jesus' disciples quarreled, and respectable church members sometimes quarrel today. How people who are constantly trespassing upon each other's rights and privileges can live together in peace and unity is the problem to which Jesus addresses Himself in the text of this lesson. It is summed up in one word, "forgiveness."

A Problem in Moral Arithmetic. "How oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him?" Peter's problem is a practical one for us all. We live amongst people whose shortcomings and peculiarities try our temper and test our souls. Patience and forbearance are sometimes worn threadbare. If only once or even seven times, some wrong is done us, we might continue to manifest a forgiving spirit. But how few even of the best of us who profess to follow in His steps, are able to forgive beyond the limit set by Peter. Imagine the surprise of hot-headed Peter when the answer comes back, "I say not unto thee, until seven times; but until seventy times seven." What Jesus meant to teach Peter and still means to teach us is, that the spirit of forgiveness knows no limits. It lifts the subject out of the legal sphere into the evangelistic, times without number. It means that we are to forgive as many times as we are sinned against. In no other way can we interpret this petition of the Lord's prayer: "After this manner pray ye. * * * Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors." For our own sins we ask the Father for daily forgiveness. We can only prove the sincerity of our prayer and enjoy the consciousness of Divine pardon, by manifesting the same forgiving spirit toward those who wrong us.

The art of living together is still so difficult that it may be classed as one of the fine arts. Our over-crowded police courts, civil courts and divorce courts, bear startling testimony to

The Principle of Forgiveness. Jesus uses concrete examples to teach great truths. Imprisonment for debt was the common penalty of that day. If friends could not be found who would pay the debt and secure his release, the debtor might be sold into perpetual slavery. In the parable, the king's debtor owes, reckoning roughly, ten million dollars. Brought face to face with this tremendous financial obligation, he had nothing to pay. The only alternative was imprisonment. But in the face of threatened calamity, in response to his earnest entreaty, the entire debt is cancelled. That, says Jesus, is forgiveness. In that scene He has presented a picture of each of us. We are hopelessly in debt to God and we have nothing to pay. The day of reckoning is sure to come, at which "Every transgression and disobedience shall receive a just recompense of reward." The problem of the ages has been, how to meet the debt and escape its certain doom. Every pagan religion, every bloody sacrifice, every degrading act of worship is an attempted solution. The earthly mission of Jesus was to assure man of the Father's forgiving love and to cancel the debt on the easy terms of our accepting the offered pardon. The debt we never could pay, but pardon is freely granted us for His name's sake.

The Principle Violated. The closing scene of this parable seems incredible. One would expect that a man released from the penalty and the obligation of such a crushing weight of debt, would henceforth give his life to helping those with lesser burdens. Instead, finding one who owed him but a few paltry dollars, he refused to heed the cry for mercy, but brutally thrust him into prison. Incredible as it seems, that scene is enacted every day, perhaps by some in this Bible class. God has forgiven your debts. Their greatness defies computation. But, through Christ He has forgiven all. On the other hand, some one has wronged you, or slighted you or injured you, and you go around harboring your grudge, or seeking revenge, or trying to get even, and acting precisely like this forgiven debtor in his heartless treatment of his fellow servant. Nearly every ugly old sore that is cursing the church today is the result of just that kind of spirit. If tonight you were to pray, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors" and really mean it, tomorrow you and Brother Brown would have a love feast over the grave of that old grudge, and the church in your neighborhood would have a revival without the aid of some spell-binding evangelist.

The Fate of the Unforgiving. The most becoming sentence of condemnation ever pronounced by Jesus was against the unforgiving spirit. "So shall my heavenly Father do unto you," He said, "if ye forgive not every one his brother from your hearts." The king's debtor had forfeited his right to royal clemency by his harsh treatment of his fellow servant. "Shouldst not thou also have had mercy on thy fellow-servant, even as I had mercy on thee?" It was an act of wickedness that called for the severest punishment. The ten million-dollar debt might have been due to misfortune, and therefore came within the province of the king's forgiveness. But his treatment of his fellow-servant was an act of hard-hearted, hypocritical, inexcusable baseness. Mercy must now give place to the stern demands of the law. Nothing remained but to deliver him "to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due." There is no mistaking the meaning of this parable. It is simply this, that for the unforgiving heart there is no hope of forgiveness. "If ye forgive not men their trespasses neither will your Father forgive your trespasses."

Arrow Points. If we even came up to Peter's standard, with a sevenfold forgiveness, the millenium would begin in our strife-cursed churches. V. 21. * * * When we love men as God loves them, the only limit to our forgiveness will be the barrier which their refusal to accept rears. V. 22. * * * The parable of the unmerciful servant represents the greatness of man's sin against God, as compared with his sin against man. V. 23. * * * Measured by our neglects and shortcomings and wilful transgressions, we are hopelessly in debt to God. V. 24.

LESSON 4—DECEMBER 22.

THE PRINCE OF PEACE.

TEXT—Isa. 9:1-7. GOLDEN TEXT—Isa. 9:6.

1 But there shall be no gloom to her that was in anguish. In the former time he brought to contempt the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali; but in the latter time hath he made it glorious, by the way of the sea, beyond the Jordan. Galilee of the nations. The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light: they that dwelt in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined. 3 Thou has multiplied the nation, thou hast increased their joy; they joy before thee according to the joy in harvest, as men rejoice when they divide the spoil. 4 For the yoke of his burden, and the staff of his oppressor, the rod of his oppressor, thou hast broken as in the day of Midian. 5 For all the armor of the armed man in the tumult, and the garments rolled in blood, shall be for burning, for fuel of fire. 6 For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. 7 Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even forever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this.

We have been studying, during the past year, the Christ of history. It is well for us to close the year with a glance at the Christ of prophecy. It is fitting at this Christmas season that we consider one of the vivid prophetic utterances associated with the birth of the Child, who has reigned through these centuries as "the Prince of Peace." The picture was drawn by prophetic pen seven hundred years before the birth of Jesus at Bethlehem. It was probably given expression during the reign of Ahaz. It was an outburst of Messianic hope in a period of sin, darkness and desolation into which this wicked king had brought his people. By that hope, the people of God were sustained through many vicissitudes, always looking forward expectantly to its realization.

The Morning Dawn of Hope. "The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light." It is said to be darkest just before the first gray streak of dawn appears. This has often been true in human experience. When everything has looked hopeless, some herald of God from the mountain peak of vision has announced the dawning of a better day. It was at one of the darkest periods of Jewish history that Isaiah stood with his face to the dawn and became the prophet of hope. The Assyrians had overrun the northern kingdom of Israel. The gloom of war clouds and the fury of the devastating storm was raging on every hand. Though it was 700 years before sunrise and 2,600 years before our day of marvelous blessing, Isaiah saw the Morning Star and foretold the coming and triumph of a new kingdom that should fill the earth with peace and gladness. That there are still dark shadows cast upon the earth by sin and oppression is no reason for discouragement. So much of the prophet's vision has been realized through these centuries of Christian progress, so much has been done within the first decade of the Twentieth century, that it no longer requires a prophet's vision to foresee the ultimate triumph of the Prince of Peace.

The Deliverance Predicted. "For thou hast broken the yoke of his burden." It was not merely a change of rulers that Isaiah foretold, but release from oppression. The rise and fall of dynasties meant little or nothing to the people; for the new master was usually as oppressive as the old. It was release from tyrannical bondage that men longed for, and it was this that the prophet predicted in the weird language of the text. The yoke, the staff, the rod, all instruments of oppression were to be broken, and along with the implements and blood-stained garments of the warrior, were to be made fuel for a consuming fire, that would leave a regenerated world where liberty and justice should reign. How beautifully Christ took up the prophet's note in His own ministry and message, preaching deliverance to captive, and inviting the overburdened, weary toilers of earth to come to Him and find rest. And how fully the prophet's prediction and Christ's promises have been realized by those who have really taken the Master at His word and become true yoke-fellows. The oppressor still exists, but the mightiest agencies of our day are working together to deliver men from bondage.

The Child of Destiny. "Unto us a Child is born." There is no more thrilling note in the Old Testament than this prophetic picture of the Christ-child and His title to the world's respect and allegiance. Accompanied with the chorus of the welcoming angels "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace and good will to men," it has filled the world with new cheer. Today we honor the child Jesus in song and expressions of good cheer. But how many there are who pause at the manger but forget the rest of the prophetic vision who honor Him on Christmas and refuse to recognize Him the rest of the year. It was not merely that a child was born that led to the prophetic utterance, but because of His exalted rule among men. "The government shall be upon his shoulder." It is not as the babe in the manger that He asks our allegiance, but as the King of kings, the one to whom belongs all authority in heaven and in earth. To Him has been given a name that is above every name, "Wonderful, Counsellor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace." He only truly keeps Christmas who yields his heart allegiance to Jesus.

The Everlasting Kingdom. "Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end." No prophecy has ever met with such marvelous fulfillment. After two thousand years of storm and strife and bitter opposition, it is the mightiest force in the world. The church has not only survived the attacks of its enemies and the perfidy of its friends, but is stronger numerically and spiritually today than ever before. More Bibles were printed last year, more money was given last year, more missionaries were at work last year, more converts were won last year, than in any year since the reign of Christ began. Well may we accept the prophet's prediction that "It shall be established with judgment and with righteousness from henceforth even for ever."

Arrow Points. It is well that Christmas comes at least once a year, or some people would forget that such a person as Jesus was ever born in the world. * * * What radiance has shone from the Star of Bethlehem today sending its light into the darkest corners of the earth. V. 2. * * * The note of joy that is nearest universal is that first heard by the shepherds of Bethlehem, now sung around the world by untold millions who have found deliverance through the Gospel of Jesus. V. 3. * * * "For more than 2,500 years the three religions have had their chance in China, and she slept. One hundred years ago the Protestant Gospel was carried to China and during that short time she awoke and is making more rapid progress, materially, intellectually, governmentally, and spiritually than any country has ever made at any time in the history of the world."—Professor Headland. V. 7. * * *

LESSON 5—DECEMBER 29.

REVIEW.

GOLDEN TEXT—John 7:17.

We have spent a delightful year together. No greater subject has ever commanded the attention of a group of men than that we have been considering—the life and mission and influence of Jesus of Nazareth. We pause at the very climax of His earthly career. It is unfortunate that in the plan of the lesson committee we were not permitted to follow Him through another year to the end. But while we shall be a sense part company with Him in the Bible class, it will be our privilege to enjoy His companionship every day as we seek to work out, under the guidance of His spirit, the problem of our own lives. As we look backward through the studies of the year, there are high points in the life of Jesus we would keep fresh in mind.

The Story of the Nativity. The events that cluster around the infancy of Jesus will always command the interest and adoration of men. So long as we delight in the beauty and simplicity of childhood, we shall feel the thrill of the story of the child Jesus. Miraculously conceived, humbly born, sublimely heralded by angels, adored by shepherds, praised by saints, honored by wise men and hated by Herod, the child of Bethlehem has changed the attitude of the world toward infancy and youth, and has brought to us a realization of the sacredness of our trust as parents. It only remains for its fuller influence to awaken and deepen our concern for all youth, others as well as our own, until every instrument that blights and curses child-life is removed. May we ever become so strong and stern in our manhood that the memory of the Christ-child may not make us tender and helpful in our relation to little children.

The Years of Preparation. What a lesson in the years of obscurity and toil at Nazareth for the young man battling with poverty and adversity today. "Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered." The preparation which these years brought Him was three-fold. First was the discipline of home and work. We are told that He was "subject unto his parents," and that this was the path of toil as a carpenter. Secondly, there was the spiritual preparation at His baptism, the anointing of the Holy Spirit with the assurance of the Father's approval. Thirdly, He was tested by all the forces that His world of sin could devise. "Tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin." What a tower of strength He has been to us tempted men. When all the forces of evil within us and about us have conspired to our undoing, and we have stood wavering on the brink of some moral pitfall, we have felt the influence of this young man in His triumph over temptation, and have been strengthened for resistance.

The Beginning of the Ministry. The path to recognition has always been slow. New truth seldom finds ready acceptance. A whole year of Jesus' public career passed with scarcely a ripple of interest. So barren was this year of achievement that the synoptic Gospels have passed it by with scarcely a mention. Though He taught, men refused to turn aside to hear Him. Though His power was manifest as occasion presented itself, friends lacked faith to bring their sick to Him. A small company recognized Him, believed in Him and followed Him, and out of this group He selected the twelve, whose names are ever to be associated with His and who were to bear His message to the world. It was the splendid triumph of a year to have found and attached to Himself such a company who, with a single exception, were faithful unto death. To have formed such friendships would be worthy of the best year of any man's life.

His Fame as a Teacher. It is difficult to tell which first won Him popular favor, teaching or healing. The story tells us that He taught and healed. But He began by preaching, saying, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." It was a new note. It touched the heart-need of the masses. It was a living message, thrilling with human interest. As a result, we are told, "The common people heard Him gladly." Scholars asked, "Whence hath this man this wisdom, having never learned?" Officials declared, "Never man spake like this man." And all joined in saying, "We never heard it in this like before." And twenty centuries bear testimony to the excellence and beauty and helpfulness of His message. The Sermon on the Mount, the parables of the Kingdom and His discourse on the Judgment will always remain unrivaled in the world's literature.

His Matchless Power. Perhaps the profoundest impression of Jesus' ministry on the multitude that thronged Him were his miracles. These group themselves in three classes, miracles of healing, miracles of raising and nature miracles. By far the larger group were miracles of healing, including all classes of disease, physical and mental, and He healed them all. The manifestation of His power in raising the dead is only thrice recorded, but there is reason to believe that this was not the limit. Perhaps the wildest enthusiasm was created by His nature miracles, turning water into wine, calming the sea, feeding the multitude. But all these pale before the later miracle of His own triumph over the grave. If we accept the resurrection, we need not stumble at a single other recorded miracle, but with Thomas must say as we lay down the Gospel story, "My Lord and my God."

LESSON 1—JANUARY 5, 1913.

THE CREATION.

TEXT—Gen. 1:1-31. GOLDEN TEXT—Gen. 1:1.

1 In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. 2 And the earth was waste and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep: and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. 3 And God said, Let there be light: and there was light. 4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness. 5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And there was evening and there was morning, one day.

6 And God said, Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters. 7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament from the waters which were above the firmament; and it was so.

9 And God said, Let the waters under the heavens be gathered together unto one place and let the dry land appear: and it was so. 10 And God called the dry land Earth; and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas; and God saw that it was good.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, herbs yielding seed after their kind, and trees bearing fruit, wherein is the seed thereof, after their kind: and God saw that it was good.

16 And God made the two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made the stars also.

21 And God created the great sea-monsters, and every living creature that moveth, where-with the waters swarmed, after their kind, and every winged bird after its kind: and God saw that it was good.

25 And God made the beasts of the earth after their kind, and the cattle after their kind, and everything that creepeth upon the ground after its kind: and God saw that it was good.

27 And God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him: male and female created he them.

The story of creation as recorded in Genesis still presents to the race the sublimest and most satisfying account of our material world. The science of geology has modified our interpretations, the theory of evolution has changed some of our ideas as to God's method of doing things, knowledge of astronomy has vastly increased our conception of the magnitude of creative energy; but in the light of modern investigation and discovery the story of the Old Book in its outline remains undimmed. The men of widest learning have come back from their explorations and speculations to acknowledge their indebtedness to Genesis and to declare their unwavering faith in a supreme intelligent Creator. "Scientific thought," says Lord Kelvin, "is compelled to accept the idea of Creative Power;" and along with him has stood Agassiz, Herschel, Romanes and the greatest living thinkers. "It is the little knowledge," as Bacon expressed it, "that leads to Atheism, the deeper knowledge which leads you back to God."

In the Beginning. Genesis is a book of beginnings, the beginning of creation, the beginning of revelation, the beginning of a chosen people; but its greatest message to us is "in the beginning God created." When that beginning was, it does not say. A Catholic Bishop worked out a system of chronology that fixed the beginning at a little more than six thousand years ago. For generations that date was unquestioned. But geology has shown that this is an old, old earth. Drawing its conclusions from formations and erosions and changes, it lengthens out the creative period through millions of years. In this it does not contradict or disprove the account in Genesis, for the Bible says, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." Its lesson to us is that the universe was not self-originating or the result of blind force, but the splendid triumph of an intelligent Creator. "In the beginning God." How beautifully the Psalmist puts this essential truth: "Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, from everlasting to everlasting thou art God."

The Order of Creation. The Bible names six creative periods, leading up through countless ages of preparation until it reached its climax in the appearance of man upon the scene, as the completest product of Divine wisdom and love. Here again science and the Bible march hand in hand. The Bible says the work of creation went on through various stages from a period when "the earth was without form and void" until it was fit for the nourishing of life. Science has revealed for us the same story in its study of the earth's surface and its formations. The Bible announces first the appearance of plant life. Science confirms its testimony in the coal measures and fossils far beneath the present surface of the earth. The Bible represents the creation of birds, fishes and reptiles as the earliest forms of animal life. Science has discovered the remains of these, in many species now extinct, in a geological period anterior to the animal life in its higher order. The Bible mentions the creation of "cattle and beasts of the earth" as the triumph of the sixth creative period, and crowns it with the creation of man. "So God created man in his own image." Science shows the same order to be true as revealed in the story of the rocks. Whether you accept the theory of evolution that each new order represents the advancing stages of natural development or that they mark distinct creative periods, the creative order of the Bible remains unquestioned.

The Origin of Life. It was a great day when life appeared on our dead world. Science has been unable to account for it without the testimony of Revelation. For a time the theory of spontaneous generation was held, then discarded. Life was found to come only from life. Whence its origin? The Bible alone answers. "God said, Let the earth bring forth grass and herb." "Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creature that hath life." "Let the earth bring forth the living creature." "Let us make man in our own image." In no other way can we account for the appearance of life on this sphere. Science as well as religion must go back to the Bible with its declaration of a God-implanted life as its working basis. Granted that life came from God, our little theories of the methods of its operation do not amount to much. The truth that meets and satisfies our intellectual and spiritual needs is that "in Him was life and the life was the light of men."

The World Beautiful. "God saw that it was good." Some of us have looked out on life with such distorted vision that we have failed to appreciate the beauty of the world which God made and pronounced the perfection of creation. Why not rather cultivate a love for the beautiful and appreciate it in the handiwork of God? For nature as we see it is but another expression of the thought and love of the Creator. We may well learn the lesson of this little poem by Dr. Maltbie Babcock:

"What is it that you see, my child?" said I.
 "The moon so beautiful," was his reply.
 "But tell me what the moon is. Do you know?"
 "It's beautiful," he said—his face aglow.

O God, I pray Thee for the childlike heart
 That can enjoy—all vexing thoughts apart—
 The beauties Thou in heaven and earth dost show,
 Nor fret myself with things I do not know.

Arrow Points. The man who puts God in the beginning where He rightfully belongs will be able easily to dispose of his doubts and fears as they from time to time arise. V. 1.  Not until this world-house was completed and beautified and supplied did God invite man to occupy it. V. 2.  I wonder if we ever think to thank God for light as we look out upon the splendor of the rising sun, or do we go down to breakfast grumbling that our morning nap has been disturbed? V. 16.  What a treasure-house for man God has prepared, filled with everything that meets man's necessities and contributes to his happiness. V. 25.  What would all this world of life and beauty have amounted to without man to use and enjoy it, and what is man without a God to whom he can go for succor in time of need? V. 27.

Missouri Pacific—Iron Mountain

“The Line with the Service”

5 Trains Daily to St. Louis

6:55 A.M., 9:55 A.M., 1:15 P.M., 9:15 P.M. and 11:30 P.M.

3 Trains Daily to Omaha

9:45 A.M., 1:55 P.M. and 10:35 P.M.

3 Trains Daily to Ft. Smith, Little Rock and Hot Springs

9:30 A.M., 6:20 P.M. and 9:50 P.M.

2 Trains Daily to Pueblo, Denver and Pacific Coast

8:30 A.M. and 6:00 P.M.

2 Trains Daily to Joplin and Carthage

10:10 A.M. and 11:45 P.M.

2 Trains Daily to Wichita

9:30 A.M. and 9:50 P.M.

Electric Lighted Equipment—“Our Own Dining Cars” Better Track—Better Service

Tickets and Information

901 Main Street, Kansas City, Mo.

Union Depot, Kansas City, Mo.

Missouri Pacific Depot, Kansas City, Kan.

Telephones: Bell, Main 6740; Home, Main 6327

R. T. G. MATTHEWS,

Assistant General Passenger Agent

MISSOURI
PACIFIC
IRON MOUNTAIN

^C^H er Year 50 Cents

Per Copy 10 Cents

Ministerial Relief

Volume 8

KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, NOVEMBER-DECEMBER, 1912

Number 3

WILLIAM ROBINSON WARREN

MINISTERIAL RELIEF NUMBER

Brotherhood Publications

A Covenant For Covenanters

This is a card containing on one side a Covenant to be taken only by those who are willing to pay the price of success. In every Brotherhood a few men may be found who will enter into such definite and close relationship. On the other side of the card is a statement of the National President in regard to this Covenant. These will be furnished free on application. Order Form 119.

The Brotherhood Covenant, to be held up as the ideal to all men in your Chapter. Form 52. Price, 50c per 100.

Announcement Cards. Contains notice of time and place of meetings of Local Chapters. Printed in colors; very attractive. Form 102. Price, 50c per 100.

Brotherhood Bible Class Cards. Labeled "Want to See You Sunday at the Brotherhood Bible Class." Printed in colors; very attractive. Form 103. Price, 50c per 100.

Put Me Down Cards. Assist in securing subscribers to CHRISTIAN MEN Magazine. Form 63. Will be furnished free on request.

Christian Men Magazine, the official organ of this Movement. A journal of information and inspiration filled to the brim with up-to-the-minute articles relating to church work among men. Subscription price, 50c per year. In clubs of ten, 35c per year. In clubs of twenty, 25c per year in advance. CHRISTIAN MEN contains International Uniform Bible School Lessons with comments, by Thomas W. Grafton. A department of Social Service will soon be added. CHRISTIAN MEN may be ordered for the Men's Bible Class the same as any other Bible School literature, all to one address, payable quarterly.

Brotherhood Ritual and Studies. Bulletin No. 15, arranged by J. O. Boyd, Keokuk, Iowa. An interesting and highly instructive form of service for Local Chapters. A 16-page bulletin. Per copy, 5 cents. Per dozen, 50 cents. Per hundred, $3.00.

The Thing Wonderful. Tract No. 1, by Vaughan Dabney. An 8-page bulletin on how the Brotherhood Movement works in a small city church. Copies of this bulletin will be furnished free upon application.

One Hundred and Eighty Things for Brotherhoods to Do. Tract No. 2. Filled to the brim with items of work for Men's Bible Classes and Brotherhoods, separated according to Missionary, Religious Work, Social Service, Boys' Work, Educational, Fraternal, Local Church Work, and other Departments. A 12-page bulletin. Single copies, 5 cents. Per hundred, $2.00.

How to Organize a Brotherhood Class. Bulletin No. 3. Story of the great Men's Bible Class at Nelsonville, Ohio. A very interesting and instructive bulletin. Price, 5 cents. Per hundred, $4.00.

A Brief History of the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ. Bulletin No. 4. Free upon application.

Model Constitution, By-Laws and Suggestions for Local Chapters. A good set of working rules for Local Brotherhoods and Men's Bible Classes. Per copy, 5 cents. Ten or more, 2 cents each.

The Brotherhood Movement a Definite Task, by C. M. Chilton, National Director. An address delivered by Mr. Chilton containing the elements of success in any working group of men in any church. The demand for this address was so great that a second edition was necessary. A 12-page bulletin. Price, $1.00 per one hundred.

How to Organize a Local Brotherhood. Bulletin No. 6. In three parts: 1, Organization; 2, Operation; 3, Maintenance. A handy book in the beginning. Tells how to choose your officers and contains some highly suggestive matter for officers and committee men. You will want this bulletin in advance of any others. Price, 5 cents per copy.

Reasons for Affiliating. Bulletin No. 7. A 24-page bulletin written by 200 ministers and Brotherhood men from throughout the country, giving reasons why their men affiliated with the National Brotherhood Movement. Furnished free on application.

How a Brotherhood Helped a Prayer-Meeting. Bulletin No. 8. Suggestive statement by R. A. Long, worthy of careful and prayerful consideration. Copies furnished free upon application.

Men for the Ministry. Bulletin No. 10. Sermon Outlines, by E. L. Powell, George H. Combs, and J. W. McGarvey. Of special value to ministers. Free upon application.

Program of Work for Boys. Bulletin No. 11. Contains a workable plan for boys' work throughout the church. The demand for this bulletin was so great that a second edition has now been published. Copies furnished free upon application.

Reasons Why. Bulletin No. 13. A questionnaire for Men's Bible Classes, Brotherhoods and Men's Organizations not yet identified with the work of the National Movement. A joint bulletin published jointly by the Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ and the Bible School Department of the American Christian Missionary Society.

Service Programs for Organized Men's Bible Classes, Brotherhoods and Men's Organizations. Bulletin No. 12. Re-issued February of each year. Contains programs for the following year. Prepared by the Brotherhood Movement, assisted by the Secretaries of our National Missionary Societies and State and District Bible School Superintendents. Distributed without cost.

The Brotherhood Movement—What Is It? Bulletin No. 14. A questionnaire explanatory of the Brotherhood Movement. 20,000 copies circulated in 1912. Furnished without cost upon application.

Order from Brotherhood of Disciples of Christ, R. A. Long Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

The Royal Gorge

See America First

Denver & Rio Grande-
Western Pacific

"The Royal Gorge-Feather River Canon Route"

Over the Rockies
By the Great Salt Lake
Through the Sierras
To the Golden Gate

Offers the Trans-Continental Traveler more varied Scenic Attractions that can be seen from the car windows without extra expense for side trips, than any other line.

SERVICE "BEST IN THE WEST"

Through Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars between Denver, Salt Lake City, Ogden, San Francisco and other Pacific Coast Points Every Day in the year.

For Illustrated Descriptive Pamphlets, write

FRANK A. WADLEIGH,

General Passenger Agent
Denver & Rio Grande Railroad

Denver, Colo., Dept. 233

Good Money Refused

A CONCERN bought this space to advertise a fake proposition. On the face of it, the copy looked good. Cash was sent with the order. In line with our usual custom, we investigated the concern and found it of questionable merit. We therefore

REFUSED THE MONEY

Did we do right or wrong?

Yours for Clean Advertising,
THE ADVERTISING MANAGER

OKLAHOMA Christian University

ENID, OKLAHOMA

A Growing School With a Remarkable Record

Good Buildings—New, Modern and Well Furnished, Beautiful Sight,
Healthful Location.

Well Equipped Faculty. Large and Mature Student Body.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

College of Liberal Arts, The Bible School,
School of Education, University High School, School of Fine Arts, Piano, Voice, Violin, Oratory, Art, School of Business, University Hospital and Training School.

Write the Registrar, Oklahoma Christian University, Enid, Oklahoma, for Catalogue or any Desired information.

COMING AND GOING

To the East, West, North and South

The "Chicago and Alton R. R."

IS

"The Only Way"

Train Service, equipment and road bed unsurpassed.

For full particulars as to train time, rates and sleeping car reservations, please address

R. J. McKAY

General Passenger Agent,
Chicago, Illinois

W. H. ABEL

Assistant General Passenger Agent,
Kansas City, Missouri

Please mention CHRISTIAN MEN when corresponding with advertisers

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS-URBANA
289.205 CHR C001 v.3-8
Christian men.

3 0112 087649890